30:1-2 Achish had given Ziklag to David in 27:5-6.

30:6-8 Unlike Saul (see the note on 28:7-19), David sought God when he was in difficulty. When his men were considering stoning him because their families had been kidnapped, David found strength in the LORD his God and sought his guidance.

30:16-25 Having received God's guidance (v. 8), David defeated the Amalekites and recovered everything the Amalekites had taken. Despite some initial opposition (vv. 21-22), the plunder was shared equally between those who had gone into battle and those who stayed behind because of exhaustion (see also vv. 9-10). David did not want dissension over what the LORD [had] given and declared that the share of the one who goes into battle is to be the same as the share of the one who remains with the supplies (see also vv. 25-31).

THE DEATH OF SAUL AND HIS SONS

31 The Philistines fought against Israel, † and Israel's men fled from them and were killed on Mount Gilboa. † 2 The Philistines pursued Saul and his sons and killed his sons, Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malchishua. 3 When the battle intensified against Saul, † the archers found him and severely wounded him. † 4 Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, † "Draw your sword and run me through with it, or these uncircumcised men † will come and run me through and torture me! " But his armor-bearer would not do it because he was terrified. Then Saul took his sword and fell on it. † 5 When his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his own sword and died with him. 6 So on that day, Saul died together with his three sons, his armor-bearer, and all his men.

7 When the men of Israel on the other side of the valley and on the other side of the Jordan saw that Israel's men had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned the cities and fled. So the Philistines came and settled in them.
8 The next day when the Philistines came to strip the slain, they found Saul and his three sons dead on Mount Gilboa. 9 They cut off Saul's head, stripped off his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to spread the good news † in the temples of their idols † and among the people. 10 Then they put his armor in the temple of the Ashtoreths † and hung his body † on the wall of Beth-shan. †
11 When the residents of Jabesh-gilead † heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 all their brave men † set out, journeyed all night, and retrieved the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan. When they arrived at Jabesh, they burned the bodies there. † 13 Afterward, they took their bones and buried them under the tamarisk tree † in Jabesh † and fasted seven days.

31:1-4 As Samuel had predicted (28:19), Israel was defeated by the Philistines, and three of Saul's sons were killed. Saul was wounded by an arrow and ultimately committed suicide (vv. 3-4). His self-destruction was complete.

31:9-10 The Philistines' proclamation of the good news of their victory in the temples of their idols and their placement of Saul's armor in the temple of the Ashtoreths recalls their placement of the ark in the temple of Dagon (see the note on 5:1-5). Regarding "the Ashtoreths," see the note on Judges 3:7-11.

INTRODUCTION

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

God is sovereign in carrying out his kingdom plans. His unconditional covenant with undeserving David (chap. 7) is as magnificent as his covenant with Abraham. This book also says a great deal about approaching God in worship. He desires the worship of his people, but only in the ways he has revealed, as the material about the ark of the covenant emphasizes.

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

Second Samuel throws the spotlight on one individual, David, who modeled magnificently that humans can accomplish great tasks for God when their hearts are passionately turned to pleasing him. On the other hand, David's sins and failures show that redeemed humans still must deal with the effects of the fall in their lives.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

The account of David's adultery, Nathan's confrontation with the king, and David's subsequent repentance and restoration stand as a profound paradigm of salvation. The following exchange distills the message of redemption even today: "David responded to Nathan, 'I have sinned against the LORD.' Then Nathan replied to David, 'And the LORD has taken away your sin; you will not die'" (12:13). David's reflection on this experience, Psalm 51, stands unsurpassed in Scripture on the relationship between confession of sin and divine forgiveness.

RESPONSES TO SAUL'S DEATH

1 After the death of Saul,† David returned from defeating the Amalekites† and stayed at Ziklag two days. 2 On the third day a man with torn clothes and dust on his head † came from Saul's camp. When he came to David, he fell to the ground and paid homage. 3 David asked him, "Where have you come from? "

He replied to him, "I've escaped from the Israelite camp."
4 "What was the outcome? Tell me," David asked him.
"The troops fled from the battle," he answered. "Many of the troops have fallen and are dead. Also, Saul and his son Jonathan are dead." †
5 David asked the young man who had brought him the report, "How do you know Saul and his son Jonathan are dead? "
6 "I happened to be on Mount Gilboa," † he replied, "and there was Saul, leaning on his spear. At that very moment the chariots and the cavalry were closing in on him. 7 When he turned around and saw me, he called out to me, so I answered: I'm at your service. 8 He asked me, 'Who are you? ' I told him: I'm an Amalekite. † 9 Then he begged me, 'Stand over me and kill me, for I'm mortally wounded, † but my life still lingers.' † 10 So I stood over him and killed him because I knew that after he had fallen he couldn't survive. I took the crown that was on his head and the armband that was on his arm, and I've brought them here to my lord."
11 Then David took hold of his clothes and tore them, † and all the men with him did the same. 12 They mourned, wept, and fasted until the evening † for those who died by the sword — for Saul, his son Jonathan, the LORD's people, and the house of Israel.
13 David inquired of the young man who had brought him the report, "Where are you from? "
"I'm the son of a resident alien," he said. "I'm an Amalekite."
14 David questioned him, "How is it that you were not afraid to lift your hand to destroy the LORD's anointed? " † 15 Then David summoned one of his servants and said, "Come here and kill him! " The servant struck him, and he died. †
16 For David had said to the Amalekite, "Your blood is on your own head † because your own mouth testified against you by saying, 'I killed the LORD's anointed.' " 17 David sang the following lament † for Saul and his son Jonathan, 18 and he ordered that the Judahites be taught The Song of the Bow. It is written in the Book of Jashar: † †

19 The splendor of Israel lies slain on your heights.
How the mighty have fallen!
20 Do not tell it in Gath, don't announce it in the marketplaces of Ashkelon, or the daughters of the Philistines will rejoice, † and the daughters of the uncircumcised will celebrate.
21 Mountains of Gilboa, let no dew or rain be on you, or fields of offerings, † for there the shield of the mighty was defiled † — the shield of Saul, no longer anointed with oil. † 22 Jonathan's bow never retreated, Saul's sword never returned unstained, † from the blood of the slain, from the flesh † of the mighty.
23 Saul and Jonathan, loved and delightful, they were not parted in life or in death.
They were swifter than eagles, stronger than lions.
24 Daughters of Israel, weep for Saul, who clothed you in scarlet, with luxurious things, who decked your garments with gold ornaments. †
25 How the mighty have fallen in the thick of battle!
Jonathan lies slain on your heights.
26 I grieve for you, Jonathan, my brother.
You were such a friend to me.
Your love for me was more wondrous than the love of women. †
27 How the mighty have fallen and the weapons of war have perished!

1:1 2 Samuel continues where 1 Samuel left off, with Saul's death.

1:6-16 This Amalekite probably thought that he would be rewarded for bringing news of Saul's death (vv. 6-10). Instead, the Amalekite was put to death by David because of his false testimony (cp. 31:3-4) that he had killed the LORD's anointed. David's respect for Saul and for the LORD's anointed continued to the end (see 1Sm 24:5; 26:9).

1:17 David's lament for Saul and his son Jonathan demonstrated his grief over them and confirms his innocence with respect to Saul's death (see vv. 19-24).

1:18 The Hebrew text translated The Song of the Bow consists only of the Hebrew word for "bow." As such, it is difficult to interpret and has been variously translated. Regarding the Book of Jashar, see the note on Joshua 10:8-15.

1:26 David grieved especially for Jonathan, whom he called his brother and friend. Jonathan had loved David "as much as he loved himself" (1Sm 18:1), and the two had made a covenant between them three times (1Sm 18:3; 20:16; 23:18).

DAVID, KING OF JUDAH

2 Some time later, David inquired of the LORD: † "Should I go to one of the towns of Judah? "
The LORD answered him, "Go."
Then David asked, "Where should I go? "
"To Hebron," † the LORD replied.
2 So David went there with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelite and Abigail, the widow of Nabal the Carmelite. † 3 In addition, David brought the men who were with him, each one with his family, and they settled in the towns near Hebron. † 4 Then the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah. † They told David: "It was the men of Jabesh-gilead who buried Saul." †
5 David sent messengers to the men of Jabesh-gilead and said to them, "The LORD bless you, because you have shown this kindness to Saul your lord when you buried him. 6 Now, may the LORD show kindness and faithfulness to you, and I will also show the same goodness to you because you have done this deed. 7 Therefore, be strong † and valiant, for though Saul your lord is dead, the house of Judah has anointed me king over them."
8 Abner son of Ner, commander of Saul's army, † took Saul's son Ish-bosheth † † and moved him to Mahanaim. 9 He made him king over Gilead, Asher, Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin — over all Israel. 10 Saul's son Ish-bosheth was forty years old when he became king over Israel; he reigned for two years.

The house of Judah, however, followed David. 11 The length of time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months. †
12 Abner son of Ner and soldiers of Ish-bosheth son of Saul marched out from Mahanaim to Gibeon. 13 So Joab son of Zeruiah and David's soldiers marched out and met them by the pool of Gibeon. † The two groups took up positions on opposite sides of the pool.
14 Then Abner said to Joab, "Let's have the young men get up and compete in front of us."
"Let them get up," Joab replied.
15 So they got up and were counted off — twelve for Benjamin and Ish-bosheth son of Saul, and twelve from David's soldiers. 16 Then each man grabbed his opponent by the head and thrust his sword into his opponent's side so that they all died together. So this place, which is in Gibeon, is named Field of Blades. †
17 The battle that day was extremely fierce, and Abner and the men of Israel were defeated by David's soldiers. 18 The three sons of Zeruiah were there: Joab, Abishai, and Asahel. † Asahel was a fast runner, like one of the wild gazelles. † 19 He chased Abner and did not turn to the right or the left in his pursuit of him. 20 Abner glanced back and said, "Is that you, Asahel? "
"Yes it is," Asahel replied.
21 Abner said to him, "Turn to your right or left, seize one of the young soldiers, and take whatever you can get from him." But Asahel would not stop chasing him. 22 Once again, Abner warned Asahel, "Stop chasing me. Why should I strike you to the ground? How could I ever look your brother Joab in the face? " †
23 But Asahel refused to turn away, so Abner hit him in the stomach with the butt of his spear. The spear went through his body, and he fell and died right there. As they all came to the place where Asahel had fallen and died, they stopped, 24 but Joab and Abishai pursued Abner. By sunset, they had gone as far as the hill of Ammah, which is opposite Giah on the way to the wilderness of Gibeon.
25 The Benjaminites rallied to Abner; they formed a unit and took their stand on top of a hill. 26 Then Abner called out to Joab: "Must the sword devour forever?

Don’t you realize this will only end in bitterness? How long before you tell the troops to stop pursuing their brothers? ”
27 “As God lives,” Joab replied, “if you had not spoken up, the troops wouldn’t have stopped pursuing their brothers until morning.” † 28 Then Joab blew the ram’s horn, and all the troops stopped; they no longer pursued Israel or continued to fight. 29 So Abner and his men marched through the Arabah all that night. They crossed the Jordan, marched all morning, † and arrived at Mahanaim. †
30 When Joab had turned back from pursuing Abner, he gathered all the troops. In addition to Asahel, nineteen of David’s soldiers were missing, 31 but they had killed 360 of the Benjaminites and Abner’s men. 32 Afterward, they carried Asahel to his father’s tomb in Bethlehem and buried him. Then Joab and his men marched all night and reached Hebron at dawn.

2:21-23 Asahel’s death would later be avenged by Joab (see 3:27).

CIVIL WAR

3 During the long war between the house of Saul and the house of David, † David was growing stronger † and the house of Saul was becoming weaker.
2 Sons were born to David in Hebron:

His firstborn was Amnon, †
by Ahinoam † the Jezreelite; 3 his second was Chileab, by Abigail, † the widow of Nabal the Carmelite;

the third was Absalom, † son of Maacah the daughter of King Talmai of Geshur; † 4 the fourth was Adonijah, † son of Haggith;
the fifth was Shephatiah, son of Abital;
5 the sixth was Ithream,
by David's wife Eglah.

These were born to David in Hebron. †
6 During the war between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner kept acquiring more power in the house of Saul. † 7 Now Saul had a concubine whose name was Rizpah † daughter of Aiah, and Ish-bosheth questioned Abner, "Why did you sleep with my father's concubine? "
8 Abner was very angry about Ish-bosheth's accusation. "Am I a dog's head † † who belongs to Judah? " he asked. "All this time I've been loyal to the family of your father Saul, to his brothers, and to his friends and haven't betrayed you to David, but now you accuse me of wrongdoing with this woman!
9 May God punish Abner and do so severely if I don't do for David what the LORD swore to him: 10 to transfer the kingdom from the house of Saul and establish the throne of David over Israel and Judah † from Dan to Beer-sheba."
11 Ish-bosheth did not dare respond to Abner because he was afraid of him.
12 Abner sent messengers as his representatives to say to David, "Whose land is it? Make your covenant with me, and you can be certain I am on your side to turn all Israel over to you."
13 David replied, "Good, I will make a covenant with you. However, there's one thing I require of you: You will not see my face unless you first bring Saul's daughter Michal † when you come to see me."
14 Then David sent messengers to say to Ish-bosheth son of Saul, "Give me back my wife, Michal. I was engaged to her for the price of a hundred Philistine foreskins." †

15 So Ish-bosheth sent someone to take her away from her husband, Paltiel son of Laish. † 16 Her husband followed her, weeping all the way to Bahurim. Abner said to him, “Go back.” So he went back.

THE ASSASSINATION OF ABNER

17 Abner conferred with the elders of Israel: “In the past you wanted David to be king over you. 18 Now take action, because the LORD has spoken concerning David: ‘Through my servant David I will save my people Israel from the power of the Philistines and the power of all Israel’s enemies.’ ”
19 Abner also informed the Benjaminites and went to Hebron to inform David about all that was agreed on by Israel and the whole house of Benjamin. †
20 When Abner and twenty men came to David at Hebron, David held a banquet for him and his men.
21 Abner said to David, “Let me now go and I will gather all Israel to my lord the king. They will make a covenant with you, † and you will reign over all you desire.” So David dismissed Abner, and he went in peace.
22 Just then David’s soldiers and Joab returned from a raid and brought a large amount of plundered goods with them. Abner was not with David in Hebron because David had dismissed him, and he had gone in peace. 23 When Joab and his whole army arrived, Joab was informed, “Abner son of Ner came to see the king, the king dismissed him, and he went in peace.”
24 Joab went to the king and said, “What have you done? Look here, Abner came to you. Why did you dismiss him? Now he’s getting away. 25 You know that Abner son of Ner came to deceive you and to find out about your military activities † and everything you’re doing.” 26 Then Joab left David and sent messengers after Abner. They brought him back from the well † of Sirah, but David was unaware of it. 27 When Abner returned to Hebron, Joab pulled him aside to the middle of the city gate, as if to speak to him privately, and there Joab stabbed him in the stomach. So Abner died in revenge for the death of Asahel, † Joab’s brother. †
28 David heard about it later and said: “I and my kingdom are forever innocent before the LORD concerning the blood of Abner son of Ner. 29 May it hang over Joab’s head and his father’s whole family, and may the house of Joab never be without someone who has a discharge or a skin disease, † or a man who can only work a spindle, † or someone who falls by the sword or starves." 30 Joab and his brother Abishai killed Abner because he had put their brother Asahel to death in the battle at Gibeon. †

31 David then ordered Joab and all the people who were with him, "Tear your clothes, put on sackcloth, † and mourn over Abner." And King David walked behind the coffin. †

32 When they buried Abner in Hebron, the king wept aloud at Abner's tomb. All the people wept, 33 and the king sang a lament for Abner: †

Should Abner die as a fool dies?
34 Your hands were not bound, your feet not placed in bronze shackles.
You fell like one who falls victim to criminals.

And all the people wept over him even more.

35 Then they came to urge David to eat food while it was still day, but David took an oath: "May God punish me and do so severely if I taste bread or anything else before sunset! " † 36 All the people took note of this, and it pleased them. In fact, everything the king did pleased them. 37 On that day all the troops and all Israel were convinced that the king had no part in the killing of Abner son of Ner.

38 Then the king said to his soldiers, "You must know that a great leader has fallen in Israel today. 39 As for me, even though I am the anointed king, I have little power today. These men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too fierce for me. † May the LORD repay the evildoer according to his evil! " †

3:1 Though the conflict between the houses of David and Saul was long, David was getting stronger and would eventually become king over all Israel (5:3).

3:2-6 David's own family was growing, albeit through multiple wives (see also 1Sm 25:42-43). Regarding polygamy, see the note on Genesis 2:24. Major problems later arose through several of these sons (i.e., Amnon, Absalom, and Adonijah).

3:8-12 Ish-bosheth's accusation could have been true, but it angered Abner so much that he planned to transfer the kingdom of Israel to David (see also vv. 17-21).

3:24-27 When Joab learned that Abner had just left after visiting the king (vv. 17-23), he sent for him and killed him "because he had put . . . Asahel to death" (see v. 30; 2:21-23).

3:28-37 David had been innocent of Saul's death, and he was innocent of Abner's as well. He mourned for both men and sang a lament both times (see note on 1:17). He held Joab's house responsible and was displeased with them (vv. 29,39).

THE ASSASSINATION OF ISH-BOSHETH

4 When Saul's son Ish-bosheth heard that Abner had died in Hebron, he gave up, † and all Israel was dismayed. 2 Saul's son had two men who were leaders of raiding parties: one named Baanah and the other Rechab, sons of Rimmon the Beerothite of the Benjaminites. Beeroth is also considered part of Benjamin, 3 and the Beerothites fled to Gittaim and still reside there as aliens today.
4 Saul's son Jonathan had a son whose feet were crippled. He was five years old when the report about Saul and Jonathan came from Jezreel. His nanny † picked him up and fled, but as she was hurrying to flee, he fell and became lame. His name was Mephibosheth. †
5 Rechab and Baanah, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, set out and arrived at Ish-bosheth's house during the heat of the day while the king was taking his midday nap. 6 They entered the interior of the house as if to get wheat and stabbed him in the stomach. Then Rechab and his brother Baanah escaped.
7 They had entered the house while Ish-bosheth was lying on his bed in his bedroom and stabbed and killed him. They removed his head, took it, and traveled by way of the Arabah † all night. 8 They brought Ish-bosheth's head to David at Hebron and said to the king, "Here's the head of Ish-bosheth son of Saul, your enemy who intended to take your life. Today the LORD has granted vengeance to my lord the king against Saul and his offspring."
9 But David answered Rechab and his brother Baanah, sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, "As the LORD lives, the one who has redeemed my life from every distress, † 10 when the person told me, 'Look, Saul is dead,' he thought he was a bearer of good news, but I seized him and put him to death at Ziklag. † That was my reward to him for his news! 11 How much more when wicked men kill a righteous man in his own house on his own bed! So now, should I not require his blood from you and purge you from the earth?” †

12 So David gave orders to the young men, and they killed Rechab and Baanah. They cut off their hands and feet and hung their bodies by the pool in Hebron, but they took Ish-bosheth’s head and buried it in Abner’s tomb in Hebron. †

4:1-7 After Abner’s death, the leadership of Israel quickly unraveled. Ish-bosheth and Israel were afraid, and two leaders of their raiding parties, Rechab and Baanah, assassinated Ish-bosheth in his own home. Jonathan’s crippled son Mephibosheth will enter the narrative later (see 9:1-13; 16:1-4; 19:24-30).

4:9-12 Much like the Amalekite who brought news of Saul’s death and claimed to have killed him (see note on 1:6-16), these two men wrongly thought David would reward them for bringing Ish-bosheth’s head to him (vv. 7-8). David informed them how he had treated the Amalekite messenger (v. 10) and had them put to death as well.

DAVID, KING OF ISRAEL

5 All the tribes of Israel came to David at Hebron † and said, “Here we are, your own flesh and blood. † † 2 Even while Saul was king over us, you were the one who led us out to battle and brought us back. † The LORD also said to you, ‘You will shepherd my people Israel, and you will be ruler over Israel.’ ”

3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron. King David made a covenant with them † at Hebron in the LORD’s presence, and they anointed David king over Israel.

4 David was thirty years old when he began his reign; † he reigned forty years.
5 In Hebron he reigned over Judah seven years and six months, and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty-three years over all Israel and Judah.

6 The king and his men marched to Jerusalem against the Jebusites † who inhabited the land. The Jebusites had said to David: “You will never get in here. Even the blind and lame can repel you” thinking, “David can’t get in here.”

7 Yet David did capture the stronghold of Zion, that is, the city of David. †
8 He said that day, “Whoever attacks the Jebusites must go through the water shaft to reach the lame and the blind who are despised by David." † For this reason it is said, "The blind and the lame will never enter the house." †

9 David took up residence in the stronghold, which he named the city of David. He built it up all the way around from the supporting terraces inward. 10 David became more and more powerful, † and the LORD God of Armies was with him. † 11 King Hiram of Tyre sent envoys to David; he also sent cedar logs, carpenters, and stonemasons, † and they built a palace for David. 12 Then David knew that the LORD had established him as king over Israel and had exalted his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel.
13 After he arrived from Hebron, David took more concubines and wives from Jerusalem, and more sons and daughters were born to him. 14 These are the names of those born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, † Solomon, 15 Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, 16 Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet. †
17 When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over Israel, † they all went in search of David, but he heard about it and went down to the stronghold. † 18 So the Philistines came and spread out in the Valley of Rephaim.
19 Then David inquired of the LORD: † "Should I attack the Philistines? Will you hand them over to me? "
The LORD replied to David, "Attack, for I will certainly hand the Philistines over to you."
20 So David went to Baal-perazim and defeated them there and said, "Like a bursting flood, the LORD has burst out against my enemies before me." † Therefore, he named that place The Lord Bursts Out. † 21 The Philistines abandoned their idols there, and David and his men carried them off.
22 The Philistines came up again and spread out in the Valley of Rephaim. 23 So David inquired of the LORD, and he answered, "Do not attack directly, but circle around behind them and come at them opposite the balsam trees. 24 When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, act decisively, for then the LORD will have gone out ahead of you to strike down the army of the Philistines.” † 25 So David did exactly as the LORD commanded him, and he struck down the Philistines all the way from Geba to Gezer.

5:1-5 Led by Abner, Israel had already been making preparations for David to rule over them (see 3:12-21). The death of Ish-bosheth, Saul’s last surviving son (see 1Sm 31:2; 1Ch 8:33; 9:39), probably made this transition even more natural. David’s lengthy waiting period had finally concluded, and God fulfilled his promise to make him king over all Israel. He was a youth when Samuel anointed him (see 1Sm 16:13; 17:33), and he became king of Judah at age thirty and king of all Israel at thirty-seven.

5:6-12 After David became king over all Israel, he took Jerusalem and its stronghold, Zion—both of which would henceforth be associated with Israelite monarchy and God’s final, permanent, eschatological rule. The Lord continued to be with David (see also 1Sm 16:18; 18:12, 14,28), and he established his reign (v. 12).

5:13 David already had multiple wives (see the note on 3:2-6). Regarding polygamy, see the note on Genesis 2:24.

5:19-22 As before (see the note on 2:1-4), David inquired of the LORD, and he gave him guidance and victory (see also vv. 22-25).

DAVID MOVES THE ARK

6 David again assembled all the fit young men in Israel: † thirty thousand. 2 He and all his troops set out † to bring the ark of God from Baale-judah. † The ark bears the Name, the name of the LORD of Armies who is enthroned between the cherubim. † 3 They set the ark of God on a new cart and transported it from Abinadab’s house, which was on the hill. Uzzah and Ahio, † sons of Abinadab, were guiding the cart † 4 and brought it with the ark of God from Abinadab’s house on the hill. Ahio walked in front of the ark. 5 David and the whole house of Israel were dancing before the LORD with all kinds of fir wood instruments, † lyres, harps, tambourines, sistrums, † and cymbals. †

6 When they came to Nacon’s threshing floor, Uzzah reached out to the ark of God and took hold of it because the oxen had stumbled. 7 Then the LORD’s anger burned against Uzzah, † and God struck him dead on the spot for his irreverence, † and he died there next to the ark of God. 8 David was angry because of the LORD’s outburst against Uzzah, so he named that place Outburst

Against Uzzah, † as it is today. 9 David feared the LORD that day and said,
"How can the ark of the LORD ever come to me?" 10 So he was not willing to bring the ark of the LORD to the city of David; † instead, he diverted it to the house of Obed-edom of Gath. 11 The ark of the LORD remained in his house three months, and the LORD blessed Obed-edom † and his whole family.
12 It was reported to King David: "The LORD has blessed Obed-edom's family and all that belongs to him because of the ark of God." So David went and had the ark of God brought up from Obed-edom's house to the city of David with rejoicing. † 13 When those carrying the ark of the LORD advanced six steps, he sacrificed an ox and a fattened calf. † 14 David was dancing † with all his might before the LORD wearing a linen ephod. † 15 He and the whole house of Israel were bringing up the ark of the LORD with shouts and the sound of the ram's horn. 16 As the ark of the LORD was entering the city of David, † Saul's daughter Michal looked down from the window and saw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD, and she despised him in her heart.
17 They brought the ark of the LORD and set it in its place inside the tent David had pitched for it. † Then David offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings in the LORD's presence. 18 When David had finished offering the burnt offering and the fellowship offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD of Armies. 19 Then he distributed a loaf of bread, a date cake, and a raisin cake to each one in the entire Israelite community, both men and women. † Then all the people went home.
20 When David returned home to bless his household, † Saul's daughter Michal came out to meet him. "How the king of Israel honored himself today!" she said. "He exposed himself today in the sight of the slave girls of his subjects like a vulgar person would expose himself." 21 David replied to Michal, "It was before the LORD who chose me over your father and his whole family to appoint me ruler over the LORD's people Israel. †
I will dance before the LORD, 22 and I will dishonor myself and humble myself even more. † † However, by the slave girls you spoke about, I will be honored." 23 And Saul's daughter Michal had no child to the day of her death.

6:3-9 Prior to Saul's reign, the ark had been captured by the Philistines only to be returned to Israel (1Sm 4–6). It went first to Beth-shemesh and then to Kiriath-jearim, where it was kept at Abinadab's house (vv. 3-4; 1Sm 6:12–7:2). The Philistines, who perhaps did not know any better, had sent the ark back to Israel on a new cart (1Sm 6:7), and now the Israelites also used one to transport the ark to Jerusalem. The ark, however, was to be carried on poles by the Kohathite family of Levites (see Ex 25:12-14; Nm 4:4-20), and the celebratory occasion was cut short when Uzzah was struck down by God for steadying the ark with his hand. Although severe, this act of judgment is consistent with the fatal consequences encountered by those men of Beth-shemesh who had looked inside the ark previously (1Sm 6:19). In both instances, God used the ark to effectively communicate his own holiness to the Israelites (v. 9; see 1Sm 6:20). He had also communicated this to the Philistines when they had possession of it (see notes on 1Sm 5:1-5 and 6:5-6).

6:10-12 The Lord not only used the ark to demonstrate his holiness and judgment (see previous note) but also his goodness, for it brought blessing to the house of Obed-edom.

6:20-23 David's wife Michal showed disdain for David's exuberant worship even though he was legitimately humbling himself and honoring the Lord. Her resulting punishment of lifelong barrenness marked the end of the house of Saul, for Michal was his daughter.

THE LORD'S COVENANT WITH DAVID

7 When the king had settled into his palace † and the LORD had given him rest on every side from all his enemies, 2 the king said to the prophet Nathan, † "Look, I am living in a cedar house while the ark of God sits inside tent curtains." † 3 So Nathan told the king, "Go and do all that is on your mind, for the LORD is with you."
4 But that night the word of the LORD came to Nathan: 5 "Go to my servant David and say, 'This is what the LORD says: Are you to build me a house to dwell in? † 6 From the time I brought the Israelites out of Egypt until today I have not dwelt in a house; instead, I have been moving around with a tent as my dwelling. † 7 In all my journeys with all the Israelites, have I ever spoken a word to one of the tribes of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd my people Israel, asking: Why haven't you built me a house of cedar? '
8 "So now this is what you are to say to my servant David: 'This is what the LORD of Armies says: I took you from the pasture, from tending the flock, to be

and I have destroyed all your enemies before you. I will make a great name † for you like that of the greatest on the earth. † 10 I will designate a place † for my people Israel and plant them, † so that they may live there and not be disturbed again. Evildoers will not continue to oppress them as they have done 11 ever since the day I ordered judges to be over my people Israel. † I will give you rest from all your enemies.

" 'The LORD declares to you: The LORD himself will make a house for you. 12 When your time comes and you rest with your fathers, I will raise up after you your descendant, who will come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. † 13 He is the one who will build a house for my name, † and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. † 14 I will be his father, and he will be my son. † When he does wrong, I will discipline him with a rod of men and blows from mortals. 15 But my faithful love will never leave him † as it did when I removed it from Saul, whom I removed from before you. † 16 Your house and kingdom will endure before me † forever, † and your throne will be established forever.' " †

17 Nathan reported all these words and this entire vision to David.

DAVID'S PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING

18 Then King David went in, † sat in the LORD's presence, and said,

Who am I, Lord GOD, and what is my house that you have brought me this far?

19 What you have done so far † was a little thing to you, Lord GOD, for you have also spoken about your servant's house in the distant future. And this is a revelation † for mankind, Lord GOD. 20 What more can David say to you? You know your servant, † Lord GOD. 21 Because of your word and according to your will, you have revealed all these great things to your servant.

22 This is why you are great, † Lord GOD. There is no one like you, and there is no God besides you, † as all we have heard confirms. 23 And who is like your people Israel? God came to one nation on earth in order to redeem a people for himself, to make a name for himself, and to perform for them † great and awesome acts, † driving out nations and their gods before your people you redeemed for yourself from Egypt. † 24 You established your people Israel to be your own people forever, and you, LORD, have become their God. †

25 Now, LORD God, fulfill the promise forever that you have made to your servant and his house. Do as you have promised, 26 so that your name will be exalted forever, when it is said, "The LORD of Armies is God over Israel." The house of your servant David † will be established before you 27 since you, LORD of Armies, God of Israel, have revealed this to your servant when you said, "I will build a house for you." Therefore, your servant has found the courage to pray this prayer to you. 28 Lord GOD, you are God; your words are true, and you have promised this good thing to your servant. 29 Now, please bless your servant's house so that it will continue before you forever. For you, Lord GOD, have spoken, and with your blessing your servant's house will be blessed forever. †

7:4-7 The ark had been housed in the tabernacle, which was made of curtains (v. 2), but David's plan to build a more permanent structure (a house or "temple") was implicitly rejected by God, who had never asked for such a thing.

7:8-16 Having rejected David's plan to build a house for him (vv. 4-7), God instead announced that he would build a house for David (v. 11). God reminded David of what he had done for him (vv. 8-9) and declared what he would do for him in the future (vv. 9-16). Central to the latter is the promise of an eternal kingdom (vv. 11-16). Here "house" refers to a dynasty or royal line. If David's descendants sinned, they would be disciplined but never forsaken (vv. 14-15; see also 1Kg 11:39). His house, kingdom, and throne would endure forever. These promises are referred to elsewhere as "a covenant" (e.g., 23:5) and as such are often referred to as the "Davidic covenant." The references to a great name (v. 9) and a descendant (v. 12) connect this covenant to the promises made to Abraham (see the note on Gn 12:1-3), including the Abrahamic covenant (see the note on Gn 15:17-21). This suggests continuity between the Abrahamic and Davidic covenants. Indeed, both are fulfilled in "Jesus Christ, the Son of David, the Son of Abraham" (Mt 1:1).

7:18-29 Although mentioned briefly in verse 13, David's original plan to build a house for God has faded into the background of the glorious promises of an eternal kingdom. He was overwhelmed by God's grace shown to him and to Israel (vv. 18-24), and he prayed for God to fulfill his word (vv. 25-29).

DAVID'S VICTORIES

8 After this, David defeated the Philistines, † subdued them, and took Metheg-ammah † from Philistine control. † † 2 He also defeated the Moabites, and after making them lie down on the ground, he measured them off with a cord. He measured every two cord lengths of those to be put to death and one full length of those to be kept alive. So the Moabites became David's subjects and brought tribute. †

3 David also defeated Hadadezer † son of Rehob, king of Zobah, when he went to restore his control at the Euphrates River. 4 David captured seventeen hundred horsemen † and twenty thousand foot soldiers from him, and he hamstrung all the horses † and kept a hundred chariots. †

5 When the Arameans of Damascus † came to assist King Hadadezer of Zobah, David struck down twenty-two thousand Aramean men. 6 Then he placed garrisons in Aram of Damascus, and the Arameans became David's subjects and brought tribute. The LORD made David victorious wherever he went. †

7 David took the gold shields of Hadadezer's officers and brought them to Jerusalem. † 8 King David also took huge quantities of bronze from Betah † and Berothai, Hadadezer's cities.

9 When King Toi of Hamath † heard that David had defeated the entire army of Hadadezer, 10 he sent his son Joram to King David to greet him and to congratulate him because David had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him, for Toi and Hadadezer had fought many wars. Joram had items of silver, gold, and bronze with him. 11 King David also dedicated these to the LORD, along with the silver and gold he had dedicated from all the nations he had subdued † — 12 from Edom, † Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, the Amalekites, and the spoil of Hadadezer son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

13 David made a reputation † for himself when he returned from striking down eighteen thousand Edomites † in Salt Valley. † † 14 He placed garrisons throughout Edom, and all the Edomites were subject to David. † The LORD made David victorious wherever he went. †

15 So David reigned over all Israel, administering justice and righteousness for all his people. †

16 Joab son of Zeruiah was over the army;
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was court historian;
17 Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar were priests;
Seraiah was court secretary;
18 Benaiah son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites; †
and David's sons were chief officials. †

8:1-14 David's continued success came from God, who made David victorious wherever he went (vv. 6,14).

8:15 The characterization of David administering justice and righteousness for all his people indicates that he was fulfilling his primary responsibility as king. This is essentially the same as the characterization of the Messiah in Jeremiah 23:5 and 33:15 as One who will "administer justice and righteousness in the land." This is the way God rules (Ps 99:4), and he requires such conduct from the earthly king of Israel and from mankind (e.g., 1Kg 10:9; Jr 22:3; Ezk 18:5).

DAVID'S KINDNESS TO MEPHIBOSHETH

9 David asked, "Is there anyone remaining from the family of Saul I can show kindness † to for Jonathan's sake?" † 2 There was a servant of Saul's family named Ziba. † They summoned him to David, and the king said to him, "Are you Ziba?"
"I am your servant," he replied.
3 So the king asked, "Is there anyone left of Saul's family that I can show the kindness of God to?"
Ziba said to the king, "There is still Jonathan's son who was injured in both feet." †

4 The king asked him, “Where is he? ”
Ziba answered the king, “You’ll find him in Lo-debar at the house of Machir son of Ammiel.” 5 So King David had him brought from the house of Machir son of Ammiel in Lo-debar.
6 Mephibosheth son of Jonathan son of Saul came to David, fell facedown, and paid homage. David said, “Mephibosheth! ”
“I am your servant,” he replied.
7 “Don’t be afraid,” David said to him, “since I intend to show you kindness for the sake of your father Jonathan. I will restore to you all your grandfather Saul’s fields, and you will always eat meals at my table.” †
8 Mephibosheth paid homage and said, “What is your servant that you take an interest in a dead dog † like me? ”
9 Then the king summoned Saul’s attendant Ziba and said to him, “I have given to your master’s grandson all that belonged to Saul and his family. 10 You, your sons, and your servants are to work the ground for him, and you are to bring in the crops so your master’s grandson will have food to eat. But Mephibosheth, your master’s grandson, is always to eat at my table.” Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants.
11 Ziba said to the king, “Your servant will do all my lord the king commands.”
So Mephibosheth ate at David’s † table just like one of the king’s sons. 12 Mephibosheth had a young son whose name was Mica. † All those living in Ziba’s house were Mephibosheth’s servants. 13 However, Mephibosheth lived in Jerusalem because he always ate at the king’s table. His feet had been injured.

David graciously gave him Saul’s fields and allowed him to eat from the king’s table continually.

WAR WITH THE AMMONITES

10 Some time later, the king of the Ammonites died, and his son Hanun became king in his place. † 2 Then David said, “I’ll show kindness to Hanun son of Nahash, just as his father showed kindness to me.”

So David sent his emissaries to console Hanun concerning his father. However, when they arrived in the land of the Ammonites, 3 the Ammonite leaders said to Hanun their lord, “Just because David has sent men with condolences for you, do you really believe he’s showing respect for your father? Instead, hasn’t David sent his emissaries in order to scout out the city, spy on it, and demolish it?” †
4 So Hanun took David’s emissaries, shaved off half their beards, † cut their clothes in half at the hips, and sent them away. †
5 When this was reported to David, he sent someone to meet them, since they were deeply humiliated. The king said, “Stay in Jericho until your beards grow back; then return.”
6 When the Ammonites realized they had become repulsive to David, they hired twenty thousand foot soldiers from the Arameans of Beth-rehob and Zobah, one thousand men from the king of Maacah, and twelve thousand men from Tob.
7 David heard about it and sent Joab and all the elite troops. 8 The Ammonites marched out and lined up in battle formation at the entrance to the city gate while the Arameans of Zobah and Rehob and the men of Tob and Maacah were in the field by themselves. 9 When Joab saw that there was a battle line in front of him and another behind him, he chose some of Israel’s finest young men and lined up in formation to engage the Arameans. 10 He placed the rest of the forces under the command of his brother Abishai. They lined up in formation to engage the Ammonites.
11 “If the Arameans are too strong for me,” Joab said, “then you will be my help. However, if the Ammonites are too strong for you, I’ll come to help you.
12 Be strong! Let’s prove ourselves strong for our people and for the cities of our God. † May the LORD’s will be done.” † †
13 Joab and his troops advanced to fight against the Arameans, and they fled before him. 14 When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans had fled, they too fled before Abishai and entered the city. So Joab withdrew from the attack against the Ammonites and went to Jerusalem.
15 When the Arameans saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they regrouped. 16 Hadadezer sent messengers to bring the Arameans who were beyond the Euphrates River, and they came to Helam with Shobach, commander of Hadadezer’s army, leading them.

17 When this was reported to David, he gathered all Israel, crossed the Jordan, and went to Helam. Then the Arameans lined up to engage David in battle and fought against him. 18 But the Arameans fled before Israel, and David killed seven hundred of their charioteers and forty thousand foot soldiers. † He also struck down Shobach commander of their army, who died there. 19 When all the kings who were Hadadezer's subjects saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with Israel and became their subjects. After this, the Arameans were afraid to ever help the Ammonites again.

DAVID'S ADULTERY WITH BATHSHEBA

11 In the spring when kings march out to war, David sent Joab with his officers and all Israel. They destroyed the Ammonites and besieged Rabbah, but David remained in Jerusalem. †

2 One evening David got up from his bed and strolled around on the roof of the palace. From the roof he saw a woman bathing — a very beautiful woman. 3 So David sent someone to inquire about her, and he said, "Isn't this Bathsheba, † daughter of Eliam and wife of Uriah † the Hethite? " †

4 David sent messengers to get her, and when she came to him, he slept with her. Now she had just been purifying herself from her uncleanness. † Afterward, she returned home. 5 The woman conceived and sent word to inform David: "I am pregnant."

6 David sent orders to Joab: "Send me Uriah the Hethite." So Joab sent Uriah to David. 7 When Uriah came to him, David asked how Joab and the troops were doing and how the war was going. 8 Then he said to Uriah, "Go down to your house and wash your feet." So Uriah left the palace, and a gift from the king followed him. 9 But Uriah slept at the door of the palace with all his master's servants; he did not go down to his house.

10 When it was reported to David, "Uriah didn't go home," David questioned Uriah, "Haven't you just come from a journey? Why didn't you go home? "

11 Uriah answered David, “The ark, Israel, and Judah are dwelling in tents, and my master Joab and his soldiers † are camping in the open field. How can I enter my house to eat and drink and sleep with my wife? As surely as you live and by your life, I will not do this! ” † 12 “Stay here today also,” David said to Uriah, “and tomorrow I will send you back.” So Uriah stayed in Jerusalem that day and the next. 13 Then David invited Uriah to eat and drink with him, and David got him drunk. He went out in the evening to lie down on his cot with his master’s servants, but he did not go home.

URIAH’S DEATH ARRANGED

14 The next morning David wrote a letter to Joab and sent it with Uriah. 15 In the letter he wrote:

Put Uriah † at the front of the fiercest fighting, then withdraw from him so that he is struck down and dies.
16 When Joab was besieging the city, he put Uriah in the place where he knew the best enemy soldiers were. 17 Then the men of the city came out and attacked Joab, and some of the men from David’s soldiers fell in battle; Uriah the Hethite also died.
18 Joab sent someone to report to David all the details of the battle. 19 He commanded the messenger, “When you’ve finished telling the king all the details of the battle — 20 if the king’s anger gets stirred up and he asks you, ‘Why did you get so close to the city to fight? Didn’t you realize they would shoot from the top of the wall? 21 At Thebez, who struck Abimelech son of Jerubbesheth? † † Didn’t a woman drop an upper millstone on him from the top of the wall so that he died? † Why did you get so close to the wall? ’ — then say, ‘Your servant Uriah the Hethite is dead also.’ ” 22 Then the messenger left.
When he arrived, he reported to David all that Joab had sent him to tell. 23 The messenger reported to David, “The men gained the advantage over us and came out against us in the field, but we counterattacked right up to the entrance of the city gate. 24 However, the archers shot down on your servants from the top of the wall, and some of the king’s servants died. Your servant Uriah the Hethite is also dead.”

25 David told the messenger, “Say this to Joab: ‘Don’t let this matter upset you because the sword devours all alike. Intensify your fight against the city and demolish it.’ Encourage him.” 26 When Uriah’s † wife heard that her husband Uriah had died, she mourned for him. † 27 When the time of mourning ended, David had her brought to his house. She became his wife and bore him a son. However, the LORD considered what David had done to be evil. †

11:1-4 While on his roof alone at night, David lusted after a woman who was bathing and committed adultery with her (see also Jms 1:14-15). Up to this point, David had been walking faithfully with God and experiencing his blessing. His adultery with Bathsheba and subsequent cover-up, however, was evil and would be severely punished by God (12:7-14).

11:5-17 David’s adultery became further complicated because Bathsheba became pregnant. His initial plan to cover up what he had done was to have Uriah come back to Jerusalem and sleep with [his] wife (v. 11). The ironic outcome was that Uriah, who had every right to sleep with his own wife, refused to do so out of respect for his fellow soldiers and held fast to this commitment even when he was made drunk (v. 13), whereas David had no right to sleep with another man’s wife and did so sober-mindedly without fear of God or man. His initial plan having failed, David sent Uriah back to Joab with a letter containing instructions to orchestrate his death.

11:25-27 Despite David’s callousness and cover-up, God knew the evil that he had done.

NATHAN’S PARABLE AND DAVID’S REPENTANCE

12 So the LORD sent Nathan to David. † When he arrived, he said to him:
There were two men in a certain city, one rich and the other poor. 2 The rich man had very large flocks and herds, 3 but the poor man had nothing except one small ewe lamb that he had bought. He raised her, and she grew up with him and with his children. From his meager food she would eat, from his cup she would drink, and in his arms she would sleep. She was like a daughter to him.
4 Now a traveler came to the rich man, but the rich man could not bring himself to take one of his own sheep or cattle to prepare for the traveler who had come to him. Instead, he took the poor man’s lamb and prepared it for his guest. † 5 David was infuriated with the man and said to Nathan: “As the LORD lives, the man who did this deserves to die! 6 Because he has done this thing and shown no pity, he must pay four lambs for that lamb.” †

7 Nathan replied to David, “You are the man! This is what the Lord God of Israel says: ‘I anointed you king over Israel, † and I rescued you from Saul. 8 I gave your master’s house to you and your master’s wives into your arms, † and I gave you the house of Israel and Judah, and if that was not enough, I would have given you even more. 9 Why then have you despised the Lord’s command by doing what I consider † evil? † You struck down Uriah † the Hethite with the sword and took his wife as your own wife — you murdered him with the Ammonite’s sword. † 10 Now therefore, the sword will never leave your house † because you despised me and took the wife of Uriah the Hethite to be your own wife.’
11 “This is what the Lord says, † ‘I am going to bring disaster on you from your own family: I will take your wives and give them to another † before your very eyes, and he will sleep with them in broad daylight. † 12 You acted in secret, but I will do this before all Israel and in broad daylight.’ ” †
13 David responded to Nathan, “I have sinned against the Lord.” † Then Nathan replied to David, “And the Lord has taken away your sin; you will not die. † 14 However, because you treated † the Lord with such contempt in this matter, the son born to you will die.” † 15 Then Nathan went home.

THE DEATH OF BATHSHEBA’S SON

The Lord struck the baby that Uriah’s † wife had borne to David, and he became deathly ill. 16 David pleaded with God for the boy. He fasted, went home, and spent the night lying on the ground. † 17 The elders of his house stood beside him to get him up from the ground, but he was unwilling and would not eat anything with them.
18 On the seventh day the baby died. But David’s servants were afraid to tell him the baby was dead. They said, “Look, while the baby was alive, we spoke to him, and he wouldn’t listen to us. So how can we tell him the baby is dead? He may do something desperate.”
19 When David saw that his servants were whispering to each other, he guessed that the baby was dead. So he asked his servants, “Is the baby dead? ”
“He is dead,” they replied.

20 Then David got up from the ground. He washed, anointed himself, changed his clothes, went to the LORD's house, and worshiped. Then he went home and requested something to eat. So they served him food, and he ate.
21 His servants asked him, "Why have you done this? While the baby was alive, you fasted and wept, but when he died, you got up and ate food."
22 He answered, "While the baby was alive, I fasted and wept because I thought,
'Who knows? The LORD may be gracious to me and let him live.' 23 But now that he is dead, why should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I'll go to him, but he will never return to me." †

THE BIRTH OF SOLOMON

24 Then David comforted † his wife Bathsheba; he went to her and slept with her. She gave birth to a son and named † him Solomon. † † The LORD loved him, 25 and he sent a message through the prophet Nathan, who named † him Jedidiah, † because of the LORD.

CAPTURE OF THE CITY OF RABBAH

26 Joab fought against Rabbah of the Ammonites † and captured the royal fortress. 27 Then Joab sent messengers to David to say, "I have fought against Rabbah and have also captured its water supply. 28 Now therefore, assemble the rest of the troops, lay siege to the city, and capture it. Otherwise I will be the one to capture the city, and it will be named after me." 29 So David assembled all the troops and went to Rabbah; he fought against it and captured it. 30 He took the crown from the head of their king, † and it was placed on David's head. The crown weighed seventy-five pounds † of gold, and it had a precious stone in it.
In addition, David took away a large quantity of plunder from the city. 31 He removed the people who were in the city and put them to work with saws, iron picks, and iron axes, and to labor at brickmaking. † He did the same to all the Ammonite cities. Then he and all his troops returned to Jerusalem.

12:7-15 As the prophet Samuel had confronted Saul earlier, so Nathan confronted King David, who had despised the LORD's command. He had not only committed adultery with Uriah's wife but had murdered him with the Ammonite's sword and then married his widow (v. 9). The Lord's pronouncement of judgment marks a major turning point in David's life and in 2 Samuel. Although God's covenant with him had not been revoked (see the note on 7:8-16), violence would plague David's house (v. 10) and his own wives would be given away (v. 11). David's confession of sin was accepted, but God declared that Bathsheba's son would die (vv. 13-14).

12:23 David's statement I'll go to him is sometimes used to support the view that infants who die go to heaven.

12:24-25 Despite the shameful circumstances of his parents' marriage, God loved Solomon, who would become David's successor.

AMNON RAPES TAMAR

13 Some time passed. David's son Absalom † had a beautiful sister named Tamar, † and David's son Amnon † was infatuated with her.
2 Amnon was frustrated to the point of making himself sick over his sister Tamar because she was a virgin, but it seemed impossible to do anything to her.
3 Amnon had a friend named Jonadab, a son of David's brother Shimeah. †
Jonadab was a very shrewd man, 4 and he asked Amnon, "Why are you, the king's son, so miserable † every morning? Won't you tell me? "
Amnon replied, "I'm in love with Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister."
5 Jonadab said to him, "Lie down on your bed and pretend you're sick. When your father comes to see you, say to him, 'Please let my sister Tamar come and give me something to eat. Let her prepare a meal in my presence † so I can watch and eat from her hand.' "
6 So Amnon lay down and pretended to be sick. When the king came to see him, Amnon said to him, "Please let my sister Tamar come and make a couple of cakes in my presence so I can eat from her hand."
7 David sent word to Tamar at the palace: "Please go to your brother Amnon's house and prepare a meal for him."
8 Then Tamar went to his house while Amnon was lying down. She took dough, kneaded it, made cakes in his presence, and baked them. 9 She brought the pan and set it down in front of him, but he refused to eat. Amnon said, "Everyone leave me!” And everyone left him. 10 “Bring the meal to the bedroom,” Amnon told Tamar, “so I can eat from your hand.” Tamar took the cakes she had made and went to her brother Amnon’s bedroom. 11 When she brought them to him to eat, he grabbed her and said, † “Come sleep with me, my sister!”

12 “Don’t, my brother!” she cried. “Don’t disgrace † me, for such a thing should never be done in Israel. † Don’t commit this outrage! † 13 Where could I ever go with my humiliation? And you — you would be like one of the outrageous fools in Israel! Please, speak to the king, for he won’t keep me from you.” 14 But he refused to listen to her, and because he was stronger than she was, he disgraced her by raping her.
15 So Amnon hated Tamar with such intensity that the hatred he hated her with was greater than the love he had loved her with. “Get out of here!” he said.
16 “No,” she cried, † “sending me away is much worse than the great wrong you’ve already done to me!”
But he refused to listen to her. 17 Instead, he called to the servant who waited on him: “Get this away from me, throw her out, and bolt the door behind her!” 18 Amnon’s servant threw her out and bolted the door behind her. Now Tamar was wearing a long-sleeved † garment, because this is what the king’s virgin daughters wore. 19 Tamar put ashes on her head and tore the long-sleeved garment she was wearing. She put her hand on her head † and went away crying out.
20 Her brother Absalom said to her: “Has your brother Amnon been with you?
Be quiet for now, my sister. He is your brother. Don’t take this thing to heart.”
So Tamar lived as a desolate woman † in the house of her brother Absalom.

ABSALOM MURDERS AMNON

21 When King David heard about all these things, he was furious. † 22 Absalom didn’t say anything to Amnon, either good or bad, because he hated Amnon since he disgraced his sister Tamar.
23 Two years later, Absalom’s sheepshearers were at Baal-hazor near Ephraim, and Absalom invited all the king’s sons. 24 Then he went to the king and said, “Your servant has just hired sheepshearers. Will the king and his servants please come with your servant?”

25 The king replied to Absalom, “No, my son, we should not all go, or we would be a burden to you.” Although Absalom urged him, he wasn’t willing to go, though he did bless him.
26 “If not,” Absalom said, “please let my brother Amnon go with us.”
The king asked him, “Why should he go with you?” 27 But Absalom urged him, so he sent Amnon and all the king’s sons. †
28 Now Absalom commanded his young men, “Watch Amnon until he is in a good mood from the wine. When I order you to strike Amnon, then kill him. Don’t be afraid. Am I not the one who has commanded you? Be strong and valiant!” † 29 So Absalom’s young men did to Amnon just as Absalom had commanded. Then all the rest of the king’s sons got up, and each fled on his mule.
30 While they were on the way, a report reached David: “Absalom struck down all the king’s sons; not even one of them survived!” 31 In response the king stood up, tore his clothes, and lay down on the ground, and all his servants stood by with their clothes torn. †
32 But Jonadab, son of David’s brother Shimeah, † spoke up: “My lord must not think they have killed all the young men, the king’s sons, because only Amnon is dead. In fact, Absalom has planned this † ever since the day Amnon disgraced his sister Tamar. 33 So now, my lord the king, don’t take seriously the report that says all the king’s sons are dead. Only Amnon is dead.”
34 Meanwhile, Absalom had fled. When the young man who was standing watch looked up, there were many people coming from the road west of him from the side of the mountain. † 35 Jonadab said to the king, “Look, the king’s sons have come! It’s exactly like your servant said.” 36 Just as he finished speaking, the king’s sons entered and wept loudly. Then the king and all his servants also wept very bitterly. 37 But Absalom fled and went to Talmai son of Ammihud, king of Geshur. † And David mourned for his son † every day.
38 After Absalom had fled to Geshur and had been there three years, 39 King David † longed to go to Absalom, for David had finished grieving over Amnon’s death.

13:1-14 The Lord had said that he would punish David's family for his sins against Bathsheba and Uriah (12:10-12). Part of this judgment was that "the sword will never leave [David's] house" (12:10). In connection with this, David's firstborn son Amnon became infatuated with his half-sister Tamar and raped her. As a result, her full brother Absalom hated Amnon and would kill him to avenge his sister (vv. 22,32). David's tumble into sexual sin and murder was thus repeated by his sons.

13:21 David was furious about Amnon's rape of Tamar, but the text does not mention any further action taken (see also 1Kg 1:6).

13:28-29 Absalom's murder of Amnon both avenged his sister (v. 32) and began to fulfill God's word of judgment that "the sword will never leave [David's] house" (12:10).

13:37-39 Absalom fled to his maternal grandfather, Talmai . . . king of Geshur (see 3:3).

ABSALOM RESTORED TO DAVID

14 Joab son of Zeruiah realized that the king's mind was on Absalom.
2 So Joab sent someone to Tekoa † to bring a wise † woman from there. He told her, "Pretend to be in mourning: dress in mourning clothes and don't put on any oil. † Act like a woman who has been mourning for the dead for a long time. 3 Go to the king and speak these words to him." Then Joab told her exactly what to say. †
4 When the woman from Tekoa came † to the king, she fell facedown to the ground, paid homage, † and said, "Help me, Your Majesty! "
5 "What's the matter? " the king asked her.
"Sadly, I am a widow; my husband died," she said. † 6 "Your servant had two sons. They were fighting in the field with no one to separate them, and one struck the other and killed him. 7 Now the whole clan has risen up against your servant and said, 'Hand over the one who killed his brother so we may put him to death for the life of the brother he murdered. We will eliminate the heir! ' They would extinguish my one remaining ember by not preserving my husband's name or posterity on earth." †
8 The king told the woman, "Go home. I will issue a command on your behalf."

9 Then the woman of Tekoa said to the king, “My lord the king, may any blame be on me † and my father’s family, and may the king and his throne be innocent.”
10 “Whoever speaks to you,” the king said, “bring him to me. He will not trouble you again! ”
11 She replied, “Please, may the king invoke the LORD your God, so that the avenger of blood will not increase the loss, and they will not eliminate my son! ” †

“As the LORD lives,” he vowed, “not a hair of your son will fall to the ground.” †
12 Then the woman said, “Please, may your servant speak a word to my lord the king? ”
“Speak,” he replied.
13 The woman asked, “Why have you devised something similar against the people of God? When the king spoke as he did about this matter, he has pronounced his own guilt. The king has not brought back his own banished one.
14 We will certainly die † and be like water poured out on the ground, which can’t be recovered. But God would not take away a life; he would devise plans so that the one banished from him does not remain banished.
15 “Now therefore, I’ve come to present this matter to my lord the king because the people have made me afraid. Your servant thought: I must speak to the king. Perhaps the king will grant his servant’s request. 16 The king will surely listen in order to keep his servant from the grasp of this man who would eliminate both me and my son from God’s inheritance. 17 Your servant thought: May the word of my lord the king bring relief, for my lord the king is able to discern the good and the bad like the angel of God. † May the LORD your God be with you.”
18 Then the king answered the woman, “I’m going to ask you something; don’t conceal it from me! ”
“Let my lord the king speak,” the woman replied.
19 The king asked, “Did Joab put you up to † all this? ”
The woman answered. “As you live, my lord the king, no one can turn to the right or left from all my lord the king says. Yes, your servant Joab is the one who gave orders to me; he told your servant exactly what to say. † 20 Joab your servant has done this to address the issue indirectly, † but my lord has wisdom like the wisdom of the angel of God, knowing everything on earth.”

21 Then the king said to Joab, “I hereby grant this request. Go, bring back the young man Absalom.”
22 Joab fell with his face to the ground in homage and blessed the king. “Today,” Joab said, “your servant knows I have found favor with you, my lord the king, because the king has granted the request of your servant.”
23 So Joab got up, went to Geshur, and brought Absalom † to Jerusalem.
24 However, the king added, “He may return to his house, but he may not see my face.” So Absalom returned to his house, but he did not see the king. †
25 No man in all Israel was as handsome † and highly praised as Absalom. From the sole of his foot to the top of his head, he did not have a single flaw.
26 When he shaved his head — he shaved it at the end of every year because his hair got so heavy for him that he had to shave it off — he would weigh the hair from his head and it would be five pounds † according to the royal standard.
27 Three sons were born to Absalom, and a daughter named Tamar, who was a beautiful woman. 28 Absalom resided in Jerusalem two years but never saw the king. 29 Then Absalom sent for Joab in order to send him to the king, but Joab was unwilling to come to him. So he sent again, a second time, but he still would not come. 30 Then Absalom said to his servants, “See, Joab has a field right next to mine, and he has barley there. Go and set fire to it! ” So Absalom’s servants set the field on fire. †
31 Then Joab came to Absalom’s house and demanded, “Why did your servants set my field on fire? ”
32 “Look,” Absalom explained to Joab, “I sent for you and said, ‘Come here. I want to send you to the king to ask: Why have I come back from Geshur? I’d be better off if I were still there.’ So now, let me see the king. If I am guilty, let him kill me.”
33 Joab went to the king and told him. So David summoned Absalom, who came to the king and paid homage with his face to the ground before him. Then the king kissed Absalom.

14:13-17 For a second time, a story was used to communicate something to David (vv. 5-7; 12:1-4). Joab's purpose in sending this woman from Tekoa was to convince David to bring Absalom back to Jerusalem from his exile in Geshur (vv. 1-3,13-14). David detected Joab's hand behind all of this but still agreed to bring back Absalom (vv. 19-21).

14:23-32 Although Absalom was brought back to Jerusalem, David's refusal to see him for two years (vv. 24,28) frustrated and confused Absalom to the point that he set Joab's field on fire to get attention (vv. 29-32).

ABSALOM'S REVOLT

15 After this, Absalom got himself a chariot, horses, and fifty men to run before him. † 2 He would get up early and stand beside the road leading to the city gate. † Whenever anyone had a grievance to bring before the king for settlement, Absalom called out to him and asked, "What city are you from?" If he replied, "Your servant is from one of the tribes of Israel," 3 Absalom said to him, "Look, your claims are good and right, but the king does not have anyone to listen to you." 4 He added, "If only someone would appoint me judge in the land. Then anyone who had a grievance or dispute could come to me, and I would make sure he received justice." 5 When a person approached to pay homage to him, Absalom reached out his hand, took hold of him, and kissed him. † 6 Absalom did this to all the Israelites who came to the king for a settlement. So Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.
7 When four † years had passed, Absalom said to the king, "Please let me go to Hebron to fulfill a vow I made to the LORD. 8 For your servant made a vow when I lived in Geshur of Aram, † saying: If the LORD really brings me back to Jerusalem, I will worship the LORD in Hebron." † †
9 "Go in peace," the king said to him. † So he went to Hebron.
10 Then Absalom sent agents throughout the tribes of Israel with this message:
"When you hear the sound of the ram's horn, † you are to say, 'Absalom has become king in Hebron!' " † 11 Two hundred men from Jerusalem went with Absalom. They had been invited and were going innocently, for they did not know the whole situation. 12 While he was offering the sacrifices, Absalom sent for David's adviser Ahithophel the Gilonite, † from his city of Giloh. So the conspiracy grew strong, and the people supporting Absalom continued to increase.

13 Then an informer came to David and reported, “The hearts of the men of Israel are with Absalom.”
14 David said to all the servants with him in Jerusalem, “Get up. We have to flee, or we will not escape from Absalom! † Leave quickly, or he will overtake us quickly, heap disaster on us, and strike the city with the edge of the sword.”
15 The king’s servants said to the king, “Whatever my lord the king decides, we are your servants.” 16 Then the king set out, and his entire household followed him. But he left behind ten concubines to take care of the palace. 17 So the king set out, and all the people followed him. They stopped at the last house 18 while all his servants marched past him. Then all the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and the people of Gath— six hundred men who came with him from there † — marched past the king.
19 The king said to Ittai of Gath, † “Why are you also going with us? Go back and stay with the new king since you’re both a foreigner and an exile from your homeland. 20 Besides, you only arrived yesterday; should I make you wander around with us today while I go wherever I can? Go back and take your brothers with you. May the LORD show you † kindness and faithfulness.”
21 But in response, Ittai vowed to the king, “As the LORD lives and as my lord the king lives, wherever my lord the king is, whether it means life or death, your servant will be there! ” †
22 “March on,” David replied to Ittai. So Ittai of Gath marched past with all his men and the dependents who were with him. 23 Everyone in the countryside was weeping loudly while all the people were marching out of the city. As the king was crossing the Kidron Valley, all the people were marching past on the road that leads to the wilderness.
24 Zadok was also there, and all the Levites with him were carrying the ark of the covenant of God. They set the ark of God down, and Abiathar offered sacrifices † until the people had finished marching past. † 25 Then the king instructed Zadok, “Return the ark of God to the city. † If I find favor with the LORD, he will bring me back and allow me to see both it and its † dwelling place. † 26 However, if he should say, ‘I do not delight in you,’ then here I am — he can do with me whatever pleases him.” † †

27 The king also said to the priest Zadok, † “Look, † return to the city in peace and your two sons with you: your son Ahimaaz and Abiathar’s son Jonathan. 28 Remember, I’ll wait at the fords † of the wilderness until word comes from you to inform me.” 29 So Zadok and Abiathar returned the ark of God to Jerusalem and stayed there.
30 David was climbing the slope of the Mount of Olives, † weeping as he ascended. His head was covered, † and he was walking barefoot. † All of the people with him covered their heads and went up, weeping as they ascended.
31 Then someone reported to David: “Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom.”
“LORD,” David pleaded, “please turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness! ” †
32 When David came to the summit where he used to worship God, Hushai the Archite † was there to meet him with his robe torn and dust on his head. 33 David said to him, “If you go away with me, you’ll be a burden to me, 34 but if you return to the city and tell Absalom, ‘I will be your servant, Your Majesty! Previously, I was your father’s servant, but now I will be your servant,’ then you can counteract Ahithophel’s counsel for me. 35 Won’t the priests Zadok and Abiathar be there with you? Report everything you hear from the palace to the priests Zadok and Abiathar. 36 Take note: their two sons are there with them—Zadok’s son Ahimaaz and Abiathar’s son Jonathan. Send them to tell me everything you hear.” 37 So Hushai, † David’s personal adviser, entered Jerusalem just as Absalom was entering the city.

15:7-14 The Lord’s judgment against David’s house was already underway and took a turn for the worse with Absalom's rebellion (see the notes on 12:7-15 and 13:1-14). Absalom exalted himself overtly (v. 1) and covertly by sowing seeds of dissatisfaction with the king among the citizens (vv. 2-6). He later arranged to have himself declared king (vv. 7-10). His conspiracy had a large following, forcing David to flee for his life (vv. 12-14). This flight was a sorrowful one (vv. 23,30).

15:25-26 David's words indicate a submission to God's chastening hand (see previous note and the note on 16:10-12).

15:31 Ahithophel had been one of David's wisest advisers but had sided with Absalom (see v. 12; 16:23). David's prayer would be answered, and Hushai would be involved (vv. 32-37; 17:5-14).

ZIBA HELPS DAVID

16 When David had gone a little beyond the summit, † Ziba, Mephibosheth's servant, † was right there to meet him. He had a pair of saddled donkeys loaded with two hundred loaves of bread, one hundred clusters of raisins, one hundred bunches of summer fruit, and a clay jar of wine. 2 The king said to Ziba, "Why do you have these? " Ziba answered, "The donkeys are for the king's household to ride, the bread and summer fruit are for the young men to eat, and the wine is for those to drink who become exhausted in the wilderness."
3 "Where is your master's grandson? " the king asked.
"Why, he's staying in Jerusalem," Ziba replied to the king, "for he said, 'Today, the house of Israel will restore my grandfather's kingdom to me.' " † 4 The king said to Ziba, "All that belongs to Mephibosheth is now yours! " †
"I bow before you," Ziba said. "May I find favor with you, my lord the king! "

SHIMEI CURSES DAVID

5 When King David got to Bahurim, a man belonging to the family of the house of Saul was just coming out. † His name was Shimei son of Gera, † and he was yelling curses as he approached. 6 He threw stones at David and at all the royal † servants, the people and the warriors on David's right and left. 7 Shimei said as he cursed: "Get out, get out, you man of bloodshed, you wicked man! † 8 The LORD has paid you back for all the blood of the house of Saul in whose place you became king, and the LORD has handed the kingdom over to your son Absalom. Look, you are in trouble because you're a man of bloodshed! " 9 Then Abishai son of Zeruiah said to the king, "Why should this dead dog † curse my lord the king? † Let me go over and remove his head! "

10 The king replied, “Sons of Zeruiah, do we agree on anything? † He curses † me this way because the LORD † told him, ‘Curse David! ’ † Therefore, who can say, ‘Why did you do that? ’ ” 11 Then David said to Abishai and all his servants, “Look, my own son, my own flesh and blood, † intends to take my life † — how much more now this Benjaminite! Leave him alone and let him curse me; the LORD has told him to. 12 Perhaps the LORD will see my affliction † and restore goodness to me instead of Shimei’s curses today.” 13 So David and his men proceeded along the road as Shimei was going along the ridge of the hill opposite him. As Shimei went, he cursed David, threw stones at him, and kicked up dust. 14 Finally, the king and all the people with him arrived † exhausted, so they rested there.

ABSALOM’S ADVISERS

15 Now Absalom and all the Israelites came to Jerusalem. Ahithophel was also with him. 16 When David’s friend Hushai the Archite came to Absalom, Hushai said to Absalom, “Long live the king! Long live the king! ” † 17 “Is this your loyalty to your friend? ” Absalom asked Hushai. “Why didn’t you go with your friend? ” 18 “Not at all,” Hushai answered Absalom. “I am on the side of the one that the LORD, this people, and all the men of Israel have chosen. I will stay with him.
19 Furthermore, whom will I serve if not his son? As I served in your father’s presence, I will also serve in yours.” † 20 Then Absalom said to Ahithophel, “Give me your advice. What should we do? ” 21 Ahithophel replied to Absalom, “Sleep with your father’s concubines whom he left to take care of the palace. † When all Israel hears that you have become repulsive to your father, everyone with you will be encouraged.” † 22 So they pitched a tent for Absalom on the roof, and he slept with his father’s concubines in the sight of all Israel. † 23 Now the advice Ahithophel gave in those days was like someone asking about a word from God † — such was the regard that both David and Absalom had for Ahithophel’s advice.

16:1-4 Ziba's claim would later be disputed by Mephibosheth (see 19:24-30). Mephibosheth was Saul's grandson (see 4:4).

16:10-12 David's humiliation continued with the cursing and antics of Shimei (vv. 5-8,13). Nevertheless, a chastened David refused to harm Shimei because he saw these things as from God (see also the note on 15:25-26). He endured curses in hopes that God would repay him with [restored] goodness.

16:16-19 As David instructed, Hushai went over to Absalom to frustrate Ahithophel (see 15:32-37).

16:20–17:4 Ahithophel had a reputation as an exceedingly skilled adviser (v. 23). Absalom's obedience to his advice to sleep with his father's concubines fulfilled God's word of judgment against David that his wives would be slept with in public (12:11-12; 15:16). Ahithophel also advised Absalom to take action quickly against David and to kill him only (17:1-4).

17 Ahithophel said to Absalom, "Let me choose twelve thousand men, and I will set out in pursuit of David tonight. 2 I will attack him while he is weary and discouraged, † throw him into a panic, and all the people with him will scatter. I will strike down only the king † 3 and bring all the people back to you. When everyone returns except the man you're looking for, all † the people will be at peace." 4 This proposal seemed right to Absalom and all the elders of Israel.
5 Then Absalom said, "Summon Hushai the Archite also. Let's hear what he has to say as well."
6 So Hushai came to Absalom, and Absalom told him: "Ahithophel offered this proposal. Should we carry out his proposal? If not, what do you say? " 7 Hushai replied to Absalom, "The advice Ahithophel has given this time is not good." 8 Hushai continued, "You know your father and his men. They are warriors and are desperate like a wild bear robbed of her cubs. † Your father is an experienced soldier who won't spend the night with the people. 9 He's probably already hiding in one of the caves † or some other place. If some of our troops fall † first, someone is sure to hear and say, 'There's been a slaughter among the people who follow Absalom.' 10 Then, even a brave man with the heart of a lion † will lose heart † because all Israel knows that your father and the valiant men with him are warriors. 11 Instead, I advise that all Israel from Dan to Beer-sheba — as numerous as the sand by the sea † — be gathered to you and that you personally go into battle. 12 Then we will attack David wherever we find him, and we will descend on him like dew on the ground. Not even one will be left—neither he nor any of the men with him. 13 If he retreats to some city, all Israel will bring ropes to that city, and we will drag its stones † into the valley until not even a pebble can be found there." 14 Since the LORD had decreed † that Ahithophel's good advice be undermined † in order to bring about Absalom's ruin, Absalom and all the men of Israel said, "The advice of Hushai the Archite is better than Ahithophel's advice."

DAVID INFORMED OF ABSALOM'S PLANS

15 Hushai then told the priests Zadok and Abiathar, "This is what † Ahithophel advised Absalom and the elders of Israel, and this is what † I advised. 16 Now send someone quickly and tell David, 'Don't spend the night at the wilderness ford, † but be sure to cross over the Jordan, † † or the king and all the people with him will be devoured.' "

17 Jonathan and Ahimaaz were staying at En-rogel, where a servant girl would come and pass along information to them. They in turn would go and inform King David, because they dared not be seen entering the city. 18 However, a young man did see them and informed Absalom. So the two left quickly and came to the house of a man in Bahurim. He had a well in his courtyard, and they climbed down into it. 19 Then his wife took the cover, placed it over the mouth of the well, and scattered grain on it so nobody would know anything.

20 Absalom's servants came to the woman at the house and asked, "Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan? "

"They passed by toward the water," † the woman replied to them. The men searched but did not find them, so they returned to Jerusalem.

21 After they had gone, Ahimaaz and Jonathan climbed out of the well and went and informed King David. They told him, "Get up and immediately ford the river, for Ahithophel has given this advice against you." 22 So David and all the people with him got up and crossed the Jordan. By daybreak, there was no one who had not crossed the Jordan. 23 When Ahithophel realized that his advice had not been followed, he saddled his donkey and set out for his house in his hometown. He set his house in order and hanged himself. † So he died and was buried in his father's tomb.

24 David had arrived at Mahanaim by the time Absalom crossed the Jordan with all the men of Israel. 25 Now Absalom had appointed Amasa † over the army in Joab's place. Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra † the Israelite; † † Ithra had married Abigail daughter of Nahash. † Abigail was a sister to Zeruiah, Joab's mother. 26 And Israel and Absalom camped in the land of Gilead. 27 When David came to Mahanaim, Shobi son of Nahash † from Rabbah † of the Ammonites, Machir son of Ammiel from Lo-debar, † and Barzillai the Gileadite from Rogelim † 28 brought beds, basins, † and pottery items. They also brought wheat, barley, flour, roasted grain, beans, lentils, † 29 honey, curds, sheep, goats, and cheese † from the herd for David and the people with him to eat. They had reasoned, "The people must be hungry, exhausted, and thirsty in the wilderness."

17:14 Hushai's contrived advice (vv. 7-13) was accepted because the LORD had decreed that Ahithophel's good advice be undermined in order to bring about Absalom's ruin, as David had prayed (15:31). Hushai also informed Zadok and Abiathar to send word to David to flee even further (vv. 15-16).

17:19-20 This woman's hiding of Jonathan and Ahimaaz recalls Rahab's hiding of the Israelite spies (Jos 2:1-7).

17:23 Some have suggested Ahithophel's suicide was because he knew that David would eventually regain power and he would be convicted of treason, but the biblical text does not explain his motive. The Bible does not make any ethical evaluation of suicide, but it is not pictured as honorable or as consistent with God's sovereign giving and taking of life.

ABSALOM'S DEFEAT

18 David reviewed his troops and appointed commanders of thousands and of hundreds over them. 2 He then sent out the troops, a third under

Joab, a third under Joab's brother Abishai son of Zeruiah, and a third under Ittai of Gath. The king said to the troops, "I must also march out with you."

3 "You must not go!" † the people pleaded. "If we have to flee, they will not pay any attention to us. Even if half of us die, they will not pay any attention to us because you are worth † ten thousand of us. Therefore, it is better if you support us from the city."

4 "I will do whatever you think is best," the king replied to them. So he stood beside the city gate while all the troops marched out by hundreds and thousands.

5 The king commanded Joab, Abishai, and Ittai, "Treat the young man Absalom gently for my sake." All the people heard the king's orders to all the commanders about Absalom.

6 Then David's forces marched into the field to engage Israel in battle, which took place in the forest of Ephraim. 7 Israel's army was defeated by David's soldiers, and the slaughter there was vast that day — twenty thousand dead. 8 The battle spread over the entire area, and that day the forest claimed more people than the sword.

ABSALOM'S DEATH

9 Absalom was riding on his mule when he happened to meet David's soldiers. When the mule went under the tangled branches of a large oak tree, Absalom's head was caught fast in the tree. The mule under him kept going, so he was suspended in midair. † 10 One of the men saw him and informed Joab. He said, "I just saw Absalom hanging in an oak tree!"

11 "You just saw him!" Joab exclaimed. † "Why didn't you strike him to the ground right there? I would have given you ten silver pieces † and a belt!"

12 The man replied to Joab, "Even if I had the weight of a thousand pieces of silver † in my hand, I would not raise my hand against the king's son. For we heard the king command you, Abishai, and Ittai, 'Protect the young man Absalom for me.' † † 13 If I had jeopardized my own † life — and nothing is hidden from the king — you would have abandoned me."

14 Joab said, "I'm not going to waste time with you!" He then took three spears in his hand and thrust them into Absalom's chest. While Absalom was still alive in the oak tree, 15 ten young men who were Joab's armor-bearers surrounded Absalom, struck him, and killed him. 16 Joab blew the ram's horn, and the troops broke off their pursuit of Israel because Joab restrained them. 17 They took Absalom, threw him into a large pit in the forest, and raised up a huge mound of stones over him. † And all Israel fled, each to his tent. †

18 When he was alive, Absalom had taken a pillar and raised it up † for himself in the King's Valley, † since he thought, "I have no son † to preserve the memory of my name." So he named the pillar after himself. It is still called Absalom's Monument today.

19 Ahimaaz son of Zadok † said, "Please let me run and tell the king the good news that the LORD has vindicated him by freeing him from his enemies."

20 Joab replied to him, "You are not the man to take good news today. You may do it another day, but today you aren't taking good news, because the king's son is dead." 21 Joab then said to a Cushite, "Go tell the king what you have seen." The Cushite bowed to Joab and took off running.

22 However, Ahimaaz son of Zadok persisted and said to Joab, "No matter what, please let me also run behind the Cushite! "

Joab replied, "My son, why do you want to run since you won't get a reward? " †

23 "No matter what, I want to run! "

"Then run! " Joab said to him. So Ahimaaz ran by way of the plain and outran the Cushite.

24 David was sitting between the city gates † when the watchman went up to the roof of the city gate and over to the wall. † The watchman looked out and saw a man running alone. 25 He called out and told the king.

The king said, "If he's alone, he bears good news."

As the first runner came closer, 26 the watchman saw another man running. He called out to the gatekeeper, "Look! Another man is running alone! "

"This one is also bringing good news," said the king.

27 The watchman said, "The way the first man runs looks to me like the way Ahimaaz son of Zadok runs." †

"This is a good man; he comes with good news," † the king commented.

28 Ahimaaz called out to the king, "All is well," and paid homage to the king with his face to the ground. He continued, "Blessed be the LORD your God! He delivered up the men who rebelled against my lord the king."

29 The king asked, “Is the young man Absalom all right? ” Ahimaaz replied, “When Joab sent the king’s servant and your servant, I saw a big disturbance, but I don’t know what it was.”
30 The king said, “Move aside and stand here.” So he stood to one side.
31 Just then the Cushite came and said, “May my lord the king hear the good news: The LORD has vindicated you today by freeing you from all who rise against you! ”
32 The king asked the Cushite, “Is the young man Absalom all right? ”
The Cushite replied, “I wish that the enemies of my lord the king, along with all who rise up against you with evil intent, would become like that young man.” †
33 The king was deeply moved and went up to the chamber above the city gate and wept. As he walked, he cried, “My son Absalom! My son, my son Absalom! If only I had died instead of you, Absalom, my son, my son! ” †

18:9-10 Ironically, it was Absalom’s hair that got tangled in a tree and left him vulnerable. His hair had been emphasized as part of his strikingly handsome appearance (14:25-26).

18:14-15 Despite the king’s orders to spare Absalom (vv. 5,12-13), Joab killed him.

18:18 Absalom’s monument to himself demonstrated his vanity (see also 14:25-26; 15:1).

18:28-29 Perhaps hoping to receive favor or a reward, Ahimaaz insisted on delivering a report to David and deliberately did not mention Absalom’s death (see vv. 19-23).

18:33 As one would expect, David was deeply sorrowful over his son Absalom’s death (see vv. 5,12; 13:39).

DAVID’S KINGDOM RESTORED

19 It was reported to Joab, “The king is weeping. He’s mourning over Absalom.” 2 That day’s victory was turned into mourning for all the troops because on that day the troops heard, “The king is grieving over his son.” 3 So they returned to the city quietly that day like troops come in when they are humiliated after fleeing in battle. 4 But the king covered his face † and cried loudly, “My son Absalom! Absalom, my son, my son! ”

5 Then Joab went into the house to the king and said, “Today you have shamed all your soldiers — those who saved your life as well as your sons, your wives, and your concubines — 6 by loving your enemies and hating those who love you! Today you have made it clear that the commanders and soldiers mean nothing to you. In fact, today I know that if Absalom were alive and all of us were dead, it would be fine with you! † 7 “Now get up! Go out and encourage † your soldiers, for I swear by the LORD that if you don’t go out, not a man will remain with you tonight. † This will be worse for you than all the trouble that has come to you from your youth until now! ”
8 So the king got up and sat in the city gate, † and all the people were told:
“Look, the king is sitting in the city gate.” Then they all came into the king’s presence.
Meanwhile, each Israelite had fled to his tent. † 9 People throughout all the tribes of Israel were arguing among themselves, saying, “The king rescued us from the grasp of our enemies, † and he saved us from the grasp of the Philistines, † but now he has fled from the land because of Absalom. † 10 But Absalom, the man we anointed over us, has died in battle. So why do you say nothing about restoring the king? ” 11 King David sent word to the priests Zadok and Abiathar: † “Say to the elders of Judah, ‘Why should you be the last to restore the king to his palace? The talk of all Israel has reached the king at his house. 12 You are my brothers, my flesh and blood. † † So why should you be the last to restore the king? ’ 13 And tell Amasa, † ‘Aren’t you my flesh and blood? † May God punish me and do so severely if you don’t become commander of my army from now on instead of Joab! ’ ” 14 So he won over † all the men of Judah, and they unanimously sent word to the king: “Come back, you and all your servants.” 15 Then the king returned.
When he arrived at the Jordan, Judah came to Gilgal to meet the king and escort him across the Jordan.
16 Shimei son of Gera, † the Benjaminite from Bahurim, hurried down with the men of Judah to meet King David. 17 There were a thousand men from Benjamin with him. Ziba, an attendant from the house of Saul, † with his fifteen sons and twenty servants also rushed down to the Jordan ahead of the king.

18 They forded the Jordan to bring the king's household across and do whatever the king desired. †
When Shimei son of Gera crossed the Jordan, he fell facedown before the king 19 and said to him, "My lord, don't hold me guilty, and don't remember your servant's wrongdoing on the day my lord the king left Jerusalem. † May the king not take it to heart. 20 For your servant knows that I have sinned. But look!
Today I am the first one of the entire house of Joseph to come down to meet my lord the king."
21 Abishai son of Zeruiah asked, "Shouldn't Shimei be put to death for this, because he cursed the LORD's anointed? " † 22 David answered, "Sons of Zeruiah, do we agree on anything? † Have you become my adversary today? Should any man be killed in Israel today? Am I not aware that today I'm king over Israel? " 23 So the king said to Shimei, "You will not die." Then the king gave him his oath. † 24 Mephibosheth, † Saul's grandson, also went down to meet the king. He had not taken care of his feet, trimmed his mustache, or washed his clothes from the day the king left until the day he returned safely. 25 When he came from Jerusalem to meet the king, the king asked him, "Mephibosheth, why didn't you come with me? " 26 "My lord the king," he replied, "my servant Ziba betrayed me. Actually your servant said: 'I'll saddle the donkey for myself † so that I may ride it and go with the king' — for your servant is lame. † 27 Ziba slandered your servant to my lord the king. † But my lord the king is like the angel of God, † so do whatever you think best. † 28 For my grandfather's entire family deserves death from my lord the king, but you set your servant among those who eat at your table. † So what further right do I have to keep on making appeals to the king? " 29 The king said to him, "Why keep on speaking about these matters of yours? I hereby declare: you and Ziba are to divide the land." † 30 Mephibosheth said to the king, "Instead, since my lord the king has come to his palace safely, let Ziba take it all! "

31 Barzillai the Gileadite † had come down from Rogelim and accompanied the king to the Jordan River to see him off at the Jordan. 32 Barzillai was a very old man — eighty years old — and since he was a very wealthy man, he had provided for the needs of the king while he stayed in Mahanaim. † 33 The king said to Barzillai, “Cross over with me, and I’ll provide for you † at my side in Jerusalem.”
34 Barzillai replied to the king, “How many years of my life are left that I should go up to Jerusalem with the king? 35 I’m now eighty years old. † Can I discern what is pleasant and what is not? Can your servant taste what he eats or drinks?
Can I still hear the voice of male and female singers? Why should your servant be an added burden to my lord the king? † 36 Since your servant is only going with the king a little way across the Jordan, why should the king repay me with such a reward? 37 Please let your servant return so that I may die in my own city near the tomb of my father and mother. But here is your servant Chimham: † let him cross over with my lord the king. Do for him what seems good to you.” † 38 The king replied, “Chimham will cross over with me, and I will do for him what seems good to you, and whatever you desire from me I will do for you.” 39 So all the people crossed the Jordan, and then the king crossed. The king kissed Barzillai and blessed him, and Barzillai returned to his home.
40 The king went on to Gilgal, and Chimham went with him. All the troops of Judah and half of Israel’s escorted the king. 41 Suddenly, all the men of Israel came to the king. They asked him, “Why did our brothers, the men of Judah, take you away secretly and transport the king and his household across the Jordan, along with all of David’s men? ” 42 All the men of Judah responded to the men of Israel, “Because the king is our relative. Why does this make you angry? Have we ever eaten anything of the king’s or been honored at all? ” † 43 The men of Israel answered the men of Judah: “We have ten shares in the king, † so we have a greater claim to David than you. Why then do you despise us? Weren’t we the first to speak of restoring our king? ” † But the words of the men of Judah were harsher than those of the men of Israel.

19:11-15 David sent word to the leaders of his tribe, asking them to take the lead in restoring him to the kingship. He also intended to make Amasa the commander of [his] army in place of Joab (v. 13).

19:16-23 Shimei had cursed David when he was fleeing Absalom (16:5-8,13), but he quickly changed his attitude. Although David promised not to kill him (vv. 22-23), he would later instruct Solomon to do so (1Kg 2:8-9). Abishai son of Zeruiah had also wanted to kill Shimei the first time (v. 21; 16:9), and David continued to express his frustration with the sons of Zeruiah (v. 22; see 3:39; 16:10).

19:24-27 Mephibosheth challenged Ziba's earlier claim that he was hoping to be given the throne (see the note on 16:1-4). Mephibosheth's physical appearance supported his words, and David chose to resolve the confusion by ordering the two men to divide the land (v. 29).

19:32 Barzillai provided for David at Mahanaim when he was fleeing from Absalom (see 17:27-29).

19:40-43 After Absalom's death, David called upon his tribe (Judah) to lead the way in restoring him as king over Israel (vv. 11-15), but this resulted in strife between Judah and the other tribes. Discord among the tribes of Israel had happened before and would happen again (see Jdg 8:1; 12:1-6; 20:1-48; 1Kg 12:16-20).

SHEBA'S REVOLT

20 Now a wicked man, a Benjaminite named Sheba son of Bichri, happened to be there. He blew the ram's horn and shouted:

We have no portion in David,
no inheritance in Jesse's son.
Each man to his tent, † Israel!

2 So all the men of Israel deserted David and followed Sheba son of Bichri, but the men of Judah from the Jordan all the way to Jerusalem remained loyal to their king. †
3 When David came to his palace in Jerusalem, he took the ten concubines he had left to take care of the palace and placed them under guard. † He provided for them, but he was not intimate with them. They were confined until the day of their death, living as widows.
4 The king said to Amasa, "Summon the men of Judah to me within three days and be here yourself." 5 Amasa went to summon Judah, but he took longer than the time allotted him. 6 So David said to Abishai, “Sheba son of Bichri will do more harm to us than Absalom. Take your lord’s soldiers and pursue him, or he will find fortified cities and elude us.” †

7 So Joab’s men, the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and all the warriors marched out under Abishai’s command; † they left Jerusalem to pursue Sheba son of Bichri.
8 They were at the great stone in Gibeon when Amasa joined them. Joab was wearing his uniform and over it was a belt around his waist with a sword in its sheath. As he approached, the sword fell out. 9 Joab asked Amasa, “Are you well, my brother? ” Then with his right hand Joab grabbed Amasa by the beard to kiss him. † 10 Amasa was not on guard against the sword in Joab’s hand, and Joab stabbed him in the stomach with it and spilled his intestines out on the ground. Joab did not stab him again, and Amasa died. †
Joab and his brother Abishai pursued Sheba son of Bichri. 11 One of Joab’s young men had stood over Amasa saying, “Whoever favors Joab and whoever is for David, follow Joab! ” 12 Now Amasa had been writhing in his blood in the middle of the highway, and the man had seen that all the troops stopped. So he moved Amasa from the highway to the field and threw a garment over him because he realized that all those who encountered Amasa were stopping. 13 When he was removed from the highway, all the men passed by and followed Joab to pursue Sheba son of Bichri.
14 Sheba passed through all the tribes of Israel to Abel of Beth-maacah. All the Berites † came together and followed him. 15 Joab’s troops came and besieged Sheba in Abel of Beth-maacah. They built a siege ramp † against the outer wall of the city. While all the troops with Joab were battering the wall to make it collapse, 16 a wise woman called out from the city, “Listen! Listen! Please tell Joab to come here and let me speak with him.”
17 When he had come near her, the woman asked, “Are you Joab? ”
“I am,” he replied.
“Listen to the words of your servant,” she said to him.
He answered, “I’m listening.”
18 She said, “In the past they used to say, ‘Seek counsel in Abel,’ and that’s how they settled disputes. 19 I am one of the peaceful and faithful in Israel, but you’re trying to destroy a city that is like a mother in Israel. Why would you devour the LORD’s inheritance? ”

20 Joab protested: “Never! I would never devour or demolish! 21 That is not the case. There is a man named Sheba son of Bichri, from the hill country of Ephraim, who has rebelled against King David. Deliver this one man, and I will withdraw from the city.”
The woman replied to Joab, “Watch! His head will be thrown over the wall to you.” 22 The woman went to all the people with her wise counsel, † and they cut off the head of Sheba son of Bichri and threw it to Joab. So he blew the ram’s horn, and they dispersed from the city, each to his own tent. Joab returned to the king in Jerusalem.

23 Joab commanded the whole army of Israel; †
Benaiah son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and Pelethites;
24 Adoram † was over forced labor; †
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was court historian;
25 Sheva was court secretary;
Zadok and Abiathar were priests;
26 and in addition, Ira the Jairite was David’s priest.

20:1-2 Seizing the opportunity, Sheba drew Israel to himself. Words very similar to his would be used later when most of the tribes rejected Rehoboam to follow Jeroboam (see 1Kg 12:16).

20:9-10 Joab had murdered Abner earlier (3:27), and now he murdered Amasa, who was about to replace him as commander of the army (19:13). David would remember these two evil acts and charge Solomon to punish Joab (1Kg 2:5-6).

20:14-22 Sheba’s rebellion left David with yet another major problem to deal with (vv. 1-2,4-6). Sheba hid in Abel of Beth-maacah. The destruction of this city was averted because a wise woman communicated with Joab and learned that he only wanted to apprehend Sheba (vv. 17-21). Her wise counsel was accepted by her people, who beheaded Sheba so that Joab’s forces withdrew. The woman from Tekoa had also been described as a “wise woman” (lit 14:2). These examples can be related to passages elsewhere about wise women (see 1Sm 25:3,33; Pr 1:20-33; 14:1; 31:10-31).

JUSTICE FOR THE GIBEONITES

21 During David's reign there was a famine for three successive years, so David inquired † of the LORD. The LORD answered, "It is due to Saul and to his bloody family, because he killed the Gibeonites."
2 The Gibeonites were not Israelites but rather a remnant of the Amorites. The Israelites had taken an oath concerning them, † but Saul had tried to kill them in his zeal for the Israelites and Judah. So David summoned the Gibeonites and spoke to them. 3 He asked the Gibeonites, "What should I do for you? How can I make atonement so that you will bring a blessing on † the LORD's inheritance? "
4 The Gibeonites said to him, "We are not asking for silver and gold from Saul or his family, † and we cannot put anyone to death in Israel." †
"Whatever you say, I will do for you," he said.
5 They replied to the king, "As for the man who annihilated us and plotted to destroy us so we would not exist within the whole territory of Israel, 6 let seven of his male descendants be handed over to us so we may hang † them in the presence of the LORD † at Gibeah of Saul, † the LORD's chosen." †
The king answered, "I will hand them over."
7 David spared Mephibosheth, the son of Saul's son Jonathan, because of the oath of the LORD that was between David and Jonathan, Saul's son. † 8 But the king took Armoni and Mephibosheth, who were the two sons whom Rizpah † daughter of Aiah had borne to Saul, and the five sons whom Merab † † daughter of Saul had borne to Adriel son of Barzillai the Meholathite 9 and handed them over to the Gibeonites. They hanged † them on the hill in the presence of the LORD; the seven of them died together. They were executed in the first days of the harvest at the beginning of the barley harvest. †

THE BURIAL OF SAUL'S FAMILY

10 Rizpah, Aiah's daughter, took sackcloth and spread it out for herself on the rock from the beginning of the harvest † until the rain poured down from heaven on the bodies. She kept the birds of the sky from them by day and the wild animals by night.

11 When it was reported to David what Saul's concubine Rizpah daughter of Aiah had done, 12 he went and got the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan from the citizens of Jabesh-gilead. They had stolen them from the public square of Beth-shan where the Philistines had hung the bodies the day the Philistines killed Saul at Gilboa. † 13 David had the bones brought from there. They gathered up the bones of Saul's family who had been hanged 14 and buried the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan at Zela in the land of Benjamin in the tomb of Saul's father Kish. They did everything the king commanded. After this, God was receptive to prayer for the land. †

THE PHILISTINE GIANTS

15 The Philistines again waged war against Israel. David went down with his soldiers, and they fought the Philistines, but David became exhausted. 16 Then Ishbi-benob, one of the descendants of the giant, † whose bronze spear weighed about eight pounds † and who wore new armor, intended to kill David. 17 But Abishai son of Zeruiah came to his aid, struck the Philistine, and killed him.
Then David's men swore to him: "You must never again go out with us to battle.
You must not extinguish the lamp of Israel." †

18 After this, † there was another battle with the Philistines at Gob. At that time Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph, who was one of the descendants of the giant.

19 Once again there was a battle with the Philistines at Gob, and Elhanan son of Jaare-oregim the Bethlehemite killed † Goliath of Gath. The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam. †

20 At Gath there was still another battle. A huge man was there with six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot — twenty-four in all. He, too, was descended from the giant. 21 When he taunted Israel, Jonathan, son of David's brother Shimei, killed him.

22 These four were descended from the giant in Gath and were killed by David and his soldiers.

21:1 The preceding chronological narrative fittingly concluded with the restoration of David to the kingship. 2 Samuel 21–24 consists of a sort of epilogue (see also Jdg 17–21), which depicts David as a good though flawed king who nevertheless received the blessing of "a permanent covenant" with God (23:5). Twice in these chapters David is found making effective atonement for sin—once for the sin of others and once for his own (21:1-9,14; 24:17-25). There are thus major differences between Saul and David. Saul's sin consisted of rebelling against God, and he refused to repent authentically. David's sins were socially repugnant, but he always knew that he must take his sin to God (see 24:17-25). He repented and found forgiveness in God's grace.

21:2 Israel's covenant with the Gibeonites is described in Joshua 9.

21:14 A famine in Israel led David to seek God, who revealed its cause to be Saul's killing of the Gibeonites (v. 1). David dealt with this bloodguilt by doing what the Gibeonites wanted (vv. 3-6), while at the same time sparing Jonathan's son Mephibosheth (v. 7). David also demonstrated his continuing concern for the house of the former king by retrieving and burying the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan (vv. 11-14). Whereas David made atonement for someone else's sin here, he would make atonement for his own in 24:17-24 (see also the note on 21:1). In both cases, his effectiveness is indicated by the statement that God was receptive to his prayer for the land (see also 24:24).

21:15-22 Unlike earlier passages that celebrated David's military feats (e.g., 8:1-14), this passage and 23:8-39 celebrate the feats of his men. The account of Abishai's feat also highlighted David's weakness (vv. 15-17).

DAVID'S SONG OF THANKSGIVING

22 David spoke the words of this song to the LORD on the day the LORD rescued him from the grasp of all his enemies and from the grasp of Saul. 2 He said: †

The LORD is my rock, my fortress, † and my deliverer, 3 my God, † my rock where I seek refuge.

My shield, the horn of my salvation, † my stronghold, † my refuge, † and my Savior, you save me from violence.

4 I called to the LORD, who is worthy of praise, †
and I was saved from my enemies.

5 For the waves of death engulfed me; †
the torrents of destruction terrified me.

6 The ropes of Sheol entangled me; the snares of death confronted me. †

7 I called to the LORD in my distress; I called to my God. †
From his temple he heard my voice, and my cry for help reached his ears.

8 Then the earth shook and quaked; the foundations of the heavens † trembled; † they shook because he burned with anger. †
9 Smoke rose from his nostrils, and consuming fire came from his mouth; coals were set ablaze by it. †
10 He bent the heavens and came down, †
total darkness beneath his feet.
11 He rode on a cherub and flew, soaring † on the wings of the wind.
12 He made darkness a canopy around him, a gathering † of water and thick clouds. †
13 From the radiance of his presence, blazing coals were ignited.
14 The LORD thundered from heaven; the Most High made his voice heard. † 15 He shot arrows and scattered them; †
he hurled lightning bolts and routed them. †
16 The depths of the sea became visible, the foundations of the world were exposed at the rebuke of the LORD, at the blast of the breath † of his nostrils. †

17 He reached down from on high and took hold of me;
he pulled me out of deep water. †
18 He rescued me from my powerful enemy and from those who hated me, for they were too strong for me.
19 They confronted me in the day of my calamity, but the LORD was my support.
20 He brought me out to a spacious place; †
he rescued me because he delighted in me.

21 The LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness; †
he repaid me
according to the cleanness of my hands. †
22 For I have kept the ways of the LORD † and have not turned from my God to wickedness.

23 Indeed, I let all his ordinances † guide me †
and have not disregarded his statutes.
24 I was blameless before him and kept myself from my iniquity.
25 So the LORD repaid me according to my righteousness, according to my cleanness † in his sight.

26 With the faithful you prove yourself faithful,
with the blameless
you prove yourself blameless,
27 with the pure you prove yourself pure;
but with the crooked
you prove yourself shrewd.
28 You rescue an oppressed people, † but your eyes are set against the proud — you humble them. †
29 LORD, you are my lamp; the LORD illuminates my darkness. †
30 With you I can attack a barricade, † and with my God I can leap over a wall. †
31 God — his way is perfect; †
the word of the LORD is pure. †
He is a shield to all who take refuge in him.

32 For who is God besides the LORD?
And who is a rock? Only our God.
33 God is my strong refuge; † he makes my way perfect. † 34 He makes my feet like the feet of a deer and sets me securely on the † heights. †
35 He trains my hands for war; †
my arms can bend a bow of bronze.
36 You have given me the shield of your salvation; † your help † exalts me.

37 You make a spacious place beneath me for my steps, and my ankles do not give way.
38 I pursue my enemies and destroy them; I do not turn back until they are wiped out.
39 I wipe them out and crush them, and they do not rise;
they fall beneath my feet.
40 You have clothed me with strength for battle; you subdue my adversaries beneath me. †
41 You have made my enemies retreat before me; †
I annihilate those who hate me.
42 They look, but there is no one to save them — they look to the LORD, but he does not answer them. †
43 I pulverize them like dust of the earth; I crush them and trample them like mud in the streets. †

44 You have freed me from the feuds among my people; † you have preserved me as head of nations; a people I had not known serve me. †
45 Foreigners submit to me cringing; as soon as they hear, they obey me.
46 Foreigners lose heart and come trembling from their fortifications. †

47 The LORD lives — blessed be my rock!
God, the rock of my salvation, † is exalted.
48 God — he grants me vengeance and casts down peoples under me. †
49 He frees me from my enemies.
You exalt me above my adversaries;
you rescue me from violent men. †

50 Therefore I will give thanks to you among the nations, LORD; I will sing praises about your name. † 51 He is a tower of salvation for † his king; he shows loyalty to his anointed, to David and his descendants forever. †

22:1-51 The middle part of this section consists of poetry: this is a psalm of thanksgiving followed by David's last words (23:1-7). The psalm celebrates God's deliverance from all his enemies and is very similar though not identical to Psalm 18.

22:2-6 David begins by praising God, who saved him from violence and from [his] enemies. He had been in life-threatening situations (vv. 5-6).

22:7-20 When David prayed, God heard (v. 7), and he acted dramatically and decisively on his behalf. God came down (v. 10), spoke with power (v. 14), routed David's enemies (v. 15), and delivered him out of deep water, bringing him into a spacious place (vv. 16,20).

22:21-25 These words should not be taken to imply that David thought that he had never sinned (see 12:13; 24:10). On the other hand, they do fit well with his life and conduct under Saul (see v. 1).

22:28 The Lord's deliverance of an oppressed people and his humbling of the proud recalls the reversal-of-fortune motif in Hannah's prayer (see 1Sm 2:1-10).

22:31 The statement that the word of the LORD is pure is echoed in Psalm 119:140 and Proverbs 30:5. These verses thus support the complete trustworthiness of the Bible.

22:32 The notion of God as rock is repeated here (see v. 3) and mentioned again in verse 47 (see also 23:3; 1Sm 2:2). Besides Psalm 18 (see the note on 22:1), the only other passages that have so many references to God as rock are Deuteronomy 32 (see vv. 4,15,18,30-31) and Psalm 62 (see vv. 2,6,7).

22:34 The precise meaning of this expression is difficult to determine, though the surrounding context suggests security and victory (see also Dt 32:13; Ps 18:33; Hab 3:19).

22:50-51 God had given David victory in battle so that he not only ruled his own country but was "head of nations" (v. 44). In connection with this, David pledged to praise God among the nations. The reference to his king and his anointed links David's psalm to Hannah's prayer in 1 Samuel 2:1-10 (see v. 10). The identity of this ruler was unclear in Hannah's prayer but is here connected to David and his descendants. The Lord's deliverance of this king concerns not only him and his nation but is to be broadcast throughout the whole world.

DAVID'S LAST WORDS

23 These are the last words of David:

The declaration of David son of Jesse, † the declaration of the man raised on high, † the one anointed by the God of Jacob. †
This is the most delightful of Israel's songs.
2 The Spirit of the LORD spoke through me, his word was on my tongue. †
3 The God of Israel spoke; the Rock of Israel said to me,
"The one who rules the people with justice, who rules in the fear of God, † 4 is like the morning light when the sun rises on a cloudless morning, the glisten of rain on sprouting grass."

5 Is it not true my house is with God?
For he has established a permanent covenant † with me, ordered and secured in every detail. †
Will he not bring about my whole salvation and my every desire?
6 But all the wicked are like thorns raked aside; they can never be picked up by hand.
7 The man who touches them must be armed with iron and the shaft of a spear.
They will be completely burned up on the spot.

EXPLOITS OF DAVID'S WARRIORS

8 These are the names of David's warriors: †
Josheb-basshebeth the Tahchemonite was chief of the officers. † He wielded his spear † against eight hundred men that he killed at one time.
9 After him, Eleazar son of Dodo son of an Ahohite was among the three warriors with David when they defied the Philistines. The men of Israel retreated in the place they had gathered for battle, 10 but Eleazar stood his ground and attacked the Philistines until his hand was tired and stuck to his sword. The LORD brought about a great victory that day. Then the troops came back to him, but only to plunder the dead.
11 After him was Shammah son of Agee the Hararite. The Philistines had assembled in formation where there was a field full of lentils. The troops fled from the Philistines, 12 but Shammah took his stand in the middle of the field, defended it, and struck down the Philistines. So the LORD brought about a great victory.

13 Three of the thirty leading warriors went down at harvest time and came to David at the cave of Adullam, † while a company of Philistines was camping in the Valley of Rephaim. 14 At that time David was in the stronghold, † and a Philistine garrison was at Bethlehem. 15 David was extremely thirsty † and said, "If only someone would bring me water to drink from the well at the city gate of Bethlehem! " 16 So three of the warriors broke through the Philistine camp and drew water from the well at the gate of Bethlehem. They brought it back to David, but he refused to drink it. Instead, he poured it out to the LORD. 17 David said, "LORD, I would never do such a thing! Is this not the blood of men who risked their lives? " So he refused to drink it. Such were the exploits of the three warriors.
18 Abishai, Joab's brother and son of Zeruiah, † was leader of the Three. † He wielded his spear against three hundred men and killed them, gaining a reputation among the Three. 19 Was he not more honored than the Three? He became their commander even though he did not become one of the Three. †
20 Benaiah son of Jehoiada † was the son of a brave man from Kabzeel, a man of many exploits. Benaiah killed two sons † of Ariel † of Moab, and he went down into a pit on a snowy day and killed a lion. 21 He also killed an Egyptian, an impressive man. Even though the Egyptian had a spear in his hand, Benaiah went down to him with a club, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and then killed him with his own spear. 22 These were the exploits of Benaiah son of Jehoiada, who had a reputation among the three warriors. 23 He was the most honored of the Thirty, but he did not become one of the Three. David put him in charge of his bodyguard.
24 Among the Thirty were

Joab's brother Asahel, †
Elhanan son of Dodo of Bethlehem,
25 Shammah the Harodite, Elika the Harodite,

26 Helez the Paltite,
Ira son of Ikkesh the Tekoite,
27 Abiezer the Anathothite,
Mebunnai the Hushathite,
28 Zalmon the Ahohite, Maharai the Netophathite,
29 Heleb son of Baanah the Netophathite,
Ittai son of Ribai from Gibeah of the Benjaminites,
30 Benaiah the Pirathonite,
Hiddai from the wadis of Gaash, †
31 Abi-albon the Arbathite, Azmaveth the Barhumite,
32 Eliahba the Shaalbonite,
the sons of Jashen,
Jonathan son of † 33 Shammah the Hararite,
Ahiam son of Sharar the Hararite,
34 Eliphelet son of Ahasbai son of the Maacathite, Eliam son of Ahithophel the Gilonite, †
35 Hezro the Carmelite, Paarai the Arbite,
36 Igal son of Nathan from Zobah, Bani the Gadite,
37 Zelek the Ammonite,
Naharai the Beerothite, the armor-bearer for Joab son of Zeruiah, 38 Ira the Ithrite,
Gareb the Ithrite,

39 and Uriah † the Hethite. †

There were thirty-seven in all.

23:1-5 This text has several striking similarities to Numbers 24:1-19. First, the Hebrew construction translated here as the declaration of [x] son of [y] . . . the declaration of the man is found only here and in Numbers 24:3,15 (see also Pr 30:1). Second, both passages involve the main character speaking by God's Spirit (v. 2; Nm 24:2). Third, both have a Hebrew word that means last ('acharon in v. 1; 'acherit in Nm 24:14). Fourth, Numbers 24 directly predicts the coming of the Messiah (see the notes on Nm 24:1-4,7-9,14-19), and 2 Samuel 23:1-5 concerns the Messiah's rule (vv. 3-4; see Ps 72:6-8; Is 11:1-5) and the permanent covenant made with David (v. 5), which is fulfilled by the Messiah (see the notes on 7:8-16 and Gn 49:8-12).

23:8-23 Prior to the preceding lengthy poetic section (22:1–23:7), the feats of David's men had been celebrated (see the note on 21:15-22). Another such section is found here. Once again, David's weakness is mentioned (vv. 15-17; see 21:15-17), and the LORD brought about a great victory not through David, but through others (vv. 10,12).

23:39 The mention of Uriah the Hethite reminds the reader of David's serious sins earlier (see 11:1-27).

DAVID'S MILITARY CENSUS

24 The LORD's anger burned against Israel again, and he stirred up David against them to say: "Go, count the people of Israel and Judah." †

2 So the king said to Joab, the commander of his army, "Go through all the tribes of Israel from Dan to Beer-sheba and register the troops so I can know their number." †

3 Joab replied to the king, "May the LORD your God multiply the troops a hundred times more than they are † — while my lord the king looks on! But why does my lord the king want to do this? "

4 Yet the king's order prevailed over Joab and the commanders of the army. So Joab and the commanders of the army left the king's presence to register the troops of Israel.

5 They crossed the Jordan and camped in Aroer, † south of the town in the middle of the valley, and then proceeded toward Gad and Jazer. 6 They went to Gilead and to the land of the Hittites † and continued on to Dan-jaan and around to Sidon. 7 They went to the fortress of Tyre and all the cities of the Hivites and Canaanites. Afterward, they went to the Negev of Judah at Beer-sheba.

8 When they had gone through the whole land, they returned to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days. 9 Joab gave the king the total of the registration of the troops. There were eight hundred thousand valiant armed men † from Israel and five hundred thousand men from Judah. †
10 David's conscience troubled him † after he had taken a census of the troops. He said to the LORD, "I have sinned greatly in what I've done. Now, LORD, because I've been very foolish, † please take away your servant's guilt."

DAVID'S PUNISHMENT

11 When David got up in the morning, the word of the LORD had come to the prophet Gad, † David's seer: † 12 "Go and say to David, 'This is what the LORD says: I am offering you three choices. Choose one of them, and I will do it to you.' "
13 So Gad went to David, told him the choices, and asked him, "Do you want three † years of famine to come on your land, to flee from your foes three months while they pursue you, or to have a plague in your land three days? Now, consider carefully † what answer I should take back to the one who sent me."
14 David answered Gad, "I have great anxiety. Please, let us fall into the LORD's hands because his mercies are great, † but don't let me fall into human hands."
15 So the LORD sent a plague on Israel from that morning until the appointed time, and from Dan to Beer-sheba seventy thousand men died. 16 Then the angel extended his hand toward Jerusalem to destroy it, † but the LORD relented concerning the destruction † and said to the angel who was destroying † the people, "Enough, withdraw your hand now! " The angel of the LORD was then at the threshing floor of Araunah † the Jebusite. †
17 When David saw the angel striking the people, he said to the LORD, "Look, I am the one who has sinned; I am the one † who has done wrong. But these sheep, what have they done? Please, let your hand be against me and my father's family."

DAVID'S ALTAR

18 Gad came to David that day and said to him, “Go up and set up an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.” 19 David went up in obedience to Gad’s command, just as the LORD had commanded. 20 Araunah looked down and saw the king and his servants coming toward him, so he went out and paid homage to the king with his face to the ground.
21 Araunah said, “Why has my lord the king come to his servant? ”
David replied, “To buy the threshing floor from you in order to build an altar to the LORD, so the plague on the people may be halted.” † 22 Araunah said to David, “My lord the king may take whatever he wants † and offer it. Here are the oxen for a burnt offering and the threshing sledges and ox yokes for the wood. † 23 Your Majesty, Araunah gives everything here to the king.” Then he said to the king, “May the LORD your God accept you.” 24 The king answered Araunah, “No, I insist on buying it from you for a price, for I will not offer to the LORD my God burnt offerings that cost me nothing.”
David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for twenty ounces † of silver.
25 He built an altar to the LORD there and offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings. Then the LORD was receptive to prayer for the land, † and the plague on Israel ended.

24:1-10 This section of 2 Samuel began with David effectively making atonement for sin (see the note on 21:1), and it also ends in this way. This time, the sin was his own. Counting his soldiers was an act of pride and self-reliance, as David himself seems to imply in his confession that he had sinned greatly and been very foolish (v. 10; see also v. 17; Dt 17:19-20).

24:12-15 David’s desire to fall into the LORD’s hands (v. 14) was an implicit choice of the plague (vv. 13,15).

24:17-25 The angel was stopped from further destruction while at the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite (v. 16). David had been instructed to build an altar there so that the plague might end (vv. 18,21). The genuineness of his worship is demonstrated through his insistence on buying the threshing floor, animals, and wood from Araunah. David would not offer to God burnt offerings that cost [him] nothing (v. 24). After building the altar, he offered sacrifices, and the plague ended. David was not perfect, but he genuinely repented of his sin and effectively dealt with sin (see the note on 21:14).

INTRODUCTION

The titles of these books are certainly descriptive of their contents: the history of the kings and the kingdoms of Israel and Judah. First and Second Kings are part of a larger body of the OT known as the twelve Historical Books (Joshua–Esther). Originally, the books were just one book, but were divided by the translators of the Septuagint (the Gk translation of the OT; aka LXX).

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

AUTHOR: Scholars cannot identify the authors of any portions of these books. Traditional guesses such as Samuel and Jeremiah lack evidence, although a prominent worshiper of the Lord like Jeremiah would have been influential in the circles that produced these books. Since the books clearly incorporated many earlier documents, the complete authorship would include all writers who contributed to the source documents of this work. At some point, the Holy Spirit worked in the human authors to authenticate the inspired, inerrant books of 1 and 2 Kings. The final stage of composition or compilation had to come after the release of Jehoiachin from Babylonian imprisonment (ca. 562 BC). That edition may have added only a postscript to a work completed years earlier, or it may have involved significant additions.

BACKGROUND: The history recorded in 1 and 2 Kings covers approximately 410 years. First Kings begins around 970 BC with the death of King David, and 2 Kings ends around 560 BC with the release of King Jehoiachin from prison. During this time, the nation of Israel split into two kingdoms (930 BC), and both kingdoms went into exile (Israel in 722 BC and Judah in 587 BC).

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

For the Bible writers, history could not have existed without God's purposes. This makes all history theological. The books of 1 and 2 Kings interpreted Hebrew history in light of OT covenant theology. The Babylonian exile created the need for this work of historical apologetics. The exiles needed to explain the failure of the religious program established by the sovereign God. In the Deuteronomic history—Joshua, Judges, 1 and 2 Samuel, and 1 and 2 Kings—this failure was consistently explained as the failures of the people to live up to their part of the covenant.

STRUCTURE

The organizing principle of 1 and 2 Kings is not story or narrative. Kings is unique because its basic structural units were the formulaic royal records. Formal openers (1Kg 15:9-10) and closers (1Kg 15:23-24) usually identify the boundaries of these records. Then the writer could insert other types of literature before, between, and after the openers and closers: narratives, prayers, descriptions, etc. But the most important element was the evaluation of the ruler's faithfulness to the covenant (1Kg 15:11-15). All of these materials made up a history of covenant obedience or disobedience.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW

ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

First Kings emphasizes "one God, one temple." Because Israel's God is the one true Lord of all, he can be worshiped properly at the one place he has designated: the temple in Jerusalem. He will not tolerate the worship of rival deities (such as Baal). He will not long endure being worshiped in rival sites such as at the shrines of the golden calves in Dan and Bethel or on the "high places." The Spirit is present to inspire God's prophets.

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

This book looks at humanity by evaluating the kings' lives. The only thing that really mattered was whether a king did "right in the LORD's sight" (15:5,11; 22:43) or did "evil in the LORD's sight" (11:6).

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

On one hand, 1 Kings emphasizes that salvation is entirely due to God's sovereign work. Solomon's temple dedication prayer emphasized this: "For you, Lord GOD, have set them apart as your inheritance from all peoples of the earth" (8:53). On the other hand, his people were expected to live in loyalty to the covenant, and kings and people are both evaluated according to the terms of the covenant established at Mount Sinai.

DAVID'S LAST DAYS

1 Now King David was old and advanced in age.† Although they covered him with bedclothes, he could not get warm.† 2 So his servants said to him: "Let us† search for a young virgin for my lord the king.† She is to attend the king and be his caregiver. She is to lie by your side so that my lord the king will get warm." 3 They searched for a beautiful girl throughout the territory of Israel; they found Abishag† the Shunammite†† and brought her to the king. 4 The girl was of unsurpassed beauty, † and she became the king's caregiver. She attended to him, but he was not intimate with † her.

ADONIJAH'S BID FOR POWER

5 Adonijah son of Haggith † kept exalting himself, saying, "I will be king! " He prepared chariots, cavalry, and fifty men to run ahead of him. † † 6 But his father had never once infuriated † him by asking, "Why did you do that? " † In addition, he was quite handsome † and was born after Absalom. † 7 He conspired † with Joab son of Zeruiah † and with the priest Abiathar. † They supported † Adonijah, 8 but the priest Zadok, † Benaiah son of Jehoiada, † the prophet Nathan, † Shimei, † Rei, and David's royal guard † † did not side with Adonijah.

9 Adonijah sacrificed sheep, goats, cattle, and fattened cattle near the stone of Zoheleth, which is next to En-rogel. † He invited all his royal brothers and all the men of Judah, the servants of the king, † 10 but he did not invite the prophet Nathan, Benaiah, the royal guard, or his brother Solomon. †

NATHAN'S AND BATHSHEBA'S APPEALS

11 Then Nathan † said to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother, † "Have you not heard that Adonijah son of Haggith has become king † and our lord David does not know it? † 12 Now please come and let me advise you. † Save your life and the life of your son Solomon. † 13 Go, approach King David and say to him, 'My lord the king, did you not swear to your servant: Your son Solomon is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne? † So why has Adonijah become king? ' 14 At that moment, while you are still there speaking with the king, I'll come in after you and confirm your words." †

15 So Bathsheba went to the king in his bedroom. Since the king was very old, Abishag the Shunammite was attending to him. † 16 Bathsheba knelt low and paid homage to the king, and he asked, "What do you want? "

17 She replied, "My lord, you swore to your servant by the LORD your God, 'Your son Solomon is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne.’ 18 Now look, Adonijah has become king. And, † my lord the king, you didn’t know it. 19 He has lavishly sacrificed oxen, fattened cattle, and sheep.

He invited all the king’s sons, the priest Abiathar, and Joab the commander of the army, but he did not invite your servant Solomon. 20 Now, my lord the king, the eyes of all Israel are on you to tell them who will sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. 21 Otherwise, when my lord the king rests with his fathers, †
I and my son Solomon will be regarded as criminals.” †
22 At that moment, while she was still speaking with the king, the prophet Nathan arrived, † 23 and it was announced to the king, “The prophet Nathan is here.” He came into the king’s presence and paid homage to him with his face to the ground.
24 “My lord the king,” Nathan said, “did you say, ‘Adonijah is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne’? 25 For today he went down and lavishly sacrificed oxen, fattened cattle, and sheep. He invited all the sons of the king, the commanders of the army, and the priest Abiathar. And look! They’re eating and drinking in his presence, and they’re saying, ‘Long live King Adonijah! ’ 26 But he did not invite me — me, your servant — or the priest Zadok or Benaiah son of Jehoiada or your servant Solomon. 27 I’m certain my lord the king would not have let this happen without letting your servant † know who will sit on my lord the king’s throne after him.”

SOLOMON CONFIRMED KING

28 King David responded by saying, “Call in Bathsheba for me.” So she came into the king’s presence and stood before him. 29 The king swore an oath and said, “As the LORD lives, who has redeemed my life from every difficulty, † 30 just as I swore to you by the LORD God of Israel: Your son Solomon is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne in my place, † that is exactly what I will do this very day.” † 31 Bathsheba knelt low with her face to the ground, paying homage to the king, † and said, “May my lord King David live forever! ” † 32 King David then said, “Call in the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada for me.” † So they came into the king’s presence.
33 The king said to them, “Take my servants † with you, have my son Solomon ride on my own mule, † and take him down to Gihon. † 34 There, the priest Zadok and the prophet Nathan are to anoint him as king over Israel. † You are to blow the ram's horn † and say, 'Long live King Solomon! ' † 35 You are to come up after him, and he is to come in and sit on my throne. He is the one who is to become king in my place; he is the one I have commanded to be ruler † over Israel and Judah." † 36 "Amen," Benaiah son of Jehoiada replied to the king. "May the LORD, the God of my lord the king, so affirm it. † 37 Just as the LORD was with my lord the king, † so may he † be with Solomon and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David." † 38 Then the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, the Cherethites, and the Pelethites † went down, had Solomon ride on King David's mule, and took him to Gihon. 39 The priest Zadok took the horn of oil from the tabernacle and anointed Solomon. † Then they blew the ram's horn, † and all the people proclaimed, "Long live King Solomon! " † 40 All the people went up after him, playing flutes and rejoicing with such a great joy † that the earth split open from the sound. †

ADONIJAH HEARS OF SOLOMON'S CORONATION

41 Adonijah and all the invited guests who were with him † heard the noise as they finished eating. Joab heard the sound of the ram's horn and said, "Why is the town in such an uproar? " † 42 He was still speaking when Jonathan son of Abiathar the priest, † suddenly arrived. Adonijah said, "Come in, for you are an important man, and you must be bringing good news." † 43 "Unfortunately not," Jonathan answered him. "Our lord King David has made Solomon king. 44 And with Solomon, the king has sent the priest Zadok, the prophet Nathan, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have had him ride on the king's mule. 45 The priest Zadok and the prophet Nathan have anointed him king in Gihon. † They have gone up from there rejoicing. The town has been in an uproar; that's the noise you heard.
46 Solomon has even taken his seat on the royal throne. †

47 “The king’s servants have also gone to congratulate our lord King David, saying, ‘May your God make the name of Solomon more well known than your name, and may he make his throne greater than your throne.’ † Then the king bowed in worship on his bed. † 48 And the king went on to say this: ‘Blessed be the LORD God of Israel! Today he has provided one to sit on my throne, † and I am a witness.’ ” †

49 Then all of Adonijah’s guests got up trembling and went their separate ways.

50 Adonijah was afraid of Solomon, so he got up and went to take hold of the horns of the altar. †

51 It was reported to Solomon: “Look, Adonijah fears King Solomon, and he has taken hold of the horns of the altar, saying, ‘Let King Solomon first † swear to me that he will not kill his servant with the sword.’ ”

52 Then Solomon said, “If he is a man of character, not a single hair of his will fall to the ground, † but if evil is found in him, he dies.” † 53 So King Solomon sent for him, and they took him down from the altar. He came and paid homage to King Solomon, and Solomon said to him, “Go to your home.”

1:1 Toward the end of 2 Samuel, David had been restored to the kingship following Absalom’s conspiracy and death. 1 Kings begins with David old and advanced in age. The Lord had made a covenant with him promising an enduring kingdom (see the note on 2Sm 7:8-16), and he would soon need a successor. Moses’s prediction from long ago that Israel’s disobedience would lead to their exile would also be fulfilled in 1 and 2 Kings (see the note on Dt 4:25-31).

1:5-8 As Absalom his brother had done earlier (see 2Sm 15:1-13), Adonijah attempted to seize the kingship (see also vv. 9-10,25). The Lord's judgment on David for his sin with Bathsheba in the form of family troubles would continue (see the note on 2Sm 12:7-15). For his part, David had not properly taught or disciplined Adonijah (v. 6).

1:28-30 Recognizing the danger to their lives and to Solomon's, Nathan and Bathsheba quickly alerted David of Adonijah's conspiracy (vv. 11-27). David had already sworn to Bathsheba that Solomon would be his successor (vv. 13,17). This had been unmentioned previously, but God's special favor on Solomon fits with this (see 2Sm 12:24-25).

1:49-50 The instructions for Solomon's public installation as king included clear indications of David' s support and authority, such as his own mule (v. 33) and Solomon's sitting on [his] throne (v. 35). Solomon had thus become his father's co-regent (see vv. 39,43). Adonijah was thus revealed as a conspirator, and his guests scattered in fear (v. 49). Adonijah himself knew that his life was in danger and fled to the altar in hopes that his life would be spared (v. 50). Joab would act similarly in 2:28-30.

1:52 Adonijah's fate would depend on whether he showed himself a man of character or not. It turns out that evil would be found in him, and he would be put to death (see 2:13-25).

DAVID'S DYING INSTRUCTIONS TO SOLOMON

2 As the time approached for David to die, † he ordered his son Solomon, 2 "As for me, I am going the way of all of the earth. † Be strong and be a man, † 3 and keep your obligation to the LORD your God to walk in his ways and to keep his statutes, commands, ordinances, and decrees. This is written in the law of Moses, so that you will have success in everything you do † and wherever you turn, 4 and so that the LORD will fulfill his promise that he made to me: 'If your sons guard their way to walk faithfully before me with all their heart and all their soul, † you will never fail to have a man on the throne of Israel.' †
5 "You also know what Joab son of Zeruiah did to me † and what he did to the two commanders of Israel's army, Abner son of Ner † and Amasa son of Jether. † He murdered them in a time of peace to avenge blood shed in war. He spilled that blood on his own waistband and on the sandals of his feet. † 6 Act according to your wisdom, and do not let his gray head descend to Sheol in peace.
7 "Show kindness to the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite and let them be among those who eat at your table † because they supported me when I fled from your brother Absalom. †

8 “Keep an eye on Shimei son of Gera, the Benjaminite from Bahurim who is with you. He uttered malicious curses against me the day I went to Mahanaim. † But he came down to meet me at the Jordan River, and I swore to him by the LORD: ‘I will never kill you with the sword.’ † 9 So don’t let him go unpunished, for you are a wise man. You know how to deal with him to bring his gray head down to Sheol with blood.”

10 Then David rested with his fathers † and was buried in the city of David. †
11 The length of time David reigned over Israel was forty years: he reigned seven years in Hebron and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. † 12 Solomon sat on the throne of his father David, and his kingship was firmly established. †

ADONIJAH’S FOOLISH REQUEST

13 Now Adonijah son of Haggith † came to Bathsheba, Solomon’s mother. She asked, “Do you come peacefully? ”

“Peacefully,” he replied, † 14 and then asked, “May I talk with you? ” † “Go ahead,” she answered.

15 “You know the kingship was mine,” † he said. “All Israel expected me to be king, but then the kingship was turned over to my brother, † for the LORD gave it to him. † 16 So now I have just one request of you; don’t turn me down.” †
She said to him, “Go on.”

17 He replied, “Please speak to King Solomon since he won’t turn you down. Let him give me Abishag the Shunammite † as a wife.”

18 “Very well,” Bathsheba replied. “I will speak to the king for you.”

19 So Bathsheba went to King Solomon to speak to him about Adonijah. The king stood up to greet her, bowed to her, sat down on his throne, and had a throne placed for the king’s mother. † So she sat down at his right hand. †
20 Then she said, “I have just one small request of you. Don’t turn me down.”
“Go ahead and ask, mother,” the king replied, “for I won’t turn you down.”

21 So she said, “Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to your brother Adonijah as a wife.”

22 King Solomon answered his mother, “Why are you requesting Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? Since he is my elder brother, † you might as well ask the kingship for him, † for the priest Abiathar, and for Joab son of Zeruiah." † † 23 Then King Solomon took an oath by the LORD: "May God punish me and do so severely † if Adonijah has not made this request at the cost of his life. 24 And now, as the LORD lives — the one who established me, seated me on the throne of my father David, and made me a dynasty as he promised † — I swear Adonijah will be put to death today!" 25 Then King Solomon dispatched Benaiah son of Jehoiada, † who struck down Adonijah, and he died.

ABIATHAR'S BANISHMENT

26 The king said to the priest Abiathar, † "Go to your fields in Anathoth. † Even though you deserve to die, I will not put you to death today, since you carried the ark of the Lord GOD in the presence of my father David † and you suffered through all that my father suffered." † 27 So Solomon banished Abiathar from being the LORD's priest, and it fulfilled the LORD's prophecy he had spoken at Shiloh against Eli's family. †

JOAB'S EXECUTION

28 The news reached Joab. Since he had supported Adonijah † but not Absalom, † Joab fled to the LORD's tabernacle and took hold of the horns of the altar. †

29 It was reported to King Solomon: "Joab has fled to the LORD's tabernacle and is now beside the altar." Then Solomon sent † Benaiah son of Jehoiada † and told him, "Go and strike him down!" †

30 So Benaiah went to the tabernacle and said to Joab, "This is what the king says: 'Come out!'" †

But Joab said, "No, for I will die here."

So Benaiah took a message back to the king, "This is what Joab said, and this is how he answered me."

31 The king said to him, "Do just as he says. Strike him down and bury him in order to remove from me and from my father's family the blood that Joab shed without just cause. † 32 The LORD will bring back his own blood on his head because he struck down two men more righteous and better than he, without my father David's knowledge. With his sword, Joab murdered Abner † son of Ner, commander of Israel's army, and Amasa † son of Jether, commander of Judah's army. 33 The responsibility for their deaths will come back to Joab and to his descendants † forever, but for David, his descendants, his dynasty, and his throne, there will be peace from the LORD forever." †

34 Benaiah son of Jehoiada † went up, struck down Joab, and put him to death. He was buried at his house in the wilderness. † 35 Then the king appointed Benaiah son of Jehoiada in Joab's place over the army, † and he appointed the priest Zadok in Abiathar's place.

SHIMEI'S BANISHMENT AND EXECUTION

36 Then the king summoned Shimei † and said to him, "Build a house for yourself in Jerusalem and live there, but don't leave there and go anywhere else. 37 On the day you do leave and cross the Kidron Valley, † know for sure that you will certainly die. Your blood will be on your own head." †

38 Shimei said to the king, "The sentence is fair; your servant will do as my lord the king has spoken." And Shimei lived in Jerusalem for a long time.

39 But then, at the end of three years, two of Shimei's slaves ran away to Achish † son of Maacah, king of Gath. † Shimei was informed, "Look, your slaves are in Gath." 40 So Shimei saddled his donkey and set out to Achish at Gath to search for his slaves. He went and brought them back from Gath.

41 It was reported to Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath and had returned. 42 So the king summoned Shimei and said to him, "Didn't I make you swear by the LORD and warn you, saying, 'On the day you leave and go anywhere else, know for sure that you will certainly die'? And you said to me, 'The sentence is fair; I will obey.' 43 So why have you not kept the LORD's oath and the command that I gave you?" 44 The king also said, "You yourself know all the evil that you did to my father David. † Therefore, the LORD has brought back your evil on your head, 45 but King Solomon will be blessed, and David's throne will remain established before the LORD forever." †

46 Then the king commanded Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and he went out and struck Shimei down, and he died. So the kingdom was established in Solomon's hand. †

2:1-4 Prior to his death, David charged Solomon to obey God and keep the law of Moses, as emphasized in Deuteronomy 17:18-20. This charge has several similarities to the one Joshua received from God in Joshua 1:2-9. In view of the previous leader's death, the new leader was to be strong and keep the law of Moses so that he would have success in all things (Jos 1:6-9). Solomon will be charged to obedience again by God himself (see 3:14; 6:12-13; 9:4-9). The Lord's promise of blessing to David's royal line if they obey him recalls the threat of punishment for disobedience in 2 Samuel 7:14 (see also 11:39). The requirement of obedience for the continuance of the Davidic dynasty is also found in other passages (see 8:25; 9:4-7).

2:5-9 At this time, David also charged Solomon to punish Joab and Shimei, which he did (see vv. 28-46).

2:22-24 Abishag had been King David's personal caregiver, who slept beside him to keep him warm in his old age (1:1-4). Adonijah's request was interpreted by Solomon as a clear power play (see 2Sm 3:7; 16:21-22), since in the ancient world a king's women (or harem) accompanied him to the throne. Adonijah paid for the request with his life.

2:26-27 Abiathar was guilty because he had joined Adonijah's conspiracy (1:7,19,25; 2:22), but Solomon spared him because of his earlier service under David (see the note on 1Sm 22:18-23). Since Abiathar was a descendant of Eli, his banishment from the priesthood fulfilled the LORD's prophecy against Eli that his line would no longer serve as priests (see 1Sm 2:35-36).

2:28-34 David had instructed Solomon to put Joab to death for murdering Abner and Amasa (vv. 5-6; see 2Sm 3:27; 20:9-10). The execution of Joab punished the responsible party and cleared David and his descendants from any guilt related to the two deaths (vv. 32-34). Joab took hold of the horns of the altar to try to save his own life, just as Adonijah had (1:50-51).

2:36-46 Despite his promise not to put him to death himself (see 2Sm 19:23), David instructed Solomon to punish Shimei for mistreating him as he fled from Absalom (vv. 8-9; see 2Sm 16:5-8,13). Shimei's violation of Solomon's terms (vv. 36-40) gave the king an appropriate reason to execute him.

THE LORD APPEARS TO SOLOMON

3 Solomon made an alliance † with Pharaoh king of Egypt by marrying Pharaoh's daughter. † Solomon brought her to the city of David † until he finished building his palace, † the LORD's temple, † and the wall surrounding Jerusalem. † 2 However, the people were sacrificing on the high places, † because until that time a temple for the LORD's name † had not been built. 3 Solomon loved the LORD † by walking in the statutes of his father David, † but he also sacrificed and burned incense on the high places.
4 The king went to Gibeon † to sacrifice there because it was the most famous high place. He offered a thousand burnt offerings on that altar. † 5 At Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon † in a dream at night. † God said, "Ask. † What should I give you? "
6 And Solomon replied, "You have shown great and faithful love to your servant, my father David, because he walked before you in faithfulness, righteousness, and integrity. † You have continued this great and faithful love for him by giving him a son to sit on his throne, † as it is today. † 7 "LORD my God, you have now made your servant king in my father David's place. † Yet I am just a youth with no experience in leadership. † † 8 Your servant is among your people you have chosen, † a people too many to be numbered or counted. † 9 So give your servant a receptive heart to judge † your people and to discern between good and evil. For who is able to judge this great people of yours? " † 10 Now it pleased the Lord that Solomon had requested this. 11 So God said to him, "Because you have requested this and did not ask for long life † or riches for yourself, † or the death † of your enemies, but you asked discernment for yourself to administer justice, † 12 I will therefore do what you have asked. † I will give you a wise and understanding heart, so that there has never been anyone like you before and never will be again. † 13 In addition, I will give you what you did not ask for: both riches and honor, † so that no king will be your equal during your entire life. † 14 If you walk in my ways and keep my statutes and commands just as your father David did, I will give you a long life." †

15 Then Solomon woke up † and realized it had been a dream. † He went to Jerusalem, stood before the ark of the Lord's covenant, † and offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings. † Then he held a feast † for all his servants.

SOLOMON'S WISDOM

16 Then two women who were prostitutes came to the king and stood before him. † 17 One woman said, "Please, my lord, this woman and I live in the same house, and I had a baby while she was in the house. 18 On the third day after I gave birth, she also had a baby and we were alone. No one else † was with us in the house; just the two of us were there. 19 During the night this woman's son died because she lay on him. 20 She got up in the middle of the night and took my son from my side while your servant was asleep. She laid him in her arms, and she put her dead son in my arms. 21 When I got up in the morning to nurse my son, I discovered he was dead. That morning, when I looked closely at him I realized that he was not the son I gave birth to."

22 "No," the other woman said. "My son is the living one; your son is the dead one."

The first woman said, "No, your son is the dead one; my son is the living one." So they argued before the king.

23 The king replied, "This woman says, 'This is my son who is alive, and your son is dead,' but that woman says, 'No, your son is dead, and my son is alive.' "

24 The king continued, "Bring me a sword." So they brought the sword to the king. 25 And the king said, "Cut the living boy in two and give half to one and half to the other."

26 The woman whose son was alive spoke to the king because she felt great compassion † † for her son. "My lord, give her the living baby," she said, "but please don't have him killed! "

But the other one said, "He will not be mine or yours. Cut him in two! "

27 The king responded, "Give the living baby to the first woman, and don't kill him. She is his mother." 28 All Israel heard about the judgment the king had given, and they stood in awe of the king because they saw that God's wisdom † was in him to carry out justice.

3:1 Solomon's marriage to Pharaoh's daughter, although not explicitly forbidden by the law of Moses (see Dt 7:1-5), was still questionable. It involved an alliance with Pharaoh (see also the note on 5:12), which would seem to relate to importing horses from Egypt (see 10:28). In another context, Israel's reliance on Egypt was condemned (Is 31:1-3), and returning to Egypt to acquire horses was forbidden in Deuteronomy 17:16.

3:2 The people's sacrificing on the high places is mentioned repeatedly in 1 and 2 Kings as a persistent sin (see 22:43; 2Kg 12:3; 14:4; 15:4,35). Israel was to offer sacrifices only at designated locations, such as the tabernacle or the temple (see Lv 17:2-6; note on Dt 12:2-14).

3:3 At this point in his life, Solomon loved the LORD and mostly followed the good example of his father David. But he worshiped at the high places as well (see previous note). Later, the biblical author says in regards to Solomon's marriages to pagans and eventual idolatry that "unlike his father David, he did not remain loyal to the LORD" (11:6). David, though imperfect (see 15:5), is repeatedly used as the standard by which Israelite kings are measured (e.g., 14:8; 15:3,11; 2Kg 14:3; 16:2; 18:3; 22:2).

3:5 For the first of two times, the LORD appeared to Solomon (v. 5; 9:2; 11:9).

3:7-14 Solomon essentially requested wisdom for governing Israel justly (vv. 7-9). The Lord was pleased to grant him a wise and understanding heart and riches and honor as well, while at the same time charging him to walk in [his] ways and keep [his] statutes and commandments (v. 14). David had similarly charged Solomon earlier (see the note on 2:1-4).

3:24-28 Solomon's wise handling of this case demonstrated to all Israel that God had indeed given him wisdom (see previous note).

SOLOMON'S OFFICIALS

4 King Solomon reigned over all Israel, † 2 and these were his officials: †

Azariah son of Zadok, priest;

3 Elihoreph and Ahijah the sons of Shisha, secretaries;
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud, court historian;

4 Benaiah son of Jehoiada, in charge of the army;
Zadok and Abiathar, priests;

5 Azariah son of Nathan, in charge of the deputies;
Zabud son of Nathan, a priest and adviser to the king;

6 Ahishar, in charge of the palace;

and Adoniram son of Abda, in charge of forced labor.

7 Solomon had twelve deputies for all Israel. They provided food for the king and his household; each one made provision for one month out of the year. † 8 These were their names:

Ben-hur, in the hill country of Ephraim;

9 Ben-deker, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-shemesh, and Elon-bethhanan;

10 Ben-hesed, in Arubboth (he had Socoh and the whole land of Hepher);

11 Ben-abinadab, in all Naphath-dor (Taphath daughter of Solomon was his wife);

12 Baana son of Ahilud, in Taanach, Megiddo, and all Beth-shean which is beside Zarethan below Jezreel, from Beth-shean to Abelmeholah, as far as the other side of Jokmeam;

13 Ben-geber, in Ramoth-gilead (he had the villages of Jair son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead, and he had the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, sixty great cities with walls and bronze bars);

14 Ahinadab son of Iddo, in Mahanaim;

15 Ahimaaz, in Naphtali (he also had married a daughter of Solomon — Basemath);

16 Baana son of Hushai, in Asher and Bealoth;

17 Jehoshaphat son of Paruah, in Issachar;

18 Shimei son of Ela, in Benjamin;

19 Geber son of Uri, in the land of Gilead, the country of King Sihon of the Amorites and of King Og of Bashan.

There was one deputy in the land of Judah. †

SOLOMON'S PROVISIONS

20 Judah and Israel were as numerous as the sand by the sea; † they were eating, drinking, and rejoicing. 21 Solomon ruled all the kingdoms from the Euphrates River to the land of the Philistines and as far as the border of Egypt. † They offered tribute and served Solomon all the days of his life. † 22 Solomon's provisions for one day were 150 bushels † of fine flour and 300 bushels † of meal, 23 ten fattened cattle, twenty range cattle, and a hundred sheep and goats, besides deer, gazelles, roebucks, and pen-fed poultry, † † 24 for he had dominion over everything west of the Euphrates from Tiphsah to Gaza and over all the kings west of the Euphrates. He had peace on all his surrounding borders. 25 Throughout Solomon's reign, Judah and Israel lived in safety from Dan to Beer-sheba, † each person under his own vine and his own fig tree. † 26 Solomon had forty thousand † stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen. † 27 Each of those deputies for a month in turn provided food for King Solomon and for everyone who came to King Solomon's table. They neglected nothing. 28 Each man brought the barley and the straw for the chariot teams and the other horses † to the required place according to his assignment. †

SOLOMON'S WISDOM AND LITERARY GIFTS

29 God gave Solomon wisdom, very great insight, and understanding † as vast as the sand on the seashore. 30 Solomon's wisdom was greater than the wisdom of all the people of the East, † greater than all the wisdom of Egypt. † 31 He was wiser than anyone † — wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, † and Heman, Calcol, and Darda, sons of Mahol. † His reputation extended to all the surrounding nations. † 32 Solomon spoke 3,000 proverbs, † and his songs numbered 1,005. † 33 He spoke about trees, from the cedar in Lebanon to the hyssop growing out of the wall. He also spoke about animals, birds, reptiles, and fish. 34 Emissaries of all peoples, sent by every king on earth who had heard of his wisdom, came to listen to Solomon's wisdom. †

4:1-19 The list of officials suggests an organized, well-established kingdom (vv. 1-6; see also 2Sm 8:15-18). The list of deputies is also indicative of a well-supplied kingdom (vv. 7-19; see also vv. 22-23,27-28). At this time, the Israelites "lived in safety . . . each person under his own vine and his own fig tree" (v. 25; see also v. 20).

4:20-21 The Israelites being as numerous as the sand by the sea recalls God's promise to Abraham (see Gn 32:13). Solomon's rule from the Euphrates River to the land of the Philistines and as far as the border of Egypt was quite extensive, as David's had been (2Sm 8:1-14; see also Gn 15:18-21). Israel enjoyed a period of peace and prosperity under Solomon (vv. 20,24-25). These, however, would not endure —as the subsequent narrative will show. In contrast, the Messiah's kingdom will be one of everlasting peace (Is 9:7), and it will reach to "the ends of the earth" (Pss 2:8; 72:8).

4:26 Regarding Solomon's numerous horses, see the note on 10:14-29.

4:29-34 Despite the limited scope of Solomon's original request (see 3:7-9), God also gave him wisdom in other areas, including the natural world (v. 33), so that his fame spread to other lands.

HIRAM'S BUILDING MATERIALS

5 King Hiram of Tyre † sent his emissaries to Solomon when he heard that he had been anointed king in his father's place, † for Hiram had always been friends with David. †
2 Solomon sent this message to Hiram: 3 "You know my father David was not able to build a temple for the name of the LORD his God. This was because of the warfare all around him until the LORD put his enemies under his feet. † 4 The LORD my God has now given me rest on every side; there is no enemy or crisis. † 5 So I plan to build a temple for the name of the LORD my God, † according to what the LORD promised my father David: 'I will put your son on your throne in your place, and he will build the temple for my name.' †
6 "Therefore, command that cedars from Lebanon be cut down for me. My servants will be with your servants, and I will pay your servants' wages according to whatever you say, for you know that not a man among us knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians." †
7 When Hiram heard Solomon's words, he rejoiced greatly and said, "Blessed be the LORD today! † He has given David a wise son to be over this great people! "

8 Then Hiram sent a reply to Solomon, saying, “I have heard your message; I will do everything you want regarding the cedar and cypress timber. 9 My servants will bring the logs down from Lebanon to the sea, and I will make them into rafts to go by sea to the place you indicate. I will break them apart there, and you can take them away. You then can meet my needs by providing my household with food.” †

10 So Hiram provided Solomon with all the cedar and cypress timber he wanted, 11 and Solomon provided Hiram with one hundred thousand bushels † of wheat as food for his household and one hundred ten thousand gallons † of oil from crushed olives. † Solomon did this for Hiram year after year.

12 The LORD gave Solomon wisdom, as he had promised him. † There was peace between Hiram and Solomon, and the two of them made a treaty. †

SOLOMON’S WORKFORCE

13 Then King Solomon drafted forced laborers from all Israel; † the labor force numbered thirty thousand men. 14 He sent ten thousand to Lebanon each month in shifts; one month they were in Lebanon, two months they were at home. Adoniram was in charge of the forced labor. 15 Solomon had seventy thousand porters and eighty thousand stonecutters in the mountains, † 16 not including his thirty-three hundred † deputies † in charge of the work. They supervised the people doing the work. 17 The king commanded them to quarry large, costly stones to lay the foundation of the temple with dressed stones. † 18 So Solomon’s builders and Hiram’s builders, † along with the Gebalites, † quarried the stone and prepared the timber and stone for the temple’s construction.

5:2-5 Solomon’s message to Hiram king of Tyre shows that he sees himself as the fulfillment of God’s promise to David that he would put [David’s] son on [his] throne in [his] place, and he [would] build the temple for [God’s] name (see 2Sm 7:13). Solomon’s plans notwithstanding (v. 5; 8:15-21), his disobedience ultimately led to the tearing away of the kingdom from his son (11:11). Thus, the throne of Solomon's kingdom was not established forever (see also the note on 9:4-9); other passages look forward to the Messiah to build the temple of God (Zch 6:12-13).

5:12 Solomon had made an alliance with Egypt (see the note on 3:1), and here he made a treaty with Tyre (v. 1).

5:13-18 Adoniram, who was in charge of the forced labor, had been mentioned earlier as one of Solomon's officials (4:6). The reader learns here that he was over a drafted labor force of thirty-thousand Israelites. Solomon's use of forced labor was a source of complaint during his son Rehoboam's reign (12:4) and contrasts with the construction of the tabernacle by volunteers (see the note on Ex 35:21–36:7).

BUILDING THE TEMPLE

6 Solomon began to build the temple for the LORD in the four hundred eightieth year † after the Israelites came out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of his reign over Israel, in the month of Ziv, which is the second month. † † 2 The temple that King Solomon built for the LORD † was ninety feet † long, thirty feet † wide, and forty-five feet † high. † 3 The portico in front of the temple sanctuary was thirty feet long extending across the temple's width, and fifteen feet deep † in front of the temple. † 4 He also made windows with beveled frames † for the temple. †

5 He then built a chambered structure † along the temple wall, encircling the walls of the temple, that is, the sanctuary and the inner sanctuary. † And he made side chambers † all around. † 6 The lowest chamber was 7 1/2 feet † wide, the middle was 9 feet † wide, and the third was 10 1/2 feet † wide. He also provided offset ledges for the temple all around the outside so that nothing would be inserted into the temple walls. 7 The temple's construction used finished stones cut at the quarry so that no hammer, chisel, or any iron tool was heard in the temple while it was being built. †

8 The door for the lowest † side chamber was on the right side of the temple. They † went up a stairway † to the middle chamber, and from the middle to the third. 9 When he finished building the temple, † he paneled it with boards and planks of cedar. 10 He built the chambers along the entire temple, joined to the temple with cedar beams; † each story was 7 1/2 feet high.

11 The word of the LORD came to Solomon: † 12 "As for this temple you are building — if you walk in my statutes, observe my ordinances, and keep all my commands by walking in them, † I will fulfill my promise to you, which I made to your father David. † 13 I will dwell among the Israelites and not abandon my people Israel.” †

14 When Solomon finished building the temple, † † 15 he paneled the interior temple walls with cedar boards; from the temple floor to the surface of the ceiling he overlaid the interior with wood. He also overlaid the floor with cypress boards. † 16 Then he lined thirty feet of the rear of the temple with cedar boards from the floor to the surface of the ceiling, † and he built the interior as an inner sanctuary, the most holy place. † 17 The temple, that is, the sanctuary in front of the most holy place, † was sixty feet † long. 18 The cedar paneling inside the temple was carved with ornamental gourds † and flower blossoms. Everything was cedar; † not a stone could be seen.

19 He prepared the inner sanctuary † inside the temple to put the ark of the LORD’s covenant † there. 20 The interior of the sanctuary was thirty feet long, thirty feet wide, and thirty feet high; he overlaid it with pure gold. † He also overlaid the cedar altar. 21 Next, Solomon overlaid the interior of the temple with pure gold, and he hung † gold chains † across the front of the inner sanctuary † and overlaid it with gold. 22 So he added the gold overlay to the entire temple until everything was completely finished, including the entire altar † that belongs to the inner sanctuary.

23 In the inner sanctuary he made two cherubim † 15 feet † high out of olive wood. 24 One wing of the first cherub was 7 1/2 feet long, and the other wing was 7 1/2 feet long. The wingspan was 15 feet from tip to tip. 25 The second cherub also was 15 feet; both cherubim had the same size and shape. 26 The first cherub’s height was 15 feet and so was the second cherub’s. 27 Then he put the cherubim inside the inner temple. Since their wings were spread out, the first one’s wing touched one wall while the second cherub’s wing touched the other † wall, and in the middle of the temple their wings were touching wing to wing. † 28 He also overlaid the cherubim with gold.

29 He carved all the surrounding temple walls with carved engravings — cherubim, † palm trees, and flower blossoms — in the inner and outer sanctuaries. 30 He overlaid the temple floor with gold in both the inner and the outer sanctuaries.
31 For the entrance of the inner sanctuary, he made olive wood doors. † The pillars of the doorposts were five-sided. † 32 The two doors were made of olive wood. He carved cherubim, palm trees, and flower blossoms on them and overlaid them with gold, hammering gold over the cherubim and palm trees.
33 In the same way, he made four-sided † olive wood doorposts for the sanctuary entrance. 34 The two doors † were made of cypress wood; the first door had two folding sides, and the second door had two folding panels. 35 He carved cherubim, palm trees, and flower blossoms on them and overlaid them with gold applied evenly over the carving. 36 He built the inner courtyard † with three rows of dressed stone † and a row of trimmed cedar beams.
37 The foundation of the LORD's temple was laid in Solomon's fourth year in the month of Ziv. 38 In his eleventh year in the month of Bul, which is the eighth month, † the temple was completed in every detail and according to every specification. † So he built it in seven years. †

6:1 The traditional dating of the exodus to 1446 BC is derived from this verse combined with the traditional dating of the beginning of Solomon's reign to 970 BC.

6:11-13 The detailed account of Solomon's construction of the temple is interrupted by a message from God to Solomon, once again charging him to obey his commandments (see also the note on 3:7-14). Solomon's building of the temple evidently was no guarantee that he would continue following God.

Neither was Solomon's fulfillment of God's promise to David as assured as he thought it to be (see the notes on 5:2-5; 8:15-21; 9:4-9).

6:14-18 The extensive use of cedar in the temple contrasted with the tabernacle, which was a mobile structure (see 2Sm 7:6-7).

6:20-22 The overlaying of the temple with pure gold contributed to its magnificence (see also vv. 28,30,32,35). Solomon took in twenty-five tons of gold annually and constructed other things from it as well (10:14-22).

SOLOMON'S PALACE COMPLEX

7 Solomon completed his entire palace complex after thirteen years of construction. † 2 He built the House of the Forest of Lebanon. † It was one hundred fifty feet † long, seventy-five feet † wide, and forty-five feet † high on four rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams on top of the pillars. 3 It was paneled above with cedar at the top of the chambers that rested on forty-five pillars, fifteen per row. 4 There were three rows of window frames, facing each other † in three tiers. † † 5 All the doors and doorposts had rectangular frames, the openings facing each other † in three tiers. 6 He made the hall of pillars seventy-five feet long and forty-five feet wide. A portico was in front of the pillars, and a canopy with pillars † was in front of them. 7 He made the Hall of the Throne where he would judge † — the Hall of Judgment. It was paneled with cedar from the floor to the rafters. † 8 Solomon's own palace where he would live, in the other courtyard behind the hall, was of similar construction. And he made a house like this hall for Pharaoh's daughter, his wife. † †

9 All of these buildings were of costly stones, cut to size and sawed with saws on the inner and outer surfaces, from foundation to coping and from the outside to the great courtyard. 10 The foundation was made of large, costly stones twelve and fifteen feet † long. 11 Above were also costly stones, cut to size, as well as cedar wood. 12 Around the great courtyard, as well as the inner courtyard of the LORD's temple and the portico of the temple, were three rows of dressed stone and a row of trimmed cedar beams. †

13 King Solomon had Hiram † † brought from Tyre. 14 He was a widow's son from the tribe of Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a bronze craftsman.

Hiram had great skill, † understanding, and knowledge to do every kind of bronze work. So he came to King Solomon and carried out all his work. †

THE BRONZE PILLARS

15 He cast two bronze pillars, † each 27 feet † high and 18 feet † in circumference. † † 16 He also made two capitals † of cast bronze to set on top of the pillars; 7 1/2 feet † was the height of the first capital, and 7 1/2 feet was also the height of the second capital. 17 The capitals on top of the pillars had gratings of latticework, wreaths † made of chainwork — seven for the first capital and seven for the second.

18 He made the pillars with two encircling rows of pomegranates on the one grating to cover the capital on top; he did the same for the second capital. 19 And the capitals on top of the pillars in the portico were shaped like lilies, six feet † high. 20 The capitals on the two pillars were also immediately above the rounded surface next to the grating, and two hundred pomegranates † were in rows encircling each † capital. 21 He set up the pillars at the portico † of the sanctuary: he set up the right pillar and named it Jachin; † then he set up the left pillar and named it Boaz. † † 22 The tops of the pillars were shaped like lilies. Then the work of the pillars was completed. †

23 He made the cast metal basin, † † 15 feet † from brim to brim, perfectly round. It was 7 1/2 feet high and 45 feet in circumference. 24 Ornamental gourds † encircled it below the brim, ten every half yard, † completely encircling the basin. † The gourds were cast in two rows when the basin was cast. 25 It stood on twelve oxen, † three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east. The basin was on top of them and all their hindquarters were toward the center. 26 The basin was three inches † thick, and its rim was fashioned like the brim of a cup or of a lily blossom. It held eleven thousand gallons. †

THE BRONZE WATER CARTS

27 Then he made ten bronze water carts. † † Each water cart was 6 feet long, 6 feet wide, and 4 1/2 feet † high. 28 This was the design of the carts: They had frames; the frames were between the cross-pieces, 29 and on the frames between the cross-pieces were lions, oxen, and cherubim. † On the cross-pieces there was a pedestal above, and below the lions and oxen were wreaths of hanging † work. 30 Each cart † had four bronze wheels with bronze axles. Underneath the four corners of the basin were cast supports, each next to a wreath. 31 And the water cart's opening inside the crown on top was eighteen inches † wide. The opening was round, made as a pedestal twenty-seven inches † wide. On it were carvings, but their frames were square, not round. 32 There were four wheels under the frames, and the wheel axles were part of the water cart; each wheel was twenty-seven inches † tall. 33 The wheels' design was similar to that of chariot wheels: their axles, rims, spokes, and hubs were all of cast metal. 34 Four supports were at the four corners of each water cart; each support was one piece with the water cart. 35 At the top of the cart was a band nine inches † high encircling it; also, at the top of the cart, its braces and its frames were one piece with it. 36 He engraved cherubim, lions, and palm trees † on the plates of its braces and on its frames, wherever each had space, with encircling wreaths.
37 In this way he made the ten water carts using the same casting, dimensions, and shape for all of them.

BRONZE BASINS AND OTHER UTENSILS

38 Then he made ten bronze basins † — each basin held 220 gallons † and each was six feet wide — one basin for each of the ten water carts. 39 He set five water carts on the right side of the temple and five on the left side. He put the basin near the right side of the temple toward the southeast. † 40 Then Hiram made † the basins, the shovels, and the sprinkling basins.

COMPLETION OF THE BRONZE WORKS

So Hiram finished all the work that he was doing for King Solomon on the LORD's temple: 41 two pillars; † bowls for the capitals that were on top of the two pillars; the two gratings for covering both bowls of the capitals that were on top of the pillars; † 42 the four hundred pomegranates for the two gratings (two rows of pomegranates for each grating covering both capitals' bowls on top of the pillars †); 43 the ten water carts; † the ten basins on the water carts; †

44 the basin; † the twelve oxen underneath the basin; † 45 and the pots, shovels, and sprinkling basins. † All the utensils that Hiram made for King Solomon at the LORD's temple were made of burnished bronze. 46 The king had them cast in clay molds in the Jordan Valley between Succoth † and Zarethan. †
47 Solomon left all the utensils unweighed because there were so many; the weight of the bronze was not determined. †

COMPLETION OF THE GOLD FURNISHINGS

48 Solomon also made all the equipment in the LORD's temple: the gold altar; the gold table that the Bread of the Presence was placed on; † 49 the pure gold lampstands in front of the inner sanctuary, five on the right and five on the left; † the gold flowers, lamps, and tongs; 50 the pure gold ceremonial bowls, wick trimmers, sprinkling basins, ladles, † and firepans; † and the gold hinges for the doors of the inner temple (that is, the most holy place) and for the doors of the temple sanctuary.

51 So all the work King Solomon did in the LORD's temple was completed. †
Then Solomon brought in the consecrated things of his father David † — the silver, the gold, and the utensils — and put them in the treasuries of the LORD's temple. †

7:1 The temple had taken seven years to complete (6:38), but Solomon spent thirteen years on his own palace. Like his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter (see the note on 3:1), this raises suspicions regarding Solomon's character. As was the case for God's charge to obedience in 6:11-13, the account of the palace's construction (vv. 1-12) interrupts the description of the temple's.

7:13-14 This Hiram was not the same person as Hiram king of Tyre mentioned in 5:1, as 2 Chronicles 2:11-14 makes clear. He had great skill, understanding, and knowledge in working with bronze—much like Bezalel, who led the construction of the tabernacle, had such ability in various kinds of craftsmanship (see Ex 31:2-5; 35:30-35). Nevertheless, Bezalel's skills were apparently more extensive, and he was also "filled with God's Spirit" (Ex 31:3; 35:31). He was also from the line of Judah (see the note on Ex 31:1-11), whereas Hiram's mother was from the tribe of Naphtali but his father was from Tyre.

7:40-45 Hiram thus finished the work in bronze that Solomon had commissioned him to do (see vv. 13-14).

7:48-51 Solomon also made golden equipment for the temple. The tabernacle had been originally designed with a golden altar of incense, a table, and a lampstand (see Ex 25:23-40; 30:1-10), and these may have been brought together with the ark and the tent of meeting from the city of David (8:4; see also Nm 4:15; 18:3).

SOLOMON'S DEDICATION OF THE TEMPLE

8 At that time Solomon assembled the elders † of Israel, † all the tribal heads † and the ancestral leaders of the Israelites before him at Jerusalem in order to bring the ark of the LORD's covenant from the city of David, † that is Zion. † 2 So all the men of Israel were assembled in the presence of King Solomon in the month of Ethanim, which is the seventh month, † at the festival. †

3 All the elders † of Israel came, and the priests † picked up the ark. † 4 The priests and the Levites brought the ark of the LORD, the tent of meeting, † and the holy utensils that were in the tent. † 5 King Solomon and the entire congregation of Israel, who had gathered around him and were with him in front of the ark, were sacrificing sheep, goats, and cattle that could not be counted or numbered, because there were so many. † 6 The priests brought the ark of the LORD's covenant to its place, into the inner sanctuary of the temple, to the most holy place † beneath the wings of the cherubim. 7 For the cherubim were spreading their wings over † the place of the ark, so that the cherubim covered the ark and its poles from above. † 8 The poles were so long that their ends were seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary, but they were not seen from outside the sanctuary; they are still there today. † 9 Nothing was in the ark except the two stone tablets that Moses had put there at Horeb, † † where the LORD made a covenant with the Israelites when they came out of the land of Egypt. †

10 When the priests came out of the holy place, the cloud filled the LORD's temple, † 11 and because of the cloud, the priests were not able to continue ministering, for the glory † of the LORD filled the temple.

12 Then Solomon said:

The LORD said that he would dwell in total darkness. †

13 I have indeed built an exalted temple † for you, a place for your dwelling forever. †

14 The king turned around and blessed † the entire congregation of Israel while they were standing. 15 He said:

Blessed be the LORD God of Israel!
He spoke directly to my father David,
and he has fulfilled the promise † by his power.
He said,

16 "Since the day I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, †
I have not chosen a city to build a temple in among any of the tribes of Israel,
so that my name † would be there.
But I have chosen David to rule my people Israel." †

17 My father David had his heart set on building a temple for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. †

18 But the LORD said to my father David, "Since your heart was set on building a temple for my name, you have done well to have this desire. † †

19 Yet you are not the one to build it; instead, your son, your own offspring, will build it for my name." †

20 The LORD has fulfilled what he promised.
I have taken the place of my father David, † and I sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised. †

I have built the temple for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.
21 I have provided a place there for the ark, where the LORD's covenant is that he made with our ancestors when he brought them out of the land of Egypt. †

SOLOMON'S PRAYER

22 Then Solomon stood † before the altar of the LORD in front of the entire congregation of Israel and spread out his hands toward heaven. † 23 He said:

LORD God of Israel, there is no God like you in heaven above or on earth below, † who keeps the gracious covenant with your servants who walk before you
with all their heart. †
24 You have kept what you promised to your servant, my father David.
You spoke directly to him
and you fulfilled your promise by your power as it is today. †
25 Therefore, LORD God of Israel, keep what you promised to your servant, my father David:
You will never fail to have a man to sit before me on the throne of Israel, †
if only your sons take care to walk before me as you have walked before me. † 26 Now LORD † God of Israel, please confirm what you promised to your servant, my father David. †

27 But will God indeed live on earth?
Even heaven, the highest heaven, cannot contain you, much less this temple I have built. †
28 Listen † to your servant's prayer and his petition, †
LORD my God, so that you may hear the cry and the prayer that your servant prays before you today, 29 so that your eyes may watch over this temple night and day, † toward the place where you said,

"My name will be there," †
and so that you may hear the prayer that your servant prays toward this place.
30 Hear the petition of your servant †
and your people Israel,
which they pray toward this place. †
May you hear in your dwelling place in heaven.
May you hear and forgive.

31 When a man sins against his neighbor and is forced to take an oath, † † and he comes to take an oath
before your altar in this temple, 32 may you hear in heaven and act.
May you judge your servants,
condemning the wicked man by bringing what he has done on his own head
and providing justice for the righteous
by rewarding him according to his righteousness. †

33 When your people Israel are defeated before an enemy, because they have sinned against you, † and they return to you and praise your name, and they pray and plead with you for mercy in this temple,
34 may you hear in heaven and forgive the sin of your people Israel.
May you restore them to the land
you gave their ancestors. †

35 When the skies are shut and there is no rain, because they have sinned against you, †
and they pray toward this place
and praise your name,
and they turn from their sins
because you are afflicting them, † 36 may you hear in heaven and forgive the sin of your servants

and your people Israel,
so that you may teach them the good way
they should walk in. †
May you send rain on your land
that you gave your people for an inheritance. †

37 When there is famine in the land, when there is pestilence, when there is blight or mildew, locust or grasshopper, † when their enemy besieges them in the land and its cities, †
when there is any plague or illness,
38 every prayer or petition that any person or that all your people Israel may have — they each know their own affliction † † — as they spread out their hands toward this temple, †
39 may you hear in heaven, your dwelling place, and may you forgive, act, and give to everyone according to all their ways, since you know each heart, for you alone know every human heart, † 40 so that they may fear † you all the days they live on the land †
you gave our ancestors.

41 Even for the foreigner who is not of your people Israel but has come from a distant land †
because of your name —
42 for they will hear of your great name, strong hand, † and outstretched arm, and will come † and pray toward this temple — 43 may you hear in heaven, your dwelling place, and do according to all the foreigner asks.
Then all peoples of earth will know † your name, to fear you as your people Israel do and to know that this temple I have built bears your name.

44 When your people go out to fight against their enemies, † wherever you send them, and they pray to the LORD in the direction of the city you have chosen † and the temple I have built for your name, 45 may you hear their prayer and petition in heaven and uphold their cause. †

46 When they sin against you — for there is no one who does not sin † — and you are angry with them and hand them over to the enemy, and their captors deport them to the enemy's country † — whether distant or nearby — 47 and when they come to their senses † in the land where they were deported and repent and petition you in their captors' land: "We have sinned and done wrong;
we have been wicked," †
48 and when they return to you with all their heart and all their soul in the land of their enemies who took them captive, † and when they pray to you in the direction of their land that you gave their ancestors,
the city you have chosen, † and the temple I have built for your name, 49 may you hear in heaven, your dwelling place, their prayer and petition and uphold their cause.
50 May you forgive your people who sinned against you and all their rebellions † against you, and may you grant them compassion before their captors, so that they may treat them compassionately. † 51 For they are your people and your inheritance; † you brought them out of Egypt, out of the middle of an iron furnace. † 52 May your eyes be open to your servant's petition and to the petition of your people Israel, listening to them whenever they call to you.
53 For you, Lord GOD, have set them apart as your inheritance from all peoples of the earth,
as you spoke through your servant Moses when you brought our ancestors out of Egypt. †

SOLOMON'S BLESSING

54 When Solomon finished praying this entire prayer and petition to the LORD, he got up from kneeling before the altar of the LORD, with his hands spread out toward heaven, † 55 and he stood and blessed the whole congregation of Israel † with a loud voice: 56 "Blessed be the LORD! He has given rest † to his people Israel according to all he has said. Not one of all the good promises he made through his servant Moses has failed. † 57 May the LORD our God be with us as he was with our ancestors. May he not abandon us or leave us † 58 so that he causes us to be devoted † to him, † to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commands, statutes, and ordinances, which he commanded our ancestors.
59 May my words with which I have made my petition before the LORD be near the LORD our God day and night. May he uphold his servant's cause and the cause of his people Israel, as each day requires. † 60 May all the peoples of the earth know that the LORD is God. There is no other! † 61 Be wholeheartedly devoted to the LORD our God † to walk in his statutes and to keep his commands, as it is today."
62 The king and all Israel with him were offering sacrifices in the LORD's presence. 63 Solomon offered a sacrifice of fellowship offerings to the LORD:
twenty-two thousand cattle and one hundred twenty thousand sheep and goats. †
In this manner the king and all the Israelites dedicated † the LORD's temple. † 64 On the same day, the king consecrated the middle of the courtyard that was in front of the LORD's temple because that was where he offered the burnt offering, the grain offering, and the fat of the fellowship offerings † since the bronze altar before the LORD was too small to accommodate the burnt offerings, the grain offerings, and the fat of the fellowship offerings. † 65 Solomon and all Israel with him — a great assembly, from the entrance of Hamath † † to the Brook of Egypt † — observed the festival at that time † in the presence of the LORD our God, seven days, and seven more days — fourteen days. † † 66 On the fifteenth day † he sent the people away. So they blessed the king and went to their homes † rejoicing and with happy hearts for all the goodness that the LORD had done for his servant David and for his people Israel. †

8:1 The completion of the temple and its furnishings (7:51) meant that it was time to bring in the ark of the LORD's covenant. David had brought it to the city of David (see 2Sm 6:1-15), which refers to the stronghold of Zion that he had taken from the Jebusites (2Sm 5:6-9).

8:3-4 The reference to "poles" in verses 7-8 suggests that the priests had carried the ark properly (see the note on 2Sm 6:3-9).

8:10-11 The placement of the ark in "the inner sanctuary of the temple" (v. 6) was followed by the filling of the temple with the cloud and the glory of the LORD. This had also happened after the tabernacle was completed (Ex 40:34-35).

8:13 Solomon had indeed built an exalted temple, but the temple would not last forever (see 9:7-8; 2Kg 25:9). Regarding the phrase, a place for your dwelling, see the note on v. 27.

8:15-21 Solomon's address to the congregation of Israelites cited God's promises to David (vv. 15-19; see the note on 2Sm 7:8-16). Whereas God said in 2 Samuel 7:12-13 that David's "descendant" would "build a house for [his] name," Solomon says that David's son will build it and that he himself is the fulfillment of God's promise (vv. 19-20; 5:5). This, however, is not so certain (see the note on 5:2-5), as the fulfillment of this promise through Solomon was conditioned on his obedience (see the notes on 6:11-13 and 9:4-9). Strangely enough, Solomon recognizes at least some aspects of this conditionality (see vv. 24-26).

8:27 On the one hand, Solomon claimed to have built for God "a place for [his] dwelling" (v. 13). On the other, he freely confessed that if heaven itself cannot contain [God], then how much less a physical building like the temple, as magnificent as it was (see also 9:3). He also repeatedly refers to heaven as God's dwelling place (e.g., 30,39,43,49). The Lord's words in Isaiah 66:1 confirm this: "Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool. Where could you possibly build a house for me?" (see also Ac 7:47-50).

8:28-30 The majority of Solomon's prayer of dedication for the temple has little to do with sacrifice but with asking God to hear prayer offered in it (vv. 28,31,33) or toward it (vv. 29,30,35,44,48). He desired that God listen to his people Israel "whenever they call" (v. 52).

8:31-32 An oath could be taken before the altar, signaling a dependency on God to act in justice (see Ex 22:10-12; Nm 5:19-22).

8:33 Several of Solomon's requests involve situations in which Israel is experiencing the consequences of their sin (vv. 33,35,46; see Dt 28:15-37). In each case, Solomon asks God to forgive his people if they repent (vv. 33-36,47-50). Repentance, not sacrifice, is thus emphasized as the condition for forgiveness (see also 1Sm 15:22-23; 2Ch 7:13-14).

8:39 The alternatively comforting and sobering truth that God alone [knows] every human heart is the basis for the prayer that God gives to everyone, according to all their ways (see also 1Sm 16:7; Heb 4:13).

8:41-43 The scope of Solomon's prayers was not limited to Israel but extended to the foreigner who might come from a distant land because of [the Lord's] name. His request that God answer the prayers of a foreigner was so that all peoples of earth will know [God's] name (see also the notes on Ex 9:13-16 and 1Sm 17:45-47). Solomon's desire is echoed in Isaiah 56:7, which predicts that God's house will be "a house of prayer for all nations."

8:46-50 Solomon's aside, for there is no one who does not sin, is a profound statement about the pervasiveness of sin in the human race; it is akin to Paul's statement that "all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Rm 3:23). This prayer assumes a situation in which Israel had sinned and consequently been exiled to a foreign land, just as Moses predicted (see the note on Dt 4:25-31). Also in line with Moses (see Dt 30:1-6), Solomon prayed that God would forgive and restore Israel when they repent in captivity (vv. 47-50). We have sinned and done wrong; we have been wicked was prayed nearly verbatim by the exiled Daniel centuries later (Dn 9:5).

8:56 Solomon's words are reminiscent of Joshua 21:45. The Lord is indeed faithful to all the good promises he made, but his threats of punishment for disobedience are also genuine (see 9:6-9; note on Jos 23:12-16).

8:61 Sadly, Solomon would not heed his own charge to the Israelites that they be wholeheartedly devoted to the LORD. In his old age, Solomon worshiped idols and "was not wholeheartedly devoted to" him (11:4).

8:65 The festival that Solomon and Israel celebrated was probably the Festival of Shelters, which was held during the seventh month (see v. 2). It was normally celebrated for seven days (Lv 23:33-36,39-43).

THE LORD'S RESPONSE

9 When Solomon finished building the temple of the LORD,† the royal palace, and all that Solomon desired to do,† 2 the LORD appeared to Solomon a second time just as he had appeared to him at Gibeon.† 3 The LORD said to him:

I have heard your prayer and petition you have made before me. I have consecrated this temple you have built, to put † my name there forever; † my eyes and my heart will be there at all times. †
4 As for you, if you walk before me as your father David walked, with a heart of integrity and in what is right, doing everything I have commanded you, and if you keep my statutes and ordinances, † 5 I will establish your royal throne over Israel forever, as I promised your father David: You will never fail to have a man on the throne of Israel. †
6 If you or your sons turn away from following me and do not keep my commands — my statutes that I have set before you — and if you go and serve other gods and bow in worship to them, † 7 I will cut off Israel from the land I gave them, † and I will reject † the temple I have sanctified for my name. † Israel will become an object of scorn and ridicule among all the peoples. †
8 Though this temple is now exalted, † everyone who passes by will be appalled and will scoff. † They will say: Why did the LORD do this to this land and this temple? † 9 Then they will say: Because they abandoned the LORD their God who brought their ancestors out of the land of Egypt. They held on to other gods and bowed in worship to them and served them. Because of this, the LORD brought all this ruin on them. †

KING HIRAM'S TWENTY TOWNS

10 At the end of twenty years during which Solomon had built the two houses, the LORD's temple and the royal palace † — 11 King Hiram of Tyre † having supplied him with cedar and cypress logs and gold † for his every wish † — King Solomon gave Hiram twenty towns in the land of Galilee. 12 So Hiram went out from Tyre to look over the towns that Solomon had given him, but he was not pleased with them. 13 So he said, "What are these towns you've given me, my brother? " So he called them the Land of Cabul, † as they are still called today. † 14 Now Hiram had sent the king nine thousand pounds † of gold. †

SOLOMON'S FORCED LABOR

15 This is the account of the forced labor † that King Solomon had imposed to build the LORD's temple, his own palace, the supporting terraces, † the wall of Jerusalem, † and Hazor, † Megiddo, † and Gezer. † 16 Pharaoh king of Egypt had attacked and captured Gezer. He then burned it, killed the Canaanites who lived in the city, and gave it as a dowry to his daughter, Solomon's wife. † 17 Then Solomon rebuilt Gezer, Lower Beth-horon, † 18 Baalath, † Tamar † † in the Wilderness of Judah, 19 all the storage cities that belonged to Solomon, the chariot cities, † the cavalry cities, † and whatever Solomon desired to build † in Jerusalem, Lebanon, or anywhere else in the land of his dominion.
20 As for all the peoples who remained of the Amorites, Hethites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, who were not Israelites — 21 their descendants who remained in the land after them, those whom the Israelites were unable to destroy completely † — Solomon imposed forced labor on them; it is still this way today. † 22 But Solomon did not consign the Israelites to slavery; † they were soldiers, his servants, his commanders, his captains, and commanders of his chariots and his cavalry. 23 These were the deputies † who were over Solomon's work: 550 who supervised the people doing the work. †

SOLOMON'S OTHER ACTIVITIES

24 Pharaoh's daughter moved from the city of David † to the house that Solomon had built for her; † he then built the terraces. † 25 Three times a year Solomon offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings on the altar he had built for the LORD, and he burned incense with them in the LORD's presence. † So he completed the temple. † 26 King Solomon put together a fleet of ships at Ezion-geber, † which is near Eloth on the shore of the Red Sea in the land of Edom. 27 With the fleet, Hiram sent his servants, experienced seamen, along with Solomon's servants. 28 They went to Ophir † and acquired gold there — sixteen tons † — and delivered it to Solomon. †

9:2 The second time God appeared to Solomon was after the completion and dedication of the temple. The first time had been in a dream at Gibeon (3:5). To have God appear to him twice was a special privilege, for which Solomon would be held accountable (11:9).

9:4-9 For a third time, God charged Solomon to obey his commands (v. 4; 3:14; 6:12-13). If Solomon did so, God would establish his royal throne over Israel forever. The king, however, would disobey, and his throne was not established (11:11). The wording in v. 5 is similar to 2 Samuel 7:13, which suggests that Solomon was not the fulfillment of this promise to David (see also the notes on 5:2-5 and 6:11-13). As in 2 Samuel 7:14, God threatened Solomon and his descendants with judgment if they disobeyed him (see the note on Dt 4:25-31). Israel indeed would lose its land and the glorious temple would be destroyed by the Babylonians (2Kg 25:9). Together, they would be a laughingstock to the surrounding nations (vv. 7-8; see also Dt 28:37), a sad contrast to Solomon's hopes in 8:41-43.

9:20-23 The subjugation of the peoples of the land to forced labor also had been practiced earlier (Jdg 1:28,30,33,35). No Israelites were made permanent slaves, but thirty thousand of them were drafted to work one out of every three months (see the note on 5:13-18).

THE QUEEN OF SHEBA

10 The queen of Sheba † heard about Solomon's fame † connected with the name of the LORD and came to test him with riddles. † 2 She came to Jerusalem with a very large entourage, with camels bearing † spices, gold in great abundance, and precious stones. † She came to Solomon and spoke to him about everything that was on her mind. 3 So Solomon answered all her questions; nothing was too difficult for the king to explain to her. 4 When the queen of Sheba observed all of Solomon's wisdom, the palace he had built, † 5 the food at his table, † his servants' residence, his attendants' service and their attire, his cupbearers, and the burnt offerings he offered at the LORD's temple, it took her breath away.
6 She said to the king, "The report I heard in my own country about your words and about your wisdom is true. 7 But I didn't believe the reports until I came and saw with my own eyes. Indeed, I was not even told half. Your wisdom and prosperity far exceed the report I heard. † 8 How happy are your men. † How happy are these servants of yours, who always stand in your presence hearing your wisdom. † 9 Blessed be the LORD your God! He delighted in you and put you on the throne of Israel, † because of the LORD's eternal love for Israel. † He has made you king to carry out justice and righteousness." †

10 Then she gave the king four and a half tons † of gold, † a great quantity of spices, and precious stones. Never again did such a quantity of spices arrive as those the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

11 In addition, Hiram's fleet that carried gold from Ophir brought from Ophir a large quantity of almug † wood and precious stones. † 12 The king made the almug wood into steps for the LORD's temple and the king's palace and into lyres and harps for the singers. Never before did such almug wood arrive, and the like has not been seen again.

13 King Solomon gave the queen of Sheba her every desire — whatever she asked — besides what he had given her out of his royal bounty. Then she, along with her servants, returned to her own country. †

SOLOMON'S WEALTH

14 The weight † of gold that came to Solomon annually was twenty-five tons, †

15 besides what came from merchants, † traders' merchandise, and all the Arabian kings and governors of the land. †

16 King Solomon made two hundred large shields of hammered gold; fifteen pounds † of gold went into each shield. 17 He made three hundred small shields of hammered gold; nearly four pounds † of gold went into each shield. The king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. †

18 The king also made a large ivory throne and overlaid it with fine gold. 19 The throne had six steps; there was a rounded top at the back of the throne, armrests on either side of the seat, and two lions standing beside the armrests. 20 Twelve lions were standing there on the six steps, one at each end. Nothing like it had ever been made in any other kingdom.

21 All of King Solomon's drinking cups were gold, and all the utensils of the House of the Forest of Lebanon † were pure gold. † There was no silver, since it was considered as nothing in Solomon's time, 22 for the king had ships of

Tarshish † at sea with Hiram's fleet, and once every three years the ships of Tarshish would arrive bearing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks. † †
23 King Solomon surpassed all the kings of the world in riches and in wisdom. † 24 The whole world wanted an audience with Solomon to hear the wisdom that God had put in his heart. † 25 Every man would bring his annual tribute: items † of silver and gold, clothing, weapons, † spices, and horses and mules. †
26 Solomon accumulated 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen † and stationed them in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. † 27 The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, † and he made cedar † as abundant as sycamore in the Judean foothills. 28 Solomon's horses were imported from Egypt and Kue. † The king's traders bought them from Kue at the going price. † 29 A chariot was imported from Egypt for fifteen pounds † of silver, and a horse for nearly four pounds. † In the same way, they exported them to all the kings of the Hittites and to the kings of Aram through their agents. †

10:6-9 Sheba was in southern Arabia. Its queen coming to Israel to hear Solomon's great wisdom and her praise of the Lord (v. 9; see also v. 24) recalls Solomon's prayer in 8:41-43 and parallels the coming of all nations to Zion "in the last days" to learn from God (Is 2:2-4). Her many gifts parallel the future day in which "the treasures of all the nations will come" into a glorious temple (Hg 2:6-9) 10:14-29 Solomon had staggering amounts of gold (vv. 14-15,22,25), so much so that silver was considered as nothing in Solomon's time (v. 21; see also v. 27). He also accumulated numerous chariots, horsemen, horses, and wives (vv. 26-29; 4:26; 11:1-3). These were all in conflict with Deuteronomy 17:16-17, which specifically forbade the king from accumulating horses, wives, and gold.

SOLOMON'S UNFAITHFULNESS TO GOD

11 King Solomon loved many foreign women in addition to Pharaoh's daughter: † Moabite, Ammonite, Edomite, Sidonian, and Hittite

women † 2 from the nations about which the LORD had told the Israelites, “You must not intermarry with them, and they must not intermarry with you, because they will turn your heart away to follow their gods.” † To these women Solomon was deeply attached † in love. 3 He had seven hundred wives who were princesses and three hundred who were concubines, † and they turned his heart away. †

4 When Solomon was old, his wives turned his heart away to follow other gods. He was not wholeheartedly devoted to the LORD his God, as his father David had been. † 5 Solomon followed Ashtoreth, † the goddess of the Sidonians, and Milcom, † the abhorrent idol of the Ammonites. † 6 Solomon did what was evil in the LORD’s sight, and unlike his father David, he did not remain loyal to the LORD.

7 At that time, Solomon built a high place † for Chemosh, † the abhorrent idol of Moab, and for Milcom, † † the abhorrent idol of the Ammonites, on the hill across from Jerusalem. † 8 He did the same for all his foreign wives, who were burning incense and offering sacrifices to their gods.

9 The LORD was angry with Solomon, because his heart had turned away from the LORD, the God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice. † 10 He had commanded him about this, so that he would not follow other gods, but Solomon did not do what the LORD had commanded. †

11 Then the LORD said to Solomon, “Since you have done this † and did not keep my covenant and my statutes, which I commanded you, I will tear the kingdom away from you and give it to your servant. † 12 However, I will not do it during your lifetime for the sake of your father David; † I will tear it out of your son’s hand. 13 Yet I will not tear the entire kingdom away from him. I will give one tribe to your son † for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem that I chose.”

SOLOMON’S ENEMIES

14 So the LORD raised up † Hadad the Edomite as an enemy against Solomon. He was of the royal family in Edom. 15 Earlier, when David was in Edom, Joab, the commander of the army, had gone to bury the dead and had struck down every male in Edom. 16 For Joab and all Israel had remained there six months, until he had killed every male in Edom. † 17 Hadad fled to Egypt, along with some Edomites from his father's servants. At the time Hadad was a small boy.

18 Hadad and his men set out from Midian and went to Paran. † They took men with them from Paran and went to Egypt, to Pharaoh king of Egypt, † who gave Hadad a house, ordered that he be given food, and gave him land. 19 Pharaoh liked Hadad so much † that he gave him a wife, the sister of his own wife, Queen Tahpenes. 20 Tahpenes's sister gave birth to Hadad's son Genubath.
Tahpenes herself weaned him in Pharaoh's palace, and Genubath lived there along with Pharaoh's sons.
21 When Hadad heard in Egypt that David rested with his fathers and that Joab, the commander of the army, was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, "Let me leave, so I may go to my own country."
22 But Pharaoh asked him, "What do you lack here with me for you to want to go back to your own country? "
"Nothing," he replied, "but please let me leave."
23 God raised up Rezon son of Eliada as an enemy † against Solomon. Rezon had fled from his master King Hadadezer of Zobah † 24 and gathered men to himself. He became leader of a raiding party when David killed the Zobaites.
He † went to Damascus, † lived there, and became king in Damascus. 25 Rezon was Israel's enemy throughout Solomon's reign, adding to the trouble Hadad had caused. He reigned over Aram † † and loathed Israel.
26 Now Solomon's servant, † Jeroboam son of Nebat, was an Ephraimite from Zeredah. His widowed mother's name was Zeruah. Jeroboam rebelled † against Solomon, 27 and this is the reason he rebelled against the king: Solomon had built the supporting terraces † and repaired the opening in the wall of the city of his father David. 28 Now the man Jeroboam was capable, and Solomon noticed the young man because he was getting things done. So he appointed him over the entire labor force of the house of Joseph. † 29 During that time, the prophet Ahijah the Shilonite † met Jeroboam on the road as Jeroboam came out of Jerusalem. Now Ahijah had wrapped himself with a new cloak, and the two of them were alone in the open field. 30 Then Ahijah took hold of the new cloak he had on, tore it into twelve pieces, † 31 and said to Jeroboam, “Take ten pieces for yourself, for this is what the LORD God of Israel says: ‘I am about to tear the kingdom out of Solomon’s hand. I will give you ten tribes, 32 but one tribe will remain his for the sake of my servant David † and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city I chose out of all the tribes of Israel. † 33 For they have abandoned me; they have bowed down to Ashtoreth, the goddess of the Sidonians, to Chemosh, the god of Moab, and to Milcom, the god of the Ammonites. † They have not walked in my ways to do what is right in my sight and to carry out my statutes and my judgments as his father David did. † 34 “ ‘However, I will not take the whole kingdom from him but will let him be ruler all the days of his life for the sake of my servant David, whom I chose and who kept my commands and my statutes. 35 I will take ten tribes of the kingdom from his son and give them to you. 36 I will give one tribe † to his son, † so that my servant David will always have a lamp before me † in Jerusalem, the city I chose for myself to put my name there. † 37 I will appoint you, † and you will reign as king † over all you want, † and you will be king over Israel.

38 “ ‘After that, if you obey all I command you, walk in my ways, and do what is right in my sight in order to keep my statutes and my commands as my servant David did, I will be with you. † I will build you a lasting dynasty just as I built for David, † and I will give you Israel. 39 I will humble David’s descendants, because of their unfaithfulness, but not forever.’ ” † †
40 Therefore, Solomon tried to kill Jeroboam, † but he fled to Egypt, † to King Shishak of Egypt, † where he remained until Solomon’s death.

SOLOMON’S DEATH

41 The rest of the events of Solomon’s reign, along with all his accomplishments and his wisdom, are written in the Book of Solomon’s Events. † 42 The length of Solomon’s reign in Jerusalem over all Israel totaled forty years. †
43 Solomon rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of his father David. His son Rehoboam † became king in his place. †

11:1-8 Like Israelites in earlier generations (see Jdg 3:6), Solomon intermarried with the peoples of the land (vv. 1-2; see the note on Dt 7:1-6). His large number of foreign wives and concubines were primarily intended to secure international and domestic alliances and for economic benefit, but they turned his heart away from the Lord. His idolatry in his old age was both sad and shocking (vv. 4-8). Despite being repeatedly charged to obedience by God (3:14; 6:12-13; 9:4-5) and by his father (2:2-4; see also 8:61), Solomon was not wholeheartedly devoted to the LORD. Thus, God would not fulfill David's promises through Solomon by establishing his throne forever (see the notes on vv. 11-13 and 9:4-9). The reader is also led to expect the eventual destruction of the temple as well as exile (6:12-13; 9:6-9).

11:9 The fact that God had appeared to Solomon twice (3:5; 9:2) made him especially culpable.

11:11-13 Obedience would have led to the establishment of Solomon's throne (2:2-4; 3:14; 6:12-13; 9:4-5); his disobedience led to the loss of much of his kingdom (see the note on vv. 1-8). Nevertheless, for the sake of David, God would divide the kingdom during the reign of Solomon's son Rehoboam and would allow him to retain rule over one tribe (vv. 12-13; 12:20). The Lord's faithfulness to his covenant with David despite the sins of his successors is repeated elsewhere (vv. 32,34,36,39; 15:4; 2Kg 8:19; 20:6; 25:27-30).

11:14-26 The existence of these enemies to Solomon (vv. 14,23,26) contrasts with Solomon's claim in 5:4.

11:29-39 The prophet Ahijah announced to Jeroboam that he would become king over ten tribes of Israel because of Solomon's idolatry (see the note on vv. 11-13). The mention of only eleven tribes when there were a total of twelve may relate to Benjamin's allegiance to Judah (see 12:21,23). The Lord was disciplining Solomon and the house of David (vv. 32,34,36,39) while remaining faithful to the Davidic covenant (see the notes on 15:3-5 and 2Sm 7:8-16). Like Solomon, Jeroboam was also charged to follow David's example of obedience to God and was promised a lasting dynasty if he did (v. 38; see the note on 3:3).

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

12 Then Rehoboam † went to Shechem, † for all Israel † had gone to Shechem to make him king. † 2 When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard about it, he stayed in Egypt, where he had fled from King Solomon's presence. † Jeroboam stayed in Egypt. † 3 But they summoned him, and Jeroboam and the whole assembly of Israel came and spoke to Rehoboam:

4 “Your father made our yoke harsh. † You, therefore, lighten your father’s harsh service and the heavy yoke he put on us, † and we will serve you.”
5 Rehoboam replied, “Go away for three days and then return to me.” So the people left. 6 Then King Rehoboam consulted with the elders † who had served his father Solomon when he was alive, asking, “How do you advise me to respond to this people? ” 7 They replied, “Today if you will be a servant to this people and serve them, and if you respond to them by speaking kind words to them, they will be your servants forever.” †
8 But he rejected the advice of the elders who had advised him † and consulted with the young men who had grown up with him and attended him. 9 He asked them, “What message do you advise that we send back to this people who said to me, ‘Lighten the yoke your father put on us’? ” 10 Then the young men who had grown up with him told him, “This is what you should say to this people who said to you, ‘Your father made our yoke heavy, but you, make it lighter on us! ’ This is what you should tell them: ‘My little finger is thicker than my father’s waist! 11 Although my father burdened you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with barbed whips.’ ” † † 12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam on the third day, as the king had ordered: “Return to me on the third day.” 13 Then the king answered the people harshly. He rejected the advice the elders had given him 14 and spoke to them according to the young men’s advice: “My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with barbed whips.” 15 The king did not listen to the people, because this turn of events came from the LORD † to carry out his word, which the LORD had spoken through Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat. † 16 When all Israel saw that the king had not listened to them, the people answered him:

What portion do we have in David?
We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse. †
Israel, return to your tents;

David, now look after your own house! †

So Israel went to their tents, 17 but Rehoboam reigned over the Israelites living in the cities of Judah. †

18 Then King Rehoboam sent Adoram, † † who was in charge of forced labor, but all Israel stoned him to death. King Rehoboam managed to get into the chariot and flee to Jerusalem. 19 Israel is still in rebellion against the house of David today. †

REHOBOAM IN JERUSALEM

20 When all Israel heard that Jeroboam had come back, † they summoned him to the assembly and made him king over all Israel. † No one followed the house of David except the tribe of Judah alone. † 21 When Rehoboam arrived in Jerusalem, † he mobilized one hundred eighty thousand fit young soldiers from the entire house of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin † to fight against the house of Israel to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam son of Solomon. 22 But the word of God came to Shemaiah, † the man of God: 23 "Say to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, to the whole house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people, 24 'This is what the LORD says: You are not to march up and fight against your brothers, the Israelites. Each of you return home, for this situation is from me.' " †

So they listened to the word of the LORD and went back according to the word of the LORD.

JEROBOAM'S IDOLATRY

25 Jeroboam built Shechem † in the hill country of Ephraim and lived there. From there he went out and built Penuel. † 26 Jeroboam said to himself, "The kingdom might now return to the house of David. † 27 If these people regularly go to offer sacrifices in the LORD's temple in Jerusalem, † the heart of these people will return to their lord, King Rehoboam of Judah. They will kill me and go back to the king of Judah." 28 So the king sought advice.

Then he made two golden calves, and he said to the people, "Going to Jerusalem is too difficult for you. Israel, here are your gods † who brought you up from the land of Egypt.” † 29 He set up one in Bethel, † and put the other in Dan. † 30 This led to sin; † the people walked in procession before one of the calves all the way to Dan. † † 31 Jeroboam also made shrines † on the high places † and made priests from the ranks of the people who were not Levites. † 32 Jeroboam made a festival in the eighth month on the fifteenth day of the month, like the festival in Judah. †

He offered sacrifices on the altar; he made this offering in Bethel to sacrifice to the calves he had made. He also stationed the priests in Bethel for the high places he had made. † 33 He offered sacrifices on † the altar he had set up in Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month. He chose this month on his own. † He made a festival for the Israelites, offered sacrifices on the altar, and burned incense. †

12:4 Solomon’s building projects evidently had laid a heavy burden on the Israelites (see 5:13-18; 9:15-23).

12:7 The elders who had served Solomon advised Rehoboam to choose the path of humility and servant leadership.

12:12-17 Rehoboam’s foolish rejection of the elders’ advice and his acceptance of the young men’s was the means by which God fulfilled his word to take most of the kingdom away from Solomon and give it to Jeroboam (vv. 15-17; 11:11-13,31-39).

12:20-24 As God had said (11:13), Rehoboam retained control over one tribe, which was his own tribe of Judah (11:13,32,36). The mention of Benjaminite soldiers indicated that at least some of this tribe remained loyal to him too (vv. 21,23; see the note on 11:29-39). Another prophet named Shemaiah (cp. 11:29-31) instructed Rehoboam’s soldiers not to fight against the other Israelites (v. 22).

12:25-33 Though God had promised Jeroboam that obedience to his commands would ensure a “lasting dynasty” (see 11:38-39), the new king of the northern kingdom of Israel feared that he would lose power if his people went to the southern kingdom of Judah to worship at the temple in Jerusalem. As a result, he set up two golden calves within his own territory at Dan and Bethel for the Israelites to worship. These locations were at the northern and southern extremes of his kingdom, respectively. Both locations were associated with traditions of divine encounters (e.g. Jacob's dream at Bethel), and Bethel was across the border from Jerusalem. Thus, Jeroboam could argue that they were legitimate alternatives to the temple. This sin recalls what the Israelites' ancestors had done at Mount Sinai (Ex 32:4) and would ensnare the northern kingdom of Israel throughout its existence (e.g., 13:34; 14:16; 15:34; 2Kg 17:16,21-23). Jeroboam appealed to a desire for convenience, although ironically some would make the lengthy journey to Dan at the northern border to worship the golden calf there (vv. 28-29). His false religious system was patterned after the true worship of God (vv. 28,31-33).

JUDGMENT ON JEROBOAM

13 A man of God † came, however, from Judah to Bethel by the word of the LORD while Jeroboam was standing beside the altar to burn incense. † 2 The man of God cried out against the altar by the word of the LORD:
"Altar, altar, this is what the LORD says, 'A son will be born to the house of David, named Josiah, and he will sacrifice on you the priests of the high places who are burning incense on you. Human bones will be burned on you.' " † 3 He gave a sign † that day. He said, "This is the sign that the LORD has spoken: 'The altar will now be ripped apart, and the ashes that are on it will be poured out.' " † 4 When the king heard the message that the man of God had cried out against the altar at Bethel, Jeroboam stretched out his hand from the altar and said, "Arrest him! " But the hand he stretched out against him withered, and he could not pull it back to himself. 5 The altar was ripped apart, and the ashes poured from the altar, according to the sign that the man of God had given by the word of the LORD.
6 Then the king responded to the man of God, "Plead for the favor of the LORD your God and pray for me † so that my hand may be restored to me." So the man of God pleaded for the favor of the LORD, and the king's hand was restored to him and became as it had been at first.
7 Then the king declared to the man of God, "Come home with me, refresh yourself, and I'll give you a reward." † 8 But the man of God replied, "If you were to give me half your house, † I still wouldn't go with you, and I wouldn't eat food or drink water in this place, 9 for this is what I was commanded by the word of the LORD: † 'You must not eat food or drink water or go back the way you came.' " 10 So he went another way;
he did not go back by the way he had come to Bethel.

THE OLD PROPHET AND THE MAN OF GOD

11 Now a certain old prophet was living in Bethel. † His son † came and told him all the deeds that the man of God had done that day in Bethel. His sons also told their father the words that he had spoken to the king. † 12 Then their father asked them, “Which way did he go? ” His sons had seen † the way taken by the man of God who had come from Judah. 13 Then he said to his sons, “Saddle the donkey for me.” So they saddled the donkey for him, and he got on it. 14 He followed the man of God and found him sitting under an oak tree. He asked him, “Are you the man of God who came from Judah? ”
“I am,” he said.
15 Then he said to him, “Come home with me and eat some food.”
16 But he answered, “I cannot go back with you or accompany you; I will not eat food or drink water with you in this place. 17 For a message came to me by the word of the LORD: ‘You must not eat food or drink water there † or go back by the way you came.’ ” 18 He said to him, “I am also a prophet † like you. An angel spoke to me by the word of the LORD: ‘Bring him back with you to your house so that he may eat food and drink water.’ ” The old prophet deceived him, † 19 and the man of God went back with him, ate food in his house, and drank water.
20 While they were sitting at the table, the word of the LORD came to the prophet who had brought him back, 21 and the prophet cried out to the man of God who had come from Judah, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Because you rebelled against the LORD’s command and did not keep the command that the LORD your God commanded you — 22 but you went back and ate food and drank water in the place that he said to you, “Do not eat food and do not drink water” — † your corpse will never reach the grave of your fathers.’ ” † 23 So after he had eaten food and after he had drunk, the old prophet saddled the donkey for the prophet he had brought back. 24 When he left, † a lion attacked † him along the way and killed him. † His corpse was thrown on the road, and the donkey was standing beside it; the lion was standing beside the corpse too.
25 There were men passing by who saw the corpse thrown on the road and the lion standing beside it, and they went and spoke about it in the city where the old prophet lived. 26 When the prophet who had brought him back from his way heard about it, he said, “He is the man of God who disobeyed the LORD’s command. The LORD has given him to the lion, and it has mauled and killed him, according to the word of the LORD that he spoke to him.”

27 Then the old prophet instructed his sons, “Saddle the donkey for me.” They saddled it, † 28 and he went and found the corpse thrown on the road with the donkey and the lion standing beside the corpse. The lion had not eaten the corpse or mauled the donkey. 29 So the prophet lifted the corpse of the man of God and laid it on the donkey and brought it back. The old prophet came into the city to mourn and to bury him. 30 Then he laid the corpse in his own grave, † and they mourned over him: “Oh, my brother! ” †
31 After he had buried him, he said to his sons, “When I die, bury me in the grave where the man of God is buried; lay my bones beside his bones, 32 for the message that he cried out by the word of the LORD against the altar in Bethel † and against all the shrines of the high places † in the cities of Samaria † is certain to happen.” †
33 Even after this, † Jeroboam did not repent † of his evil way but again made priests for the high places from the ranks of the people. † He ordained whoever so desired it, and they became priests of the high places. † 34 This was the sin that caused the house of Jeroboam to be cut off and obliterated from the face of the earth. †

13:4-6 The prophetic activity in recent chapters continues into this one (see 11:29-39; 12:15,22-24). This time an anonymous man of God declared that a descendant of David named “Josiah” would execute judgment on the “high places” that Jeroboam had set up (vv. 1-2; 12:31-32; 2Kg 23:15-20). Jeroboam’s opposition to this prophetic message resulted in instant judgment on his hand. Even kings were subject to prophets who were backed by the word of God.

13:20-26 The man of God had done well to decline Jeroboam’s invitation (vv. 7-9), but he was deceived by an “old prophet” in Bethel (v. 11) into disobeying God’s command not to eat food or drink water or go back the way [he] came (v. 9; vv. 16-17,21-22,26). His mistake seems to have been in believing that the word of God had somehow changed or been nullified. God's word stands firm and will surely be fulfilled (e.g., 2:27; 12:15; 13:5; 14:18; 16:34).

13:31-34 The unusual circumstances of the man of God's death convinced the old prophet from Bethel that the prophecy against Bethel and the high places would come true (see previous note). Nevertheless, Jeroboam continued in his false worship, which would result in the utter destruction of his house (see 11:38).

DISASTER ON THE HOUSE OF JEROBOAM

14 At that time Abijah son of Jeroboam became sick. † 2 Jeroboam said to his wife, "Go disguise yourself, † so they won't know that you're Jeroboam's wife, and go to Shiloh. † The prophet Ahijah is there; it was he who told about me becoming king over this people. † 3 Take with you ten loaves of bread, some cakes, and a jar of honey, † and go to him. He will tell you what will happen to the boy."

4 Jeroboam's wife did that: she went to Shiloh and arrived at Ahijah's house. Ahijah could not see; he was blind † due to his age. † 5 But the LORD had said to Ahijah, "Jeroboam's wife is coming soon to ask you about her son, for he is sick. You are to say such and such to her. When she arrives, she will be disguised." †

6 When Ahijah heard the sound of her feet entering the door, he said, "Come in, wife of Jeroboam! Why are you disguised? † I have bad news for you. 7 Go tell Jeroboam, 'This is what the LORD God of Israel says: I raised you up from among the people, appointed you ruler over my people Israel, 8 tore the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it to you. † But you were not like my servant David, who kept my commands and followed me with all his heart, doing only what is right in my sight. 9 You behaved more wickedly than all who were before you. † In order to anger me, you have proceeded to make for yourself other gods and cast images, † but you have flung me behind your back. † 10 Because of all this, I am about to bring disaster on the house of Jeroboam:

I will wipe out all of Jeroboam's males, † both slave and free, † in Israel; I will sweep away the house of Jeroboam as one sweeps away dung until it is all gone! †

11 Anyone who belongs to Jeroboam and dies in the city, the dogs will eat, and anyone who dies in the field, the birds † will eat, †
for the LORD has spoken! ’

12 “As for you, get up and go to your house. When your feet enter the city, the boy will die. † 13 All Israel will mourn for him and bury him. He alone out of Jeroboam’s house will be given a proper burial because out of the house of Jeroboam something favorable to the LORD God of Israel was found in him. †
14 The LORD will raise up for himself a king over Israel, who will wipe out the house of Jeroboam. † This is the day, yes, † even today! 15 For the LORD will strike Israel so that they will † shake as a reed shakes in water. He will uproot Israel from this good soil that he gave to their ancestors. † He will scatter them beyond the Euphrates † because they made their Asherah poles, angering the LORD. † 16 He will give up Israel because of Jeroboam’s sins that he committed and caused Israel to commit.” †
17 Then Jeroboam’s wife got up and left and went to Tirzah. † As she was crossing the threshold of the house, the boy died. 18 He was buried, and all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the LORD he had spoken through his servant the prophet Ahijah. †
19 As for the rest of the events of Jeroboam’s reign, how he waged war † and how he reigned, note that they are written in the Historical Record of Israel’s Kings. 20 The length of Jeroboam’s reign was twenty-two years. He rested with his fathers, and his son Nadab became king in his place. †

JUDAH’S KING REHOBOAM

21 Now Rehoboam, Solomon’s son, reigned in Judah. † Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he became king; he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city where the LORD had chosen from all the tribes of Israel to put his name. † Rehoboam’s mother’s name was Naamah the Ammonite. †
22 Judah did what was evil in the LORD’s sight. † They provoked him to jealous anger † more than all that their ancestors had done with the sins they committed.

23 They also built for themselves high places, † sacred pillars, † and Asherah poles on every high hill and under every green tree; 24 there were even male cult prostitutes in the land. † They imitated all the detestable practices of the nations the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. † 25 In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, King Shishak of Egypt † went to war against Jerusalem. † 26 He seized the treasuries of the LORD's temple and the treasuries of the royal palace. He took everything. He took all the gold shields that Solomon had made. † 27 King Rehoboam made bronze shields to replace them and committed them into the care of the captains of the guards † † who protected the entrance to the king's palace. 28 Whenever the king entered the LORD's temple, the guards would carry the shields, then they would take them back to the armory. † † 29 The rest of the events of Rehoboam's reign, † along with all his accomplishments, are written about in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings.
30 There was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam throughout their reigns. † 31 Rehoboam rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. His mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. † His son Abijam † † became king in his place.

14:6-16 Ahijah was the prophet who had initially prophesied to Jeroboam that he would become king over Israel (11:29-39). Despite his blindness, God had revealed to him that Jeroboam's wife would come seeking him (vv. 4-6). The prophet declared that Jeroboam had not followed David's example of obedience, and the men of his house consequently would be wiped out (vv. 7-11,14; see 11:38). Moreover, their sick son Abijah would die (vv. 1,12-13), and Israel would be exiled because of Jeroboam's sins and the people's participation in them (vv. 15-16; 2Kg 17). The northern kingdom of Israel's fate is thus made clear here (see the note on 9:4-9).

14:21 The text reveals here that Rehoboam was the child of Solomon's intermarriage with an Ammonite woman (see also v. 31), who was likely related to the latter's idolatry in his old age (11:1-8).

14:22-27 Judah did evil in the LORD's sight and thus continued along the downward path Solomon had taken in his old age (11:4-8). They engaged in widespread idolatry (v. 23) and even had male cult prostitutes in the land (v. 24). The latter had been forbidden in Deuteronomy 23:17 and likely related to Canaanite worship practices. Much of Solomon's amassed wealth was seized by Shishak king of Egypt when he attacked Jerusalem (vv. 25-27; 10:14-21; see the note on 2Kg 16:8). For more on Asherah poles, see the note on Judges 3:7-11.

JUDAH'S KING ABIJAM

15 In the eighteenth year of Israel's King Jeroboam son of Nebat, Abijam became king over Judah, 2 and he reigned three years in Jerusalem. †
His mother's name was Maacah † daughter † of Abishalom.
3 Abijam walked in all the sins his father before him had committed, † and he was not wholeheartedly devoted to the LORD his God as his ancestor David had been. † 4 But for the sake of David, the LORD his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem by raising up his son after him and by preserving Jerusalem. † 5 For David did what was right in the LORD's sight, and he did not turn aside from anything he had commanded him all the days of his life, † except in the matter of Uriah † the Hethite.
6 There had been war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the days of Rehoboam's life. † 7 The rest of the events of Abijam's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † There was also war between Abijam and Jeroboam. † 8 Abijam rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. † His son Asa became king in his place. †

JUDAH'S KING ASA

9 In the twentieth year of Israel's King Jeroboam, † Asa became king of Judah, 10 and he reigned forty-one years in Jerusalem. His grandmother's † name was Maacah † daughter of Abishalom.
11 Asa did what was right in the LORD's sight, as his ancestor David had done. † 12 He banished the male cult prostitutes † from the land and removed all of the idols that his fathers had made. † 13 He also † removed his grandmother † Maacah from being queen mother because she had made an obscene image of Asherah. Asa chopped down her obscene image and burned it † in the Kidron Valley. † 14 The high places were not taken away, † but Asa was wholeheartedly devoted to the LORD his entire life. † 15 He brought his father's consecrated gifts and his own consecrated gifts into the LORD's temple: silver, gold, and utensils. †

16 There was war between Asa and King Baasha of Israel throughout their reigns. † 17 Israel's King Baasha went to war against Judah. † He built Ramah † in order to keep anyone from leaving or coming to King Asa of Judah. 18 So Asa withdrew all the silver and gold that remained in the treasuries of the LORD's temple † and the treasuries of the royal palace and gave it to his servants. Then King Asa sent them to Ben-hadad † son of Tabrimmon son of Hezion king of Aram who lived in Damascus, † saying, 19 "There is a treaty between me and you, between my father and your father. † Look, I have sent you a gift of silver and gold. Go and break your treaty with King Baasha of Israel † so that he will withdraw from me."

20 Ben-hadad listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel. He attacked Ijon, † Dan, † Abel-beth-maacah, † all Chinnereth, † and the whole land of Naphtali. † 21 When Baasha heard about it, he quit building Ramah and stayed in Tirzah. † 22 Then King Asa gave a command to everyone without exception in Judah, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and the timbers Baasha had built it with. Then King Asa built Geba † of Benjamin and Mizpah † with them.

23 The rest of all the events of Asa's reign, † along with all his might, all his accomplishments, and the cities he built, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † But in his old age he developed a disease in his feet. †

24 Then Asa rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of his ancestor David. † His son Jehoshaphat † became king in his place.

ISRAEL'S KING NADAB

25 Nadab son of Jeroboam † became king over Israel in the second year of Judah's King Asa; he reigned over Israel two years. 26 Nadab did what was evil in the LORD's sight and walked in the ways of his father and the sin he had caused Israel to commit. † 27 Then Baasha † son of Ahijah of the house of Issachar conspired against Nadab, and Baasha struck him down at Gibbethon † of the Philistines while Nadab and all Israel were besieging Gibbethon. 28 In the third year of Judah's King Asa, † Baasha killed Nadab † and reigned in his place.
29 When Baasha became king, he struck down the entire house of Jeroboam. †
He did not leave Jeroboam any survivors but † destroyed his family according to the word of the LORD he had spoken through his servant Ahijah the Shilonite. † 30 This was because Jeroboam had angered † the LORD God of Israel by the sins he had committed and had caused Israel to commit. † 31 The rest of the events of Nadab's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 32 There was war between Asa and King Baasha of Israel throughout their reigns. †

ISRAEL'S KING BAASHA

33 In the third year of Judah's King Asa, Baasha son of Ahijah became king over all Israel, and he reigned in Tirzah † twenty-four years. 34 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight and walked in the ways of Jeroboam and the sin he had caused Israel to commit. †

15:3-5 Rehoboam's successor in Judah was his son Abijam, who sinned like his father and did not follow David's example of obedience. The biblical author acknowledges that David was not perfect (v. 5). Despite the sins of his descendants, God continued to be faithful to the Davidic covenant (see the notes on 11:29-39 and 2Kg 8:16-19).

15:11-15 Abijam's successor Asa was a good king, who followed David's example of obedience. He banished the male cult prostitutes allowed during Rehoboam's reign and removed the idols of his predecessors (see the note on 14:22-27). Asa did not get rid of the high places, however (v. 14; see the note on 3:2).

15:16 The wars that had gone on between the northern kingdom of Israel and the southern kingdom of Judah continued (see vv. 6-7; 14:30). The division of the nation into two kingdoms evidently did not put an end to their conflicts. Baasha's ascension to the throne is discussed in vv. 27-30.

15:18 Asa's payment to Ben-hadad further depleted the wealth Solomon had stockpiled (see the note on 14:22-27).

15:25-30 Jeroboam's son Nadab succeeded him as king of Israel. Like the other kings who would follow him, Nadab did what was evil in the LORD's sight and followed in the sins of Jeroboam (see v. 34; 16:19,25-26,30-31; note on 12:25-33). Baasha's killing of Nadab along with the entire house of Jeroboam fulfilled God's word of judgment against Jeroboam's house for his sin (vv. 27-30; see the note on 14:6-16). Whereas David's line would continue to rule Judah, the ruling family of Israel would change multiple times (see the notes on 16:1-4; 21:19-24).

15:34 Baasha was also an evil king who continued in the sin of the golden calves (see the note on vv. 25-30).

16 Now the word of the LORD came to Jehu † son of Hanani † against Baasha: 2 "Because I raised you up from the dust † and made you ruler over my people Israel, † but you have walked in the ways of Jeroboam and have caused my people Israel to sin, † angering me with their sins, 3 take note: I will eradicate Baasha and his house, and I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat: †

4 Anyone who belongs to Baasha and dies in the city, the dogs will eat, and anyone who is his and dies in the field, the birds † will eat." †

5 The rest of the events of Baasha's reign, along with all his accomplishments and might, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 6 Baasha rested with his fathers and was buried in Tirzah. His son Elah became king in his place. 7 But through the prophet Jehu † son of Hanani the word of the LORD also had come against Baasha and against his house because of all the evil he had done in the LORD's sight. His actions angered the LORD, and Baasha's house became like the house of Jeroboam, because he had struck it down. †

ISRAEL'S KING ELAH

8 In the twenty-sixth year of Judah's King Asa, Elah son of Baasha became king over Israel, and he reigned in Tirzah † two years.
9 His servant Zimri, † commander of half his chariots, conspired against him while Elah was in Tirzah getting drunk † in the house of Arza, who was in charge of the household † at Tirzah. 10 In the twenty-seventh year of Judah's King Asa, Zimri went in, struck Elah down, killing him. Then Zimri became king in his place. †
11 When he became king, as soon as he was seated on his throne, Zimri struck down the entire house of Baasha. He did not leave a single male, † † including his kinsmen and his friends. 12 So Zimri destroyed the entire house of Baasha, according to the word of the LORD he had spoken against Baasha through the prophet Jehu. † 13 This happened because of all the sins of Baasha and those of his son Elah, which they committed and caused Israel to commit, angering the LORD God of Israel † with their worthless idols. † 14 The rest of the events of Elah's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. †

ISRAEL'S KING ZIMRI

15 In the twenty-seventh year of Judah's King Asa, Zimri became king for seven days in Tirzah. † Now the troops were encamped against Gibbethon of the Philistines. † 16 When these troops heard that Zimri had not only conspired but had also struck down the king, then all Israel made Omri, the army commander, king over Israel that very day in the camp. 17 Omri along with all Israel marched up from Gibbethon and besieged Tirzah. † 18 When Zimri saw that the city was captured, he entered the citadel of the royal palace and burned it down over himself. He died 19 because of the sin he committed by doing what was evil in the LORD's sight and by walking in the ways of Jeroboam and the sin he caused Israel to commit. † 20 The rest of the events of Zimri's reign, along with the conspiracy that he instigated, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. 21 At that time the people of Israel were divided: half the people followed Tibni son of Ginath, to make him king, and half followed Omri. 22 However, the people who followed Omri proved stronger than those who followed Tibni son of Ginath. So Tibni died and Omri became king.

ISRAEL'S KING OMRI

23 In the thirty-first year of Judah's King Asa, Omri became king over Israel, and he reigned twelve years. He reigned six years in Tirzah, † 24 then he bought the hill of Samaria † from Shemer for 150 pounds † of silver, and he built up the hill. He named the city he built Samaria † based on the name Shemer, the owner of the hill.

25 Omri did what was evil in the LORD's sight; he did more evil than all who were before him. † 26 He walked in all the ways of Jeroboam son of Nebat in every respect and continued in his sins that he caused Israel to commit, angering the LORD God of Israel with their worthless idols. † 27 The rest of the events of Omri's reign, along with his accomplishments and the might he exercised, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. 28 Omri rested with his fathers and was buried in Samaria. His son Ahab became king in his place.

ISRAEL'S KING AHAB

29 Ahab son of Omri became king over Israel in the thirty-eighth year of Judah's King Asa; Ahab son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. 30 But Ahab son of Omri did what was evil in the LORD's sight more than all who were before him. † 31 Then, as if following the sin of Jeroboam son of Nebat were not enough, he married Jezebel, † the daughter of Ethbaal king of the Sidonians, † and then proceeded to serve Baal and bow in worship to him. †

32 He set up an altar for Baal in the temple of Baal † that he had built in Samaria. 33 Ahab also made an Asherah pole. † Ahab did more to anger the LORD God of Israel than all the kings of Israel who were before him. †

34 During his reign, Hiel the Bethelite built Jericho. At the cost of Abiram his firstborn, he laid its foundation, and at the cost of Segub his youngest, he finished its gates, according to the word of the LORD he had spoken through Joshua son of Nun. †

16:1-4 Yet another prophet, Jehu son of Hanani, comes on the scene to declare God's judgment on Baasha and his house for his disobedience (see the note on 13:4-6). The longevity of a ruling family depended not on political skill or military might but on obedience to God (see 6:12-13; 9:4-9; 11:38). Like Jeroboam's, Baasha's house would also be wiped out entirely (see the note on 15:25-30).

16:8-12 Baasha's son Elah succeeded him as king, and he was killed by Zimri, one of his military leaders. After taking the throne, he struck down the entire house of Baasha (v. 11), thus fulfilling the word of God spoken through Jehu (v. 12; see previous note).

16:16-18 Zimri's reign in Tirzah lasted a mere seven days (v. 15). News of Elah's death reached the Israelite troops, who instead made Omri, the army commander, king. He besieged Tirzah and Zimri, knowing that he was doomed, burned down the citadel of the royal palace on himself.

16:23-26 Omri shifted the capital of the northern kingdom from Tirzah to Samaria (see vv. 8,15,29; 14:17; 15:33). He was like the kings of Israel who preceded him but worse, doing more evil than all who were before him (see the note on 15:25-30).

16:29-33 Omri's son was the infamous Ahab, who was Israel's worst king yet (v. 30; 21:25). He not only continued in the sins of Jeroboam but married Jezebel, a wicked Sidonian princess, and worshiped Baal and Asherah. Regarding these two gods, see the note on Judges 3:7-11.

16:34 This incident serves as another reminder of God's faithfulness to his word, even during dark times (see the note on 13:20-26).

ELIJAH ANNOUNCES FAMINE

17 Now Elijah † the Tishbite, from the Gilead settlers, † † said to Ahab,
"As the LORD God of Israel lives, † in whose presence I stand, there will be no dew or rain during these years except by my command! " † 2 Then the word of the LORD came to him: 3 "Leave here, turn eastward, and hide † at the Wadi Cherith where it enters the Jordan. 4 You are to drink from the wadi. I have commanded the ravens † to provide for you there."
5 So he proceeded to do what the LORD commanded. Elijah left and lived at the Wadi Cherith where it enters the Jordan. 6 The ravens kept bringing him bread and meat in the morning and in the evening, † and he would drink from the wadi. 7 After a while, the wadi dried up because there had been no rain in the land.

ELIJAH AND THE WIDOW

8 Then the word of the LORD came to him: 9 “Get up, go to Zarephath † that belongs to Sidon and stay there. Look, I have commanded a woman who is a widow to provide for you there.” 10 So Elijah got up and went to Zarephath.
When he arrived at the city gate, there was a widow gathering wood. Elijah called to her and said, “Please bring me a little water in a cup and let me drink.” † 11 As she went to get it, he called to her and said, “Please bring me a piece of bread in your hand.”

12 But she said, “As the LORD your God lives, † I don’t have anything baked — only a handful of flour in the jar and a bit of oil † in the jug. Just now, I am gathering a couple of sticks in order to go prepare it for myself and my son so we can eat it and die.” †

13 Then Elijah said to her, “Don’t be afraid; go and do as you have said. But first make me a small loaf from it and bring it out to me. Afterward, you may make some for yourself and your son, 14 for this is what the LORD God of Israel says, ‘The flour jar will not become empty and the oil jug will not run dry until the day the LORD sends rain on the surface of the land.’ ” †

15 So she proceeded to do according to the word of Elijah. Then the woman, Elijah, and her household ate for many days. † 16 The flour jar did not become empty, and the oil jug did not run dry, according to the word of the LORD he had spoken through † Elijah.

THE WIDOW’S SON RAISED

17 After this, the son of the woman who owned the house became ill. His illness got worse until he stopped breathing. † 18 She said to Elijah, “Man of God, † why are you here? † Have you come to call attention to my iniquity † so that my son is put to death? ”

19 But Elijah said to her, “Give me your son.” So he took him from her arms, brought him up to the upstairs room † where he was staying, and laid him on his own bed. 20 Then he cried out to the LORD † and said, “LORD my God, have you also brought tragedy on the widow I am staying with by killing her son? ” 21 Then he stretched himself out over the boy three times. † He cried out to the LORD and said, “LORD my God, please let this boy’s life come into him again! ”

22 So the LORD listened to Elijah, and the boy's life came into him again, and he lived. † 23 Then Elijah took the boy, brought him down from the upstairs room into the house, and gave him to his mother. † Elijah said, "Look, your son is alive."

24 Then the woman said to Elijah, "Now I know you are a man of God † and the LORD's word from your mouth is true." †

17:1 This section, running through 2Kg 9:3, focuses on the ministries of Elijah and Elisha, differing from the back and forth accounts of respective kings of Israel and Judah that precede and follow it. The preceding chapters had already seen prophets frequently bringing messages to kings (see the notes on 13:4-6 and 16:1-4). As was the case for the prophets mentioned previously, little background is given about Elijah. His pronouncement of drought is in keeping with punishments for disobedience listed by Moses (8:35; Dt 28:22-24).

17:2-16 Despite the drought on the land of Israel, God provided for the prophet Elijah through miraculous means, first through ravens and then through a reluctant widow whose supplies were multiplied. Zarephath in Sidon was located in modern-day Lebanon and was thus a territory outside the land of Israel. In this passage the biblical author continues to emphasize the trustworthiness of the word of the LORD and even does so through the lips of the widow (v. 24; see the note on 13:20-26).

ELIJAH'S MESSAGE TO AHAB

18 After a long time, the word of the LORD † came to Elijah in the third year: † "Go and present yourself to Ahab. † I will send rain on the surface of the land." 2 So Elijah went to present himself to Ahab.

The famine was severe in Samaria. † 3 Ahab called for Obadiah, who was in charge of the palace. † Obadiah was a man who greatly feared the LORD † 4 and took a hundred prophets and hid them, fifty men to a cave, and provided them with food and water when Jezebel † slaughtered the LORD's prophets. † 5 Ahab said to Obadiah, "Go throughout the land to every spring and to every wadi. Perhaps we'll find grass so we can keep the horses and mules alive and not have to destroy any cattle." † 6 They divided the land between them in order to cover it. Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went the other way by himself.

7 While Obadiah was walking along the road, Elijah suddenly met him. † When Obadiah recognized him, he fell facedown and said, “Is it you, my lord Elijah? ”
8 “It is I,” he replied. “Go tell your lord, ‘Elijah is here! ’ ” † 9 But Obadiah said, “What sin have I committed, † that you are handing your servant over to Ahab to put me to death? 10 As the LORD your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom where my lord has not sent someone to search for you.
When they said, ‘He is not here,’ he made that kingdom or nation swear they had not found you.
11 “Now you say, ‘Go tell your lord, “Elijah is here! ” ’ 12 But when I leave you, the Spirit of the LORD may carry you off † to some place I don’t know. Then when I go report to Ahab and he doesn’t find you, he will kill me. But I, your servant, have feared the LORD from my youth. 13 Wasn’t it reported to my lord what I did when Jezebel slaughtered the LORD’s prophets? I hid a hundred of the prophets of the LORD, fifty men to a cave, and I provided them with food and water. 14 Now you say, ‘Go tell your lord, “Elijah is here! ” ’ He will kill me! ” 15 Then Elijah said, “As the LORD of Armies lives, † in whose presence I stand, today I will present myself to Ahab.”
16 Obadiah went to meet Ahab and told him. Then Ahab went to meet Elijah.
17 When Ahab saw Elijah, Ahab said to him, “Is that you, the one ruining Israel? ” †
18 He replied, “I have not ruined Israel, but you and your father’s family have, because you have abandoned the LORD’s commands † and followed the Baals. † 19 Now summon all Israel to meet me at Mount Carmel, † along with the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 prophets of Asherah † who eat at Jezebel’s table.”

ELIJAH AT MOUNT CARMEL

20 So Ahab summoned all the Israelites and gathered the prophets at Mount Carmel. 21 Then Elijah approached all the people and said, “How long will you waver between two opinions? † † If the LORD is God, follow him. But if Baal, follow him.” † But the people didn’t answer him a word.
22 Then Elijah said to the people, “I am the only remaining prophet of the LORD, † but Baal’s prophets are 450 men. 23 Let two bulls be given to us. They are to choose one bull for themselves, cut it in pieces, and place it on the wood but not light the fire. I will prepare the other bull and place it on the wood but not light the fire. 24 Then you call on the name of your god, and I will call on the name of the LORD. † The God who answers with fire, he is God."

All the people answered, "That's fine."
25 Then Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, "Since you are so numerous, choose for yourselves one bull and prepare it first. Then call on the name of your god but don't light the fire."
26 So they took the bull that he gave them, prepared it, and called on the name of Baal from morning until noon, saying, "Baal, answer us!" But there was no sound; † no one answered. Then they danced † around the altar they had made.
27 At noon Elijah mocked them. He said, "Shout loudly, for he's a god! Maybe he's thinking it over; maybe he has wandered away; † or maybe he's on the road. Perhaps he's sleeping and will wake up!" † 28 They shouted loudly, and cut themselves † with knives and spears, according to their custom, until blood gushed over them. 29 All afternoon they kept on raving until the offering of the evening sacrifice, † but there was no sound; no one answered, no one paid attention. †
30 Then Elijah said to all the people, "Come near me." So all the people approached him. Then he repaired the LORD's altar that had been torn down: †
31 Elijah took twelve stones — according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the LORD had come, saying, "Israel will be your name" † — 32 and he built an altar † with the stones in the name of the LORD. Then he made a trench around the altar large enough to hold about four gallons. † † 33 Next, he arranged the wood, cut up the bull, and placed it on the wood. He said, "Fill four water pots with water and pour it on the offering to be burned and on the wood." 34 Then he said, "A second time!" and they did it a second time. And then he said, "A third time!" and they did it a third time. 35 So the water ran all around the altar; he even filled the trench with water.
36 At the time for offering the evening sacrifice, † the prophet Elijah approached the altar and said, "LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, † today let it be known † that you are God in Israel and I am your servant, and that at your word I have done all these things. 37 Answer me, LORD! Answer me so that this people will know that you, the LORD, are God † and that you have turned their hearts back."

38 Then the LORD's fire fell and consumed the burnt offering, the wood, the stones, and the dust, and it licked up the water that was in the trench. 39 When all the people saw it, they fell facedown † and said, "The LORD, he is God! The LORD, he is God! " †
40 Then Elijah ordered them, "Seize the prophets of Baal! † Do not let even one of them escape." So they seized them, and Elijah brought them down to the Wadi Kishon † and slaughtered them there. † 41 Elijah said to Ahab, "Go up, eat and drink, for there is the sound of a rainstorm." †
42 So Ahab went to eat and drink, but Elijah went up to the summit of Carmel. † He bent down on the ground and put his face between his knees. † 43 Then he said to his servant, "Go up and look toward the sea."
So he went up, looked, and said, "There's nothing."
Seven times Elijah said, "Go back."
44 On the seventh † time, he reported, "There's a cloud as small as a man's hand coming up from the sea."
Then Elijah said, "Go and tell Ahab, 'Get your chariot ready and go down so the rain doesn't stop you.' "
45 In a little while, the sky grew dark with clouds and wind, and there was a downpour. So Ahab got in his chariot and went to Jezreel. † 46 The power of the LORD † was on Elijah, and he tucked his mantle under his belt † and ran ahead of Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

18:12 Ahab had looked far and wide in vain for Elijah (v. 10), and Obadiah believed that Elijah could be carried off to some other location by the Spirit when he went to tell Ahab of his coming (see also 2Kg 2:16).

18:17-18 Ahab accused Elijah of being the one ruining Israel because he had declared that there would be a drought that would only end at his command (17:1). The truth was that it was Ahab's idolatry that had brought God's just judgment upon Israel (v. 18; see the note on 17:1). Moreover, it was God who had said that there would soon be rain (v. 1).

18:27-29 Elijah's taunts further highlighted the futility of praying to Baal. Despite 450 of Baal's prophets shouting, dancing, and slashing themselves, there was no response.

18:30-32 Not only was the LORD's altar broken down, but Elijah's use of twelve stones was a symbol of the ultimate unity of the nation of Israel and a reminder that it had been divided.

18:35-39 In contrast with what the prophets of Baal did (vv. 26-29), Elijah's drenching of his offering and his simple prayer made it all the more clear that the Lord alone is God (see vv. 21). Despite Israel's worship of the golden calves and of Baal, God mercifully still sought to turn them back to him (v. 37).

18:40 The killing of the prophets of Baal was in keeping with Moses's instructions about false prophets in Deuteronomy 13:5-10 and 18:20.

18:41-45 As God had said it would (v. 1), rain finally fell. Elijah's posture and sending his servant to look toward the sea . . . seven times suggest humble waiting for God to act according to his word (see also 2Kg 5:10).

ELIJAH'S JOURNEY TO HOREB

19 Ahab told Jezebel † everything that Elijah had done † and how he had killed all the prophets with the sword. † 2 So Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, "May the gods punish me and do so severely † if I don't make your life like the life of one of them by this time tomorrow! "

3 Then Elijah became afraid † † and immediately ran for his life. † When he came to Beer-sheba † that belonged to Judah, he left his servant there, † 4 but he went on a day's journey into the wilderness. He sat down under a broom tree † and prayed that he might die. He said, "I have had enough! LORD, take my life, † for I'm no better than my fathers." 5 Then he lay down and slept under the broom tree.

Suddenly, an angel touched him. † The angel told him, "Get up and eat." 6 Then he looked, and there at his head was a loaf of bread baked over hot stones, and a jug of water. † So he ate and drank and lay down again. 7 Then the angel of the LORD † returned for a second time and touched him. He said, "Get up and eat, or the journey will be too much for you." 8 So he got up, ate, and drank. Then on the strength from that food, he walked forty days and forty nights † to Horeb, the mountain of God. † 9 He entered a cave † there and spent the night.

ELIJAH'S ENCOUNTER WITH THE LORD

Suddenly, the word of the LORD came to him, and he said to him, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" †

10 He replied, "I have been very zealous † for the LORD God of Armies, but the Israelites have abandoned your covenant, † torn down your altars, † and killed your prophets † with the sword. I alone am left, † and they are looking for me to take my life." †

11 Then he said, "Go out and stand on the mountain in the LORD's presence." †

At that moment, the LORD passed by. † A great and mighty wind † was tearing at the mountains and was shattering cliffs before the LORD, but the LORD was not in the wind. After the wind there was an earthquake, † but the LORD was not in the earthquake. 12 After the earthquake there was a fire, † but the LORD was not in the fire. And after the fire there was a voice, a soft whisper. † 13 When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his mantle † and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave.

Suddenly, a voice came to him and said, "What are you doing here, Elijah?"

14 "I have been very zealous for the LORD God of Armies," he replied, "but the Israelites have abandoned your covenant, torn down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword. I alone am left, and they're looking for me to take my life." †

15 Then the LORD said to him, "Go and return by the way you came to the Wilderness of Damascus. When you arrive, you are to anoint Hazael † as king over Aram. 16 You are to anoint Jehu † son of Nimshi as king over Israel and Elisha † son of Shaphat from Abel-meholah as prophet in your place. 17 Then Jehu will put to death whoever escapes the sword of Hazael, † and Elisha will put to death whoever escapes the sword of Jehu. † 18 But I will leave seven thousand in Israel † — every knee that has not bowed to Baal † and every mouth that has not kissed him." †

ELISHA'S APPOINTMENT AS ELIJAH'S SUCCESSOR

19 Elijah left there and found Elisha † son of Shaphat as he was plowing. Twelve teams of oxen were in front of him, and he was with the twelfth team. Elijah walked by him and threw his mantle over him. † 20 Elisha left the oxen, ran to follow Elijah, and said, "Please let me kiss my father and mother, and then I will follow you." †

"Go on back," he replied, "for what have I done to you? "

21 So he turned back from following him, took the team of oxen, and slaughtered † them. With the oxen's wooden yoke and plow, † he cooked the meat and gave it to the people, and they ate. Then he left, followed Elijah, and served him. †

19:1-5 Jezebel had killed God's prophets before (18:5,13), and she had all the more reason to kill Elijah after the scene on Mount Carmel. Elijah's fear and despair here show that he was "a human being as we are" (Jms 5:17).

19:11-13 Just as Moses had a special encounter with God at Horeb centuries before (Ex 33:18–34:8), so did Elijah (see v. 8). The significance of Elijah's encounter seems to be that God often works through subtle means. He does reveal himself through unusual displays of power (see 18:38), but he manifests himself more regularly through his word (vv. 12-13; Ex 34:6-7).

19:14 The depth of Elijah's discouragement is suggested by his repetition of his previous response to God's question (see v. 10), despite the dramatic encounter he just had (vv. 11-13). Elijah's claim to be the only one left (see also v. 10; 18:22) was not only false (v. 18) but also unjustified given his conversation with Obadiah (18:13).

19:15-18 The Lord dealt with Elijah's discouragement and loneliness by sending him back to anoint three leaders who would execute judgment on Israel and by informing him that there was a remnant of seven thousand in Israel who had not turned to Baal. Jehu in particular would be the instrument of God's vengeance against the house of Ahab for their crimes (see the note on 2Kg 9:1-10).

19:19 Elijah's mantle was associated with his ministry and power (see 2Kg 2:8,13-14).

VICTORY OVER BEN-HADAD

20 Now King Ben-hadad † of Aram assembled his entire army. Thirty-two kings, † along with horses and chariots, were with him. He marched up, besieged Samaria, † and fought against it. 2 He sent messengers into the city to King Ahab of Israel and said to him, “This is what Ben-hadad says: 3 ‘Your silver and your gold are mine! And your best wives and children are mine as well! ’ ” † 4 Then the king of Israel answered, “Just as you say, my lord the king: I am yours, along with all that I have.”
5 The messengers then returned and said, “This is what Ben-hadad says: ‘I have sent messengers to you, saying: You are to give me your silver, your gold, your wives, and your children. 6 But at this time tomorrow I will send my servants to you, † † and they will search your palace and your servants’ houses. They will lay their hands on and take away whatever is precious to you.’ ”
7 Then the king of Israel called for all the elders of the land and said, “Recognize † that this one is only looking for trouble, † for he demanded my wives, my children, my silver, and my gold, and I didn’t turn him down.”
8 All the elders and all the people said to him, “Don’t listen or agree.”
9 So he said to Ben-hadad’s messengers, “Say to my lord the king, ‘Everything you demanded of your servant the first time, I will do, but this thing I cannot do.’ ” So the messengers left and took word back to him.
10 Then Ben-hadad sent messengers to him and said, “May the gods punish me and do so severely † if Samaria’s dust † amounts to a handful for each of the people who follow me.” 11 The king of Israel answered, “Say this: ‘Don’t let the one who puts on his armor boast † like the one who takes it off.’ ” 12 When Ben-hadad heard this response, while he and the kings were drinking † in their quarters, † he said to his servants, “Take your positions.” So they took their positions against the city.
13 A prophet approached King Ahab of Israel and said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Do you see this whole huge army? Watch, I am handing it over to you today so that you may know that I am the LORD.’ ” † 14 Ahab asked, “By whom? ”

And the prophet said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘By the young men of the provincial leaders.’ ”

Then he asked, “Who is to start the battle? ” †
He said, “You.”

15 So Ahab mobilized the young men of the provincial leaders, and there were 232. After them he mobilized all the Israelite troops: 7,000. † 16 They marched out at noon while Ben-hadad and the thirty-two kings † who were helping him were getting drunk in their quarters. 17 The young men of the provincial leaders marched out first. Then Ben-hadad sent out scouts, and they reported to him, saying, “Men are marching out of Samaria.” †

18 So he said, “If they have marched out in peace, † take them alive, and if they have marched out for battle, take them alive.”

19 The young men of the provincial leaders and the army behind them marched out from the city, 20 and each one struck down his opponent. † So the Arameans fled and Israel pursued them, † but King Ben-hadad of Aram escaped on a horse with the cavalry. 21 Then the king of Israel marched out and attacked the cavalry and the chariots. He inflicted a severe slaughter on Aram.

22 The prophet approached the king of Israel and said to him, “Go and strengthen yourself, then consider carefully † what you should do, for in the spring † the king of Aram will attack you.”

23 Now the king of Aram’s servants said to him, “Their gods are gods of the hill country. † That’s why they were stronger than we were. Instead, we should fight with them on the plain; then we will certainly be stronger than they are. 24 Also do this: remove each king from his position and appoint captains in their place. 25 Raise another army for yourself like the army you lost — horse for horse, chariot for chariot — and let’s fight with them on the plain; and we will certainly be stronger than they are.” The king listened to them and did it.

26 In the spring, Ben-hadad mobilized the Arameans and went up to Aphek † to battle Israel. 27 The Israelites mobilized, gathered supplies, and went to fight them. The Israelites camped in front of them like two little flocks of goats, while the Arameans filled the landscape. †

28 Then the man of God † approached and said to the king of Israel, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Because the Arameans have said: The LORD is a god of the mountains and not a god of the valleys, † I will hand over all this whole huge army to you. Then you will know that I am the LORD.’ ” †

29 They camped opposite each other for seven days. On the seventh day, † the battle took place, and the Israelites struck down the Arameans — one hundred thousand foot soldiers in one day. 30 The ones who remained fled into the city of Aphek, and the wall fell on those twenty-seven thousand remaining men.

Ben-hadad also fled and went into an inner room † in the city. 31 His servants said to him, “Consider this: we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings. So let’s put sackcloth around our waists † and ropes around our heads, and let’s go out to the king of Israel. Perhaps he will spare your life.”

32 So they dressed with sackcloth around their waists and ropes around their heads, went to the king of Israel, and said, “Your servant Ben-hadad says, ‘Please spare my life.’ ”

So he said, “Is he still alive? He is my brother.”

33 Now the men were looking for a sign of hope, so they quickly picked up on this † and responded, “Yes, it is your brother Ben-hadad.”

Then he said, “Go and bring him.”

So Ben-hadad came out to him, and Ahab had him come up into the chariot.

34 Then Ben-hadad said to him, “I restore to you the cities that my father took from your father, † and you may set up marketplaces for yourself in Damascus, like my father set up in Samaria.” †

Ahab responded, “On the basis of this treaty, I release you.” So he made a treaty with him and released him.

AHAB REBUKED BY THE LORD

35 One of the sons of the prophets † said to his fellow prophet by the word of the LORD, “Strike me! ” But the man refused to strike him.

36 He told him, “Because you did not listen to the LORD, mark my words: When you leave me, a lion will kill you.” † When he left him, a lion attacked and killed him.

37 The prophet found another man and said to him, “Strike me!” So the man struck him, inflicting a wound. 38 Then the prophet went and waited for the king on the road. He disguised † himself with a bandage over his eyes. 39 As the king was passing by, he cried out to the king and said, “Your servant marched out into the middle of the battle. Suddenly, a man turned aside and brought someone to me and said, ‘Guard this man! If he is ever missing, it will be your life in place of his life, † or you will weigh out seventy-five pounds † of silver.’
40 But while your servant was busy here and there, he disappeared.”
The king of Israel said to him, “That will be your sentence; you yourself have decided it.” †
41 He quickly removed the bandage from his eyes. The king of Israel recognized that he was one of the prophets. 42 The prophet said to him, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Because you released from your hand the man I had set apart for destruction, † it will be your life in place of his life and your people in place of his people.’ ” 43 The king of Israel left for home resentful and angry, † and he entered Samaria.

20:22-28 Ahab was counseled in his battles against Ben-hadad not by Elijah but by an unnamed prophet (vv. 13-14,22,28), which incidentally supported God’s statement that there remained seven thousand who were loyal to him (19:18). The Lord was also demonstrating to Ahab that he is the LORD (vv. 13,28). Contrary to the beliefs of the Arameans, he is not merely a god of the hill country; he is God over all creation (v. 23).

20:35-36 The fellow prophet’s refusal to strike the prophet was indeed an act of disobedience to the word of the LORD (see the note on 13:20-26). The prophet needed to be wounded in order to appropriately confront Ahab (vv. 37-43).

20:41-43 Contrary to God’s will, Ahab spared Ben-hadad and made a treaty with him (vv. 32-34). The Aramean king had been set apart for destruction, and Ahab and his people would pay the price (v. 42), just as the prophet had illustrated (vv. 39-40).

AHAB AND NABOTH’S VINEYARD

21 Some time passed after these events. Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard; it was in Jezreel † next to the palace of King Ahab of Samaria. † 2 So Ahab spoke to Naboth, saying, “Give me your vineyard † so I can have it for a vegetable garden, since it is right next to my palace. I will give you a better vineyard in its place, or if you prefer, I will give you its value in silver.”

3 But Naboth said to Ahab, “I will never give my fathers’ inheritance † to you.”

4 So Ahab went to his palace resentful and angry † because of what Naboth the Jezreelite had told him. He had said, “I will not give you my fathers’ inheritance.” He lay down on his bed, turned his face away, † and didn’t eat any food. †

5 Then his wife Jezebel came to him and said to him, “Why are you so upset that you refuse to eat? ”

6 “Because I spoke to Naboth the Jezreelite,” he replied. “I told him: Give me your vineyard for silver, or if you wish, I will give you a vineyard in its place. But he said, ‘I won’t give you my vineyard! ’ ”

7 Then his wife Jezebel said to him, “Now, exercise your royal power over Israel. Get up, eat some food, and be happy. For I will give you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.” † 8 So she wrote letters † in Ahab’s name and sealed them with his seal. † She sent the letters to the elders † and nobles who lived with Naboth in his city. 9 In the letters, she wrote:

Proclaim a fast † and seat Naboth at the head of the people. 10 Then seat two wicked men † opposite him and have them testify against him, saying, “You have cursed God and the king! ” † Then take him out and stone him to death. †

11 The men of his city, the elders and nobles who lived in his city, did as Jezebel had sent word to them, just as it was written in the letters she had sent them. 12 They proclaimed a fast and seated Naboth at the head of the people. 13 The two wicked men came in and sat opposite him. Then the wicked men testified against Naboth in the presence of the people, saying, “Naboth has cursed God and the king! ” So they took him outside the city and stoned him to death with stones. 14 Then they sent word to Jezebel: “Naboth has been stoned to death.” †

15 When Jezebel heard that Naboth had been stoned to death, she said to Ahab, “Get up and take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite who refused to give it to you for silver,† since Naboth isn't alive, but dead."

16 When Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, he got up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite to take possession of it.

THE LORD'S JUDGMENT ON AHAB

17 Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite:† 18 "Get up and go to meet King Ahab of Israel,† who is in Samaria.† He's in Naboth's vineyard, where he has gone to take possession of it. 19 Tell him, 'This is what the LORD says: Have you murdered† and also taken possession?'† Then tell him, 'This is what the LORD says: In the place where the dogs licked up Naboth's blood, the dogs will also lick up your blood!'"†
20 Ahab said to Elijah, "So, my enemy, you've found me, have you?"†
He replied, "I have found you because you devoted† yourself to do what is evil in the LORD's sight. 21 This is what the LORD says:† 'I am about to bring disaster on you and will eradicate your descendants:

I will wipe out all of Ahab's males,† both slave and free,† in Israel;†

22 I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam† son of Nebat and like the house of Baasha† son of Ahijah, because you have angered me and caused Israel to sin.'† 23 The LORD also speaks of Jezebel: 'The dogs will eat Jezebel in the plot of land† at Jezreel:†

24 Anyone who belongs to Ahab and dies in the city, the dogs will eat, and anyone who dies in the field, the birds† will eat.'"†

25 Still, there was no one like Ahab, who devoted himself to do what was evil in the LORD's sight, because his wife Jezebel incited him.† 26 He committed the most detestable acts by following idols† as the Amorites† had, whom the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites.
27 When Ahab heard these words, he tore his clothes, put sackcloth over his body, and fasted. He lay down in sackcloth† and walked around subdued.

28 Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite: 29 “Have you seen how Ahab has humbled himself before me? I will not bring the disaster during his lifetime, † because he has humbled himself before me. I will bring the disaster on his house during his son’s lifetime.” †

21:2-3 Naboth’s vineyard was important for his livelihood and probably was the place where his ancestors were buried. Thus, it was personally important to him, and he had no desire to part with it in a business transaction.

21:7-14 Jezebel’s evil scheme involved accusations from false witnesses against Naboth. They said that he had cursed God and the king, and so he was consequently stoned (vv. 10,13). With Naboth out of the picture, Ahab could take possession of his vineyard (vv. 15-16).

21:17 Elijah, last seen calling Elisha to be his successor (19:19-21), reenters the narrative here to confront Ahab at Naboth’s vineyard.

21:19-24 As punishment against Ahab, God decreed that dogs would lick his blood where they had licked Naboth’s (cp. 22:38). Ahab’s males would be wiped out (v. 21), and his house would become like Jeroboam’s and Baasha’s (v. 22; see the note on 15:25-30). Furthermore, the evil Jezebel would be eaten by dogs (v. 23; 9:30-37).

21:27-29 Because Ahab humbled himself (v. 27), God mercifully delayed the punishment on his family.

JEHOSHAPHAT’S ALLIANCE WITH AHAB

22 There was † a lull of three years † without war between Aram and Israel. 2 However, in the third year, King Jehoshaphat † of Judah went to visit the king of Israel. † 3 The king of Israel had said to his servants, “Don’t you know that Ramoth-gilead † is ours, but we’re doing nothing to take it from the king of Aram? ” 4 So † he asked Jehoshaphat, “Will you go with me to fight Ramoth-gilead? ” † Jehoshaphat replied to the king of Israel, “I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses.” † 5 But Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, “First, please ask what the LORD’s will is.” †

6 So the king of Israel gathered the prophets, about four hundred men, † and asked them, “Should I go against Ramoth-gilead for war or should I refrain? ”

They replied, “March up, and the Lord will hand it over to the king.” †

7 But Jehoshaphat asked, “Isn’t there a prophet of the LORD here anymore? † Let’s ask him.”

8 The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is still one man who can inquire of the LORD, but I hate him † because he never prophesies good about me, † but only disaster. He is Micaiah son of Imlah.”

9 So the king of Israel called an officer and said, “Hurry and get Micaiah son of Imlah! ”

10 Now the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah, † clothed in royal attire, were each sitting on his own throne. They were on the threshing floor † at the entrance to the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying in front of them. 11 Then Zedekiah † son of Chenaanah made iron horns † and said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘You will gore the Arameans with these until they are finished off.’ ” 12 And all the prophets were prophesying the same: “March up to Ramoth-gilead † and succeed, for the LORD will hand it over to the king.”

MICAIAH’S MESSAGE OF DEFEAT

13 The messenger † who went to call Micaiah instructed him, “Look, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable for the king. So let your words be like theirs, and speak favorably.”

14 But Micaiah said, “As the LORD lives, † I will say whatever the LORD says to me.” †

15 So he went to the king, and the king asked him, “Micaiah, should we go to Ramoth-gilead for war, or should we refrain? ”

Micaiah told him, “March up and succeed. The LORD will hand it over to the king.”

16 But the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear not to tell me anything but the truth in the name of the LORD? ”

17 So Micaiah said:

I saw all Israel scattered on the hills
like sheep without a shepherd. †
And the LORD said, “They have no master;
let everyone return home in peace.” †

18 So the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Didn’t I tell you he never prophesies good about me, but only disaster? ”
19 Then Micaiah said, “Therefore, hear the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, † and the whole heavenly army † was standing by him at his right hand and at his left hand. 20 And the LORD said, ‘Who will entice Ahab to march up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? ’ † So one was saying this and another was saying that.
21 “Then a spirit came forward, stood in the LORD’s presence, and said, ‘I will entice him.’
22 “The LORD asked him, ‘How? ’
“He said, ‘I will go and become a lying spirit † in the mouth of all his prophets.’
“Then he said, ‘You will certainly entice him and prevail. † Go and do that.’
23 “You see, the LORD has put a lying spirit into the mouth of all these prophets of yours, and the LORD has pronounced disaster against you.”
24 Then Zedekiah † son of Chenaanah came up, hit Micaiah on the cheek, and demanded, “Did † the Spirit of the LORD leave me to speak to you? ” †
25 Micaiah replied, “You will soon see when you go to hide in an inner chamber on that day.” †
26 Then the king of Israel ordered, “Take Micaiah and return him to Amon, the governor of the city, and to Joash, the king’s son, † 27 and say, ‘This is what the king says: Put this guy in prison † and feed him only a little bread and water † until I come back safely.’ ”
28 But Micaiah said, “If you ever return safely, the LORD has not spoken through me.” † Then he said, “Listen, all you people! ” † †

AHAB’S DEATH

29 Then † the king of Israel and Judah's King Jehoshaphat went up to Ramoth-gilead. † 30 But the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "I will disguise † myself and go into battle, but you wear your royal attire." So the king of Israel disguised himself and went into battle. † 31 Now the king of Aram had ordered his thirty-two chariot commanders, † "Do not fight with anyone at all † except the king of Israel." † 32 When the chariot commanders saw Jehoshaphat, they shouted, "He must be the king of Israel! " So they turned to fight against him, but Jehoshaphat cried out. 33 When the chariot commanders saw that he was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him.
34 But a man drew his bow † without taking special aim and struck the king of Israel through the joints of his armor. So he said to his charioteer, "Turn around and take me out of the battle, † for I am badly wounded! " † 35 The battle raged throughout that day, and the king was propped up in his chariot facing the Arameans. He died that evening, † and blood from his wound flowed into the bottom of the chariot. 36 Then the cry rang out in the army as the sun set, declaring:

Each man to his own city, and each man to his own land! †

37 So the king died and was brought to Samaria. They buried the king in Samaria. † 38 Then someone washed the chariot at the pool of Samaria. The dogs licked up his blood, and the prostitutes bathed in it, according to the word of the LORD that he had spoken. † 39 The rest of the events of Ahab's reign, along with all his accomplishments, including the ivory palace † he built, and all the cities he built, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 40 Ahab rested with his fathers, † and his son Ahaziah † became king in his place.

JUDAH'S KING JEHOSHAPHAT

41 Jehoshaphat † son of Asa became king over Judah in the fourth year of Israel's King Ahab. 42 Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he became king; he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. 43 He walked in all the ways of his father Asa; † he did not turn away from them but did what was right in the LORD's sight. However, the high places were not taken away; † the people still sacrificed and burned incense on the high places. † 44 Jehoshaphat also made peace with the king of Israel. †

45 The rest of the events of Jehoshaphat's reign, along with the might he exercised and how he waged war, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 46 He eradicated from the land the rest of the male cult prostitutes who were left from the days of his father Asa. † 47 There was no king in Edom; † a deputy served as king. 48 Jehoshaphat made ships of Tarshish † to go to Ophir † for gold, but they did not go because the ships were wrecked at Ezion-geber. † 49 At that time, Ahaziah † son of Ahab said to Jehoshaphat, "Let my servants go with your servants in the ships," but Jehoshaphat was not willing. 50 Jehoshaphat rested with his fathers and was buried with them in the city of his ancestor David. † His son Jehoram † became king in his place.

ISRAEL'S KING AHAZIAH

51 Ahaziah † son of Ahab became king over Israel in Samaria † in the seventeenth year of Judah's King Jehoshaphat, † and he reigned over Israel two years. 52 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. † He walked in the ways of his father, † in the ways of his mother, † and in the ways of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who had caused Israel to sin. † 53 He served Baal and bowed in worship to him. † He angered the LORD God of Israel just as his father had done. †

22:2-4 According to v. 44, Jehoshaphat king of Judah "made peace with the king of Israel." This is not the only time he would agree to fight alongside one of them (2Kg 3:7).

22:8 Though they mentioned the LORD (vv. 6,12), the four hundred prophets that Ahab had summoned were false prophets. His response to Jehoshaphat's question reveals that he only liked prophets who told him what he wanted to hear (see 2Tm 4:3). Ahab hated Micaiah because he never prophesies good . . . only disaster (see also v. 18; note on vv. 17-23). Micaiah is thus an example of a true prophet who re-speaks God's word regardless of its reception (see Dt 18:18-22). By contrast, false prophets supported the king and gave a so-called word from the deity that was politically or personally expedient.

22:15-16 In this humorous interaction, the prophet Micaiah first told Ahab what he wanted to hear, but Ahab knew he wasn't telling the truth (see vv. 8,18).

22:17-23 Having been charged to tell the truth, Micaiah declared that the Israelites were like sheep without a shepherd and should go home instead of into battle (v. 17). This confirmed Ahab's beliefs that Micaiah typically had a negative message from God. What the king failed to consider was that the prophet had been telling him the truth all along, and his prophecies always concerned disaster because of Ahab's constant rebellion against the Lord. Previously he had likewise considered Elijah to be a troublemaker and his personal enemy (see 18:17-18; 21:20). Micaiah's response to Ahab was to inform him that a lying spirit had gone out among his prophets to entice him to go to Ramoth Gilead and die in battle (vv. 19-23). This was the means by which God had pronounced disaster on Ahab.

22:26-29 Ahab did not listen to Micaiah's warning, as God had predicted (vv. 20-22).

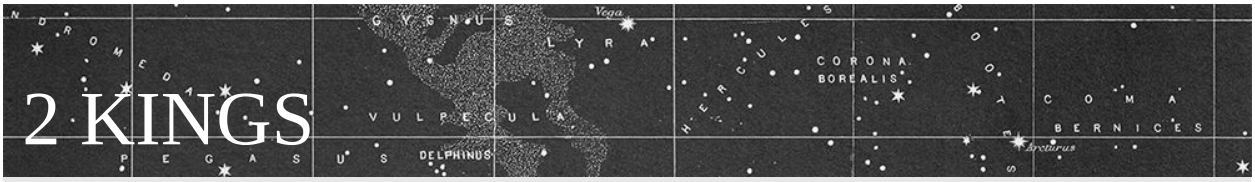
22:34-38 Despite his precautions, Ahab died in battle. His death by an arrow shot without taking special aim suggests God's providence and faithfulness to what he had said in vv. 20-22. The dogs licking up Ahab's blood also fulfilled what God had spoken through Elijah earlier (21:19).

22:43 Like his father Asa, Jehoshaphat was a good king but was not able to remove the high places (see the note on 15:11-15).

22:44 Jehoshaphat's peace with the king of Israel was reflected in his going to war with Ahab (see the note on vv. 2-4).

22:46 For more on male cult prostitutes, see the notes on 14:22-27 and 15:11-15.

22:51-53 Ahab's son Ahaziah succeeded him, and he followed in the evil pattern of his father.



2 KINGS

INTRODUCTION

See the Introduction to 1 Kings for the introductory material.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

Like Judges and 2 Chronicles, 2 Kings shows the severity of God in judging those who rebel against him. Deuteronomy had promised divine condemnation on those who were unfaithful to the Lord. The story of 2 Kings is largely one of disloyalty, and God's "educational program" meant teaching his people that he values faithfulness to him above all else, even if that means exiling them. The book ends with a ray of hope: God's promises about an everlasting Davidic dynasty are intact, for the king, Jehoiachin, is still alive.

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

Like 1 Kings, this book evaluates people by just one criterion: did they do "right in the LORD's sight" (2Kg 12.2) or not? Tragically, for the most part both kings and people did not (see 17:22-23). The author reached the following verdict about the last king of Judah: "Zedekiah did what was evil in the LORD's sight just as Jehoiakim had done. Because of the LORD's anger, it came to the point in Jerusalem and Judah that he finally banished them from his presence" (24:19-20).

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

God's prophets in 2 Kings (Elijah, Elisha, Jonah, Huldah, and Isaiah are named) called people to repent for their religious apostasy and to worship the Lord alone. Hezekiah is the model of trust in the Lord for salvation (18:5-6). Turning from the sin of idolatry, when accompanied by a desire for God's glory to be displayed, may even bring salvation from military threats. (See Hezekiah's prayer and God's response in 19:15-37.)

AHAZIAH'S SICKNESS AND DEATH

1 After Ahab's death, Moab † rebelled against Israel. † 2 Ahaziah † had fallen through the latticed window of his upstairs room in Samaria † and was injured. So he sent messengers, instructing them, "Go inquire of Baal-zebub, † † the god of Ekron, † whether I will recover from this injury." † 3 But the angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, † "Go and meet the messengers of the king of Samaria † and say to them, 'Is it because there is no
God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron?
4 Therefore, this is what the LORD says: You will not get up from your sickbed;
you will certainly die.' " Then Elijah left.
5 The messengers returned to the king, who asked them, "Why have you come back? "
6 They replied, "A man came to meet us and said, 'Go back to the king who sent you and declare to him: This is what the LORD says: Is it because there is no God in Israel that you're sending these men to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore, you will not get up from your sickbed; you will certainly die.' "
7 The king asked them, "What sort of man came up to meet you and spoke those words to you? "
8 They replied, "A hairy man with a leather belt around his waist." †
He said, "It's Elijah the Tishbite." † 9 So King Ahaziah sent a captain with his fifty men † to Elijah. When the captain went up to him, he was sitting on top of the hill. He announced, "Man of God, † the king declares, 'Come down! ' " 10 Elijah responded to the captain, "If I am a man of God, may fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty men." Then fire came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty men. † 11 So the king sent another captain with his fifty men to Elijah. He took in the situation † and announced, "Man of God, this is what the king says: 'Come down immediately! ' " 12 Elijah responded, "If I am a man of God, may fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty men." So a divine fire † came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty men.
13 Then the king sent a third captain with his fifty men. The third captain went up and fell on his knees in front of Elijah and begged him, “Man of God, † please let my life and the lives of these fifty servants of yours be precious to you. † 14 Already fire has come down from heaven and consumed the first two captains with their companies, but this time let my life be precious to you.”

15 The angel of the LORD † said to Elijah, “Go down with him. Don’t be afraid of him.” † So he got up and went down with him to the king.

16 Then Elijah said to King Ahaziah, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Because you have sent messengers to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron — is it because there is no God in Israel for you to inquire of his will? — you will not get up from your sickbed; you will certainly die.’ ”

17 Ahaziah died according to the word of the LORD that Elijah had spoken. Since he had no son, Joram † † became king in his place. This happened in the second year of Judah’s King Jehoram † son of Jehoshaphat. † 18 The rest of the events of Ahaziah’s reign, along with his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel’s Kings. † †

1:2-4 Following the example of his father Ahab, Ahaziah also worshiped Baal (see 1Kg 16:31-32; 22:53). Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron seems to have been a local variation of Baal (see the note on Jdg 3:7-11). Elijah intercepted Ahaziah’s messengers, confronted the king for inquiring of an idol rather than God, and declared that the king consequently would die (see v. 17).

1:9-12 Ahaziah’s initial two attempts to seize Elijah failed and resulted in the deaths of both groups of soldiers. As at Mount Carmel (1Kg 18:38), fire came down from heaven. Even a king did not have sufficient power to command the man of God to come down from the mountain (see the notes on 2:23-24; 1Kg 13:4-6).

1:13-15 The proper approach to Elijah was one of humility (see also 1Kg 21:27-29).

ELIJAH IN THE WHIRLWIND

2 The time had come for the LORD to take Elijah up to heaven † in a whirlwind. † Elijah and Elisha † were traveling from Gilgal, † 2 and Elijah said to Elisha, † “Stay here; † the LORD is sending me on to Bethel.” †

But Elisha replied, “As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” † So they went down to Bethel.

3 Then the sons of the prophets † who were at Bethel came out to Elisha and said, “Do you know that the LORD will take your master away from you today? ” †

He said, “Yes, I know. Be quiet.”

4 Elijah said to him, “Elisha, stay here; the LORD is sending me to Jericho.” †

But Elisha said, “As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So they went to Jericho.

5 Then the sons of the prophets who were in Jericho came up to Elisha and said, “Do you know that the LORD will take your master away from you today? ”

He said, “Yes, I know. Be quiet.”

6 Elijah said to him, “Stay here; the LORD is sending me to the Jordan.” †

But Elisha said, “As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” So the two of them went on.

7 Fifty men from the sons of the prophets came and stood observing them at a distance while the two of them stood by the Jordan. 8 Elijah took his mantle, † rolled it up, and struck the water, which parted to the right and left. Then the two of them crossed over on dry ground. † 9 When they had crossed over, Elijah said to Elisha, “Tell me what I can do for you before I am taken from you.”

So Elisha answered, “Please, let me inherit two shares of your spirit.” †

10 Elijah replied, “You have asked for something difficult. If you see me being taken from you, † you will have it. If not, you won’t.”

11 As they continued walking and talking, a chariot of fire with horses of fire † suddenly appeared and separated the two of them. Then Elijah went up into heaven in the whirlwind. † 12 As Elisha watched, he kept crying out, “My father, my father, the chariots and horsemen of Israel! ” †

ELISHA SUCCEEDS ELIJAH

When he could see him no longer, he took hold of his own clothes, tore them in two, † 13 picked up the mantle † that had fallen off Elijah, and went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan. 14 He took the mantle Elijah had dropped, and he struck the water. “Where is the LORD God of Elijah? ” he asked. He struck the water himself, and it parted to the right and the left, and Elisha crossed over.

15 When the sons of the prophets from Jericho who were observing saw him, they said, “The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha.” They came to meet him and bowed down to the ground in front of him.
16 Then the sons of the prophets said to Elisha, “Since there are fifty strong men here with your servants, please let them go and search for your master. Maybe the Spirit of the LORD has carried him away and put him on one of the mountains or into one of the valleys.” †
He answered, “Don’t send them.”
17 However, they urged him to the point of embarrassment, † so he said, “Send them.” They sent fifty men, who looked for three days but did not find him.
18 When they returned to him in Jericho † where he was staying, he said to them, “Didn’t I tell you not to go? ”
19 The men of the city said to Elisha, “My lord can see that even though the city’s location is good, the water is bad and the land unfruitful.” †
20 He replied, “Bring me a new bowl and put salt in it.” †
After they had brought him one, 21 Elisha went out to the spring, threw salt in it, † and said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘I have healed this water. No longer will death or unfruitfulness result from it.’ ” 22 Therefore, the water still remains healthy today according to the word that Elisha spoke.
23 From there Elisha went up to Bethel. † As he was walking up the path, some small boys came out of the city and jeered at him, † chanting, “Go up, baldy! Go up, baldy! ” 24 He turned around, looked at them, and cursed them in the name of the LORD. † Then two female bears came out of the woods and mauled forty-two of the children. 25 From there Elisha went to Mount Carmel, † and then he returned to Samaria. †

2:1 Like Enoch (Gn 5:24), Elijah did not die. Other passages link God's work with the Hebrew word translated here as whirlwind (e.g., Job 38:1; 40:6; Jr 23:19; 30:23; Ezk 1:4; 13:11,13). This connection communicates God's power and sometimes also his judgment.

2:9-10 Elisha was called to follow Elijah and serve him (1Kg 19:19-21), and he was faithful to the end. His insistence on staying with his master (vv. 2-6) was rewarded when Elijah offered him one last favor of his choice (see also 1Kg 3:5). Elisha's request for two shares of your spirit was analogous to the double portion inherited by a firstborn son (Dt 21:17). He wanted to continue what Elijah had been doing.

2:11-12 A chariot of fire and horses of fire appear in even greater numbers in 6:17 and suggest spiritual power superior to that of earthly chariots and horses (see Ex 15:1,4; Pss 20:7; 68:17; Is 31:1-3). In addition, the Lord's chief rival Baal was known as the storm-god whose weapons were thunder and lightning and who rode on the clouds. Here it is Yahweh, the one true God, who comes this way to take his servant. Elisha's cry of "My father, my father, the chariots and horsemen of Israel!" was also spoken over him at the end of his life (13:14).

2:13-15 Elisha's taking up of Elijah's mantle and parting the waters with it showed that the spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha and that he indeed was Elijah's successor (see also the notes on vv. 23-24; 3:12-14,20; 4:3-6).

2:16 Ahab's servant Obadiah had also believed that Elijah could be suddenly transported from one place to another by the Spirit of God (see 1Kg 18:12).

2:23-24 The boys' taunting of Elisha was disrespectful of the prophet and the God he served, and some of them were mauled by two female bears.

ISRAEL'S KING JORAM

3 Joram son of Ahab became king over Israel in Samaria during the eighteenth year of Judah's King Jehoshaphat, and he reigned twelve years. † 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, but not like his father and mother, † for he removed the sacred pillar of Baal his father had made. 3 Nevertheless, Joram clung to the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. † He did not turn away from them.

MOAB'S REBELLION AGAINST ISRAEL

4 King Mesha of Moab † was a sheep breeder. He used to pay † the king of Israel one hundred thousand lambs and the wool of one hundred thousand rams, † 5 but when Ahab died, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. † 6 So King Joram marched out from Samaria at that time and mobilized all Israel. 7 Then he sent a message to King Jehoshaphat † of Judah: "The king of Moab has rebelled against me. † Will you go with me to fight against Moab? "

Jehoshaphat said, “I will go. I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses.” †
8 He asked, “Which route should we take? ”
He replied, “The route of the Wilderness of Edom.”
9 So the king of Israel, the king of Judah, and the king of Edom † set out. After they had traveled their indirect route for seven days, they had no water for the army or the animals with them.
10 Then the king of Israel said, “Oh no, the LORD has summoned these three kings, only to hand them over to Moab.”
11 But Jehoshaphat said, “Isn’t there a prophet of the LORD here? Let’s inquire of the LORD through him.” †
One of the servants of the king of Israel answered, “Elisha son of Shaphat, † who used to pour water on Elijah’s hands, is here.”
12 Jehoshaphat affirmed, “The word of the LORD is with him.” So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom went to him. †
13 However, Elisha said to King Joram of Israel, “What do we have in common? Go to the prophets of your father and your mother! ” †
But the king of Israel replied, “No, because it is the LORD who has summoned these three kings to hand them over to Moab.”
14 Elisha responded, “By the life of the LORD of Armies, † before whom I stand: If I did not have respect for King Jehoshaphat of Judah, † I wouldn’t look at you; I would not take notice of you. 15 Now, bring me a musician.” †
While the musician played, † the LORD’s hand † came on Elisha. 16 Then he said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Dig ditch after ditch in this wadi.’ 17 For the LORD says, ‘You will not see wind or rain, but the wadi will be filled with water, † and you will drink — you and your cattle and your animals.’ 18 This is easy in the LORD’s sight. † He will also hand Moab over to you. † 19 Then you will attack every fortified city and every choice city. You will cut down every good tree and stop up every spring. You will ruin every good piece of land with stones.”
20 About the time for the grain offering † the next morning, water suddenly came from the direction of Edom and filled the land.

21 All Moab had heard that the kings † had come up to fight against them. So all who could bear arms, from the youngest to the oldest, were summoned and took their stand at the border. 22 When they got up early in the morning, the sun was shining on the water, and the Moabites saw that the water across from them was red like blood. † 23 "This is blood! " they exclaimed. "The kings † have crossed swords † and their men have killed one another. So, to the spoil, Moab! "
24 However, when the Moabites came to Israel's camp, the Israelites attacked them, and they fled from them. So Israel went into the land attacking the Moabites. 25 They would destroy the cities, and each of them would throw a stone to cover every good piece of land. They would stop up every spring and cut down every good tree. This went on until only the buildings of Kirhareseth † were left. Then men with slings surrounded the city and attacked it.
26 When the king of Moab saw that the battle was too fierce for him, he took seven hundred swordsmen with him to try to break through to the king of Edom, † but they could not do it. 27 So he took his firstborn son, † who was to become king in his place, and offered him as a burnt offering on the city wall.
Great wrath was on the Israelites, and they withdrew from him and returned to their land.

3:1-3 Ahaziah, who had no son, was succeeded by his brother Joram (1:17). Joram also did evil in the LORD's sight but was not as bad as his parents, Ahab and Jezebel. He removed his father's sacred pillar of Baal but continued in the worship of the golden calves Jeroboam instituted years prior.

3:7 For a second time, Jehoshaphat king of Judah went to war with a king of Israel (see the note on 1Kg 22:2-4).

3:11 As before, Jehoshaphat called for a prophet of the LORD (see 1Kg 22:7).

3:12-14 In the spirit of his master Elijah, Elisha took up a confrontational stance toward Joram and the house of Ahab (see the note on 2:13-15).

3:15 The use of music to facilitate the work of God is also found in 1 Samuel 16:16-23.

3:20 Just as fire fell from heaven at the time for the grain offering at the evening sacrifice (1Kg 18:36), so water came in the morning "according to the time of the offering of the sacrifice" (lit v. 20). The Hebrew phrases underlying these two passages are almost identical. Thus, they serve as both another link between the ministries of Elijah and Elisha and as a subtle reminder of the legitimate worship that took place in Judah at the temple in Jerusalem (see Ex 29:38-39; Nm 28:3-4).

3:27 The king of Moab's horrific act of child sacrifice accords with the worship of Molech described elsewhere (see notes on Lv 18:6-26 and 20:1-8).

THE WIDOW'S OIL MULTIPLIED

4 One of the wives of the sons of the prophets † cried out to Elisha, "Your servant, my husband, has died. You know that your servant feared the LORD. † Now the creditor is coming to take my two children as his slaves." †

2 Elisha asked her, "What can I do for you? Tell me, what do you have in the house? "

She said, "Your servant has nothing in the house except a jar of oil." †

3 Then he said, "Go out and borrow empty containers from all your neighbors. Do not get just a few. † 4 Then go in and shut the door behind you and your sons, and pour oil into all these containers. Set the full ones to one side." 5 So she left.

After she had shut the door behind her and her sons, they kept bringing her containers, and she kept pouring. † 6 When they were full, she said to her son, "Bring me another container."

But he replied, "There aren't any more." Then the oil stopped.

7 She went and told the man of God, † and he said, "Go sell the oil and pay your debt; you and your sons can live on the rest." †

THE SHUNAMMITE WOMAN'S HOSPITALITY

8 One day Elisha went to Shunem. † A prominent woman who lived there persuaded him to eat some food. So whenever he passed by, he stopped there to eat. † 9 Then she said to her husband, "I know that the one who often passes by here is a holy man of God, 10 so let's make a small, walled-in upper room and put a bed, a table, a chair, and a lamp there for him. Whenever he comes, he can stay there." †

THE SHUNAMMITE WOMAN'S SON

11 One day he came there and stopped at the upstairs room to lie down. 12 He ordered his attendant Gehazi, † "Call this Shunammite woman." So he called her and she stood before him.
13 Then he said to Gehazi, "Say to her, 'Look, you've gone to all this trouble for us. What can we do for you? † Can we speak on your behalf to the king or to the commander of the army? ' "
She answered, "I am living among my own people."
14 So he asked, "Then what should be done for her? "
Gehazi answered, "Well, she has no son, and her husband is old."
15 "Call her," Elisha said. So Gehazi called her, and she stood in the doorway.
16 Elisha said, "At this time next year you will have a son in your arms." †
Then she said, "No, my lord. Man of God, do not lie to your servant." †
17 The woman conceived and gave birth to a son at the same time the following year, as Elisha had promised her.

THE SHUNAMMITE'S SON RAISED

18 The child grew and one day went out to his father and the harvesters. †
19 Suddenly he complained to his father, "My head! My head! "
His father told his servant, "Carry him to his mother." 20 So he picked him up and took him to his mother. The child sat on her lap until noon and then died.
21 She went up and laid him on the bed of the man of God, shut him in, and left.
22 She summoned her husband and said, "Please send me one of the servants and one of the donkeys, so I can hurry to the man of God and come back again."
23 But he said, "Why go to him today? It's not a New Moon or a Sabbath." †
She replied, "Everything is all right." †
24 Then she saddled the donkey and said to her servant, "Go fast; don't slow the pace for me unless I tell you." 25 So she came to the man of God at Mount Carmel. †
When the man of God saw her at a distance, he said to his attendant Gehazi, †
"Look, there's the Shunammite woman. † 26 Run out to meet her and ask, 'Are you all right? Is your husband all right? Is your son all right? ' "
And she answered, "Everything's all right."

27 When she came up to the man of God at the mountain, she clung to his feet. † Gehazi came to push her away, but the man of God said, “Leave her alone — she is in severe anguish, † and the LORD has hidden it from me. He hasn’t told me.”
28 Then she said, “Did I ask my lord for a son? Didn’t I say, ‘Do not lie to me? ’ ” †
29 So Elisha said to Gehazi, “Tuck your mantle † under your belt, take my staff with you, and go. If you meet anyone, don’t stop to greet him, and if a man greets you, don’t answer him. † Then place my staff on the boy’s face.”
30 The boy’s mother said to Elisha, “As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.” † So he got up and followed her.
31 Gehazi went ahead of them and placed the staff on the boy’s face, but there was no sound or sign of life, so he went back to meet Elisha and told him, “The boy didn’t wake up.” †
32 When Elisha got to the house, he discovered the boy lying dead on his bed. †
33 So he went in, closed the door behind the two of them, and prayed to the LORD. † 34 Then he went up and lay on the boy: † he put mouth to mouth, eye to eye, hand to hand. While he bent down over him, the boy’s flesh became warm. † 35 Elisha got up, went into the house, and paced back and forth. Then he went up and bent down over him again. The boy sneezed seven times and opened his eyes. †
36 Elisha called Gehazi and said, “Call the Shunammite woman.” He called her and she came. Then Elisha said, “Pick up your son.” 37 She came, fell at his feet, and bowed to the ground; she picked up her son and left. †

THE DEADLY STEW

38 When Elisha returned to Gilgal, † there was a famine † in the land. The sons of the prophets † were sitting before him. † He said to his attendant, “Put on the large pot and make stew for the sons of the prophets.”
39 One went out to the field to gather herbs and found a wild vine from which he gathered as many wild gourds as his garment would hold. Then he came back and cut them up into the pot of stew, but they were unaware of what they were. †

40 They served some for the men to eat, but when they ate the stew they cried out, “There’s death in the pot, † man of God! ” And they were unable to eat it.
41 Then Elisha said, “Get some flour.” He threw it into the pot and said, “Serve it for the people to eat.” And there was nothing bad in the pot. †

THE MULTIPLIED BREAD

42 A man from Baal-shalishah † came to the man of God with his sack full of † twenty loaves of barley bread from the first bread of the harvest. Elisha said, “Give it to the people to eat.” †
43 But Elisha’s attendant asked, “What? Am I to set this before a hundred men? ” †
“Give it to the people to eat,” Elisha said, “for this is what the LORD says: ‘They will eat, and they will have some left over.’ ” 44 So he set it before them, and as the LORD had promised, they ate and had some left over. †

4:3-6 Elisha’s miracle concerning the widow’s jar of oil resembles Elijah’s miracle earlier concerning the Sidonian widow’s jar of flour and jug of oil (1Kg 17:8-16; see the note on 2:13-15). Both wonders demonstrated the power of God to supply those in need.

4:18-20 Elijah had raised the Sidonian widow’s son (1Kg 17:17-24), and now Elisha would perform a similar sign for a Shunammite woman who frequently hosted him (vv. 8-10). She had been childless, but Elisha promised her that she would bear a son (vv. 13-17,28).

4:27 Although secrets were sometimes revealed to prophets directly by God (e.g., 5:25-26; 6:8-12; 1Kg 14:2-6; Dn 2:19-23; Am 3:7), this evidently was not always the case, since it depended on God’s will.

4:32-35 Elisha’s initial attempt to raise the boy through having Gehazi hurry ahead and lay Elisha’s staff on him was ineffective (vv. 29-31). Elijah had stretched himself out over the Sidonian widow’s son in order to revive him (1Kg 17:21), and Elisha’s actions upon arrival were similar (vv. 34-35).

4:42-44 This miracle resembles on a smaller scale Jesus’s miracles of feeding of the 5,000 and 4,000 (see Mt 14:13-21; 15:32-39).

NAAMAN’S DISEASE HEALED

5 Naaman, † commander of the army for the king of Aram, was a man important to his master and highly regarded † because through him, the LORD had given victory to Aram. The man was a valiant warrior, but he had a skin disease. †

2 Aram had gone on raids † and brought back from the land of Israel a young girl who served Naaman's wife. 3 She said to her mistress, "If only my master were with the prophet who is in Samaria, he would cure him of his skin disease."
4 So Naaman went and told his master what the girl from the land of Israel had said. 5 Therefore, the king of Aram said, "Go, and I will send a letter with you to the king of Israel."

So he went and took with him 750 pounds † of silver, 150 pounds † of gold, and ten sets of clothing. † 6 He brought the letter to the king of Israel, and it read:

When this letter comes to you, note that I have sent you my servant Naaman for you to cure him of his skin disease.

7 When the king of Israel read the letter, he tore his clothes † and asked, "Am I God, † killing and giving life that this man expects me to cure a man of his skin disease? Recognize † that he is only picking a fight with me." †
8 When Elisha the man of God heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes, he sent a message to the king, "Why have you torn your clothes? Have him come to me, and he will know there is a prophet in Israel." † 9 So Naaman came with his horses and chariots and stood at the door of Elisha's house.

10 Then Elisha sent him a messenger, † who said, "Go wash † seven times † in the Jordan and your skin will be restored and you will be clean."
11 But Naaman got angry and left, saying, "I was telling myself: He will surely come out, stand and call on the name of the LORD his God, and wave his hand † over the place and cure the skin disease. 12 Aren't Abana and Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? † Couldn't I wash in them and be clean? " So he turned and left in a rage. †

13 But his servants approached and said to him, "My father, † if the prophet had told you to do some great thing, would you not have done it? How much more should you do it when he only tells you, 'Wash and be clean'? " 14 So Naaman went down and dipped himself in the Jordan seven times, according to the command of the man of God. Then his skin was restored and became like the skin of a small boy, and he was clean. †

15 Then Naaman and his whole company went back to the man of God, stood before him, and declared, “I know there’s no God in the whole world except in Israel. † Therefore, please accept a gift † from your servant.”

16 But Elisha said, “As the LORD lives, † in whose presence I stand, I will not accept it.” † Naaman urged him to accept it, but he refused.

17 Naaman responded, “If not, please let your servant be given as much soil as a pair of mules can carry, † for your servant will no longer offer a burnt offering or a sacrifice to any other god but the LORD. † 18 However, in a particular matter may the LORD pardon your servant: When my master, the king of Aram, goes into the temple of Rimmon to bow in worship while he is leaning on my arm, † † and I have to bow in the temple of Rimmon — when I bow † in the temple of Rimmon, may the LORD pardon your servant in this matter.”

19 So he said to him, “Go in peace.” †

GEHAZI’S GREED PUNISHED

After Naaman had traveled a short distance from Elisha, 20 Gehazi, † the attendant of Elisha the man of God, thought, “My master has let this Aramean Naaman off lightly by not accepting from him what he brought. As the LORD lives, † I will run after him and get something from him.”

21 So Gehazi pursued Naaman. When Naaman saw someone running after him, he got down from the chariot to meet him and asked, “Is everything all right? ”

22 Gehazi said, “It’s all right. † My master has sent me to say, ‘I have just now discovered that two young men from the sons of the prophets have come to me from the hill country of Ephraim. Please give them seventy-five pounds † of silver and two sets of clothing.’ ” †

23 But Naaman insisted, “Please, accept one hundred fifty pounds.” † He urged Gehazi and then packed one hundred fifty pounds of silver in two bags with two sets of clothing. Naaman gave them to two of his attendants who carried them ahead of Gehazi. 24 When Gehazi came to the hill, † † he took the gifts from them and deposited them in the house. Then he dismissed the men, and they left.

25 Gehazi came and stood by his master. “Where did you go, Gehazi?” Elisha asked him.
He replied, “Your servant didn’t go anywhere.”
26 “And my heart didn’t go † † when the man got down from his chariot to meet you,” Elisha said. “Is this a time to accept silver and clothing, olive orchards and vineyards, flocks and herds, and male and female slaves? 27 Therefore, Naaman’s skin disease will cling to you and your descendants forever.” So Gehazi went out from his presence diseased, resembling snow. † †

5:1 It was typical for peoples and kings in the ancient world to give credit for victories to their own deities. Here, however, the narrator states that the LORD had given victory to Aram. This emphasizes that Yahweh is the only God, and therefore he gives victory or defeat in every nation, whether that people worships him or not.

5:6-8 Both the king of Aram’s letter and the king of Israel’s response are humorous. The latter had no idea how to handle the situation and saw the former as a troublemaker. However, this situation would serve to demonstrate to the Gentile Naaman that there is a prophet in Israel (v. 8; see vv. 3,15).

5:13-14 Elisha’s message to Naaman to wash seven times in the Jordan (v. 10; see also 1Kg 18:43) required faith and was initially despised by the Aramean commander (vv. 11-12). After his servants’ appeal, he obeyed and was healed, just as the prophet had said (vv. 13-14).

5:15 Naaman’s confession of faith that there’s no God in the whole world except in Israel is remarkable. Even during a time of national apostasy in the northern kingdom, God had drawn this Gentile military leader to himself. He would henceforth worship Yahweh alone (v. 17). Jesus referred to both Naaman and the Sidonian widow as examples of Gentiles who were blessed by God even as Israelites rejected him (see Mt 4:24-27). Many other passages in the OT express the desire that all nations would come to know God (e.g., Ex 9:13-16; Jos 4:23-24; 1Sm 17:46; 1Kg 8:41-43; Ps 67:1-2).

5:18-19 Naaman’s request for mercy from God because he was required to accompany the king of Aram into the temple of Rimmon and to bow seems to have been granted by Elisha. The Aramean god Rimmon is only mentioned here in the OT.

5:25-27 Gehazi’s greed and deception were unacceptable (contrast Elisha’s response in v. 16), and he was found out and punished for it.

THE FLOATING AX HEAD

6 The sons of the prophets † said to Elisha, “Please notice that the place where we live under your supervision † is too small for us. 2 Please let us go to the Jordan where we can each get a log and can build ourselves a place to live there.”
“Go,” he said.
3 Then one said, “Please come with your servants.”
“I’ll come,” he answered.
4 So he went with them, and when they came to the Jordan, they cut down trees.
5 As one of them was cutting down a tree, the iron ax head fell into the water, and he cried out, “Oh, my master, it was borrowed! ” †
6 Then the man of God † asked, “Where did it fall? ”
When he showed him the place, the man of God cut a piece of wood, threw it there, and made the iron float. † 7 Then he said, “Pick it up.” So he reached out and took it.

THE ARAMEAN WAR

8 When the king of Aram † was waging war against Israel, he conferred with his servants, “My camp will be at such and such a place.”
9 But the man of God † sent word to the king of Israel: “Be careful passing by this place, for the Arameans are going down there.” 10 Consequently, the king of Israel sent word to the place the man of God had told him about. The man of God repeatedly † warned the king, so the king would be on his guard.
11 The king of Aram was enraged because of this matter, and he called his servants and demanded of them, “Tell me, which one of us is for the king of Israel? ”
12 One of his servants said, “No one, my lord the king. Elisha, the prophet in Israel, tells the king of Israel even the words you speak in your bedroom.”
13 So the king said, “Go and see where he is, so I can send men to capture him.”
When he was told, “Elisha is in Dothan,” † 14 he sent horses, chariots, and a massive army there. They went by night and surrounded the city.
15 When the servant of the man of God got up early and went out, he discovered an army with horses and chariots surrounding the city. So he asked Elisha, “Oh, my master, what are we to do? ”

16 Elisha said, “Don’t be afraid, † for those who are with us outnumber those who are with them.” †
17 Then Elisha prayed, “LORD, please open his eyes and let him see.” So the LORD opened the servant’s eyes, and he saw that the mountain was covered with horses and chariots of fire † all around Elisha.
18 When the Arameans came against him, Elisha prayed to the LORD, “Please strike this nation with blindness.” † So he struck them with blindness, † according to Elisha’s word. 19 Then Elisha said to them, “This is not the way, and this is not the city. Follow me, and I will take you to the man you’re looking for.” And he led them to Samaria. † 20 When they entered Samaria, Elisha said, “LORD, open these men’s eyes and let them see.” So the LORD opened their eyes, and they saw that they were in the middle of Samaria.
21 When the king of Israel saw them, he said to Elisha, “Should I kill them, † should I kill them, my father? ”
22 Elisha replied, “Don’t kill them. Do you kill those you have captured with your sword or your bow? Set food and water in front of them so they can eat and drink and go to their master.” †
23 So he prepared a big feast for them. When they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away, and they went to their master. The Aramean raiders † did not come into Israel’s land again.

THE SIEGE OF SAMARIA

24 Some time later, King Ben-hadad † of Aram brought all his military units together and marched up and laid siege to Samaria. 25 So there was a severe famine † in Samaria, and they continued the siege against it until a donkey’s head sold for thirty-four ounces † of silver, and a cup † of dove’s dung † sold for two ounces † of silver. †
26 As the king of Israel was passing by on the wall, a woman cried out to him, “My lord the king, help! ”
27 He answered, “If the LORD doesn’t help you, where can I get help for you? From the threshing floor or the winepress? ” † 28 Then the king asked her, “What’s the matter? ” †

She said, “This woman said to me, ‘Give up your son, and we will eat him today. Then we will eat my son tomorrow.’ 29 So we boiled my son and ate him, and I said to her the next day, ‘Give up your son, and we will eat him,’ † but she has hidden her son.”

30 When the king heard the woman’s words, he tore his clothes. † Then, as he was passing by on the wall, the people saw that there was sackcloth † under his clothes next to his skin. 31 He announced, “May God punish me and do so severely † if the head of Elisha son of Shaphat remains on his shoulders today.”

32 Elisha was sitting in his house, and the elders † were sitting with him. The king sent a man ahead of him, but before the messenger got to him, Elisha said to the elders, “Do you see how this murderer † has sent someone to remove my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door to keep him out. Isn’t the sound of his master’s feet behind him? ”

33 While Elisha was still speaking with them, the messenger † came down to him. Then he said, “This disaster is from the LORD. Why should I wait for the LORD any longer? ” †

6:8-12 Without anyone telling him, Elisha had known about Gehazi’s lie (5:20-27), and he likewise knew about the movements of the Aramean camp.

6:15-17 Having properly identified the problem, the king of Aram sent an army with horses and chariots to capture Elisha (v. 15). Despite this sizeable force, the prophet encouraged his servant not to fear because they were in fact well-protected by horses and chariots of fire (v. 17). A “chariot of fire with horses of fire” had also taken Elijah up to heaven in a whirlwind (2:11). In both passages, God’s superior spiritual forces encourage trust in him.

6:18 Elisha had prayed for God to open his servant’s eyes to the horses and chariots of fire (v. 17), and now he prayed for the Arameans to be struck with blindness. Later he would pray for their eyes to be opened again (see v. 20).

6:25 These highly overpriced items reflected the seriousness of the famine (see 7:1,16), as did the horror of cannibalism (see vv. 28-29).

6:31 Just as Elijah had been blamed for Israel’s troubles that actually arose from their own sins (see 1Kg 18:17-18), so was Elisha.

7 Elisha replied, “Hear the word of the LORD! This is what the LORD says:
‘About this time tomorrow at Samaria’s gate, six quarts † of fine flour will sell for a half ounce of silver † and twelve quarts † of barley will sell for a half ounce of silver.’ ” † 2 Then the captain, the king’s right-hand man, † † responded to the man of God, † “Look, even if the LORD were to make windows in heaven, could this really happen? ” † Elisha announced, “You will in fact see it with your own eyes, but you won’t eat any of it.” †
3 Now four men with a skin disease † were at the entrance to the city gate. They said to each other, “Why just sit here until we die? 4 If we say, ‘Let’s go into the city,’ we will die there because the famine is in the city, but if we sit here, we will also die. So now, come on. Let’s surrender to the Arameans’ camp. † If they let us live, we will live; if they kill us, we will die.”
5 So the diseased men got up at twilight to go to the Arameans’ camp. When they came to the camp’s edge, they discovered that no one was there, 6 for the Lord † had caused the Aramean camp to hear the sound of chariots, horses, and a large army. † The Arameans had said to each other, “The king of Israel must have hired the kings of the Hittites † and the kings of Egypt † to attack us.”
7 So they had gotten up and fled † at twilight, abandoning their tents, horses, and donkeys. The camp was intact, and they had fled for their lives.
8 When these diseased men came to the edge of the camp, they went into a tent to eat and drink. Then they picked up the silver, gold, and clothing and went off and hid them. They came back and entered another tent, picked things up, and hid them. † 9 Then they said to each other, “We’re not doing what is right.
Today is a day of good news. † If we are silent and wait until morning light, our punishment will catch up with us. So let’s go tell the king’s household.”
10 The diseased men came and called to the city’s gatekeepers and told them,
“We went to the Aramean camp and no one was there — no human sounds.
There was nothing but tethered horses and donkeys, and the tents were intact.”
11 The gatekeepers called out, and the news was reported to the king’s household.

12 So the king got up in the night and said to his servants, “Let me tell you what the Arameans have done to us. They know we are starving, † so they have left the camp to hide in the open country, thinking, ‘When they come out of the city, we will take them alive and go into the city.’ ” † 13 But one of his servants responded, “Please, let messengers take five of the horses that are left in the city. Their fate is like the entire Israelite community who will die, † so let’s send them and see.” 14 The messengers took two chariots with horses, and the king sent them after the Aramean army, saying, “Go and see.” 15 So they followed them as far as the Jordan. They saw that the whole way was littered with clothes and equipment the Arameans had thrown off in their haste. The messengers returned and told the king.
16 Then the people went out and plundered the Aramean camp. † It was then that six quarts of fine flour sold for a half ounce of silver and twelve quarts of barley sold for a half ounce of silver, according to the word of the LORD. † 17 The king had appointed the captain, his right-hand man, † to be in charge of the city gate, but the people trampled him in the gate. He died, just as the man of God had predicted when the king had come to him. 18 When the man of God had said to the king, “About this time tomorrow twelve quarts of barley will sell for a half ounce of silver and six quarts of fine flour will sell for a half ounce of silver at Samaria’s gate,” 19 this captain had answered the man of God, “Look, even if the LORD were to make windows in heaven, could this really happen? ” Elisha had said, “You will in fact see it with your own eyes, but you won’t eat any of it.” † 20 This is what happened to him: the people trampled him in the city gate, and he died.

7:1-2 Despite the siege against Samaria and the resultant serious famine, Elisha boldly declared that there would be plenty of food tomorrow, as indicated by the predicted prices of grain (see the note on 6:25). The captain would pay for his unbelief with his own life (see vv. 17-20).

7:3 Once again, those having a skin disease play a major part in the narrative (see 5:1). These four men discovered that the Arameans had fled and had left everything behind (vv. 5-7).

7:16-19 Confirmed knowledge of the end of the siege led to the Israelites plundering the Aramean camp and the fulfillment of Elisha's prophecy spoken the day before (see the note on vv. 1-2). The repetition of the prophecy along with the captain's response emphasizes the serious consequences of failing to believe the prophetic word.

THE SHUNAMMITE'S LAND RESTORED

8 Elisha said to the woman whose son he had restored to life, † "Get ready, you and your household, and go live as a resident alien wherever you can. For the LORD has announced a seven-year famine, † and it has already come to the land."

2 So the woman got ready and did what the man of God said. She and her household lived as resident aliens in the land of the Philistines for seven years.

3 When the woman returned from the land of the Philistines at the end of seven years, † she went to appeal to the king for her house and field. †

4 The king had been speaking to Gehazi, † the attendant of the man of God, saying, "Tell me all the great things Elisha has done."

5 While he was telling the king how Elisha restored the dead son to life, the woman whose son he had restored to life came to appeal to the king for her house and field. So Gehazi said, "My lord the king, this is the woman and this is the son Elisha restored to life." †

6 When the king asked the woman, she told him the story. So the king appointed a court official for her, saying, "Restore all that was hers, along with all the income from the field from the day she left the country until now."

ARAM'S KING HAZAEL

7 Elisha came to Damascus † while King Ben-hadad † of Aram was sick, and the king was told, "The man of God † has come here." 8 So the king said to Hazael, † "Take a gift † with you and go meet the man of God. Inquire of the LORD through him, 'Will I recover from this sickness?' " †

9 Hazael went to meet Elisha, taking with him a gift: forty camel-loads of all the finest products of Damascus. When he came and stood before him, he said, "Your son, † King Ben-hadad of Aram, has sent me to ask you, 'Will I recover from this sickness?' "

10 Elisha told him, “Go say to him, ‘You are sure to † recover.’ But the LORD has shown me that he is sure to die.” 11 Then he stared steadily at him until he was ashamed. †

The man of God wept, † 12 and Hazael asked, “Why is my lord weeping? ”
He replied, “Because I know the evil you will do to the people of Israel. You will set their fortresses on fire. You will kill their young men with the sword. You will dash their children to pieces. You will rip open their pregnant women.” †

13 Hazael said, “How could your servant, a mere dog, † do such a mighty deed? ”

Elisha answered, “The LORD has shown me that you will be king over Aram.” †
14 Hazael left Elisha and went to his master, who asked him, “What did Elisha say to you? ”
He responded, “He told me you are sure to recover.” 15 The next day Hazael took a heavy cloth, dipped it in water, and spread it over the king’s face. Ben-hadad died, and Hazael reigned in his place.

JUDAH’S KING JEHORAM

16 In the fifth year † of Israel’s King Joram † son of Ahab, Jehoram † † son of Jehoshaphat became king of Judah, replacing his father. † † 17 He was thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. †
18 He walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, for Ahab’s daughter was his wife. He did what was evil in the LORD’s sight. †
19 For the sake of his servant David, the LORD was unwilling to destroy Judah, since he had promised to give a lamp † to David and his sons forever. †
20 During Jehoram’s reign, Edom rebelled against Judah’s control and appointed their own king. † 21 So Jehoram crossed over to Zair with all his chariots. Then at night he set out to attack the Edomites who had surrounded him and the chariot commanders, but his troops fled to their tents. † 22 So Edom is still in rebellion against Judah’s control today. Libnah † also rebelled at that time.
23 The rest of the events of Jehoram’s reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah’s Kings. † 24 Jehoram rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Ahaziah became king in his place. †

JUDAH'S KING AHAZIAH

25 In the twelfth year of Israel's King Joram son of Ahab, † Ahaziah son of Jehoram became king of Judah. † 26 Ahaziah was twenty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, granddaughter of Israel's King Omri. † 27 He walked in the ways of the house of Ahab and did what was evil in the LORD's sight like the house of Ahab, † for his father had married into † the house of Ahab.

28 Ahaziah went with Joram son of Ahab to fight against King Hazael † of Aram in Ramoth-gilead, † and the Arameans wounded Joram. 29 So King Joram returned to Jezreel † to recover from the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him in Ramoth-gilead † when he fought against Aram's King Hazael. † Then Judah's King Ahaziah son of Jehoram went down to Jezreel to visit Joram son of Ahab since Joram was ill.

8:3-7 The Lord graciously and providentially arranged for the timing of the woman's appeal to coincide with Gehazi's conversation with the king about the feats of Elisha so that her property was restored.

8:10 See the footnote for an alternate way to understand this difficult verse.

8:12-13 The Lord had said earlier that Hazael would execute judgment on Israel (see 1Kg 19:15-17), and Elisha wept because he knew the horrors that Hazael would bring upon his people (see 10:32-33; 12:17-18; 13:3,22).

8:16-19 Jehoshaphat had fought alongside of Ahab and Joram (3:7; 1Kg 22:2-4), and the relationship between Israel and Judah became even closer through his son Jehoram's marriage to Ahab's daughter (see also v. 26). The negative result was that Jehoram king of Judah walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done (v. 18). Nevertheless, God's faithfulness to His covenant with David made him unwilling to destroy Judah (v. 19; see notes on 1Kg 11:29-39 and 15:3-5).

8:25-27 The negative impact of Jehoram's marriage to Ahab's daughter Athaliah (i.e., Omri's granddaughter, see 1Kg 16:28) continued through his son Ahaziah, who succeeded him (see also 11:1-3). He too walked in the way of the house of Ahab (v. 27). Analogous to what Deuteronomy 7:1-5 warns against, his close relationship to Ahab's family influenced him to worship idols.

JEHU ANOINTED AS ISRAEL'S KING

9 The prophet Elisha called one of the sons of the prophets † and said, "Tuck your mantle † under your belt, take this flask of oil † with you, and go to Ramoth-gilead. † 2 When you get there, look for Jehu † son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi. Go in, get him away from his colleagues, and take him to an inner room. 3 Then take the flask of oil, pour it on his head, and say, 'This is what the LORD says: "I anoint you king over Israel." ' † Open the door and escape. Don't wait." 4 So the young prophet † went to Ramoth-gilead.
5 When he arrived, the army commanders were sitting there, so he said, "I have a message for you, commander."
Jehu asked, "For which one of us? "
He answered, "For you, commander."
6 So Jehu got up and went into the house. The young prophet poured the oil on his head and said, "This is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'I anoint you king over the LORD's people, Israel. 7 You are to strike down the house of your master Ahab so that I may avenge the blood shed by the hand of Jezebel — the blood of my servants the prophets and of all the servants of the LORD. † 8 The whole house of Ahab will perish, and I will wipe out all of Ahab's males, † both slave and free, † in Israel. † 9 I will make the house of Ahab like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat and like the house of Baasha son of Ahijah. † 10 The dogs will eat Jezebel in the plot of land at Jezreel — no one will bury her.' " †
Then the young prophet opened the door and escaped.
11 When Jehu came out to his master's servants, they asked, "Is everything all right? Why did this crazy person † come to you? "
Then he said to them, "You know the sort and their ranting."
12 But they replied, "That's a lie! Tell us! "
So Jehu said, "He talked to me about this and that and said, 'This is what the LORD says: I anoint you king over Israel.' "

13 Each man quickly took his garment and put it under Jehu on the bare steps. † † They blew the ram's horn † and proclaimed, "Jehu is king! " †

14 Then Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi, conspired against Joram. †
Joram and all Israel had been at Ramoth-gilead on guard against King Hazael of Aram. 15 But King Joram had returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him when he fought against Aram's King Hazael. Jehu said, "If you commanders wish to make me king, † then don't let anyone escape from the city to go tell about it in Jezreel."

JEHU KILLS JORAM AND AHAZIAH

16 Jehu got into his chariot and went to Jezreel since Joram was laid up there and King Ahaziah of Judah had gone down to visit Joram. 17 Now the watchman † was standing on the tower in Jezreel. He saw Jehu's mob approaching and shouted, "I see a mob! "
Joram responded, "Choose a rider and send him to meet them and have him ask, 'Do you come in peace? ' " †

18 So a horseman went to meet Jehu and said, "This is what the king asks: 'Do you come in peace? ' "

Jehu replied, "What do you have to do with peace? † Fall in behind me."
The watchman reported, "The messenger reached them but hasn't started back."

19 So he sent out a second horseman, who went to them and said, "This is what the king asks: 'Do you come in peace? ' "
Jehu answered, "What do you have to do with peace? Fall in behind me."

20 Again the watchman reported, "He reached them but hasn't started back. Also, the driving is like that of Jehu son of Nimshi † — he drives like a madman."

21 "Get the chariot ready! " Joram shouted, and they got it ready. Then King Joram of Israel and King Ahaziah of Judah set out, each in his own chariot, and met Jehu at the plot of land of Naboth the Jezreelite. † 22 When Joram saw Jehu he asked, "Do you come in peace, Jehu? "
He answered, "What peace can there be as long as there is so much prostitution and sorcery from your mother Jezebel? " †

23 Joram turned around and fled, shouting to Ahaziah, "It's treachery, † Ahaziah! "

24 Then Jehu drew his bow and shot Joram between the shoulders. The arrow went through his heart, and he slumped down in his chariot. † 25 Jehu said to Bidkar his aide, “Pick him up and throw him on the plot of ground belonging to Naboth the Jezreelite. † For remember when you and I were riding side by side behind his father Ahab, and the LORD uttered this pronouncement against him:
26 ‘As surely as I saw the blood of Naboth and the blood of his sons yesterday’
— this is the LORD’s declaration — ‘so will I repay you on this plot of land’ — this is the LORD’s declaration. So now, according to the word of the LORD, pick him up and throw him on the plot of land.” † 27 When King Ahaziah of Judah saw what was happening, he fled up the road toward Beth-haggan. Jehu pursued him, shouting, “Shoot him too! ” So they shot him in his chariot † at Gur Pass near Ibleam, † but he fled to Megiddo † and died there. † 28 Then his servants carried him to Jerusalem in a chariot and buried him in his fathers’ tomb in the city of David. † 29 It was in the eleventh year of Joram son of Ahab that Ahaziah had become king over Judah. †

JEHU KILLS JEZEBEL

30 When Jehu came to Jezreel, Jezebel heard about it, so she painted her eyes, † fixed her hair, † and looked down from the window. 31 As Jehu entered the city gate, she said, “Do you come in peace, Zimri, † killer of your master? ” 32 He looked up toward the window and said, “Who is on my side? Who? ” Two or three eunuchs † looked down at him, 33 and he said, “Throw her down! ” So they threw her down, and some of her blood splattered on the wall and on the horses, and Jehu rode over her. † 34 Then he went in, ate and drank, and said, “Take care of this cursed † woman and bury her, since she’s a king’s daughter.” † 35 But when they went out to bury her, they did not find anything but the skull, the feet, and the hands. 36 So they went back and told him, and he said, “This fulfills the LORD’s word that he spoke through his servant Elijah the Tishbite: ‘In the plot of land at Jezreel, the dogs will eat Jezebel’s flesh. † 37 Jezebel’s corpse will be like manure † on the surface of the ground in the plot of land at Jezreel so that no one will be able to say: This is Jezebel.’ ”

9:1-10 In connection with Hazael (see the note on 8:12-13), God had said earlier that he would also judge Israel through Jehu (see 1Kg 19:15-17). As king of Israel, he was to carry out God's judgment against the house of Ahab (vv. 6-10) that had been declared earlier (see the note on 1Kg 21:19-24). Elijah had lamented Jezebel's killing of God's prophets, and the time had come for God to avenge their blood (see 1Kg 18:4,13; 19:10,14).

9:16 Joram had been injured in battle while fighting against Hazael (8:28). Ahaziah's allegiance to Joram would lead to his own demise (see v. 27).

9:21-25 Jehu's confrontation with Joram and Ahaziah took place at the plot of land of Naboth the Jezreelite (v. 21), the very site that Ahab had wrongly seized and where judgment against his house had been pronounced by Elijah (see 1Kg 21:1-24). Joram's body was fittingly thrown there (vv. 25-26). Ahaziah was killed also (vv. 27-29), and Jezebel's body was eaten by dogs in fulfillment of the word of God (vv. 30-37).

JEHU KILLS THE HOUSE OF AHAB

10 Since Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria, † Jehu wrote letters and sent them to Samaria to the rulers of Jezreel, † to the elders, and to the guardians of Ahab's sons, † saying:

2 Your master's sons are with you, and you have chariots, horses, a fortified city, and weaponry, so when this letter † arrives 3 select the most qualified † of your master's sons, set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house.

4 However, they were terrified and reasoned, "Look, two kings † couldn't stand against him; how can we? "

5 So the overseer of the palace, the overseer of the city, the elders, and the guardians sent a message to Jehu: "We are your servants, and we will do whatever you tell us. We will not make anyone king. Do whatever you think is right." † †

6 Then Jehu wrote them a second letter, saying:

If you are on my side, and if you will obey me, bring me the heads of your master's sons † at this time tomorrow at Jezreel.
All seventy of the king's sons were being cared for by the city's prominent men.
7 When the letter came to them, they took the king's sons and slaughtered all seventy, put their heads in baskets, and sent them to Jehu at Jezreel. 8 When the messenger came and told him, "They have brought the heads of the king's sons," the king said, "Pile them in two heaps at the entrance of the city gate until morning."
9 The next morning when he went out and stood at the gate, he said to all the people, "You are innocent. It was I who conspired against my master and killed him. † But who struck down all these? 10 Know, then, that not a word the LORD spoke against the house of Ahab will fail, † for the LORD has done what he promised through his servant Elijah." † 11 So Jehu killed all who remained of the house of Ahab in Jezreel — all his great men, close friends, and priests — leaving him no survivors.
12 Then he set out and went to Samaria. On the way, while he was at Beth-eked of the Shepherds, 13 Jehu met the relatives of King Ahaziah of Judah and asked, "Who are you? "
They answered, "We're Ahaziah's † relatives. We've come down to greet the king's sons and the queen mother's † sons."
14 Then Jehu ordered, "Take them alive." So they took them alive and then slaughtered them at the pit of Beth-eked — forty-two men. He didn't spare any of them. †
15 When he left there, he found Jehonadab son of Rechab † coming to meet him. He greeted him and then asked, "Is your heart one with mine? " †
"It is," Jehonadab replied.
Jehu said, "If it is, † give me your hand." †
So he gave him his hand, and Jehu pulled him up into the chariot with him.
16 Then he said, "Come with me and see my zeal † for the LORD! " So he let him ride with him in his chariot. 17 When Jehu came to Samaria, he struck down all who remained from the house of Ahab in Samaria until he had annihilated his house, according to the word of the LORD spoken to Elijah. †

JEHU KILLS THE BAAL WORSHIPERS

Jehu Kills the Baal Worshipers

18 Then Jehu brought all the people together and said to them, “Ahab served Baal † a little, but Jehu will serve him a lot. 19 Now, therefore, summon to me all the prophets of Baal, all his servants, and all his priests. † None must be missing, for I have a great sacrifice for Baal. Whoever is missing will not live.”
However, Jehu was acting deceptively in order to destroy the servants of Baal.
20 Jehu commanded, “Consecrate a solemn assembly † for Baal.” So they called one.
21 Then Jehu sent messengers throughout all Israel, and all the servants of Baal † came; no one failed to come. † They entered the temple of Baal, † and it was filled from one end to the other. 22 Then he said to the custodian of the wardrobe, “Bring out the garments for all the servants of Baal.” So he brought out their garments.
23 Then Jehu and Jehonadab son of Rechab entered the temple of Baal, and Jehu said to the servants of Baal, “Look carefully to see that there are no servants of the LORD here among you — only servants of Baal.” 24 Then they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings.
Now Jehu had stationed eighty men outside, and he warned them, “Whoever allows any of the men I am placing in your hands to escape will forfeit his life for theirs.” † 25 When he finished offering the burnt offering, Jehu said to the guards and officers, “Go in and kill them. Don’t let anyone out.” † So they struck them down with the sword. Then the guards and officers threw the bodies out and went into the inner room of the temple of Baal. 26 They brought out the pillar of the temple of Baal and burned it, 27 and they tore down the pillar † of Baal. Then they tore down the temple of Baal and made it a latrine † — which it still is today.

EVALUATION OF JEHU’S REIGN

28 Jehu eliminated Baal worship from Israel, 29 but he did not turn away from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit — worshiping the gold calves that were in Bethel and Dan. † 30 Nevertheless, the LORD said to Jehu, “Because you have done well in carrying out what is right in my sight and have done to the house of Ahab all that was in my heart, four generations of your sons will sit on the throne of Israel.” †

31 Yet Jehu was not careful to follow the instruction of the LORD God of Israel with all his heart. He did not turn from the sins that Jeroboam had caused Israel to commit.

32 In those days the LORD began to reduce the size of Israel. † Hazael † defeated the Israelites throughout their territory 33 from the Jordan eastward: the whole land of Gilead — the Gadites, the Reubenites, and the Manassites — from Aroer † which is by the Arnon Valley † through Gilead to Bashan. †

34 The rest of the events of Jehu's reign, along with all his accomplishments and all his might, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 35 Jehu rested with his fathers and was buried in Samaria. His son Jehoahaz † became king in his place. 36 The length of Jehu's reign over Israel in Samaria was twenty-eight years. †

10:4 The two kings were Joram and Ahaziah whom Jehu had just killed (see 9:24-27). These leaders were terrified and chose not to fight Jehu but to do as he pleased (vv. 2-3,5).

10:6-11 Jehu had been charged to strike down the house of Ahab, including all of Ahab's males (9:7-8). He carried this forward by having Ahab's seventy sons killed (see 1Kg 21:21).

10:13-14 Ahaziah was related to the house of Ahab through his mother Athaliah, as these relatives may have been as well (see 9:6-10).

10:25-28 Through a ruse, Jehu gathered the servants of Baal into the temple of this god (vv. 18-24). He had them all slaughtered and turned the temple into a latrine. He eliminated Baal worship from Israel.

10:29-30 Despite eliminating Baal worship in Israel, Jehu continued in the sins of Jeroboam. For the good that he did in destroying the house of Ahab, God rewarded him with four more generations of rule for his descendants (see 15:12).

10:32-33 The Lord punished Israel through Hazael, as he had predicted (see the note on 8:12-13).

ATHALIAH USURPS THE THRONE

11 When Athaliah, † Ahaziah's mother, † saw that her son was dead, † she proceeded to annihilate all the royal heirs. 2 Jehosheba, † who was King Jehoram's daughter and Ahaziah's † sister, secretly rescued Joash son of Ahaziah from among the king's sons who were being killed and put him and the one who nursed him in a bedroom. So he was hidden from Athaliah and was not killed. 3 Joash was in hiding with her in the LORD's temple six years while Athaliah reigned over the land.

ATHALIAH OVERTHROWN

4 In † the seventh year, Jehoiada † sent for the commanders of hundreds, the Carites, and the guards. † He had them come to him in the LORD's temple, where he made a covenant with them and put them under oath. He showed them the king's son 5 and commanded them, "This is what you are to do: A third of you who come on duty on the Sabbath † are to provide protection for the king's palace. 6 A third are to be at the Foundation † Gate and a third at the gate behind the guards. You are to take turns providing protection for the palace. † † 7 "Your two divisions that go off duty on the Sabbath are to provide the king protection at the LORD's temple. 8 Completely surround the king with weapons in hand. Anyone who approaches the ranks is to be put to death. Be with the king in all his daily tasks." † † 9 So the commanders of hundreds did everything the priest Jehoiada commanded. They each brought their men — those coming on duty on the Sabbath and those going off duty — and came to the priest Jehoiada. † 10 The priest gave to the commanders of hundreds King David's spears and shields † that were in the LORD's temple. 11 Then the guards stood with their weapons in hand surrounding the king — from the right side of the temple to the left side, by the altar and by the temple.
12 Jehoiada brought out the king's son, put the crown † on him, gave him the testimony, † † and made him king. They anointed † him and clapped their hands and cried, "Long live the king! " † 13 When Athaliah † heard the noise from the guard and the crowd, she went out to the people at the LORD's temple. † 14 She looked, and there was the king standing by the pillar † according to the custom. The commanders and the trumpeters were by the king, and all the people of the land were rejoicing and blowing trumpets. † Athaliah tore her clothes and screamed "Treason! Treason! " †

15 Then the priest Jehoiada † ordered the commanders of hundreds † in charge of the army, "Take her out between the ranks, and put to death by the sword anyone who follows her," for the priest had said, "She is not to be put to death in the LORD's temple." † 16 So they arrested her, and she went through the horse entrance † to the king's palace, where she was put to death. †

JEHOIADA'S REFORMS

17 Then † Jehoiada made a covenant between the LORD, the king, and the people that they would be the LORD's people † and another covenant between the king and the people. † † 18 So all the people of the land went to the temple of Baal and tore it down. They smashed its altars and images to pieces, † and they killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, at the altars. †

Then Jehoiada the priest appointed guards for the LORD's temple. † 19 He took the commanders of hundreds, the Carites, the guards, † and all the people of the land, and they brought the king from the LORD's temple. They entered the king's palace by way of the guards' gate. Then Joash † sat on the throne of the kings. 20 All the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet, for they had put Athaliah to death by the sword in the king's palace.

11:1-3 The ruling family of Judah was not yet rid of the evil influence of the house of Ahab (see the note on 8:25-27). Athaliah was a daughter of Ahab who had married Jehoram king of Judah (8:18,26), and she killed all the royal heirs except for one. If not for Jehosheba's brave rescue of Joash, the line of David would have been cut off. The Lord's promise to David of an everlasting kingdom was thus upheld through this woman (see the note on 2Sm 7:8-16).

11:12-16 Jehoiada the priest led the plan to install the boy Joash as king (vv. 3-11). Contrary to her claims of treason against her (v. 14), Athaliah was guilty and was put to death.

11:17-18 The godly priest led Judah to make a covenant to be the LORD's people. Jehu had destroyed the temple of Baal in Israel (10:26-28), but Baal worship had evidently entered Judah—probably during the reign of Jehoram who had married Athaliah (see 8:18).

12 In the seventh year of Jehu, Joash became king, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah; she was from Beersheba. † 2 Throughout the time the priest Jehoiada † instructed † him, Joash did what was right in the LORD's sight. † 3 Yet the high places were not taken away; the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places. †

REPAIRING THE TEMPLE

4 Then † Joash said to the priests, "All the dedicated silver brought to the LORD's temple, † census silver, † silver from vows, † and all silver voluntarily given † for the LORD's temple — 5 each priest is to take it from his assessor † and repair whatever damage is found in the temple." † † 6 But by the twenty-third year † of the reign of King Joash, the priests had not repaired the damage † to the temple. † 7 So King Joash called the priest Jehoiada † and the other priests and asked, "Why haven't you repaired the temple's damage? Since you haven't, don't take any silver from your assessors; instead, hand it over for the repair of the temple." 8 So the priests agreed that they would receive no silver from the people and would not be the ones to repair the temple's damage.
9 Then the priest Jehoiada took a chest, † bored a hole in its lid, and set it beside the altar on the right side as one enters the LORD's temple; the priests who guarded the threshold put into the chest all the silver that was brought to the LORD's temple. † 10 Whenever they saw there was a large amount of silver in the chest, the king's secretary † and the high priest would go bag up and tally the silver found in the LORD's temple. † 11 Then they would give the weighed silver to those doing the work — those who oversaw the LORD's temple. They in turn would pay it out to those working on the LORD's temple — the carpenters, the builders, 12 the masons, and the stonecutters — and would use it to buy timber and quarried stone to repair the damage to the LORD's temple † and for all expenses for temple repairs.

13 However, no silver bowls, wick trimmers, sprinkling basins, trumpets, or any articles of gold or silver † were made for the LORD's temple from the contributions † brought to the LORD's temple. 14 Instead, it was given to those doing the work, and they repaired the LORD's temple with it. 15 No accounting was required from the men who received the silver to pay those doing the work, since they worked with integrity. † 16 The silver from the guilt offering and the sin offering was not brought to the LORD's temple since it belonged to the priests. †

ARAMEAN INVASION OF JUDAH

17 At that time King Hazael † of Aram marched up and fought against Gath and captured it. Then he planned to attack Jerusalem. † 18 So King Joash of Judah took all the items consecrated by himself and by his ancestors — Judah's kings Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, and Ahaziah — as well as all the gold found in the treasuries of the LORD's temple and in the king's palace, and he sent them to King Hazael of Aram. † Then Hazael withdrew from Jerusalem.

JOASH ASSASSINATED

19 The rest of the events of Joash's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 20 Joash's servants conspired against him and attacked him † at Beth-millo † on the road that goes down to Silla. 21 It was his servants Jozabad † son of Shimeath and Jehozabad son of Shomer who attacked him. He died † and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Amaziah became king in his place. †

12:2-3 Under the influence of Jehoiada's wise teaching, Joash walked uprightly with God for much of his life (though see 2Ch 24:15-22). The high places continued to be a problem however (see the note on 1Kg 3:2).

12:4-8 Joash confronted the priests for collecting money for the repair of the temple but not proceeding with the work.

12:17-18 King Hazael of Aram not only invaded Israel (see the note on 10:32-33) but also Judah.

ISRAEL'S KING JEHOAHAZ

13 In the twenty-third year of Judah's King Joash † son of Ahaziah, Jehoahaz † son of Jehu became king over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned seventeen years. 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight and followed the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit; he did not turn away from them. † 3 So the LORD's anger burned against Israel, † and he handed them over to King Hazael † of Aram and to his son Ben-hadad † during their reigns.
4 Then Jehoahaz sought the LORD's favor, and the LORD heard him, for he saw the oppression the king of Aram inflicted on Israel. † 5 Therefore, the LORD gave Israel a deliverer, † and they escaped from the power of the Arameans.
Then the people of Israel returned to their former way of life, † 6 but they didn't turn away from the sins that the house of Jeroboam had caused Israel to commit.
Jehoahaz continued them, † and the Asherah pole also remained standing in Samaria. 7 Jehoahaz did not have an army left, except for fifty horsemen, ten chariots, and ten thousand foot soldiers, because the king of Aram had destroyed them, † making them like dust at threshing. † 8 The rest of the events of Jehoahaz's reign, along with all his accomplishments and his might, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 9 Jehoahaz rested with his fathers, and he was buried in Samaria. His son Jehoash † became king in his place.

ISRAEL'S KING JEHOASH

10 In the thirty-seventh year of Judah's King Joash, Jehoash son of Jehoahaz became king over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned sixteen years. 11 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He did not turn away from all the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit, but he continued them. †
12 The rest of the events of Jehoash's reign, along with all his accomplishments and the power he had to wage war against Judah's King Amaziah, † are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. 13 Jehoash rested with his fathers, and Jeroboam † sat on his throne. Jehoash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

ELISHA'S DEATH

14 When Elisha became sick with the illness from which he died, King Jehoash of Israel went down and wept over him and said, "My father, my father, the chariots and horsemen of Israel! " †
15 Elisha responded, "Get a bow and arrows." So he got a bow and arrows. †
16 Then Elisha said to the king of Israel, "Grasp the bow." So the king grasped it, and Elisha put his hands on the king's hands. 17 Elisha said, "Open the east window." So he opened it. Elisha said, "Shoot! " So he shot. † Then Elisha said, "The LORD's arrow of victory, yes, the arrow of victory over Aram. You are to strike down the Arameans in Aphek † until you have put an end to them."
18 Then Elisha said, "Take the arrows! " So he took them. Then Elisha said to the king of Israel, "Strike the ground! " So he struck the ground three times and stopped. 19 The man of God † was angry with him and said, "You should have struck the ground five or six times. Then you would have struck down Aram until you had put an end to them, but now you will strike down Aram only three times." 20 Then Elisha died and was buried. †
Now Moabite raiders † used to come into the land in the spring of the year. 21 Once, as the Israelites were burying a man, suddenly they saw a raiding party, so they threw the man into Elisha's tomb. When he touched Elisha's bones, the man revived and stood up! †

GOD'S MERCY ON ISRAEL

22 King Hazael † of Aram oppressed Israel throughout the reign of Jehoahaz, 23 but the LORD was gracious to them, had compassion on them, † and turned toward them because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. † He was not willing to destroy them. Even now he has not banished them from his presence. †
24 King Hazael of Aram died, and his son Ben-hadad † became king in his place. 25 Then Jehoash son of Jehoahaz took back from Ben-hadad son of Hazael the cities that Hazael had taken in war from Jehoash's father Jehoahaz.
Jehoash defeated Ben-hadad three times and recovered the cities of Israel. †

13:1-2 In accordance with God's promise (see 10:30), Jehu's son Jehoahaz succeeded him as king. Like his predecessors, he continued in the sins of Jeroboam.

13:3-5 The Lord continued to afflict Israel for its sins through Hazael king of Aram (see also vv. 7,23; note on 10:32-33). When Jehoahaz sought God, he saw the oppression and mercifully gave Israel a deliverer. Sadly, Israel still did not turn from sin (v. 6).

13:14 Jehoash's reaction to Elisha's illness (My father, my father, the chariots and horsemen of Israel) is the same as Elisha's reaction to Elijah's departure in a whirlwind (see the note on 2:11-12) and indicates the king's great respect for the prophet (see also 6:21).

13:18-19 Just as Elisha had instructed a widow to collect as many empty containers as possible in which to pour oil (see 4:1-6), the prophet wanted the king to shoot many arrows into the ground. His limited obedience limited the victories he would gain over Aram to three (see v. 25). Just as the oil kept flowing until there were no containers left, the king would have gained complete victory over Aram if he had shot five or six times.

13:22-23 The Lord had been gracious to Judah because of his covenant with David (see the notes on 8:16-19; 1Kg 11:29-39; and 15:3-5); likewise, he was gracious to Israel because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (see also the note on 14:25-27).

13:25 As Elisha had said, Jehoash defeated Aram three times (see vv. 18-19).

JUDAH'S KING AMAZIAH

14 In † the second year of Israel's King Jehoash † † son of Jehoahaz, † Amaziah † son of Joash became king of Judah. 2 He was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem.

His mother's name was Jehoaddan; † she was from Jerusalem. 3 He did what was right in the LORD's sight, but not like his ancestor David. He did everything his father Joash had done. † 4 Yet the high places were not taken away, and the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places. †
5 As soon as the kingdom was firmly in his grasp, Amaziah killed his servants who had killed his father the king. † 6 However, he did not put the children of the killers to death, as it is written in the book of the law of Moses where the LORD commanded, "Fathers are not to be put to death because of children, and children are not to be put to death because of fathers; instead, each one will be put to death for his own sin." †
7 Amaziah killed ten thousand Edomites in Salt Valley. † He took Sela † in battle and called it Joktheel, † which is still its name today. 8 Amaziah then sent messengers to Jehoash son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, and challenged him: "Come, let's meet face to face." †
9 King Jehoash of Israel sent word to King Amaziah of Judah, saying, "The thistle in Lebanon once sent a message to the cedar † in Lebanon, † saying, 'Give your daughter to my son as a wife.' Then a wild animal in Lebanon passed by and trampled the thistle. 10 You have indeed defeated Edom, and you have become overconfident. † † Enjoy your glory and stay at home. Why should you stir up such trouble that you fall — you and Judah with you? "
11 But Amaziah would not listen, so King Jehoash of Israel advanced. He and King Amaziah of Judah met face to face at Beth-shemesh † that belonged to Judah. 12 Judah was routed before Israel, and each man fled to his own tent. †
13 King Jehoash of Israel captured Judah's King Amaziah son of Joash, † son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh. Then Jehoash went to Jerusalem and broke down two hundred yards † of Jerusalem's wall from the Ephraim Gate † to the Corner Gate. † 14 He took all the gold and silver, all the articles found in the LORD's temple and in the treasuries of the king's palace, and some hostages. † Then he returned to Samaria.

JEHOASH'S DEATH

15 The rest of the events of Jehoash's reign, along with his accomplishments, his might, and how he waged war against King Amaziah of Judah, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 16 Jehoash rested with his fathers, and he was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel. His son Jeroboam became king in his place.

AMAZIAH'S DEATH

17 Judah's King Amaziah son of Joash lived fifteen years after the death of Israel's King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz. † 18 The rest of the events of Amaziah's reign are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 19 A conspiracy was formed against him in Jerusalem, † and he fled to Lachish. † However, men were sent after him to Lachish, and they put him to death there. 20 They carried him back † on horses, and he was buried in Jerusalem with his fathers in the city of David. †

21 Then all the people of Judah took Azariah, † † who was sixteen years old, and made him king in place of his father Amaziah. 22 After Amaziah the king rested with his fathers, Azariah rebuilt Elath † † and restored it to Judah.

ISRAEL'S KING JEROBOAM

23 In the fifteenth year of Judah's King Amaziah son of Joash, Jeroboam † son of Jehoash became king of Israel in Samaria, and he reigned forty-one years. 24 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He did not turn away from all the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. †

25 He restored Israel's border † from Lebo-hamath † as far as the Sea of the Arabah, † according to the word the LORD, the God of Israel, had spoken through his servant, the prophet Jonah † son of Amittai from Gath-hepher. †

26 For the LORD saw that the affliction of Israel was very bitter † for both slaves and free people. † There was no one to help Israel. 27 The LORD had not said he would blot out the name of Israel under heaven, † so he delivered † them by the hand of Jeroboam son of Jehoash.

28 The rest of the events of Jeroboam's reign — along with all his accomplishments, the power he had to wage war, and how he recovered for

Israel Damascus † and Hamath, † which had belonged to Judah † — are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 29 Jeroboam rested with his fathers, the kings of Israel. His son Zechariah became king in his place. †

14:3 Amaziah was a good king but did not meet the standard of David.

14:5-6 The murder of Amaziah's father Joash was described in 12:20-21. Amaziah evidently knew the Scripture that forbade putting children to death for the sins of their fathers and abided by it (see Dt 24:16). The kings were supposed to live in accordance with Scripture (Dt 17:18-20), and perhaps it is telling that there have been few references to the law of Moses in 1 and 2 Kings thus far (see 1Kg 2:3).

14:9-10 Jehoash's point was that Amaziah's challenge was foolish. Amaziah was the lowly thistle that would soon be trampled. Stories are also used elsewhere in Scripture to make a point (e.g., Jdg 9:7-15). Amaziah's stubbornness led to a humiliating defeat (vv. 11-14).

14:23-24 This Jeroboam is sometimes referred to as Jeroboam II. He is not to be confused with Jeroboam of Nebat, who made the golden calves (1Kg 12:26-30).

14:25-27 Despite Israel continuing in its sins, God mercifully helped the nation again (see also 13:4-5,22-23). The reference to Jonah son of Amittai is the only mention of this prophet in the OT outside of the book that bears his name (see Jnh 1:1).

JUDAH'S KING AZARIAH

15 In the twenty-seventh year of Israel's King Jeroboam, Azariah † † son of Amaziah became king of Judah. † 2 He was sixteen years old when he became king, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah; she was from Jerusalem. 3 Azariah did what was right in the LORD's sight † just as his father Amaziah had done. 4 Yet the high places were not taken away; the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places. †

5 The LORD afflicted the king, and he had a serious skin disease until the day of his death. † He lived in quarantine, † † while Jotham, † the king's son, was over the household governing the people of the land. †
6 The rest of the events of Azariah's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 7 Azariah rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. His son Jotham became king in his place. †

ISRAEL'S KING ZECHARIAH

8 In the thirty-eighth year of Judah's King Azariah, Zechariah † son of Jeroboam reigned over Israel in Samaria for six months. 9 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight as his fathers had done. † He did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. †
10 Shallum son of Jabesh conspired against Zechariah. He struck him down publicly, † killed him, and became king in his place. † 11 As for the rest of the events of Zechariah's reign, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. † 12 The word of the LORD that he spoke to Jehu was, "Four generations of your sons will sit on the throne of Israel," † and it was so.

ISRAEL'S KING SHALLUM

13 In the thirty-ninth year of Judah's King Uzziah, † Shallum son of Jabesh became king; he reigned in Samaria † a full month. 14 Then Menahem son of Gadi came up from Tirzah † to Samaria and struck down Shallum son of Jabesh there. He killed him and became king in his place. 15 As for the rest of the events of Shallum's reign, along with the conspiracy that he formed, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.

ISRAEL'S KING MENAHEM

16 At that time, starting from Tirzah, Menahem attacked Tiphsah, † all who were in it, and its territory because they wouldn't surrender. † He ripped open all the pregnant women. †
17 In the thirty-ninth year of Judah's King Azariah, Menahem son of Gadi became king over Israel, and he reigned ten years in Samaria. 18 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. Throughout his reign, he did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. †

19 King Pul † † of Assyria invaded the land, so Menahem gave Pul seventy-five thousand pounds † of silver so that Pul would support him to strengthen his grasp on the kingdom. † 20 Then Menahem exacted twenty ounces † of silver from each of the prominent men of Israel to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria withdrew and did not stay there in the land. †

21 The rest of the events of Menahem's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.
22 Menahem rested with his fathers, and his son Pekahiah became king in his place. †

ISRAEL'S KING PEKAHIAH

23 In the fiftieth year of Judah's King Azariah, Pekahiah son of Menahem became king over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned two years. 24 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight and did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. †

25 Then his officer, Pekah † son of Remaliah, conspired against him † and struck him down in Samaria at the citadel of the king's palace † — with Argob and Arieh. † There were fifty Gileadite men with Pekah. He killed Pekahiah and became king in his place.

26 As for the rest of the events of Pekahiah's reign, along with all his accomplishments, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.

ISRAEL'S KING PEKAH

27 In the fifty-second year of Judah's King Azariah, Pekah son of Remaliah became king over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned twenty years. 28 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit.

29 In the days of King Pekah of Israel, King Tiglath-pileser † of Assyria came and captured Ijon, † Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilead, and Galilee — all the land of Naphtali † — and deported the people to Assyria. †

30 Then Hoshea † son of Elah organized a conspiracy against Pekah son of Remaliah. He attacked him, killed him, † and became king in his place in the twentieth year of Jotham son of Uzziah.
31 As for the rest of the events of Pekah's reign, along with all his accomplishments, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.

JUDAH'S KING JOTHAM

32 In the second year of Israel's King Pekah son of Remaliah, Jotham † son of Uzziah became king of Judah. 33 He was twenty-five years old when he became king, † and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jerusha daughter of Zadok. 34 He did what was right in the LORD's sight just as his father Uzziah had done. † 35 Yet the high places were not taken away; the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places.
Jotham built the Upper Gate of the LORD's temple. † 36 The rest † of the events of Jotham's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 37 In those days the LORD began sending Aram's King Rezin and Pekah son of Remaliah against Judah. † 38 Jotham rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of his ancestor David. † His son Ahaz became king in his place.

15:3 Like his father Amaziah, Azariah, also known as "Uzziah" (see vv. 13,30,32), was a good king.

15:10-12 The assassination of Zechariah by Shallum brought an end to the rule of the house of Jehu over Israel. As God had promised, four generations of Jehu's sons had been king of Israel (see 10:30).

15:13-14 Shallum himself ruled only one month before being killed by Menahem.

15:19-20 Assyria enters the scene here for the first time in 1 and 2 Kings. King Pul, also known as Tiglath-pileser (see footnote on v. 19), exacted a large amount of silver from Menahem and would continue to trouble Israel (see v. 29).

15:23-25 Political instability in Israel continued with Pekah killing Pekahiah son of Menahem (see vv. 10-14,30).

15:29-30 This time King Tiglath-pileser (the "King Pul" mentioned in 15:19-20) captured all the land of Naphtali and deported its people to Assyria.

JUDAH'S KING AHAZ

16 In the seventeenth year of Pekah son of Remaliah, † Ahaz † son of Jotham became king of Judah. 2 Ahaz was twenty years old when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the sight of the LORD his God like his ancestor David † 3 but walked in the ways of the kings of Israel. † He even sacrificed his son in the fire, † imitating the detestable practices of the nations the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. † 4 He sacrificed and burned incense † on the high places, on the hills, and under every green tree. †

5 Then † Aram's King Rezin and Israel's King Pekah son of Remaliah came to wage war against Jerusalem. They besieged Ahaz but were not able to conquer him. † 6 At that time Aram's King Rezin recovered Elath for Aram and expelled the Judahites from Elath. † Then the Arameans came to Elath, and they still live there today. †

7 So Ahaz sent messengers † to King Tiglath-pileser † of Assyria, saying, "I am your servant and your son. March up and save me from the grasp of the king of Aram and of the king of Israel, who are rising up against me." 8 Ahaz also took the silver and gold found in the LORD's temple and in the treasuries of the king's palace and sent them to the king of Assyria as a bribe. † 9 So the king of Assyria listened to him † and marched up to Damascus and captured it. † He deported its people to Kir † but put Rezin to death.

AHAZ'S IDOLATRY

10 King Ahaz went to Damascus to meet King Tiglath-pileser † of Assyria. When he saw the altar that was in Damascus, King Ahaz sent a model of the altar and complete plans for its construction to the priest Uriah. † 11 Uriah built the altar according to all the instructions King Ahaz sent from Damascus. Therefore, by the time King Ahaz came back from Damascus, the priest Uriah had completed it. 12 When the king came back from Damascus, he saw the altar. Then he approached the altar † and ascended it. † 13 He offered his burnt offering † and his grain offering, poured out his drink offering, and splattered the blood of his fellowship offerings † on the altar. 14 He took the bronze altar † that was before the LORD in front of the temple between his altar and the LORD's temple, and put it on the north side of his altar.

15 Then King Ahaz commanded the priest Uriah, "Offer on the great altar the morning burnt offering, the evening grain offering, and the king's burnt offering and his grain offering. Also offer the burnt offering of all the people of the land, their grain offering, and their drink offerings. Splatter on the altar all the blood of the burnt offering and all the blood of sacrifice. The bronze altar will be for me to seek guidance." † 16 The priest Uriah did everything King Ahaz commanded.

17 Then King Ahaz cut off the frames of the water carts † † and removed the bronze basin from each of them. He took the basin † † from the bronze oxen that were under it and put it on a stone pavement. 18 To satisfy the king of Assyria, he removed from the LORD's temple the Sabbath canopy they had built in the palace, and he closed the outer entrance for the king.

AHAZ'S DEATH

19 The rest † of the events of Ahaz's reign, along with his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 20 Ahaz rested with his fathers † and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Hezekiah became king in his place.

16:2-4 Unlike his father Jotham, Ahaz was an evil king who followed the bad example of the kings of Israel (see 8:18), sacrificed his son in the fire (see Lv 18:21; Dt 18:10), and worshiped on the high places.

16:5 This attack against Jerusalem is described in further detail in Isaiah 7:1-16. Known as the Syro-

Ephraimite War, it may have been motivated by Judah's pro-Assyrian position at the time. Israel (led by Pekah) and Damascus (led by Rezin) apparently attempted to force Judah to join them in rebellion against the Assyrians.

16:8 Once again, the temple treasuries were depleted (see also 12:18; 14:14; 20:17; 24:13; 1Kg 14:26; 15:18).

16:10-18 Ahaz evidently was impressed by the altar that was in Damascus and had a replica built at the temple in Jerusalem. He not only offered sacrifices on this unsanctioned altar but even moved the bronze altar from its proper location and relegated it to a minor role (vv. 13-15). Ahaz also made additional changes to the temple Solomon had built, some of which were to appease the king of Assyria (vv. 17-18; see 1Kg 7:23-40).

ISRAEL'S KING HOSHEA

17 In the twelfth year of Judah's King Ahaz, Hoshea † son of Elah became king over Israel in Samaria, and he reigned nine years. 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, but not like the kings of Israel who preceded him. †
3 King Shalmaneser † of Assyria attacked him, † and Hoshea became his vassal and paid him tribute. 4 But the king of Assyria caught Hoshea in a conspiracy: He had sent envoys to So king of Egypt † and had not paid tribute to the king of Assyria as in previous years. † Therefore the king of Assyria arrested him and put him in prison. 5 The king of Assyria invaded the whole land, marched up to Samaria, and besieged it for three years. †

THE FALL OF SAMARIA

6 In the ninth year of Hoshea, † the king of Assyria captured Samaria. He deported † the Israelites to Assyria and settled them in Halah, along the Habor (Gozan's river), and in the cities of the Medes. †

WHY ISRAEL FELL

7 This disaster happened because the people of Israel sinned against the LORD their God who had brought them out of the land of Egypt from the power of Pharaoh king of Egypt † and because they worshiped † other gods. † 8 They lived according to the customs of the nations that the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites † and according to what the kings of Israel did. † 9 The Israelites secretly did things † against the LORD their God that were not right.

They built high places in all their towns from watchtower † to fortified city.
10 They set up for themselves sacred pillars † and Asherah poles † on every high hill and under every green tree. † 11 They burned incense there on all the high places just like the nations that the LORD had driven out before them had done. They did evil things, angering the LORD. 12 They served idols, although the LORD had told them, “You must not do this.” † 13 Still, the LORD warned † Israel and Judah through every prophet and every seer, saying, “Turn from your evil ways and keep my commands and statutes according to the whole law I commanded your ancestors and sent to you through my servants the prophets.” † 14 But they would not listen. Instead they became obstinate like † their ancestors who did not believe the LORD their God. † 15 They rejected his statutes and his covenant he had made with their ancestors † and the warnings he had given them. They followed worthless idols and became worthless themselves, † following the surrounding nations the LORD had commanded them not to imitate. †
16 They abandoned all the commands of the LORD their God. They made cast images † for themselves, two calves, and an Asherah pole. † They bowed in worship to all the stars in the sky † and served Baal. † 17 They sacrificed their sons and daughters in the fire † † and practiced divination and interpreted omens. † They devoted themselves to do what was evil in the LORD’s sight and angered him. †
18 Therefore, the LORD was very angry with Israel, and he removed them from his presence. † Only the tribe of Judah remained. † 19 Even Judah did not keep the commands of the LORD their God † but lived according to the customs Israel had practiced. † 20 So the LORD rejected all the descendants of Israel, punished them, and handed them over to plunderers until he had banished them from his presence. †

SUMMARY OF ISRAEL’S HISTORY

21 When the LORD tore † Israel from the house of David, Israel made Jeroboam son of Nebat king. † Then Jeroboam led Israel away from following the LORD and caused them to commit immense sin. 22 The Israelites persisted in all the sins that Jeroboam committed and did not turn away from them. † 23 Finally, the LORD removed Israel from his presence just as he had declared through all his servants the prophets. So Israel has been exiled to Assyria from their homeland to this very day. †

FOREIGN REFUGEES IN ISRAEL

24 Then the king of Assyria brought people from Babylon, Cuthah, Avva, Hamath, and Sepharvaim and settled them in place of the Israelites in the cities of Samaria. The settlers took possession of Samaria and lived in its cities. †
25 When they first lived there, they did not fear the LORD. So the LORD sent lions among them, which killed some of them. † 26 The settlers said to the king of Assyria, "The nations that you have deported and placed in the cities of Samaria do not know the requirements of the god of the land. Therefore he has sent lions among them that are killing them because the people don't know the requirements of the god of the land."
27 Then the king of Assyria issued a command: "Send back one of the priests you deported. † Have him go and live there so he can teach them the requirements of the god of the land." 28 So one of the priests they had deported came and lived in Bethel, † and he began to teach them how they should fear the LORD.
29 But the people of each nation were still making their own gods in the cities where they lived and putting them in the shrines of the high places that the people of Samaria had made. † 30 The men of Babylon made Succoth-benoth, the men of Cuth made Nergal, the men of Hamath made Ashima, 31 the Avvites made Nibhaz and Tartak, and the Sepharvites burned their children in the fire † to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim. 32 They feared the LORD, but they also made from their ranks priests for the high places, who were working for them at the shrines of the high places. † 33 They feared the LORD, but they also worshiped their own gods † according to the practice of the nations from which they had been deported.
34 They are still observing the former practices to this day. None of them fear the LORD or observe the statutes and ordinances, the law and commandments that the LORD had commanded the descendants of Jacob, whom he had given the name Israel. † 35 The LORD made a covenant with Jacob's descendants and commanded them, "Do not fear other gods; do not bow in worship to them; † do not serve them; do not sacrifice to them. † 36 Instead fear the LORD, who brought you up from the land of Egypt with great power † and an outstretched arm. † You are to bow down to him, and you are to sacrifice to him. 37 You are to be careful always † to observe the statutes, the ordinances, the law, and the commandments he wrote for you; do not fear other gods. 38 Do not forget the covenant that I have made with you. † Do not fear other gods, 39 but fear the LORD your God, and he will rescue you from all your enemies." †

40 However, these nations would not listen but continued observing their former practices. 41 They feared the LORD but also served their idols. Still today, their children and grandchildren continue doing as their fathers did. †

17:1-6 Hoshea was the last king of the northern kingdom of Israel. His futile attempt to seek help from Egypt after not paying tribute money to Assyria led to his imprisonment (vv. 3-4). King Shalmaneser of Assyria subsequently besieged Samaria and deported the Israelites. This took place in 722 BC and marked the fall of the northern kingdom.

17:7 The biblical author gives an extended commentary in vv. 7-23 regarding the reasons why the northern kingdom fell and was exiled. He had previously commented on each king of Israel and Judah, noting whether he "did what was evil in the LORD's sight" (e.g., v. 2) or "did what was right in the LORD's sight" (e.g., 15:34).

17:13 The Lord did not watch silently as Israel worshiped other gods but sent prophets to call them back to his law (see also v. 23; 18:12).

17:14 The Israelites' stubborn disobedience is linked here to a lack of faith in God. Their ancestors had failed in this way in generations past (see Nm 14:11; Ps 78:22,32).

17:15 The sobering reality is that the Israelites became like the worthless idols they pursued (see Jr 2:5). Who or what a people worships has a formative impact on them.

17:16 The two calves were the ones that Jeroboam had made (vv. 21-23; 1Kg 12:26-29).

17:19 Though the kingdom of Judah still existed, its people were also guilty and would be similarly punished (see 21:13).

17:20,23 The exile of the Israelites for their sins had been threatened by the prophets. Moses himself had spoken of this several times (e.g., Dt 4:25-31; 28:36-37,63-65).

17:33 The cities of Samaria were resettled with foreigners, who began to fear God (vv. 24-28) but still continued to worship their own gods (see also vv. 40-41). God, however, calls for exclusive worship (vv. 35-39; see Ex 20:3).

JUDAH'S KING HEZEKIAH

18 In the third year of Israel's King Hoshea † son of Elah, Hezekiah † son of Ahaz became king of Judah. 2 He was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abi † daughter of Zechariah. 3 He did what was right in the LORD's sight just as his ancestor David had done. † 4 He removed the high places, shattered the sacred pillars, and cut down the Asherah poles. † He broke into pieces the bronze snake that Moses made, † for until then the Israelites were burning incense to it. It was called Nehushtan. †

5 Hezekiah relied on the LORD God of Israel; † not one of the kings of Judah was like him, either before him or after him. † 6 He remained faithful to the LORD † and did not turn from following him but kept the commands the LORD had commanded Moses.

7 The LORD was with him, and wherever he went he prospered. † He rebelled against the king of Assyria and did not serve him. † 8 He defeated the Philistines as far as Gaza and its borders, † from watchtower † to fortified city.

REVIEW OF ISRAEL'S FALL

9 In the fourth year of King Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Israel's King Hoshea son of Elah, Assyria's King Shalmaneser marched against Samaria and besieged it. † 10 The Assyrians captured it at the end of three years. In the sixth year of Hezekiah, which was the ninth year of Israel's King Hoshea, Samaria was captured. 11 The king of Assyria deported the Israelites to Assyria and put them in Halah, along the Habor (Gozan's river), and in the cities of the Medes, † 12 because they did not listen to the LORD their God but violated his covenant — all he had commanded Moses the servant of the LORD. They did not listen, and they did not obey. †

SENNACHERIB'S INVASION

13 In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, Assyria's King Sennacherib attacked all the fortified cities of Judah and captured them. † 14 So King Hezekiah of Judah sent word to the king of Assyria at Lachish: † "I have done wrong; † withdraw from me. Whatever you demand from me, I will pay." The king of Assyria demanded eleven tons † of silver and one ton † of gold from King Hezekiah of Judah. 15 So Hezekiah gave him all the silver found in the LORD's temple and in the treasuries of the king's palace.

16 At that time Hezekiah stripped the gold from the doors of the LORD's sanctuary and from the doorposts he had overlaid and gave it to the king of Assyria. †

17 Then the king of Assyria sent the field marshal, † the chief of staff, and his royal spokesman, along with a massive army, from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem. † They advanced and came to Jerusalem, and † they took their position by the aqueduct of the upper pool, by the road to the Launderer's Field. † 18 They called for the king, but Eliakim † son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace, Shebnah † the court secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the court historian, came out to them. †

THE ROYAL SPOKESMAN'S SPEECH

19 Then † the royal spokesman said to them, "Tell Hezekiah this is what the great king, the king of Assyria, says: 'What are you relying on? † † 20 You think mere words are strategy and strength for war. Who are you now relying on so that you have rebelled against me? † 21 Now look, you are relying on Egypt, that splintered reed of a staff † that will pierce the hand of anyone who grabs it and leans on it. † This is what Pharaoh king of Egypt is to all who rely on him. 22 Suppose you say to me, "We rely on the LORD our God." Isn't he the one whose high places and altars Hezekiah has removed, † saying to Judah and to Jerusalem, “You must worship at this altar in Jerusalem” ? ’

23 “So now, make a bargain with my master the king of Assyria. I’ll give you two thousand horses if you’re able to supply riders for them! 24 How then can you drive back a single officer † among the least of my master’s servants? How can you rely on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? 25 Now, have I attacked this place to destroy it without the LORD’s approval? † The LORD said to me, ‘Attack this land and destroy it.’ ”
26 Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, Shebnah, and Joah said to the royal spokesman, “Please speak to your servants in Aramaic, † since we understand it. Don’t speak with us in Hebrew † within earshot of the people on the wall.”
27 But the royal spokesman said to them, “Has my master sent me to speak these words only to your master and to you? Hasn’t he also sent me to the men who sit on the wall, destined with you to eat their own excrement and drink their own urine? ” †
28 The royal spokesman stood and called out loudly in Hebrew: “Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria. 29 This is what the king says: ‘Don’t let Hezekiah deceive † you; he can’t rescue you from my power. † 30 Don’t let Hezekiah persuade you to rely on the LORD by saying, “Certainly the LORD will rescue us! This city will not be handed over to the king of Assyria.” ’ †
31 “Don’t listen to Hezekiah, for this is what the king of Assyria says: ‘Make peace † with me and surrender to me. Then each of you may eat from his own vine and his own fig tree, † and each may drink water from his own cistern
32 until I come and take you away to a land like your own land — a land of grain and new wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olive trees and honey † — so that you may live † and not die. But don’t listen to Hezekiah when he misleads you, saying, “The LORD will rescue us.” 33 Has any of the gods of the nations ever rescued † his land from the power of the king of Assyria? 34 Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? 36 But the people kept silent; they did not answer him at all, for the king’s command was, “Don’t answer him.” 37 Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace, Shebna the court secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the court historian, † came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn † and reported to him the words of the royal spokesman.

18:3-6 Hezekiah did what was right in the LORD’s sight and took action against idolatry, relied on the LORD, and faithfully kept the law of Moses—as kings were supposed to do (see the note on 1Kg 2:1-4). In this respect, he was unparalleled among the kings of Judah (v. 5; see also 23:25). As a result, “the LORD was with him” and “he prospered” (v. 7).

18:9-12 Hezekiah was king of Judah when the northern kingdom of Israel fell to the Assyrians. The Israelites’ defeat and exile is recounted here and attributed once again to their disobedience to God (see 17:7-13).

18:15-16 Regarding the repeated depletion of the temple treasures, see the note on 16:8.

18:21 There is no indication that Hezekiah was relying on Egypt, as Assyria’s royal spokesman asserted. Hoshea had done this (see the note on 17:1-6), but Hezekiah was trusting in God (v. 5; 19:15-19).

18:25 The claim to have the LORD’s approval to attack Jerusalem was also almost certainly false propaganda meant to demoralize the Judahites (see also the previous note).

18:26 Hezekiah’s officials evidently knew both Aramaic, the language of the Assyrian empire, and Hebrew, whereas the inhabitants of Jerusalem knew only Hebrew. The Assyrians spoke in Hebrew in order to make a direct appeal to the people to surrender so that they would not have to eat and drink their own waste in a siege (v. 27).

18:31-35 For a third time (see vv. 22,30), the arrogant Assyrian official attacked the Israelites’ faith in the Lord. He said that Hezekiah misleads with promises that the LORD will rescue (v. 32). It is not difficult to see why the unbelieving spokesman thought that just as other gods had failed to deliver their people from Assyria, so it would also be with God in the case of his people living in Jerusalem (19:10-13). He was wrong (see the note on 19:14-19).

HEZEKIAH SEEKS ISAIAH'S COUNSEL

19 When King Hezekiah heard their report, he tore his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, † and went into the LORD's temple. † 2 He sent Eliakim, who was in charge of the palace, Shebna the court secretary, † and the leading priests, who were wearing sackcloth, † to the prophet Isaiah † son of Amoz. 3 They said to him, "This is what Hezekiah says: 'Today is a day of distress, rebuke, and disgrace, for children have come to the point of birth, † but there is no strength to deliver them. 4 Perhaps the LORD your God † will hear † all the words of the royal spokesman, whom his master the king of Assyria sent to mock the living God, and will rebuke † him for the words that the LORD your God has heard. Therefore, offer a prayer for the surviving remnant.' " †
5 So the servants of King Hezekiah went to Isaiah, 6 who said to them, "Tell your master, 'The LORD says this: Don't be afraid † because of the words you have heard, with which the king of Assyria's attendants † have blasphemed † me. 7 I am about to put a spirit in him, and he will hear a rumor and return to his own land, † where I will cause him to fall by the sword.' " †

SENNACHERIB'S DEPARTING THREAT

8 When † the royal spokesman heard that the king of Assyria had pulled out of Lachish, † he left and found him fighting against Libnah. † 9 The king had heard concerning King Tirhakah of Cush, "Look, he has set out to fight against you." So he again sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, 10 "Say this to King Hezekiah of Judah: 'Don't let your God, on whom you rely, † deceive you by promising that Jerusalem will not be handed over to the king of Assyria. †
11 Look, you have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the countries: They completely destroyed them. Will you be rescued? 12 Did the gods of the nations † that my predecessors destroyed rescue them — nations such as Gozan, † Haran, † Rezeph, and the Edenites † in Telassar? 13 Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, the king of the city of † Sepharvaim, Hena, or Ivvah? ' " †

HEZEKIAH'S PRAYER

14 Hezekiah took † the letter † from the messengers' hands, read it, then went up to the LORD's temple, and spread it out before the LORD. † 15 Then Hezekiah prayed before the LORD:

LORD God of Israel, enthroned between the cherubim, † you are God — you alone — of all the kingdoms of the earth. You made the heavens and the earth. †

16 Listen closely, LORD, and hear; open your eyes, LORD, and see. † Hear the words that Sennacherib has sent to mock the living God. † 17 LORD, it is true that the kings of Assyria have devastated the nations and their lands. † 18 They have thrown their gods into the fire, for they were not gods but made by human hands — wood and stone. † So they have destroyed them. 19 Now, LORD our God, please save us from his power so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you, LORD, are God — you alone. †

GOD'S ANSWER THROUGH ISAIAH

20 Then † Isaiah son of Amoz sent a message to Hezekiah: "The LORD, the God of Israel says, 'I have heard your prayer † to me about King Sennacherib of Assyria.' † 21 This is the word the LORD has spoken against him:

Virgin Daughter Zion † despises you and scorns you;
Daughter Jerusalem
shakes her head behind your back. †

22 Who is it you mocked and blasphemed? † Against whom have you raised your voice and lifted your eyes in pride?
Against the Holy One of Israel! †

23 You have mocked the Lord † through † your messengers. †
You have said, 'With my many chariots †
I have gone up to the heights of the mountains, to the far recesses of Lebanon.
I cut down its tallest cedars, its choice cypress trees.
I came to its farthest outpost, its densest forest.

24 I dug wells and drank water in foreign lands.
I dried up all the streams of Egypt † with the soles of my feet.’

25 Have you not heard? †
I designed it long ago;
I planned it in days gone by.
I have now brought it to pass, † and you have crushed fortified cities into piles of rubble.
26 Their inhabitants have become powerless, dismayed, and ashamed.
They are plants of the field, tender grass,
grass on the rooftops, †
blasted by the east wind. †

27 But I know your sitting down, † your going out and your coming in,
and your raging against me.
28 Because your raging against me and your arrogance have reached my ears, I will put my hook in your nose †
and my bit in your mouth;
I will make you go back
the way you came.

29 “This will be the sign † for you: This year you will eat what grows on its own, and in the second year what grows from that. But in the third year sow and reap, plant vineyards and eat their fruit. 30 The surviving remnant † of the house of Judah will again take root downward and bear fruit upward. 31 For a remnant will go out from Jerusalem, and survivors, from Mount Zion. † The zeal of the LORD of Armies will accomplish this. †

32 Therefore, this is what the LORD says about the king of Assyria: He will not enter this city,
shoot an arrow here,
come before it with a shield,
or build up a siege ramp against it. † 33 He will go back the way he came,
and he will not enter this city.

This is the LORD's declaration.

34 I will defend this city and rescue it for my sake and for the sake of my servant David." †

DEFEAT AND DEATH OF SENNACHERIB

35 That night the angel of the LORD went out and struck down one hundred eighty-five thousand in the camp of the Assyrians. When the people got up the next morning — there were all the dead bodies! † 36 So King Sennacherib of Assyria broke camp and left. He returned home and lived in Nineveh. †
37 One day, while he was worshiping in the temple of his god Nisroch, his sons Adrammelech † and Sharezer struck him down with the sword and escaped to the land of Ararat. † Then his son Esar-haddon † became king in his place.

19:1-7 Hezekiah's response to a report of these threats was one of deep humility (v. 1). He also sent a message to the prophet Isaiah, asking him to pray (vv. 2-4). Isaiah replied with an encouragement that God had heard the Assyrians' blasphemy and would cause Sennacherib to return to his own land where he would be put to death (vv. 5-7).

19:14-19 Soon, just as God had said in vv. 7-8, Sennacherib would turn back toward his own land. His threat in vv. 10-13 reiterated what the Assyrian spokesman had said earlier (see the note on 18:31-35), but Hezekiah knew the flaw in their reasoning and identified it in his prayer. God is not like the so-called gods that the Assyrians had conquered. Those were not gods (v. 18), and God alone is God (v. 15), the living God (vv. 4,16) who made the heavens and the earth. He is also the God of Israel (v. 15), and Hezekiah appealed to him for salvation so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that [he is] God (v. 19). Hezekiah was praying in the temple (v. 14), and Solomon's prayer of dedication for this same temple had expressed a similar desire for worldwide knowledge of God (see the note on 1Kg 8:41-43).

19:20-23 Isaiah sent another message to Hezekiah declaring the word of God, reaffirming that he had heard the mockery and blasphemy of Assyria (see vv. 5-7). As the true God who had ordained Sennacherib's steps (vv. 25-26), he would also punish the arrogant king (vv. 27-28).

19:34 God was zealous to deliver Israel (v. 31), both for his own sake and for David's. This statement shows that God acted out of a deep concern for his own name and for his promises to David (see 20:6; notes on 13:22-23 and Ex 9:13-16).

19:35-37 The Lord's judgment on the Assyrian army was dramatic and devastating. As God had said (see vv. 7,32-33), Sennacherib returned to his own land where two of his sons killed him. His death while he was worshiping in the temple of his god Nisroch ironically demonstrated that it was his own god that was impotent, not the Lord (see the note on 18:31-35).

HEZEKIAH'S ILLNESS AND RECOVERY

20 In those days † Hezekiah became terminally ill. † The prophet Isaiah † son of Amoz came and said to him, "This is what the LORD says: 'Set your house in order, for you are about to die; you will not recover.' " †
2 Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall † and prayed to the LORD,
3 "Please, LORD, remember † how I have walked before you faithfully and wholeheartedly and have done what pleases you." † † And Hezekiah wept bitterly. †
4 Isaiah had not yet gone out of the inner courtyard when the word of the LORD came to him: 5 "Go back and tell Hezekiah, the leader † of my people, 'This is what the LORD God of your ancestor David says: I have heard your prayer; † I have seen your tears. Look, I will heal you. On the third day from now you will go up to the LORD's temple. 6 I will add fifteen years to your life. I will rescue you and this city from the grasp of the king of Assyria. I will defend this city for my sake and for the sake of my servant David.' " †
7 Then Isaiah said, "Bring a lump of pressed figs." So they brought it and applied it to his infected skin, and he recovered. †

8 Hezekiah had asked Isaiah, “What is the sign † that the LORD will heal me and that I will go up to the LORD’s temple on the third day? ” 9 Isaiah said, “This is the sign † to you from the LORD that he will do what he has promised: Should the shadow go ahead ten steps or go back ten steps? ” 10 Then Hezekiah answered, “It’s easy for the shadow to lengthen ten steps. No, let the shadow go back ten steps.” 11 So the prophet Isaiah called out to the LORD, and he brought the shadow † back the ten steps it had descended on the stairway of Ahaz. † †

HEZEKIAH’S FOLLY

12 At that time † Merodach-baladan † son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a gift to Hezekiah since he heard that he had been sick. 13 Hezekiah listened to the letters and showed the envoys his whole treasure house — the silver, the gold, the spices, and the precious oil — and his armory, and everything that was found in his treasuries. There was nothing in his palace and in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. † 14 Then the prophet Isaiah came to King Hezekiah and asked him, “Where did these men come from and what did they say to you? ”
Hezekiah replied, “They came from a distant country, from Babylon.”
15 Isaiah asked, “What have they seen in your palace? ” Hezekiah answered, “They have seen everything in my palace. There isn’t anything in my treasuries that I didn’t show them.”
16 Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the LORD: 17 ‘Look, the days are coming when everything in your palace and all that your fathers have stored up until today will be carried off to Babylon; nothing will be left,’ † says the LORD. 18 ‘Some of your descendants — who come from you, whom you father — will be taken away, † and they will become eunuchs † in the palace of the king of Babylon.’ ” † 19 Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “The word of the LORD that you have spoken is good,” † for he thought: Why not, if there will be peace and security during my lifetime?

HEZEKIAH’S DEATH

20 The rest of the events of Hezekiah's reign, along with all his might and how he made the pool † and the tunnel and brought water into the city, † are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 21 Hezekiah rested with his fathers, and his son Manasseh became king in his place. †

20:2-3 Although Isaiah had already brought him a message from God saying that he would die (v. 1), Hezekiah prayed to God to remember him. God heard his prayer and gave him fifteen more years of life (vv. 4-6).

20:8-10 Once again, Hezekiah was given a sign accompanying an answer to prayer (see 19:29).

20:16-18 Hezekiah foolishly showed off his treasures to the Babylonian visitors (vv. 12-15), and Isaiah declared that these treasures would be carried off to Babylon as a result. Some of his descendants would also be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. Judah would indeed be defeated and exiled by the Babylonians.

20:19 Hezekiah's response seems selfish, though some have suggested that it reflects his acceptance of God's plan of judgment.

JUDAH'S KING MANASSEH

21 Manasseh † was twelve years old when he became king, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hephzibah. † 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, † imitating the detestable practices of the nations that the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. † 3 He rebuilt the high places that his father Hezekiah had destroyed † and reestablished the altars for Baal. He made an Asherah, † as King Ahab of Israel had done; † he also bowed in worship to all the stars in the sky † and served them. 4 He built altars in the LORD's temple, † where the LORD had said, "Jerusalem is where I will put my name." † 5 He built altars to all the stars in the sky † in both courtyards of the LORD's temple. † 6 He sacrificed his son in the fire, † † practiced witchcraft and divination, and consulted mediums and spiritists. † He did a huge amount of evil in the LORD's sight, angering him. †

7 Manasseh set up the carved image of Asherah, which he made, in the temple that the LORD had spoken about to David and his son Solomon: "I will establish my name forever in this temple and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel. † 8 I will never again cause the feet of the Israelites to wander from the land I gave to their ancestors if only they will be careful to do all I have commanded them — the whole law that my servant Moses commanded them." † 9 But they did not listen; Manasseh caused them to stray so that they did worse evil than the nations the LORD had destroyed before the Israelites. †
10 The LORD said through his servants the prophets, 11 "Since King Manasseh of Judah has committed all these detestable acts † — worse evil than the Amorites † who preceded him had done — and by means of his idols has also caused Judah to sin, 12 this is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'I am about to bring such disaster on Jerusalem and Judah that everyone who hears about it will shudder. † † 13 I will stretch over Jerusalem the measuring line used on Samaria and the mason's level used on the house of Ahab, † and I will wipe † Jerusalem clean as one wipes a bowl — wiping it and turning it upside down. 14 I will abandon the remnant † of my inheritance and hand them over to their enemies. They will become plunder and spoil to all their enemies, 15 because they have done what is evil in my sight and have angered me from the day their ancestors came out of Egypt until today.' " †
16 Manasseh also shed so much innocent blood that he filled Jerusalem with it from one end to another. † This was in addition to his sin that he caused Judah to commit, so that they did what was evil in the LORD's sight.

MANASSEH'S DEATH

17 The rest † of the events of Manasseh's reign, along with all his accomplishments and the sin that he committed, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. † 18 Manasseh rested with his fathers and was buried in the garden of his own house, the garden of Uzza. His son Amon became king in his place.

JUDAH'S KING AMON

19 Amon was twenty-two years old when he became king, † and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Meshullemeth daughter of Haruz; she was from Jotbah. 20 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, just as his father Manasseh had done. † 21 He walked in all the ways his father had walked; he served the idols his father had served, and he bowed in worship to them. † 22 He abandoned the LORD God of his ancestors † and did not walk in the ways of the LORD. † 23 Amon's servants conspired against him and put the king to death in his own house. † 24 The common people † killed † all who had conspired against King Amon, and they made his son Josiah † king in his place.
25 The rest of the events of Amon's reign, along with his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. 26 He was buried in his tomb in the garden of Uzza, and his son Josiah became king in his place.

21:1-9 Manasseh was a very evil king, as this lengthy list of sins show. He imitated the practices of the Canaanites (v. 2) and of Ahab (v. 3). He undid some of the good that his father Hezekiah had done and even set up altars to others gods within the temple. He also sacrificed his son, a descendant of David, in the fire.

21:10-14 Manasseh and the inhabitants of Judah not only failed to meet the condition of obedience necessary for their continued dwelling in the land (v. 8) but also did worse evil than the nations God had driven out of Canaan (vv. 9,11). The people had thus seriously offended God (see the note on Dt 7:1-6) and would be judged. Judah would fall to a foreign nation and be exiled, just as Israel had been (vv. 13-14).

21:19-22 Amon was also an evil king and followed in the bad example of his father Manasseh (see vv. 2-9).

JUDAH'S KING JOSIAH

22 Josiah † was eight years old when he became king, and he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jedidah the daughter of Adaiah; she was from Bozkath. † 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight and walked in all the ways of his ancestor David; † he did not turn to the right or the left. †

JOSIAH REPAIRS THE TEMPLE

3 In the eighteenth year of King Josiah, the king sent the court secretary Shaphan son of Azaliah, son of Meshullam, to the LORD's temple, † saying, 4 "Go up to the high priest Hilkiah so that he may total up the silver brought into the LORD's temple — the silver the doorkeepers have collected from the people. † 5 It is to be given to those doing the work — those who oversee the LORD's temple. They in turn are to give it to the workmen in the LORD's temple to repair the damage. † 6 They are to give it to the carpenters, builders, and masons to buy timber and quarried stone to repair the temple. † 7 But no accounting is to be required from them for the silver given to them since they work with integrity." †

THE BOOK OF THE LAW FOUND

8 The high priest Hilkiah told the court secretary Shaphan, “I have found the book of the law † in the LORD’s temple,” and he gave the book to Shaphan, who read it.

9 Then the court secretary Shaphan went to the king and reported, † “Your servants have emptied out the silver that was found in the temple and have given it to those doing the work — those who oversee the LORD’s temple.” 10 Then the court secretary Shaphan told the king, “The priest Hilkiah has given me a book,” and Shaphan read it in the presence of the king. †

11 When the king heard the words of the book of the law, he tore his clothes. †

12 Then he commanded the priest Hilkiah, Ahikam † son of Shaphan, Achbor † son of Micaiah, the court secretary Shaphan, and the king’s servant Asaiah: 13 “Go and inquire of the LORD for me, the people, and all Judah about the words in this book that has been found. For great is the LORD’s wrath that is kindled against us because our ancestors have not obeyed the words of this book in order to do everything written about us.” †

HULDAH’S PROPHECY OF JUDGMENT

14 So † the priest Hilkiah, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah went to the prophetess † Huldah, wife of Shallum son of Tikvah, † son of Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe. She lived in Jerusalem in the Second District. † They spoke with her.

15 She said to them, “This is what the LORD God of Israel says: Say to the man who sent you to me, 16 ‘This is what the LORD says: I am about to bring disaster on this place and on its inhabitants, fulfilling † all the words of the book that the king of Judah has read, † 17 because they have abandoned me and burned incense to other gods in order to anger me with all the work of their hands. My wrath will be kindled against this place, and it will not be quenched.’ † 18 Say this to the king of Judah who sent you to inquire of the LORD: ‘This is what the LORD God of Israel says: As for the words that you heard, † 19 because your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before the LORD † when you heard what I spoke against this place and against its inhabitants, that they would become a desolation and a curse, † and because you have torn your clothes and wept before me, I myself have heard' — this is the LORD's declaration. 20 'Therefore, I will indeed gather you to your fathers, and you will be gathered to your grave in peace. † Your eyes will not see all the disaster that I am bringing on this place.' "

Then they reported † to the king.

22:1-2 After two bad kings came Josiah, one of Judah's better kings (see the note on 23:24-25).

22:5-7 Temple repairs had also been undertaken earlier under Joash (see 12:4-16).

22:8-10 The discovery of the book of the law in the temple indicates that the law of Moses had been severely neglected for some time (see v. 13; note on 14:5-6). The Israelites and their kings had failed miserably in their responsibility to heed Scripture (see 21:8; Dt 17:18-20).

22:11-13 Josiah's response to the words of the book of the law indicated that he understood its teaching that God would judge his people for their disobedience (see Dt 28:15-68). The prophetess Huldah confirmed this (vv. 14-17).

22:19-20 Although God would bring disaster on Judah (see also 21:13-14), Josiah's responsiveness and humility resulted in his being spared from having to experience it (see also 20:19).

COVENANT RENEWAL

23 So the king sent messengers, † and they gathered all the elders † of Judah and Jerusalem to him. 2 Then the king went to the LORD's temple with all the men of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as well as the priests and the prophets — all the people from the youngest to the oldest. He read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant † that had been found in the LORD's temple. † 3 Next, the king stood by the pillar † † and made a covenant † in the LORD's presence to follow the LORD and to keep his commands, his decrees, and his statutes with all his heart and with all his soul † in order to carry out the words of this covenant that were written in this book; all the people agreed to † the covenant. †

JOSIAH'S REFORMS

4 Then the king commanded the high priest Hilkiah † and the priests of the second rank † and the doorkeepers to bring out of the LORD's sanctuary all the articles made for Baal, Asherah, and all the stars in the sky. † He burned them outside Jerusalem in the fields of the Kidron and carried their ashes to Bethel. † 5 Then he did away with the idolatrous priests the kings of Judah had appointed to burn incense at the high places † in the cities of Judah and in the areas surrounding Jerusalem. They had burned incense to Baal, and to the sun, moon, constellations, and all the stars in the sky. † 6 He brought out the Asherah pole † from the LORD's temple to the Kidron Valley outside Jerusalem. He burned it at the Kidron Valley, † beat it to dust, † and threw its dust on the graves of the common people. † † 7 He also tore down the houses of the male cult prostitutes † that were in the LORD's temple, in which the women were weaving tapestries † for Asherah. † 8 Then Josiah brought all the priests from the cities of Judah, and he defiled the high places † from Geba † to Beer-sheba, † where the priests had burned incense. He tore down the high places of the city gates at the entrance of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city (on the left at the city gate). 9 The priests of the high places, however, did not come up to the altar of the LORD in Jerusalem;
instead, they ate unleavened bread with their fellow priests. † 10 He defiled Topheth, † which is in Ben Hinnom Valley, † so that no one could sacrifice his son or daughter in the fire † † to Molech. † 11 He did away with the horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun. They had been at the entrance of the LORD's temple in the precincts by the chamber of Nathan-melech, the eunuch. He also burned the chariots of the sun. † 12 The king tore down the altars that the kings of Judah had made on the roof † of Ahaz's upper chamber. † He also tore down the altars that Manasseh had made † in the two courtyards of the LORD's temple. Then he smashed them † there and threw their dust into the Kidron Valley. 13 The king also defiled the high places that were across from Jerusalem, to the south of the Mount of Destruction, which King Solomon of Israel had built for Ashtoreth, the abhorrent idol of the Sidonians; for Chemosh, the abhorrent idol of Moab; and for Milcom, the detestable idol of the Ammonites. † 14 He broke the sacred pillars into pieces, † cut down the Asherah poles, † then filled their places with human bones.

15 He even tore down the altar at Bethel † and the high place † that had been made by Jeroboam son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. He burned the high place, crushed it to dust, and burned the Asherah. † 16 As Josiah turned, he saw the tombs there on the mountain. He sent someone to take the bones out of the tombs, and he burned them on the altar. † He defiled it according to the word of the LORD proclaimed by the man of God † who proclaimed these things. †
17 Then he said, "What is this monument I see? "
The men of the city told him, "It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and proclaimed these things that you have done to the altar at Bethel." †
18 So he said, "Let him rest. Don't let anyone disturb his bones." So they left his bones undisturbed with the bones of the prophet who came from Samaria. †
19 Josiah also removed all the shrines of the high places that were in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to anger the LORD. † Josiah did the same things to them that he had done at Bethel. 20 He slaughtered on the altars all the priests of those high places, † and he burned human bones on the altars. † Then he returned to Jerusalem.

PASSOVER OBSERVED

21 The king commanded all the people, "Observe the Passover of the LORD your God as written in the book of the covenant." † 22 No such Passover had ever been observed from the time of the judges who judged Israel through the entire time of the kings of Israel and Judah. 23 But in the eighteenth year of King Josiah, the LORD's Passover was observed in Jerusalem. †

FURTHER ZEAL FOR THE LORD

24 In addition, Josiah eradicated the mediums, the spiritists, † household idols, † images, and all the abhorrent things † that were seen in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem. He did this in order to carry out the words of the law that were written in the book that the priest Hilkiah found in the LORD's temple. † 25 Before him there was no king like him who turned to the LORD with all his heart and with all his soul and with all his strength † according to all the law of Moses, and no one like him arose after him. † 26 In spite of all that, the LORD did not turn from the fury of his intense burning anger, which burned against Judah because of all the affronts with which Manasseh had angered him. † 27 For the LORD had said, "I will also remove Judah from my presence just as I have removed Israel. † I will reject this city Jerusalem, that I have chosen, and the temple about which I said, 'My name will be there.' " †

JOSIAH'S DEATH

28 The rest of the events of Josiah's reign, † along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings.
29 During his reign, Pharaoh Neco king of Egypt † marched up to help the king of Assyria at the Euphrates River. King Josiah went to confront him, and at Megiddo † when Neco saw him he killed him. 30 From Megiddo his servants carried his dead body in a chariot, brought him into Jerusalem, and buried him in his own tomb. † Then the common people † took Jehoahaz son of Josiah, anointed him, and made him king in place of his father. †

JUDAH'S KING JEHOAHAZ

31 Jehoahaz † was † twenty-three years old when he became king, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal † daughter of Jeremiah; she was from Libnah. 32 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight just as his ancestors had done. † 33 Pharaoh Neco imprisoned him at Riblah † in the land of Hamath † to keep him from reigning in Jerusalem, and he imposed on the land a fine of seventy-five hundred pounds † of silver and seventy-five pounds † of gold.

JUDAH'S KING JEHOIAKIM

34 Then † Pharaoh Neco made Eliakim † son of Josiah king in place of his father Josiah and changed Eliakim's name to Jehoiakim. † But Neco took Jehoahaz and went to Egypt, and he died there. † 35 So Jehoiakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharaoh, but at Pharaoh's command he taxed the land to give it. He exacted the silver and the gold from the common people, each according to his assessment, † to give it to Pharaoh Neco.

36 Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zebidah daughter of Pedaiah; she was from Rumah. 37 He did what was evil † in the LORD's sight just as his ancestors had done.

23:1-3 Josiah proceeded with reforms in accordance with what was commanded in the recently discovered book (see 22:8-10). He led the people to commit themselves to follow God's commands and took decisive action against the many forms of idolatry found in his kingdom (see vv. 4-20).

23:12-15 Previous kings Ahaz, Manasseh, and Solomon were responsible for some of the idolatrous worship that had been going on.

23:16-18 Josiah's defilement of the altar at Bethel by burning human bones on it fulfilled the prophecy of this unnamed man of God (cp. 1Kg 13:2). Upon learning of his tomb's proximity, Josiah commanded that his remains be left undisturbed.

23:21-23 God had commanded that the Passover be celebrated every year (Ex 12:1-14; Lv 23:4-5; Nm 9:2-3), but the Israelites had neglected it from the time of the judges until Josiah's celebration.

23:24-25 Josiah's zeal to obey the Scripture in ridding the land of idolatry was unparalleled among the kings of Judah (see also the note on 18:3-6). In language reminiscent of Deuteronomy 6:5, he turned to the LORD with all his heart and with all his soul and with all his strength according to all the law of Moses (see also v. 3). Nevertheless, the reforms were external and the hearts of the people were not turned exclusively and faithfully to God. Thus, God's plan to punish Judah for its disobedience had not changed (vv. 26-27; see also 1Kg 9:6-9).

23:34 Following Jehoahaz's imprisonment by Pharaoh Neco (v. 33), his brother Eliakim (i.e., Jehoiakim) was made king.

JEHOIAKIM'S REBELLION AND DEATH

24 During † Jehoiakim's reign, † King Nebuchadnezzar † of Babylon † attacked. † Jehoiakim became his vassal for three years, and then he turned and rebelled against him. 2 The LORD sent Chaldean, Aramean, † Moabite, † and Ammonite raiders against Jehoiakim. He sent them against Judah to destroy it, according to the word of the LORD he had spoken through his servants the prophets. † 3 Indeed, this happened to Judah at the LORD's command to remove them from his presence. † It was because of the sins of Manasseh, according to all he had done, † 4 and also because of all the innocent blood he had shed. He had filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, † and the LORD was not willing to forgive.

5 The rest of the events of Jehoiakim's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. †

6 Jehoiakim rested with his fathers, and his son Jehoiachin became king in his place. †

7 Now the king of Egypt did not march out of his land again, † for the king of Babylon took everything that had belonged to the king of Egypt, † from the Brook of Egypt to the Euphrates River. †

JUDAH'S KING JEHOIACHIN

8 Jehoiachin was eighteen years old when he became king, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Nehushta daughter of Elnathan; she was from Jerusalem. † 9 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight just as his father had done.

DEPORTATIONS TO BABYLON

10 At that time † the servants of King Nebuchadnezzar † of Babylon marched up to Jerusalem, and the city came under siege. 11 King Nebuchadnezzar of

Babylon came to the city while his servants were besieging it. 12 King Jehoiachin of Judah, along with his mother, his servants, his commanders, and his officials, † surrendered to the king of Babylon. †
So the king of Babylon took him captive in the eighth year of his reign. 13 He also carried off from there all the treasures of the LORD's temple and the treasures of the king's palace, and he cut into pieces all the gold articles that King Solomon of Israel had made † for the LORD's sanctuary, just as the LORD had predicted. † 14 He deported all Jerusalem and all the commanders and all the best soldiers † — ten thousand captives † including all the craftsmen and metalsmiths. † Except for the poorest people of the land, † no one remained.
15 Nebuchadnezzar deported Jehoiachin to Babylon. He took the king's mother, the king's wives, his officials, and the leading men of the land into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon. † 16 The king of Babylon brought captive into Babylon all seven thousand of the best soldiers and one thousand craftsmen and metalsmiths — all strong and fit for war. 17 And the king of Babylon made Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's † uncle, king in his place and changed his name to Zedekiah. †

JUDAH'S KING ZEDEKIAH

18 Zedekiah † was twenty-one years old when he became king, † and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal † daughter of Jeremiah; she was from Libnah. 19 Zedekiah did what was evil in the LORD's sight just as Jehoiakim had done. † 20 Because of the LORD's anger, † it came to the point in Jerusalem and Judah that he finally banished them from his presence. † Then Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. †

24:1-4 Jehoiakim's reign saw the first of three invasions by King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon (see v. 10;

25:1). Judah's punishment by Babylon and other foreign nations was in fulfillment of the word of God spoken through his servants the prophets (see also 20:16-18). Special mention had also been made of the sins of Manasseh in 23:26 (see also 21:16).

24:10-16 Jehoiachin's reign also saw an invasion by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon (see previous note). The ruler took captive Jehoiachin and many other leaders to Babylon, and he also took all the treasures of the LORD's temple and the treasures of the king's palace (see also the notes on 16:8 and 20:16-18).

24:20 Zedekiah was the last king of Judah, and his rebellion against Babylon would lead to the end of the kingdom of Judah.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S SIEGE OF JERUSALEM

25 In the ninth year † of Zedekiah's reign, † on the tenth day of the tenth month, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon advanced against Jerusalem with his entire army. † They laid siege to the city and built a siege wall against it all around. † 2 The city was under siege until King Zedekiah's eleventh year.
3 By the ninth day of the fourth month the famine was so severe in the city that the common people had no food. † 4 Then the city was broken into, † and all the warriors fled † at night by way of the city gate between the two walls near the king's garden, † even though the Chaldeans surrounded the city. As the king made his way along the route to the Arabah, † 5 the Chaldean army pursued him and overtook him in the plains of Jericho. Zedekiah's entire army left him and scattered. † 6 The Chaldeans seized the king † and brought him up to the king of Babylon † at Riblah, † and they passed sentence on him. 7 They slaughtered Zedekiah's sons before his eyes. Finally, the king of Babylon blinded Zedekiah, bound him in bronze chains, and took him to Babylon. †

JERUSALEM DESTROYED

8 On † the seventh day of the fifth month — which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon — Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guards, a servant of the king of Babylon, entered Jerusalem. † 9 He burned the LORD's temple, † the king's palace, † and all the houses of Jerusalem; he burned down † all the great houses. 10 The whole Chaldean army with the captain of the guards tore down the walls † surrounding Jerusalem. 11 Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guards, deported the rest of the people who remained in the city, the deserters who had defected to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the population. † 12 But the captain of the guards left some of the poorest of the land to be vinedressers and farmers. †

13 Now † the Chaldeans broke into pieces the bronze pillars † of the LORD's temple, the water carts, and the bronze basin, † † which were in the LORD's temple, and carried the bronze to Babylon. † 14 They also took the pots, shovels, wick trimmers, dishes, and all the bronze articles used in the priests' service. † 15 The captain of the guards took away the firepans and sprinkling basins — whatever was gold or silver. †
16 As for the two pillars, the one basin, and the water carts that Solomon had made for the LORD's temple, the weight of the bronze of all these articles was beyond measure. † 17 One pillar was twenty-seven feet † tall and had a bronze capital on top of it. The capital, encircled by a grating and pomegranates of bronze, stood five feet † high. The second pillar was the same, with its own grating. †
18 The captain of the guards † also took away Seraiah † the chief priest, Zephaniah † the priest of the second rank, and the three doorkeepers. 19 From the city he took a court official † who had been appointed over the warriors; five trusted royal aides † † found in the city; the secretary of the commander of the army, who enlisted the people of the land for military duty; and sixty men from the common people † who were found within the city. 20 Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guards, took them and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. † 21 The king of Babylon put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. So Judah went into exile from its land. †

GEDALIAH MADE GOVERNOR

22 King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon appointed Gedaliah † son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, over the rest of the people he left in the land of Judah. † 23 When all the commanders of the armies — they and their men — heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah, they came to Gedaliah at Mizpah. † The commanders included Ishmael son of Nethaniah, Johanan son of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and Jaazaniah son of the Maacathite — they and their men. † 24 Gedaliah swore an oath to them and their men, assuring them, “Don’t be afraid of the servants of the Chaldeans. Live in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it will go well for you.” † 25 In the seventh month, however, Ishmael son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, of the royal family, came with ten men and struck down Gedaliah, and he died. Also, they killed the Judeans and the Chaldeans who were with him at Mizpah. † 26 Then all the people, from the youngest to the oldest, and the commanders of the army, left and went to Egypt, for they were afraid of the Chaldeans. †

JEHOIACHIN PARDONED

27 On † the twenty-seventh day of the twelfth month of the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Judah’s King Jehoiachin, in the year Evil-merodach became king of Babylon, he pardoned King Jehoiachin † of Judah and released him † from prison. † 28 He spoke kindly † to him and set his throne over the thrones of the kings who were with him in Babylon. † 29 So Jehoiachin changed his prison clothes, and he dined regularly in the presence of the king of Babylon for the rest of his life. † 30 As for his allowance, a regular allowance † was given to him by the king, a portion for each day, for the rest of his life.

25:7 One of the last sights Zedekiah saw was the execution of his sons (see also Ezk 12:13).

25:9-12 Having already plundered the temple and the king’s palace (see 24:13), Nebuchadnezzar burned them along with all the houses in Jerusalem and deported the rest of the people who remained in the city (see 24:12-16). Only the poorest were left behind (see 24:14).

25:13-17 Solomon’s glorious temple had been plundered (24:13) and burned (v. 9), and now its bronze articles were being dismantled and taken to Babylon. The Lord had said to Solomon that something like this would happen if the Israelites were disobedient to his law (see 1Kg 9:6-9). Judgment had finally come.

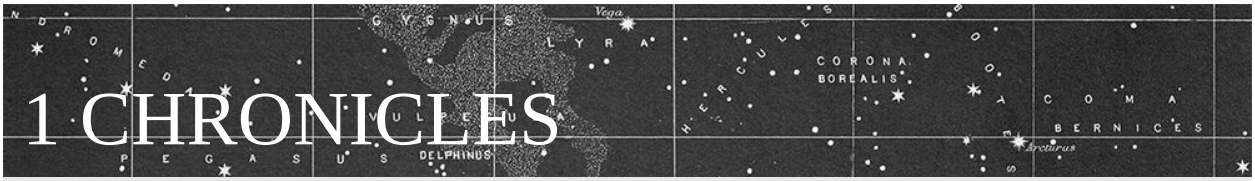
25:21 Judah's exile in 586 BC fulfilled the words of Moses and the prophets (e.g., 24:2; Dt 4:25-28).

25:26 The Israelites' flight to Egypt was a sad reversal of their exodus from there. The Lord did not want them to return (Dt 17:16), and their journey was associated with punishment for their disobedience (Dt 28:68).

25:27-30 Despite Israel's downward trend in 1 and 2 Kings ending in the fall and exile of both Israel and Judah, these books end on a positive note with a subtle reminder of God's continuing faithfulness to his promises to David, reflected by the favor shown to the captive king Jehoiachin. The Lord had not forgotten his covenant and would still bring through this royal line one whose throne would be established forever (see the notes on 8:16-19 and 2Sm 7:8-16).



1 CHRONICLES

INTRODUCTION

The word Chronicles in Hebrew has the meaning of an ongoing account, almost like a journal or diary or minutes taken at a meeting. They are the first and second books of a four-book series that includes Ezra and Nehemiah. Together these four books provide a priestly history of Israel from the time of Adam to the rebuilding of the house of God and the walls of Jerusalem. At one time the book of Chronicles was probably one single scroll, which was divided later for convenience by those who translated the OT into Greek (the Septuagint, aka LXX).

AUTHOR: An ancient tradition ascribes the authorship of Chronicles to Ezra. The author must have lived some time after the return of the Jews to Israel from the Babylonian exile. He also had a strong interest in the reimplementation of the law and the temple, and he must have had access to historical records. All of these criteria suit Ezra, and this identification is corroborated by the fact that the last verses of Chronicles are the first verses of the book of Ezra. However, since the book does not explicitly claim Ezra for its author, in these notes we will refer to him simply as the "Chronicler."

BACKGROUND: The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles include extensive genealogies from the time of Adam and take the reader up to the period of the nation's exile and restoration. First Chronicles gives us the genealogies and focuses on the reign of King David. Second Chronicles focuses on all the kings who followed David up to the exile and restoration. It covers the same time period as 1 and 2 Kings, but 2 Chronicles focuses exclusively on the kings of Judah. The content of the books necessitates that they were written sometime after the return from the exile, perhaps the middle of the fifth century BC.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

Chronicles brings together many dimensions of biblical revelation, such as historical events (as recounted in Genesis through Kings), temple ritual (as prescribed in Leviticus), sin and judgment (as preached by the prophets), and even some psalms. Because a recurring theme is that God will always accept people who return to him no matter how wicked they may have been, it has been called, perhaps a little whimsically, "The Gospel According to Ezra." The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles give us the big picture of OT history, capturing the Davidic covenant in light of Israel's history back to Adam and pointing to the eternal continuation of that covenant through the reign of the Messiah.

STRUCTURE

The Hebrew Bible divides its books into three categories: the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings. In this arrangement, the books of Samuel and Kings are counted among the Prophets, whereas Chronicles belongs to the Writings. This classification may be partially due to the fact that Chronicles repeats information, such as the genealogies of Genesis and the histories of the kings of Judah from the books of Samuel and Kings. Still the Chronicler uses this repeated content to support his own point, and he also adds a lot of information that we find in Chronicles alone. He limits his discussion of the various kings almost entirely to those of Judah, the southern kingdom.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

God is sovereign in carrying out his kingdom plans. His unconditional covenant with undeserving David (chap. 17) is as magnificent as his covenant with Abraham. He desires the worship of his people in the ways he has revealed. (See alternative reading of 28:12 for the Holy Spirit's work in revealing the plans for temple construction.) David's concern for the ark of the covenant, his preparation for building the temple, and his organizing the priests and Levites properly show this.

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

The long genealogies at the beginning of 1 Chronicles show that God cares for people as individuals. Each one has worth as created in the image of God. If a historian took the trouble to discover and preserve these lists that may seem tedious, how much more does God care for the "little people" who can appear to be insignificant. Moreover, David modeled magnificently that humans can accomplish great tasks for God when their hearts are passionately turned to pleasing him.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

The book's clearest teaching on salvation as the gift of God is David's psalm of thanksgiving when the ark of the covenant was finally moved into a tent (chap. 16). The conclusion especially demonstrates that the purpose of salvation is to bring glory to God: "Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; his faithful love endures forever. And say: 'Save us, God of our salvation; gather us and rescue us from the nations so that we may give thanks to your holy name and rejoice in your praise. Blessed be the LORD God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting'" (16:34-36).

1:1 The most obvious feature of 1 and 2 Chronicles is the sheer amount of material they share with the books of Samuel and Kings. However, 1 and 2 Chronicles do have unique features, such as the lengthy section of genealogies at the beginning (1:1–9:44). Unlike Samuel and Kings viewed together, Chronicles begins with Adam the first man and ends with the decree of Cyrus (2Ch 36:22-23; see also the note on 1Ch 9:1-2). As such, Jerome called it a "chronicle of the whole of sacred history." Another feature unique to Chronicles is its focus on the Davidic line of kings in Israel and later in Judah (see the note on 2Ch 11:13-17). The kings of the northern kingdom of Israel receive far less attention than they do in 1 and 2 Kings. Furthermore, Chronicles goes into even greater detail about the temple than Kings does (see 1Ch 22–29).

1:10 The Hebrew text underlying this statement about Nimrod is identical to the corresponding Hebrew text in Genesis 10:8. The surrounding genealogy itself matches what is found in Genesis, leading some scholars to believe that the author of Chronicles used existing Scripture in the composition of his book (see also the notes on vv. 43-54; 2:3,7; 5:1; 10:1-12).

1:43-54 This passage is almost identical to Genesis 36:31-43 and gives further evidence that the author of Chronicles had access to and used existing Scripture in the composition of his work (see previous note).

ISRAEL'S SONS

2 These † were Israel's sons:
Reuben, Simeon, Levi,
Judah, Issachar, Zebulun,
2 Dan, Joseph, Benjamin,
Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

JUDAH'S DESCENDANTS

JUDAH'S DESCENDANTS

3 Judah's † sons: Er, Onan, and Shelah. † These three were born to him by Bath-shua the Canaanite woman. Er, Judah's firstborn, was evil in the LORD's sight, so he put him to death. 4 Judah's daughter-in-law Tamar bore Perez and Zerah to him. Judah had five sons in all.

5 Perez's sons: Hezron and Hamul.

6 Zerah's sons: Zimri, Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Dara † † — five in all.

7 Carmi's son: Achar, † † who brought trouble on Israel when he was unfaithful by taking the things set apart for destruction.

8 Ethan's son: Azariah.

9 Hezron's sons, who were born to him: Jerahmeel, Ram, and Chelubai. †

10 Ram fathered Amminadab, and Amminadab fathered Nahshon, a leader of Judah's descendants.

11 Nahshon fathered Salma, and Salma fathered Boaz.

12 Boaz fathered Obed, and Obed fathered Jesse.

13 Jesse fathered Eliab, his firstborn; Abinadab was born second, Shimea third, 14 Nethanel fourth, Raddai fifth, 15 Ozem sixth, and David seventh. 16 Their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail.
Zeruiah's three sons: Abishai, Joab, and Asahel. 17 Amasa's mother was Abigail, and his father was Jether the Ishmaelite.

18 Caleb son of Hezron had children by his wife Azubah and by Jerioth. These were Azubah's sons: Jesher, Shobab, and Ardon. 19 When Azubah died, Caleb married Ephrath, and she bore Hur to him. 20 Hur fathered Uri, and Uri fathered Bezalel. 21 After this, Hezron slept with the daughter of Machir the father of Gilead. † Hezron had married her when he was sixty years old, and she bore

Segub to him. 22 Segub fathered Jair, who possessed twenty-three towns in the land of Gilead. 23 But Geshur and Aram captured † Jair's Villages † along with Kenath and its surrounding villages — sixty towns. All these were the descendants of Machir father of Gilead. 24 After Hezron's death in Caleb-ephrathah, his wife Abijah bore † Ashhur to him. He was the father of Tekoa.

25 The sons of Jerahmeel, Hezron's firstborn: Ram, his firstborn, Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. 26 Jerahmeel had another wife named Atarah, who was the mother of Onam.

27 The sons of Ram, Jerahmeel's firstborn: Maaz, Jamin, and Eker.

28 Onam's sons: Shammai and Jada.

Shammai's sons: Nadab and Abishur. 29 Abishur's wife was named Abihail, who bore Ahban and Molid to him.

30 Nadab's sons: Seled and Appaim. Seled died without children.

31 Appaim's son: Ishi.

Ishi's son: Sheshan.

Sheshan's descendant: Ahlai.

32 The sons of Jada, brother of Shammai: Jether and Jonathan.
Jether died without children.

33 Jonathan's sons: Peleth and Zaza. These were the descendants of Jerahmeel.

34 Sheshan had no sons, only daughters, but he did have an Egyptian servant whose name was Jarha. 35 Sheshan gave his daughter in marriage to his servant Jarha, and she bore Attai to him.

36 Attai fathered Nathan, and Nathan fathered Zabad.

37 Zabad fathered Ephlal, and Ephlal fathered Obed.

38 Obed fathered Jehu, and Jehu fathered Azariah.

39 Azariah fathered Helez, and Helez fathered Elasah.

40 Elasah fathered Sismai, and Sismai fathered Shallum.
41 Shallum fathered Jekamiah, and Jekamiah fathered Elishama.

42 The sons of Caleb brother of Jerahmeel: Mesha, his firstborn, fathered Ziph, and Mareshah, his second son, † fathered Hebron.
43 Hebron's sons: Korah, Tappuah, Rekem, and Shema.
44 Shema fathered Raham, who fathered Jorkeam, and Rekem fathered Shammai.
45 Shammai's son was Maon, and Maon fathered Beth-zur.
46 Caleb's concubine Ephah was the mother of Haran, Moza, and Gazez. Haran fathered Gazez.
47 Jahdai's sons: Regem, Jotham, Geshan, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaaph.
48 Caleb's concubine Maacah was the mother of Sheber and Tirhanah. 49 She was also the mother of Shaaph, Madmannah's father, and of Sheva, the father of Machbenah and Gibea. Caleb's daughter was Achsah.
50 These were Caleb's descendants.

The sons of Hur, Ephrathah's firstborn:
Shobal fathered Kiriath-jearim;
51 Salma fathered Bethlehem, and Hareph fathered Beth-gader.

52 These were the descendants of Shobal the father of Kiriath-jearim: Haroeh, half of the Manahathites, † 53 and the families of Kiriath-jearim — the Ithrites, Puthites, Shumathites, and Mishraites. The Zorathites and Eshtaolites descended from these.
54 Salma's descendants: Bethlehem, the Netophathites, Atroth-beth-joab, and half of the Manahathites, the Zorites, 55 and the families of scribes who lived in Jabez — the Tirathites, Shimeathites, and Sucathites. These are the Kenites who came from Hammath, the father of Rechab's family.

2:1-2 The genealogy shifts here from Edom, the descendants of Esau, to Israel, the descendants of Jacob. What follows is a focus on Judah, the tribe of David (vv. 3-15; 3:1-24). This is in keeping with the emphasis of 1 and 2 Chronicles as a whole (see the note on 1:1).

2:3 The statement about Er, Judah's firstborn, is almost identical to Genesis 38:7 and suggests the biblical author's awareness of this passage (see the note on 1:10).

2:7 Achar, also known as Achan, was the one who stole plunder from Jericho. His characterization as unfaithful matches what is said in Joshua 7:1.

2:10-17 After Jacob's sons are listed (vv. 1-2), Judah, Israel's leading tribe (see 5:2; note on Nm 2:3-9), is considered next. The focus narrows even further on the line of David here and in 3:1-24. The three sons of Zeruiah were his relatives and will be part of the subsequent narrative. Amasa was also a relative and is known primarily through passages pertaining to him in 2 Samuel 17–20, since he does not reappear in 1 and 2 Chronicles.

2:18-20 After tracing the line of David through Hezron's son Ram (v. 9), the genealogy traces the lineage of another important descendant of Judah, Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur. This was the Bezalel who led the construction of the tabernacle in Moses's day (e.g., Ex 31:2; 35:30). The biblical author will refer to him again when Solomon builds the temple (2Ch 1:5).

2:25 Jerahmeel was another of Hezron's sons (see vv. 9-10,18,42).

DAVID'S DESCENDANTS

3 These † were David's sons who were born to him in Hebron:

Amnon was the firstborn, by Ahinoam of Jezreel;
Daniel was born second, by Abigail of Carmel;

2 Absalom son of Maacah, daughter of King Talmai of Geshur, was third;
Adonijah son of Haggith was fourth;

3 Shephatiah, by Abital, was fifth;
and Ithream, by David's wife Eglah, was sixth.

4 Six sons were born to David in Hebron, where he reigned seven years and six months, and he reigned in Jerusalem thirty-three years. †

5 These † sons were born to him in Jerusalem:

Shimea, Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon. † These four were born to him by Bath-shua † daughter of Ammiel.

6 David's other sons: Ibhar, Elishua, † † Eliphelet, 7 Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, 8 Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet — nine sons.

9 These were all David's sons, with their sister Tamar, † in addition to the sons by his concubines.

JUDAH'S KINGS

10 Solomon's son was Rehoboam;
his son was Abijah, his son Asa,

his son Jehoshaphat, 11 his son Jehoram, † † his son Ahaziah, his son Joash,

12 his son Amaziah, his son Azariah, his son Jotham, 13 his son Ahaz, his son Hezekiah, his son Manasseh,

14 his son Amon, and his son Josiah.

15 Josiah's sons:
Johanan was the firstborn, Jehoiakim second,
Zedekiah third, and Shallum fourth.

16 Jehoiakim's sons:
his sons Jeconiah and Zedekiah.

DAVID'S LINE AFTER THE EXILE

17 The sons of Jeconiah the captive:

his sons Shealtiel, 18 Malchiram, Pedaiah, Shenazzar, Jekamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah.

19 Pedaiah's sons: Zerubbabel and Shimei.

Zerubbabel's sons: Meshullam and Hananiah, with their sister Shelomith; 20 and five others — Hashubah, Ohel, Berechiah, Hasadiah, and Jushab-hesed.

21 Hananiah's descendants: Pelatiah, Jeshaiah, and the sons of Rephaiah, Arnan, Obadiah, and Shecaniah. †

22 The son † of Shecaniah: Shemaiah.

Shemaiah's sons: Hattush, Igal, Bariah, Neariah, and Shaphat — six.

23 Neariah's sons: Elioenai, Hizkiah, and Azrikam — three.

3:1-9 David's lineage was given in 2:10-17, and here his family is highlighted. The opening chapters of 1 Chronicles have thus begun with the forefather of the human race, Adam (1:1), followed by a survey of many generations while emphasizing David's lineage.

3:10-24 The emphasis on David's line continues with a listing of his descendants who sat upon his throne. Details of their respective reigns will be given later in 2 Chronicles. The reference to Jeconiah the captive (v. 17) is a reminder that the biblical author has composed his work after the falls of Israel and Judah (see 2Ch 36:22-23) and expects the reader to view it from that perspective (see also 5:6,22,26; 6:15; note on 9:1-2). He even lists seven more generations after Jeconiah.

JUDAH'S DESCENDANTS

4 Judah's sons: † Perez, Hezron, Carmi, Hur, and Shobal.
2 Reaiah son of Shobal fathered Jahath, and Jahath fathered

Ahumai and Lahad.
These were the families of the Zorathites.

3 These were Etam's sons: † Jezreel, Ishma, and Idbash, and their sister was named Hazzelelponi.

4 Penuel fathered Gedor, and Ezer fathered Hushah.
These were the sons of Hur, Ephrathah's firstborn and the father of Bethlehem:

5 Ashhur fathered Tekoa and had two wives, Helah and Naarah.

6 Naarah bore Ahuzzam, Hepher, Temeni, and Haahashtari to him.
These were Naarah's sons.

7 Helah's sons: Zereth, Zohar, † and Ethnan. 8 Koz fathered Anub, Zobebah, † and the families of Aharhel son of Harum.

9 Jabez † was more honored than his brothers. His mother named him Jabez and said, "I gave birth to him in pain."
10 Jabez called out to the God of Israel: "If only you would bless me, extend my border, let your hand be with me, and keep me from harm, so that I will not experience pain." † And God granted his request.

11 Chelub brother of Shuhah fathered Mehir, who was the father of Eshton. 12 Eshton fathered Beth-rapha, Paseah, and Tehinnah the father of Irnahash. These were the men of Recah.

13 Kenaz's sons: Othniel and Seraiah.

Othniel's sons: Hathath and Meonothai. †

14 Meonothai fathered Ophrah, and Seraiah fathered Joab, the ancestor of those in the Craftsmen's Valley, † for they were craftsmen.

15 The sons of Caleb son of Jephunneh: Iru, Elah, and Naam.
Elah's son: Kenaz.

16 Jehallelel’s sons: Ziph, Ziphah, Tiria, and Asarel.

17 Ezrah’s sons: Jether, Mered, Epher, and Jalon. Mered’s wife Bithiah gave birth to Miriam, Shammai, and Ishbah the father of Eshtemoa. 18 These were the sons of Pharaoh’s daughter Bithiah; Mered had married her. His Judean wife gave birth to Jered the father of Gedor, Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. 19 The sons of Hodiah’s wife, the sister of Naham: the father of Keilah the Garmite and the father of Eshtemoa the Maacathite.

20 Shimon’s sons: Amnon, Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon.
Ishi’s sons: Zoheth and Ben-zoheth.

21 The sons of Shelah son of Judah: Er the father of Lecah, Laadah the father of Mareshah, the families of the guild † of linen workers at Beth-ashbea, 22 Jokim, the men of Cozeba; and Joash and Saraph, who married Moabites † and returned to Lehem. † These names are from ancient records. 23 They were the potters and residents of Netaim and Gederah. They lived there in the service of the king.

SIMEON’S DESCENDANTS

24 Simeon’s sons: † Nemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zerah, and Shaul;

25 Shaul’s sons: his son Shallum, his son Mibsam, and his son Mishma.

26 Mishma’s sons: his son Hammuel, his son Zaccur, and his son Shimei.

27 Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters, but his brothers did not have many children, so their whole family did not become as numerous as the Judeans. 28 They lived in Beer-sheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual, 29 Bilhah, Ezem, Tolad, 30 Bethuel, Hormah, Ziklag, 31 Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susim, Beth-biri, and Shaaraim. These were their cities until David became king. 32 Their villages were Etam, Ain, Rimmon, Tochen, and Ashan — five cities, 33 and all their surrounding villages as far as Baal. These were their settlements, and they kept a genealogical record for themselves.

34 Meshobab, Jamlech, Joshah son of Amaziah, 35 Joel, Jehu son of Joshibiah, son of Seraiah, son of Asiel, 36 Elioenai, Jaakobah, Jeshohaiah, Asaiah, Adiel, Jesimiel, Benaiah, 37 and Ziza son of Shiphi, son of Allon, son of Jedaiah, son of Shimri, son of Shemaiah —

38 these mentioned by name were leaders in their families. Their ancestral houses increased greatly. 39 They went to the entrance of Gedor, to the east side of the valley to seek pasture for their flocks. 40 They found rich, good pasture, and the land was broad, peaceful, and quiet, † for some Hamites had lived there previously.
41 These † who were recorded by name came in the days of King Hezekiah of Judah, attacked the Hamites' tents and the Meunites who were found there, and set them apart for destruction, † as they are today. Then they settled in their place because there was pasture for their flocks. 42 Now five hundred men from these sons of Simeon went with Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the descendants of Ishi, as their leaders to Mount Seir. † 43 They struck down † the remnant of the Amalekites who had escaped, and they still live there today.

4:3 LXX; MT reads father 4:7 Alt Hb tradition reads Izhar 4:8 Or Hazzobebah 4:9 In Hb, the name Jabez sounds like "he causes pain." 4:10 Or not cause any pain 4:13 LXX, Vg; MT omits and Meonothai 4:14 Or the Ge-harashim 4:21 Lit house 4:22 Or who ruled over Moab 4:22 Tg, Vg; MT reads and Jashubi Lehem 4:1 1Ch 2:5,18,50 4:24 Gn 46:10 4:40 Jdg 18:7-10 4:41 1Ch 4:33-38 4:41 Nm 21:3; Dt 2:34; 7:2; 13:15; Jos 6:17-21 4:42 Gn 36:8-9 4:43 1Sm 15:7-8; 30:17

4:1 The genealogy returns to other descendants of Judah, as it had earlier (see 2:18-55).

4:9-10 This brief discussion of Jabez's prayer highlights the fact that God hears prayer (see the note on 5:20-22).

4:24 The extended treatment of Judah's descendants finally ended (2:3–4:23). Besides Levi and Benjamin, the other tribes are considered more briefly in this next section (see the notes on 6:1 and 8:1).

REUBEN'S DESCENDANTS

5 These were the sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel. He was the firstborn, † but his birthright was given to the sons of Joseph † son of Israel, because Reuben defiled his father's bed. † He is not listed in the genealogy according to birthright. 2 Although Judah became strong among his brothers † and a ruler came from him, † the birthright was given to Joseph.

3 The sons of Reuben, Israel's firstborn: † Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.
4 Joel's sons: his son Shemaiah, his son Gog, his son Shimei, 5 his son Micah, his son Reaiah, his son Baal, 6 and his son Beerah.

Beerah was a leader of the Reubenites, and King Tiglath-pileser † of Assyria took him into exile. 7 His relatives by their families as they are recorded in their family records: †

Jeiel the chief, Zechariah, 8 and Bela son of Azaz, son of Shema, son of Joel.

They settled in Aroer † as far as Nebo and Baal-meon. 9 They also settled in the east as far as the edge of the desert that extends to the Euphrates River, because their herds had increased in the land of Gilead. † 10 During Saul's reign they waged war against the Hagrites, † who were defeated by their power. And they lived in their tents throughout the region east of Gilead.

GAD'S DESCENDANTS

11 The sons † of Gad lived next to them in the land of Bashan as far as Salecah: †

12 Joel the chief, Shapham the second in command, Janai, and Shaphat in Bashan.
13 Their relatives according to their ancestral houses: Michael,
Meshullam, Sheba, Jorai, Jacan, Zia, and Eber — seven.
14 These were the sons of Abihail son of Huri, son of Jaroah, son of Gilead, son of Michael, son of Jeshishai, son of Jahdo, son of Buz.
15 Ahi son of Abdiel, son of Guni, was head of their ancestral family. † 16 They lived in Gilead, in Bashan and its surrounding villages, and throughout the pasturelands of Sharon. † 17 All of them were registered in the genealogies during the reigns of Judah's
King Jotham † and Israel's King Jeroboam. †

18 The descendants of Reuben and Gad and half the tribe of Manasseh had 44,760 warriors who could serve † in the army — men who carried shield and sword, drew the bow, and were trained for war. 19 They waged war against the Hagrites, † Jetur, † Naphish, and Nodab. 20 They received help against these enemies because they cried out to God in battle, and the Hagrites and all their allies were handed over to them. † He was receptive to their prayer because they trusted in him. † 21 They captured the Hagrites' livestock — fifty thousand of their camels, two hundred fifty thousand sheep, and two thousand donkeys — as well as one hundred thousand people. 22 Many of the Hagrites were killed because it was God's battle. † And they lived there in the Hagrites' place † until the exile. †

HALF THE TRIBE OF MANASSEH

23 The descendants of half the tribe of Manasseh settled in the land from Bashan to Baal-hermon (that is, Senir † or Mount Hermon); they were numerous.
24 These were the heads of their ancestral families: Epher, Ishi, Eliel, Azriel,

Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel. They were valiant warriors, famous men, and heads of their ancestral houses. 25 But they were unfaithful to the God of their ancestors. They prostituted themselves † with the gods of the nations † God had destroyed before them. † 26 So the God of Israel roused the spirit of King Pul † (that is, Tiglath-pileser †) of Assyria, and he took the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh into exile. He took them to Halah, Habor, Hara, and Gozan's river, where they are until today.

5:6 LXX; MT reads Tilgath-pilneser 5:15 Lit the house of their fathers, also in v. 24 5:25 Lit the peoples of the land 5:26 LXX; MT reads Tilgath-pilneser

5:1 The statement that Reuben defiled his father's bed uses the same vocabulary as Genesis 49:4 and probably was adapted from it (see the note on 1:10). It refers to the time when Reuben slept with Bilhah, his father's concubine, in Genesis 35:22. The giving of the birthright to Joseph's sons instead of Reuben is also consistent with Genesis 48–49.

5:6 Once again (see the note on 3:10-24), the biblical author refers to exile before he has even started telling the story about David and his line (see 1Ch 10). The exile in view concerns the northern kingdom (see v. 26).

5:20-22 As Jabez had done (see the note on 4:9-10), these soldiers cried out to God in battle and were answered by him. The Lord heard their prayer because they trusted in him (see also the note on 2Ch 7:13-14).

5:25-26 Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh were exiled to Assyria because, by worshiping idols, they were unfaithful to the God of their ancestors. The description of sin as being an act of unfaithfulness is common in 1 and 2 Chronicles (e.g., 2:7; 9:1; 10:13; 2Ch 12:2; 29:6; 30:7; 36:14).

THE MUSICIANS

31 These are the men David put in charge of the music in the LORD's temple † after the ark came to rest there. † 32 They ministered with song in front of the tabernacle, the tent of meeting, until Solomon built the LORD's temple in Jerusalem, and they performed their task according to the regulations given to them. 33 These are the men who served with their sons.

From the Kohathites: Heman the singer, son of Joel, son of Samuel,
34 son of Elkanah, son of Jeroham,

35 son of Zuph, son of Elkanah,

AARON'S DESCENDANTS

48 Their relatives, the Levites, were assigned to all the service of the tabernacle, God's temple. 49 But Aaron and his sons did all the work of the most holy place.
They presented the offerings on the altar of burnt offerings † and on the altar of incense † to make atonement for Israel according to all that Moses the servant of God had commanded. †

50 These † are Aaron's sons: his son Eleazar, his son Phinehas, his son Abishua, 51 his son Bukki, his son Uzzi, his son Zerahiah, 52 his son Meraioth, his son Amariah, his son Ahitub, 53 his son Zadok, and his son Ahimaaz.

THE SETTLEMENTS OF THE LEVITES

54 These were the places assigned to Aaron's descendants from the Kohathite family for their settlements in their territory, because the first lot was for them. † 55 They † were given Hebron in the land of Judah and its surrounding pasturelands, 56 but the fields and settlements around the city were given to Caleb son of Jephunneh. 57 Aaron's descendants were given: † Hebron (a city of refuge), Libnah and its pasturelands, Jattir, Eshtemoa and its pasturelands, 58 Hilen † and its pasturelands, Debir and its pasturelands, 59 Ashan and its pasturelands, and Beth-shemesh and its pasturelands. 60 From the tribe of Benjamin they were given Geba and its pasturelands, Alemeth and its pasturelands, and Anathoth and its pasturelands. They had thirteen towns in all among their families.
61 To the rest of the Kohathites, ten towns from half the tribe of Manasseh were assigned by lot. †

62 The Gershomites were assigned thirteen towns from the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and Manasseh in Bashan according to their families.
63 The Merarites were assigned by lot twelve towns from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun according to their families. † 64 So the Israelites gave these towns and their pasturelands to the Levites. † 65 They assigned by lot the towns named above † from the tribes of the descendants of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin.
66 Some † of the families of the Kohathites were given towns from the tribe of Ephraim for their territory:
67 Shechem (a city of refuge) with its pasturelands in the hill country of Ephraim, Gezer and its pasturelands, 68 Jokmeam and its pasturelands, Bethhoron and its pasturelands, 69 Aijalon and its pasturelands, and Gath-rimmon and its pasturelands. 70 From half the tribe of Manasseh, Aner and its pasturelands, and Bileam and its pasturelands were given to the rest of the families of the Kohathites.
71 The Gershomites received:
Golan in Bashan and its pasturelands, and Ashtaroth and its pasturelands from the families of half the tribe of Manasseh. 72 From the tribe of Issachar they received Kedesh and its pasturelands, Daberath and its pasturelands, 73 Ramoth and its pasturelands, and Anem and its pasturelands. 74 From the tribe of Asher they received Mashal and its pasturelands, Abdon and its pasturelands, 75 Hukok and its pasturelands, and Rehob and its pasturelands. 76 From the tribe of Naphtali they received Kedesh in Galilee and its pasturelands, Hammon and its pasturelands, and Kiriathaim and its pasturelands.
77 The rest of the Merarites received:
From the tribe of Zebulun they received Rimmono and its pasturelands and Tabor and its pasturelands. 78 From the tribe of Reuben across the Jordan at Jericho, to the east of the Jordan, they received Bezer in the desert and its pasturelands, Jahzah and its pasturelands, 79 Kedemoth and its pasturelands, and Mephaath and its pasturelands. 80 From the tribe of Gad they received Ramoth in Gilead and its pasturelands, Mahanaim and its pasturelands, 81 Heshbon and its pasturelands, and Jazer and its pasturelands.

6:1 Levi is another tribe that receives relatively greater attention than the others (see the note on 4:24). The reason for this is likely the Levites' role in the temple (see 1Ch 23–26). The lines of Moses, and of Aaron and the priests, are given first (vv. 1-15).

6:15 The exile of Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh had been referenced in 5:26. Here the southern kingdom's exile by Babylon is mentioned (see the note on 3:10-24).

6:31-46 David's appointment of men to be in charge of music at the temple will be explained in greater detail in 1 Chronicles 25. Heman, Asaph, and Ethan (perhaps also known as Jeduthun) will be repeatedly mentioned later in that context (see 15:17,19; 25:1,6; 2Ch 5:12).

6:54-64 The giving of cities to the priests and Levites had been arranged through Moses and Joshua (see Nm 35 and Jos 21).

8:1 Though already mentioned in 7:6-12, Benjamin is revisited at length in this chapter (see the note on 4:24). Saul's lineage (vv. 29-38) is repeated in 9:35-44 and links with the events narrated in 10:1-14.

AFTER THE EXILE

9 All Israel was registered in the genealogies that are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel. But Judah was exiled † to Babylon because of their unfaithfulness. 2 The first † to live in their towns on their own property again were Israelites, priests, Levites, and temple servants. †

3 These people from the descendants of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh settled in Jerusalem:
4 Uthai son of Ammihud, son of Omri, son of Imri, son of Bani, a descendant † of Perez son of Judah;
5 from the Shilonites:
Asaiah the firstborn and his sons;
6 and from the descendants of Zerah:
Jeuel and their relatives — 690 in all.

7 The Benjaminites: Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Hodaviah, son of Hassenuah;
8 Ibneiah son of Jeroham;
Elah son of Uzzi, son of Michri;
Meshullam son of Shephatiah, son of Reuel, son of Ibnijah; 9 and their relatives according to their family records — 956 † in all. All these men were heads of their ancestral families. †

10 The priests: † Jedaiah; Jehoiarib; Jachin; 11 Azariah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, the chief official † of God's temple;
12 Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah; Maasai son of Adiel, son of Jahzerah, son of Meshullam, son of Meshillemith, son of Immer;

13 and their relatives, the heads of their ancestral families — 1,760 in all. They were capable men employed in the ministry of God's temple.

14 The Levites: Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah of the Merarites;
15 Bakbakkar, Heresh, Galal, and Mattaniah, son of Mica, son of Zichri, son of Asaph;
16 Obadiah son of Shemaiah, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun; and Berechiah son of Asa, son of Elkanah who lived in the settlements of the Netophathites.

17 The gatekeepers: † Shallum, Akkub, Talmon, Ahiman, and their relatives.
Shallum was their chief; 18 he was previously stationed at the King's Gate on the east side. † These were the gatekeepers from the camp of the Levites.
19 Shallum son of Kore, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah and his relatives from his father's family, † the Korahites, were assigned to guard the thresholds of the tent. † Their ancestors had been assigned to the LORD's camp as guardians of the entrance. † 20 In earlier times Phinehas son of Eleazar had been their leader, and the LORD was with him. † 21 Zechariah son of Meshelemiah was the gatekeeper at the entrance to the tent of meeting. †

22 The total number of those chosen to be gatekeepers at the thresholds was 212.
They were registered by genealogy in their settlements. David and the seer Samuel had appointed them † to their trusted positions. 23 So they and their sons were assigned as guards to the gates of the LORD's temple, which had been the tent-temple. 24 The gatekeepers were on the four sides: east, west, north, and south. 25 Their relatives came from their settlements † at fixed times to be with them seven days, † 26 but the four chief gatekeepers, who were Levites, were entrusted with the rooms and the treasuries of God's temple. † 27 They spent the night in the vicinity of God's temple, because they had guard duty and were in charge of opening it every morning. †

28 Some of them were in charge of the utensils used in worship. They would count them when they brought them in and when they took them out. 29 Others were put in charge of the furnishings and all the utensils of the sanctuary, † as well as the fine flour, † wine, oil, incense, and spices. 30 Some of the priests' sons mixed the spices. † 31 A Levite called Mattithiah, the firstborn of Shallum the Korahite, was entrusted with baking the bread. † 32 Some of the Kohathites' relatives were responsible for preparing the rows of the Bread of the Presence † every Sabbath.

33 The singers, † the heads of the Levite families, stayed in the temple chambers and were exempt from other tasks because they were on duty day and night. †

34 These † were the heads of the Levite families, chiefs according to their family records; they lived in Jerusalem.

SAUL'S FAMILY

35 Jeiel fathered Gibeon and lived in Gibeon. His wife's name was Maacah. 36 Abdon was his firstborn son, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, 37 Gedor, Ahio, Zechariah, and Mikloth. 38 Mikloth fathered Shimeam. These also lived opposite their relatives in Jerusalem with their other relatives.

39 Ner fathered Kish, Kish fathered Saul, and Saul fathered Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Eshbaal.

40 Jonathan's son was Merib-baal, and Merib-baal fathered Micah.

41 Micah's sons: Pithon, Melech, Tahrea, and Ahaz. †

42 Ahaz fathered Jarah;
Jarah fathered Alemeth. Azmaveth. and Zimri:

Zimri fathered Moza.

43 Moza fathered Binea.

His son was Rephaiah, his son Elasah, and his son Azel.

44 Azel had six sons, and these were their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan. These were Azel's sons.

9:1-2 The biblical author concludes the preceding genealogies by stating that all Israel was registered in the genealogies. His perspective of looking back on the exile resurfaces (see the notes on 1:1 and 3:10-24). Regarding unfaithfulness in Chronicles, see the note on 5:25-26.

9:17-27 Such gatekeepers will be mentioned repeatedly in 1 Chronicles (15:18,23-24; 16:38; 23:5; 26:1-19).

9:39 The repetition of Saul's genealogy (see 8:29-38) serves as a transition to the narrative concerning him that begins in 10:1.

THE DEATH OF SAUL AND HIS SONS

10 The Philistines † fought against Israel, and Israel's men fled from them. Many were killed on Mount Gilboa. 2 The Philistines pursued Saul and his sons and killed his sons Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malchishua. 3 When the battle intensified against Saul, the archers spotted him and severely wounded him. 4 Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, "Draw your sword and run me through with it, or these uncircumcised men will come and torture me." But his armor-bearer would not do it because he was terrified. Then Saul took his sword and fell on it. 5 When his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his own sword and died. 6 So Saul and his three sons died — his whole house died together.

7 When all the men of Israel in the valley saw that the army had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their cities and fled. So the Philistines came and settled in them.

8 The next day when the Philistines came to strip the slain, they found Saul and his sons dead on Mount Gilboa. 9 They stripped Saul, cut off his head, took his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to spread the good news to their idols and the people. 10 Then they put his armor in the temple of their gods and hung his skull in the temple of Dagon. † 11 When all Jabesh-gilead heard of everything the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 all their brave men set out and retrieved the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons and brought them to Jabesh. They buried their bones under the oak † in Jabesh † and fasted seven days.
13 Saul died for his unfaithfulness to the LORD because he did not keep the LORD's word. † He even consulted a medium for guidance, † 14 but he did not inquire of the LORD. So the LORD put him to death and turned the kingdom over to David son of Jesse. †

10:1-12 This account of Saul's death closely resembles 1 Samuel 31:1-13 and was probably dependent on it (see the note on 1:10). In keeping with his focus on David and his line (see the notes on 1:1 and 3:10-24), the author of Chronicles has left out details concerning almost all of Saul's life and has included only his demise because it leads directly to David's reign (see the following note). Regarding Dagon (v. 10), see the notes on Judges 16:21-30 and 1 Samuel 5:1-5.

10:13-14 Rather than going into great length about Saul's failures, the biblical author characterizes him as having died for his unfaithfulness to the LORD through his disobedience. Among other things (see the notes on 1Sm 13:8-14 and 15:22-23), Saul consulted a medium for guidance rather than seeking God (1Sm 28:3-20; see "Spiritualism," p. 350). Saul's sins resulted in God taking the kingdom from him and giving it to David (see 1Sm 13:14; 15:28; 28:17).

DAVID'S ANOINTING AS KING

11 All Israel † came together to David at Hebron and said, "Here we are, your own flesh and blood. † 2 Even previously when Saul was king, you were leading Israel out to battle and bringing us back. The LORD your God also said to you, 'You will shepherd my people Israel, and you will be ruler over my people Israel.' "
3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron. David made a covenant with them at Hebron in the LORD's presence, and they anointed David king over Israel, in keeping with the LORD's word through Samuel. †

DAVID'S CAPTURE OF JERUSALEM

4 David † and all Israel marched to Jerusalem (that is, Jebus); the Jebusites who inhabited the land were there. † 5 The inhabitants of Jebus said to David, "You will never get in here." Yet David did capture the stronghold of Zion, that is, the city of David.
6 David said, "Whoever is the first to kill a Jebusite will become chief commander." Joab † son of Zeruiah went up first, so he became the chief.
7 Then David took up residence in the stronghold; therefore, it was called the city of David. 8 He built up the city all the way around, from the supporting terraces to the surrounding parts, and Joab restored the rest of the city. 9 David steadily grew more powerful, † and the LORD of Armies was with him.

EXPLOITS OF DAVID'S WARRIORS

10 The following were the chiefs of David's warriors who, together with all Israel, strongly supported him in his reign to make him king according to the LORD's word about Israel. † 11 This † is the list of David's warriors: Jashobeam son of Hachmoni was chief † of the Thirty; † he wielded his spear against three hundred and killed them at one time.
12 After him, Eleazar son of Dodo † the Ahohite was one of the three warriors.
13 He was with David at Pas-dammim when the Philistines had gathered there for battle. There was a portion of a field full of barley, where the troops had fled from the Philistines. † 14 But Eleazar and David † took their stand in the middle of the field and defended it. They killed the Philistines, and the LORD gave them a great victory.
15 Three of the thirty chief men went down to David, to the rock at the cave of Adullam, † while the Philistine army was encamped in the Valley of Rephaim. † 16 At that time David was in the stronghold, † and a Philistine garrison † was at Bethlehem. 17 David was extremely thirsty † and said, "If only someone would bring me water to drink from the well at the city gate of Bethlehem! " 18 So the Three broke through the Philistine camp and drew water from the well at the gate of Bethlehem. They brought it back to David, but he refused to drink it. Instead, he poured it out to the LORD. 19 David said, "I would never do such a thing in the presence of my God! How can I drink the blood of these men who risked their lives?” For they brought it at the risk of their lives. So he would not drink it. Such were the exploits of the three warriors.

20 Abishai, † Joab’s brother, was the leader of the Three. † He raised his spear against three hundred men and killed them, gaining a reputation among the Three. 21 He was more honored than the Three and became their commander even though he did not become one of the Three.

22 Benaiah son of Jehoiada † was the son of a brave man † from Kabzeel, a man of many exploits. Benaiah killed two sons of Ariel of Moab, † and he went down into a pit on a snowy day and killed a lion. 23 He also killed an Egyptian who was seven and a half feet tall. † Even though the Egyptian had a spear in his hand like a weaver’s beam, † Benaiah went down to him with a club, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian’s hand, and then killed him with his own spear. 24 These were the exploits of Benaiah son of Jehoiada, who had a reputation among the three warriors. 25 He was the most honored of the Thirty, but he did not become one of the Three. David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

26 The best soldiers † were

Joab’s brother Asahel, †
Elhanan son of Dodo of Bethlehem,
27 Shammoth the Harorite,
Helez the Pelonite,
28 Ira son of Ikkesh the Tekoite,
Abiezer the Anathothite,

Benaiah the Pirathonite,

32 Hurai from the wadis of Gaash,
Abiel the Arbathite,
33 Azmaveth the Baharumite,
Eliahba the Shaalbonite,

40 Ira the Ithrite,
Gareb the Ithrite,

11:3 Though unmentioned previously in 1 Chronicles, several passages in 1 Samuel relate to Samuel's pledge that David would become king over Israel (1Sm 13:14; 15:28; 16:1-13).

11:9-10 Whereas 2 Samuel gave details regarding the gradual transfer of the kingdom to David (see 2Sm 2:4; 3:1; 5:3-5), the emphasis here is that the LORD of Armies was with him and that he became king over all Israel (see also vv. 1,4; 9:1; 12:38), according to the LORD's word (see also v. 3; 12:23).

DAVID'S FIRST SUPPORTERS

12 The following were the men who came to David at Ziklag while he was still banned from the presence of Saul son of Kish. † They were among the warriors who helped him in battle. 2 They were archers who could use either the right or left hand, both to sling stones and shoot arrows from a bow. † They were Saul's relatives † from Benjamin:

3 Their chief was Ahiezer son of Shemaah the Gibeathite.
Then there was his brother Joash;
Jeziel and Pelet sons of Azmaveth;
Beracah, Jehu the Anathothite;
4 Ishmaiah the Gibeonite, a warrior among the Thirty and a leader over the Thirty;
Jeremiah, Jahaziel, Johanan, Jozabad the Gederathite;
5 Eluzai, Jerimoth, Bealiah, Shemariah, Shephatiah the Haruphite;

6 Elkanah, Isshiah, Azarel, Joezer, and Jashobeam, the Korahites;
7 and Joelah and Zebadiah, the sons of Jeroham from Gedor.

8 Some Gadites defected to David at his stronghold in the desert. They were valiant warriors, trained for battle, expert with shield and spear. Their faces were like the faces of lions, and they were as swift as gazelles on the mountains. †

9 Ezer was the chief, Obadiah second, Eliab third,
10 Mishmannah fourth, Jeremiah fifth,
11 Attai sixth, Eliel seventh,
12 Johanan eighth, Elzabad ninth,
13 Jeremiah tenth, and Machbannai eleventh.

14 These Gadites were army commanders; the least of them was a match for a hundred, and the greatest of them for a thousand. † 15 These are the men who crossed the Jordan in the first month † when it was overflowing all its banks, † and put to flight all those in the valleys to the east and to the west.
16 Other Benjaminites and men from Judah also went to David at the stronghold. † 17 David went out to meet them and said to them, “If you have come in peace to help me, my heart will be united with you, but if you have come to betray me to my enemies even though my hands have done no wrong, may the God of our ancestors look on it and judge.”
18 Then the Spirit enveloped † † Amasai, † chief of the Thirty, and he said:

We are yours, David,
we are with you, son of Jesse!
Peace, peace to you,
and peace to him who helps you, † for your God helps you.

So David received them and made them leaders of his troops.

19 Some Manassites defected to David when he went with the Philistines to fight against Saul. However, they did not help the Philistines because the Philistine rulers sent David away after a discussion. They said, “It will be our heads if he defects to his master Saul.” † 20 When David went to Ziklag, some men from Manasseh defected to him: Adnah, Jozabad, Jediael, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai, chiefs of thousands in Manasseh. 21 They helped David against the raiders, † for they were all valiant warriors and commanders in the army. 22 At that time, men came day after day to help David until there was a great army, like an army of God. † †

DAVID’S SOLDIERS IN HEBRON

23 The numbers of the armed troops who came to David at Hebron to turn Saul’s kingdom over to him, † according to the LORD’s word, † were as follows:

24 From the Judahites: 6,800 armed troops bearing shields and spears.

25 From the Simeonites: 7,100 valiant warriors ready for war.

26 From the Levites: 4,600 27 in addition to Jehoiada, leader of the house of Aaron, with 3,700 men; 28 and Zadok, † a young valiant warrior, with 22 commanders from his father’s family. †

29 From the Benjaminites, the relatives of Saul: † 3,000 (up to that time the majority of the Benjaminites maintained their allegiance to the house of Saul).

30 From the Ephraimites: 20,800 valiant warriors who were famous men in their ancestral families. †

31 From half the tribe of Manasseh: 18,000 designated by name to come and make David king.

32 From the Issacharites, who understood the times † and knew what Israel should do: 200 chiefs with all their relatives under their command.

33 From Zebulun: 50,000 who could serve in the army, trained for battle with all kinds of weapons of war, with one purpose † to help David. †
34 From Naphtali: 1,000 commanders accompanied by 37,000 men with shield and spear.
35 From the Danites: 28,600 trained for battle.
36 From Asher: 40,000 who could serve in the army, trained for battle.
37 From across the Jordan — from the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh: 120,000 men equipped with all the military weapons of war.

38 All these warriors, lined up in battle formation, came to Hebron wholeheartedly determined to make David king over all Israel. All the rest of Israel was also of one mind to make David king. † 39 They spent three days there eating and drinking with David, for their relatives had provided for them. 40 In addition, their neighbors from as far away as Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali came and brought food on donkeys, camels, mules, and oxen — abundant provisions of flour, fig cakes, raisins, wine and oil, herds, and flocks. † Indeed, there was joy in Israel.

12:1 The preceding list of warriors had “strongly supported” David “to make him king” (11:10). When Saul was still alive, David had also been supported at Ziklag (see v. 20; 1Sm 27:5-6; 30:1-31) and at “the stronghold” (v. 16; 1Sm 23:14,19,29) by men from various tribes. Included were men from Benjamin (vv. 2-7), Gad (vv. 8-15), Judah (v. 16), and Manasseh (vv. 19-22). The effect is to reinforce the Israelites’ unanimous support of David (see vv. 24-37 and the following note).

12:18 The Israelites’ support of David (see the previous note) was in agreement with the will of God (see the note on 13:1-10), as shown through this brief prophetic message from Amasai. His speaking through the Spirit gave divine authentication to his word of blessing on David. The thought behind the statement peace to him who helps you resembles the Abrahamic blessing: “I will bless those who bless you” (Gn 12:3) and “those who bless you will be blessed” (Gn 27:29; Nm 24:9).

12:22-23 As 11:9 said, “David steadily grew more powerful” in accordance with God’s word to make him king over all Israel. Likewise, his army continued to grow daily to the point that they were a great army, like an army of God. David’s increase in power is once again linked to the LORD’s word.

12:38-40 David’s warriors came from all twelve tribes (vv. 24-37; see also the note on v. 1). They were wholeheartedly determined to make David king over all Israel and the other Israelites were of one mind to do the same. His rule thus had the complete support of the nation and of God himself (see v. 23).

DAVID AND THE ARK

13 David consulted with all his leaders, the commanders of hundreds and of thousands. 2 Then he said to the whole assembly of Israel, “If it seems good to you, and if this is from the LORD our God, let us spread out and send the message to the rest of our relatives in all the districts of Israel, including the priests and Levites in their cities with pasturelands, † that they should gather together with us. 3 Then let us bring back the ark of our God, for we did not inquire of him † † in Saul’s days.” 4 Since the proposal seemed right to all the people, the whole assembly agreed to do it.
5 So David assembled all Israel, † from the Shihor of Egypt to the entrance of Hamath, † † to bring the ark of God from Kiriath-jearim. † 6 David † and all Israel went to Baalah † (that is, Kiriath-jearim that belongs to Judah) to take from there the ark of God, which bears the name of the LORD who is enthroned between the cherubim. † 7 At Abinadab’s house † they set the ark of God on a new cart. Uzzah and Ahio † were guiding the cart.
8 David and all Israel were dancing with all their might before God with songs and with lyres, harps, tambourines, cymbals, and trumpets. † 9 When they came to Chidon’s threshing floor, † Uzzah reached out to hold the ark because the oxen had stumbled. 10 Then the LORD’s anger burned against Uzzah, and he struck him dead because he had reached out to the ark. † So he died there in the presence of God. †
11 David was angry because of the LORD’s outburst against Uzzah, so he named that place Outburst Against Uzzah, † as it is still named today. 12 David feared God that day and said, “How can I ever bring the ark of God to me?” 13 So David did not bring the ark of God home † to the city of David; instead, he diverted it to the house of Obed-edom of Gath. † 14 The ark of God remained with Obed-edom's family in his house for three months, and the LORD blessed his family and all that he had.

13:1-10 With the support of all the people (vv. 1-4), David assembled the Israelites to bring the ark from Kiriath-jearim to Jerusalem (vv. 5-7). Despite their celebration, Uzzah was struck down by God because he steadied the ark with his hand as it was being transported (vv. 8-10). They had not followed God's instructions regarding its transportation, and God was justly angry with them (see 15:2,11-15). The unity of purpose between David and Israel was actually counterproductive because they acted contrary to the Word of God as written in Scripture (see Ex 25:12-14; Nm 4:4-20). David came away from this incident with a greater sense of awe towards God and his ark (v. 12).

13:14 The blessing that God brought on Obed-edom's family through the presence of the ark showed his goodness and provides a fuller picture of his character in light of his judgment on Uzzah (vv. 9-10).

GOD'S BLESSING ON DAVID

14 King Hiram of Tyre sent envoys to David, † along with cedar logs, stonemasons, and carpenters to build a palace for him. 2 Then David knew that the LORD had established him as king over Israel and that his kingdom had been exalted for the sake of his people Israel.

3 David took more wives in Jerusalem, and he became the father of more sons and daughters. 4 These † are the names of the children born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, 5 Ibhar, Elishua, Elpelet, 6 Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, 7 Elishama, Beeliada, and Eliphelet.

8 When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over all Israel, they all went in search of David; when David heard of this, he went out to face them. 9 Now the Philistines had come and raided in the Valley of Rephaim, † 10 so David inquired of God, "Should I attack the Philistines? Will you hand them over to me?"

The LORD replied, "Attack, and I will hand them over to you."

11 So the Israelites went up to Baal-perazim, and David defeated the Philistines there. Then David said, "Like a bursting flood, God has used me to burst out against my enemies." Therefore, they named that place The Lord Bursts Out. †

12 The Philistines abandoned their idols there, and David ordered that they be burned in the fire.
13 Once again the Philistines raided in the valley. 14 So David again inquired of God, and God answered him, “Do not pursue them directly. Circle around them and attack them opposite the balsam trees. 15 When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then go out to battle, for God will have gone out ahead of you to strike down the army of the Philistines.” 16 So David did as God commanded him, and they struck down the Philistine army from Gibeon to Gezer. 17 Then David’s fame spread throughout the lands, and the LORD caused all the nations to be terrified of him. †

14:1-2 David received a confirmation of God’s establishment of him as king when Hiram of Tyre sent men to build a palace for him (see also 11:3,10; 12:23).

14:3 Regarding polygamy, see the note on Genesis 2:24.

14:11 The use of the Hebrew word parats (“to burst out” or “outburst”) here and in 13:11 links God’s defeat of the Philistines to his striking down of Uzzah (see also 15:13).

14:17 David inquired of God twice (vv. 10,14), and God rewarded him with two defeats of the Philistines (vv. 11,16). As a result, David’s fame spread throughout the lands, and God caused all the nations to fear him.

THE ARK COMES TO JERUSALEM

15 David built houses for himself in the city of David, and he prepared a place for the ark of God and pitched a tent for it. † 2 Then David said, “No one but the Levites may carry the ark of God, because the LORD has chosen them to carry the ark of the LORD and to minister before him forever.” † 3 David assembled all Israel at Jerusalem † to bring the ark of the LORD to the place he had prepared for it. † 4 Then he gathered together the descendants of Aaron and the Levites: 5 From the Kohathites, Uriel the leader and 120 of his relatives; 6 from the Merarites, Asaiah the leader and 220 of his relatives; 7 from the Gershomites, † Joel the leader and 130 of his relatives; 8 from the Elizaphanites, Shemaiah the leader and 200 of his relatives; 9 from the Hebronites, Eliel the leader and 80 of his relatives; 10 from the Uzzielites, Amminadab the leader and 112 of his relatives.

11 David summoned the priests Zadok † and Abiathar † and the Levites Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab. 12 He said to them, “You are the heads of the Levite families. You and your relatives must consecrate yourselves † so that you may bring the ark of the LORD God of Israel to the place I have prepared for it. † 13 For the LORD our God burst out in anger against us because you Levites were not with us the first time, for we didn’t inquire of him about the proper procedures.” † 14 So the priests and the Levites consecrated themselves to bring up the ark of the LORD God of Israel. 15 Then the Levites carried the ark of God the way Moses had commanded according to the word of the LORD: on their shoulders with the poles. † 16 Then David told the leaders of the Levites to appoint their relatives as singers and to have them raise their voices with joy accompanied by musical instruments — harps, lyres, and cymbals. † 17 So the Levites appointed Heman son of Joel; from his relatives, Asaph son of Berechiah; and from their relatives the Merarites, Ethan son of Kushaiah. 18 With them were their relatives second in rank: Zechariah, Jaaziel, † Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, and the gatekeepers Obed-edom and Jeiel. 19 The singers Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were to sound the bronze cymbals; 20 Zechariah, Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah were to play harps according to Alamoth † 21 and Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, Obed-edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah were to lead the music with lyres according to the Sheminith. 22 Chenaniah, the leader of the Levites in music, was to direct the music because he was skillful. 23 Berechiah and Elkanah were to be gatekeepers for the ark. 24 The priests, Shebaniah, Joshaphat, Nethanel, Amasai, Zechariah, Benaiah, and Eliezer, were to blow trumpets † before the ark of God. Obed-edom and Jehiah were also to be gatekeepers for the ark.
25 David, † the elders of Israel, and the commanders of thousands went with rejoicing to bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD from the house of Obed-edom. † 26 Because God helped the Levites who were carrying the ark of the covenant of the LORD, with God’s help, they sacrificed seven bulls and seven rams. †

27 Now David was dressed in a robe of fine linen, as were all the Levites who were carrying the ark, as well as the singers and Chenaniah, the music leader of the singers. David also wore a linen ephod. 28 So all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouts, the sound of the ram's horn, trumpets, and cymbals, and the playing of harps and lyres. 29 As the ark of the covenant of the LORD was entering the city of David, Saul's daughter Michal looked down from the window and saw King David leaping † and dancing, and she despised him in her heart.

15:2-15 David had learned his lesson from the Uzzah incident (see the note on 13:1-10). This time he had the ark transported by the Levites the way Moses had commanded according to the word of the LORD.

15:17 Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were appointed as singers who would also sound bronze cymbals (see also v. 19). These same three men were mentioned earlier with reference to being in charge of music at the temple (6:31-46).

15:28 With music playing, David and all Israel joyfully and properly brought the ark of the covenant to Jerusalem, this time without incident (see the note on vv. 2-15).

16 They † brought the ark of God and placed it inside the tent David had pitched for it. † Then they offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings in God's presence. 2 When David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the fellowship offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD. 3 Then he distributed to each and every Israelite, both men and women, a loaf of bread, a date cake, and a raisin cake.

4 David appointed some of the Levites to be ministers before the ark of the LORD, to celebrate the LORD God of Israel, and to give thanks and praise to him.
5 Asaph was the chief and Zechariah was second to him. Jeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, Obed-edom, and Jeiel played the harps and lyres, while Asaph sounded the cymbals 6 and the priests Benaiah and Jahaziel blew the trumpets regularly before the ark of the covenant of God.

DAVID'S PSALM OF THANKSGIVING

7 On that day David decreed for the first time that thanks be given to the LORD by Asaph and his relatives:

8 Give thanks † to the LORD; call on his name; proclaim his deeds among the peoples. †
9 Sing to him; sing praise to him; tell about all his wondrous works!
10 Honor his holy name; let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice.
11 Seek the LORD and his strength; seek his face always. † 12 Remember the wondrous works he has done, † his wonders, and the judgments he has pronounced, † † 13 you offspring of Israel his servant, Jacob's descendants — his chosen ones.

14 He is the LORD our God; his judgments govern the whole earth. †
15 Remember his covenant forever — the promise he ordained for a thousand generations, 16 the covenant he made with Abraham, swore † to Isaac, †
17 and confirmed to Jacob as a decree, and to Israel as a permanent covenant: †
18 "I will give the land of Canaan to you as your inherited portion." †

19 When they † were few in number, very few indeed, † and resident aliens in Canaan 20 wandering from nation to nation and from one kingdom to another,
21 he allowed no one to oppress them; he rebuked kings on their behalf: †
22 "Do not touch my anointed ones or harm my prophets." †

23 Let the whole earth sing † to the LORD.
Proclaim his salvation from day to day.
24 Declare his glory among the nations, his wondrous works among all peoples.

25 For the LORD is great and highly praised; † he is feared above all gods. †
26 For all the gods of the peoples are idols, † but the LORD made the heavens. †
27 Splendor and majesty are before him; strength and joy are in his place.

28 Ascribe to the LORD, families of the peoples, ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.
29 Ascribe to the LORD the glory of his name; bring an offering and come before him.

Worship the LORD in the splendor of his holiness; †
30 let the whole earth tremble † before him.

The world is firmly established;
it cannot be shaken.
31 Let the heavens be glad and the earth rejoice, † and let them say among the nations, "The LORD reigns! " 32 Let the sea and all that fills it resound; let the fields and everything in them exult. † 33 Then the trees of the forest will shout for joy before the LORD, for he is coming to judge the earth.

34 Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; his faithful love endures forever. † 35 And say: † "Save us, God of our salvation; gather us and rescue us from the nations so that we may give thanks to your holy name and rejoice in your praise.
36 Blessed be the LORD God of Israel †
from everlasting to everlasting."

Then all the people said, "Amen" and "Praise the LORD."
37 So David left Asaph and his relatives there before the ark of the LORD's covenant to minister regularly † before the ark according to the daily requirements. † 38 He assigned Obed-edom † and his † sixty-eight relatives.
Obed-edom son of Jeduthun and Hosah † were to be gatekeepers. 39 David left the priest Zadok and his fellow priests before the tabernacle of the LORD at the high place in Gibeon † 40 to offer burnt offerings regularly, morning and evening, to the LORD on the altar of burnt offerings and to do everything that was written in the law of the LORD, which he had commanded Israel to keep. † 41 With them were Heman, † Jeduthun, and the rest who were chosen and designated by name † to give thanks to the LORD — for his faithful love endures forever. † 42 Heman and Jeduthun had with them trumpets and cymbals to play and musical instruments of God. † Jeduthun's sons were at the city gate.

43 Then all the people went home, and David returned home to bless his household. †

16:8 Transporting the ark to Jerusalem was not merely an Israelite affair but led to David's psalm that called for God's mighty deeds to be proclaimed among the peoples (see the notes on 22:1; 2Ch 2:11-12; 6:32-33; 9:1-8,23-24). Various sections of vv. 8-36 resemble respective portions of three psalms (see the following notes). Verses 8-22 is almost identical to Psalm 105:1-15. The differences in vv. 13,15 (see Ps 105:6,8) serve to focus additional attention on Israel and their need to "remember his covenant." Despite Israel's failures and present exile (see the note on 9:1-2), God would be faithful to his promise "for a thousand generations" (v. 15).

16:23-33 These verses are similar to Psalm 96. Even more than the previous section (v. 8), this one repeatedly proclaims that God alone is the God of all nations (e.g., vv. 23-26,30). All other gods are idols (v. 26), so the peoples ought to give glory to God (v. 28), who alone is King (v. 31) and is coming to judge the earth (v. 33).

16:34-36 The words of v. 34, sometimes with slight variation, are commonly found not only in Psalms (e.g., 106:1; 107:1; 118:1; 136:1) but also in Chronicles (e.g., v. 41; 2Ch 5:13; 7:3,6; 20:21). Verses 35-36 are very similar to Psalm 106:47-48, which incidentally is the conclusion of Book IV in the Psalms (see Pss 106–107). The prayer that God gather . . . and rescue . . . from the nations (v. 35) would have particularly fit a readership in exile (see the notes on 3:10-24 and 9:1-2).

THE LORD'S COVENANT WITH DAVID

17 When David † had settled into his palace, he said to the prophet Nathan, "Look! I am living in a cedar house while the ark of the LORD's covenant is under tent curtains." †
2 So Nathan told David, "Do all that is on your mind, for God is with you."
3 But that night † the word of God came to Nathan: 4 "Go to David my servant and say, 'This is what the LORD says: You are not the one to build me a house to dwell in. † 5 From the time I brought Israel out of Egypt until today I have not dwelt in a house; instead, I have moved from one tent site to another, and from one tabernacle location to another. † † 6 In all my journeys throughout Israel, have I ever spoken a word to even one of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd my people, asking: Why haven't you built me a house of cedar? ' †

7 "So now this is what you are to say to my servant David: 'This is what the LORD of Armies says: I took you from the pasture, from tending the flock, to be ruler over my people Israel. † 8 I have been with you wherever you have gone, and I have destroyed all your enemies before you. I will make a name for you like that of the greatest on the earth. 9 I will designate a place for my people Israel and plant them, † so that they may live there and not be disturbed again. Evildoers will not continue to oppress them as they have done 10 ever since the day I ordered judges to be over my people Israel. I will also subdue all your enemies.

" 'Furthermore, I declare to you that the LORD himself will build a house for you. 11 When your time comes to be with your fathers, I will raise up after you your descendant, who is one of your own sons, and I will establish his kingdom. 12 He is the one who will build a house for me, † and I will establish his throne forever. 13 I will be his father, and he will be my son. † I will not remove my faithful love from him as I removed it from the one who was before you. † 14 I will appoint him over my house and my kingdom forever, and his throne will be established forever.' " †

15 Nathan reported all these words and this entire vision to David.

DAVID'S PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING

16 Then † King David went in, sat in the LORD's presence, and said,

Who am I, LORD God, and what is my house that you have brought me this far?

17 This was a little thing to you, † God, for you have spoken about your servant's house in the distant future. You regard me as a man of distinction, † LORD God. 18 What more can David say to you for honoring your servant? You know your servant. 19 LORD, you have done this whole great thing, making known all these great promises for the sake of your servant and according to your will. † 20 LORD, there is no one like you, and there is no God besides you, as all we have heard confirms. 21 And who is like your people Israel? God, you came to one nation on earth to redeem a people for yourself, to make a name for yourself through great and awesome works by driving out nations before your people you redeemed from Egypt. † 22 You made your people Israel your own people forever, and you, LORD, have become their God. † 23 Now, LORD, let the word that you have spoken concerning your servant and his house be confirmed forever, and do as you have promised. 24 Let your name be confirmed and magnified forever in the saying, "The LORD of Armies, the God of Israel, is God over Israel." May the house of your servant David be established before you. 25 Since you, my God, have revealed to † † your servant that you will build him a house, your servant has found courage to pray in your presence. 26 LORD, you indeed are God, and you have promised this good thing to your servant. 27 So now, you have been pleased to bless your servant's house that it may continue before you forever. For you, LORD, have blessed it, and it is blessed forever.

17:1 David had become king over all Israel according to the word of God (11:3,10; 12:23) with the support of the whole nation, and he had brought the ark to Jerusalem. The next major event was God making a covenant with him, which resulted from his desire to build a more permanent structure for the ark.

17:10-14 Though David wanted to build a house (temple) for the ark, God instead declared that he would build a house (dynasty) for David (v. 10). One of David's descendants would be the one to build a house for [him] (v. 12), and his throne would be established forever (vv. 12,14; see the note on 22:7-13). Given the end of the Davidic dynasty through the fall of the kingdom of Judah (see the notes on 3:10-24 and 9:1-2), this prophecy has messianic overtones (see the note on 29:22-25). This covenant that God made with David (see the note on 2Sm 7:8-16) further emphasizes the divine approval of his reign (see 11:3,10; 12:23) and relates to Chronicles' focus on Davidic kings (see the notes on 1:1 and 29:22-25).

17:17 David recognized that God's promises concerned the distant future (see also v. 27).

DAVID'S MILITARY CAMPAIGNS

18 After this, † David defeated the Philistines, subdued them, and took Gath and its surrounding villages from Philistine control. 2 He also defeated the Moabites, and they became David's subjects and brought tribute.

3 David also defeated King Hadadezer of Zobah at Hamath when he went to establish his control at the Euphrates River. 4 David captured one thousand chariots, seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand foot soldiers from him, hamstrung all the horses, and kept a hundred chariots. †
5 When the Arameans of Damascus came to assist King Hadadezer of Zobah, † David struck down twenty-two thousand Aramean men. 6 Then he placed garrisons † † in Aram of Damascus, and the Arameans became David's subjects and brought tribute. The LORD made David victorious wherever he went.
7 David took the gold shields carried by Hadadezer's officers and brought them to Jerusalem. 8 From Tibhath and Cun, Hadadezer's cities, David also took huge quantities of bronze, from which Solomon made the bronze basin, † the pillars, and the bronze articles. † 9 When King Tou of Hamath heard that David had defeated the entire army of King Hadadezer of Zobah, 10 he sent his son Hadoram to King David to greet him and to congratulate him because David had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him, for Tou and Hadadezer had fought many wars. Hadoram brought all kinds of gold, silver, and bronze items. 11 King David also dedicated these to the LORD, along with the silver and gold he had carried off from all the nations — from Edom, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, and the Amalekites.
12 Abishai son of Zeruiah struck down eighteen thousand Edomites in the Salt Valley. 13 He put garrisons in Edom, and all the Edomites were subject to David. The LORD made David victorious wherever he went.
14 So David reigned over all Israel, † administering justice and righteousness for all his people.

15 Joab † son of Zeruiah was over the army;
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was court historian;
16 Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech † † son of Abiathar were priests;
Shavsha was court secretary;
17 Benaiah son of Jehoiada † was over the Cherethites
and the Pelethites;

and David's sons were the chief officials at the king's side.

18:6 The Lord's blessing on David also was evident through his many military successes (vv. 1-13; see the note on 17:10-14). He continued to win battles because the LORD made David victorious wherever he went (see also v. 13).

18:8 These bronze articles would be used in the temple.

18:14 Regarding David's administering justice and righteousness, see the note on 2 Samuel 8:15.

WAR WITH THE AMMONITES

19 Some time later, † King Nahash of the Ammonites died, and his son became king in his place. 2 Then David said, "I'll show kindness to Hanun son of Nahash, because his father showed kindness to me."
So David sent messengers to console him concerning his father. However, when David's emissaries arrived in the land of the Ammonites to console him, 3 the Ammonite leaders said to Hanun, "Just because David has sent men with condolences for you, do you really believe he's showing respect for your father?
Instead, haven't his emissaries come in order to scout out, overthrow, and spy on the land?" 4 So Hanun took David's emissaries, shaved them, cut their clothes in half at the hips, and sent them away. † 5 It was reported to David about his men, so he sent messengers to meet them, since the men were deeply humiliated. The king said, "Stay in Jericho until your beards grow back; then return."
6 When the Ammonites realized † they had made themselves repulsive to David, Hanun and the Ammonites sent thirty-eight tons † of silver to hire chariots and horsemen from Aram-naharaim, Aram-maacah, and Zobah. † 7 They hired thirty-two thousand chariots and the king of Maacah with his army, who came and camped near Medeba. † The Ammonites also came together from their cities for the battle.
8 David heard about this and sent Joab and all the elite troops. 9 The Ammonites marched out and lined up in battle formation at the entrance of the city while the kings who had come were in the field by themselves. 10 When Joab saw that there was a battle line in front of him and another behind him, he chose some of Israel's finest young men † † and lined up in formation to engage the Arameans. 11 He placed the rest of the forces under the command of his brother Abishai. They lined up in formation to engage the Ammonites.

12 "If the Arameans are too strong for me," Joab said, "then you'll be my help. However, if the Ammonites are too strong for you, I'll help you. 13 Be strong! Let's prove ourselves strong for our people and for the cities of our God. † May the LORD's will be done." †
14 Joab and the people with him approached the Arameans for battle, and they fled before him. 15 When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans had fled, they likewise fled before Joab's brother Abishai and entered the city. Then Joab went to Jerusalem.
16 When the Arameans realized that they had been defeated by Israel, they sent messengers to summon the Arameans who were beyond the Euphrates River. They were led by Shophach, the commander of Hadadezer's army.
17 When this was reported to David, he gathered all Israel and crossed the Jordan. He came up to the Arameans and lined up against them. When David lined up to engage them, they fought against him. 18 But the Arameans fled before Israel, and David killed seven thousand of their charioteers and forty thousand foot soldiers. He also killed Shophach, commander of the army. 19 When Hadadezer's subjects saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with David and became his subjects. After this, the Arameans were never willing to help the Ammonites again.

CAPTURE OF THE CITY OF RABBAH

20 In the spring † when kings march out to war, † Joab led the army and destroyed the Ammonites' land. He came to Rabbah and besieged it, but David remained in Jerusalem. † Joab attacked Rabbah and demolished it. 2 Then David took the crown from the head of their king, † † † and it was placed on David's head. He found that the crown weighed seventy-five pounds † of gold, and there was a precious stone in it. In addition, David took away a large quantity of plunder from the city. 3 He brought out the people who were in it and put them to work with saws, † iron picks, and axes. † † David did the same to all the Ammonite cities. Then he and all his troops returned to Jerusalem.

THE PHILISTINE GIANTS

4 After this, † a war broke out with the Philistines at Gezer. At that time Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Sippai, a descendant of the Rephaim, † † and the Philistines were subdued.

5 Once again there was a battle with the Philistines, and Elhanan son of Jair killed Lahmi the brother of Goliath of Gath. The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam. †

6 There was still another battle at Gath where there was a man of extraordinary stature with six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot — twenty-four in all. He, too, was descended from the giant. † 7 When he taunted Israel, Jonathan son of David's brother Shimei killed him.

8 These were the descendants of the giant in Gath killed by David and his soldiers.

20:1 The author of Chronicles decided not to include David's sin with Bathsheba here (see 2Sm 11). He does, however, include other examples of David's imperfection (13:1-10; 21:1-8).

DAVID'S MILITARY CENSUS

21 Satan † † rose up against Israel and incited David † to count the people of Israel. 2 So David said to Joab and the commanders of the troops, "Go and count Israel from Beer-sheba to Dan and bring a report to me so I can know their number." †

3 Joab replied, "May the LORD multiply the number of his people a hundred times over! † My lord the king, aren't they all my lord's servants? Why does my lord want to do this? Why should he bring guilt on Israel? "

4 Yet the king's order prevailed over Joab. So Joab left and traveled throughout Israel and then returned to Jerusalem. 5 Joab gave the total troop registration to David. In all Israel there were one million one hundred thousand armed men † and in Judah itself four hundred seventy thousand armed men. 6 But he did not include Levi and Benjamin in the count because the king's command was detestable to him. 7 This command was also evil in God's sight, so he afflicted Israel.
8 David said to God, "I have sinned greatly because I have done this thing. Now, please take away your servant's guilt, for I've been very foolish." †

DAVID'S PUNISHMENT

9 Then † the LORD instructed Gad, † David's seer, † 10 "Go and say to David,
'This is what the LORD says: I am offering you three choices. Choose one of them for yourself, and I will do it to you.' " 11 So Gad went to David and said to him, "This is what the LORD says: 'Take your choice: 12 three years of famine, or three months of devastation by your foes with the sword of your enemy overtaking you, or three days of the sword of the LORD — a plague on the land, the angel of the LORD bringing destruction to the whole territory of Israel.' Now decide what answer I should take back to the one who sent me."
13 David answered Gad, "I'm in anguish. Please, let me fall into the LORD's hands because his mercies are very great, † but don't let me fall into human hands."
14 So the LORD sent a plague on Israel, and seventy thousand Israelite men died.
15 Then God sent an angel to Jerusalem to destroy it, but when the angel was about to destroy the city, † the LORD looked, relented concerning the destruction, † and said to the angel who was destroying the people, "Enough, withdraw your hand now!" The angel of the LORD was then standing at the threshing floor of Ornan † the Jebusite.
16 When David looked up and saw the angel of the LORD standing between earth and heaven, with his drawn sword in his hand stretched out over Jerusalem, David and the elders, clothed in sackcloth, † fell facedown. 17 David said to God, "Wasn't I the one who gave the order to count the people? I am the one who has sinned and acted very wickedly. But these sheep, what have they done?

LORD my God, please let your hand be against me and against my father's family, but don't let the plague be against your people."

DAVID'S ALTAR

18 So the angel of the LORD ordered Gad † to tell David to go and set up an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. † 19 David went up at Gad's command spoken in the name of the LORD.

20 Ornan was threshing wheat when he turned and saw the angel. His four sons, who were with him, hid. 21 David came to Ornan, and when Ornan looked and saw David, he left the threshing floor and bowed to David with his face to the ground.

22 Then David said to Ornan, "Give me this threshing-floor plot so that I may build an altar to the LORD on it. Give it to me for the full price, so the plague on the people may be stopped."

23 Ornan said to David, "Take it! My lord the king may do whatever he wants. † See, I give the oxen for the burnt offerings, the threshing sledges for the wood, and the wheat for the grain offering — I give it all."

24 King David answered Ornan, "No, I insist on paying the full price, for I will not take for the LORD what belongs to you or offer burnt offerings that cost me nothing."

25 So David gave Ornan fifteen pounds of gold † for the plot. 26 He built an altar to the LORD there and offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings. He called on the LORD, and he answered him with fire from heaven on the altar of burnt offering. †

27 Then the LORD spoke to the angel, and he put his sword back into its sheath.

28 At that time, David offered sacrifices there when he saw that the LORD answered him at the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. 29 The tabernacle of the LORD, which Moses made in the wilderness, and the altar of burnt offering were at the high place in Gibeon, † 30 but David could not go before it to inquire of God, because he was terrified of the sword of the LORD's angel.

21:1-6 David had erred in his first attempt to bring the ark to Jerusalem (see the note on 13:1-10), and he erred again by counting his troops. Joab opposed this self-reliant act as one that would bring guilt on Israel (v. 3) but was overruled by the king (v. 4). The numbers Joab gathered were not even complete because the king's command was detestable to him (v. 6; see also 27:23-24).

21:13 Despite David's confession of his sin (v. 8), God still punished him. His wish to fall into the LORD's hands was an implicit choice of the third option. As David rightly believed, God's mercies are very great, and the Lord did relent (v. 15).

21:14 The deaths of seventy-thousand Israelite men fit David's sin of trusting in the large number of his troops (see the note on vv. 1-6).

22 Then David said, "This is the house of the LORD God, and this is the altar of burnt offering for Israel." †

DAVID'S PREPARATIONS FOR THE TEMPLE

2 So David gave orders to gather the resident aliens that were in the land of Israel, † and he appointed stonecutters to cut finished stones for building God's house. † 3 David supplied a great deal of iron to make the nails for the doors of the gates and for the fittings, together with an immeasurable quantity of bronze, † 4 and innumerable cedar logs because the Sidonians and Tyrians had brought a large quantity of cedar logs to David. † 5 David said, "My son Solomon is young and inexperienced, and the house that is to be built for the LORD must be exceedingly great and famous and glorious in all the lands. † Therefore, I will make provision for it." So David made lavish preparations for it before his death.

6 Then he summoned his son Solomon and charged him to build a house for the LORD God of Israel. 7 "My son," David said to Solomon, "It was in my heart to build a house for the name of the LORD my God, † 8 but the word of the LORD came to me: 'You have shed much blood and waged great wars. You are not to build a house for my name because you have shed so much blood on the ground before me. † 9 But a son will be born to you; he will be a man of rest. I will give him rest from all his surrounding enemies, † for his name will be Solomon, † † and I will give peace and quiet to Israel during his reign. † 10 He is the one who will build a house for my name. He will be my son, and I will be his father. I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel forever.' †

11 “Now, my son, may the LORD be with you, † and may you succeed in building the house of the LORD your God, as he said about you. 12 Above all, may the LORD give you insight and understanding when he puts you in charge of Israel so that you may keep the law of the LORD your God. † 13 Then you will succeed if you carefully follow the statutes and ordinances the LORD commanded Moses for Israel. † Be strong and courageous. Don’t be afraid or discouraged. † 14 “Notice I have taken great pains to provide for the house of the LORD — 3,775 tons of gold, 37,750 tons of silver, † † and bronze and iron that can’t be weighed because there is so much of it. I have also provided timber and stone, but you will need to add more to them. 15 You also have many workers:
stonecutters, masons, carpenters, and people skilled in every kind of work 16 in gold, silver, bronze, and iron — beyond number. Now begin the work, and may the LORD be with you.” † 17 Then David ordered all the leaders of Israel to help his son Solomon: 18 “The LORD your God is with you, isn’t he? And hasn’t he given you rest on every side? † For he has handed the land’s inhabitants over to me, and the land has been subdued before the LORD and his people. 19 Now determine in your mind and heart to seek the LORD your God. † Get started building the LORD God’s sanctuary so that you may bring the ark of the LORD’s covenant and the holy articles of God to the temple that is to be built † for the name of the LORD.” †

22:1 The plague against Israel because of David’s sin was stopped because of David’s prayers and sacrifices “at the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite,” a Gentile (21:15,18-28). David’s declaration signifying that this would be the future site of the temple (the house of the LORD) links the preceding chapter integrally to those that follow (see also 2Ch 3:1) and to his earlier expressed desire for the nations to know God (see the notes on 16:8,23-33). In an important sense, both the survival of Jerusalem and the temple itself were made to depend in part on this Gentile (see 21:15,18).

22:2-5 Having chosen the temple site (v. 1), David proceeded to make preparations for its construction through securing workers and materials (vv. 2-4,14-16). The temple was both to be exceedingly great for God’s sake and glorious in all the lands (v. 5; see also 29:1; 2Ch 2:5). Its reputation was thus to be known throughout the earth.

22:7-13 David's instructions to Solomon include an explanation as to why he was not allowed to build the temple. David had shed much blood through his many wars (vv. 7-8; 28:3), whereas Solomon would be a man of rest, with a reign characterized by peace and quiet (v. 9; Is 9:6-7). He would build the temple and his throne would be established forever (v. 10; 17:12-14). Solomon, however, would only experience such success if he obeyed God (vv. 12-13). Likewise, a later passage directly states that the promises in v. 10 were conditioned on his obedience (see the note on 28:2-10; 2Ch 6:16). 1 Kings clearly indicates that Solomon did not follow David's charge to obey God (see the note on 1Kg 11:1-8).

22:16 For a second time (see v. 11), David blessed Solomon with the words may the LORD be with you (see also v. 18; 28:20; 2Ch 1:1). God had been with David (11:9; 17:2), and Cyrus's decree permitting the reconstruction of the temple would also be accompanied by this blessing (2Ch 36:23).

THE DIVISIONS OF THE LEVITES

23 When David was old and full of days, † he installed his son Solomon as king over Israel. † 2 Then he gathered all the leaders of Israel, the priests, and the Levites. 3 The Levites thirty years old or more were counted; † the total number of men was thirty-eight thousand by headcount. † 4 "Of these," David said, "twenty-four thousand are to be in charge of the work on the LORD's temple, † six thousand are to be officers and judges, † 5 four thousand are to be gatekeepers, and four thousand are to praise the LORD with the instruments that I have made for worship." †

6 Then David divided them into divisions according to Levi's sons: † Gershom, † Kohath, and Merari.

7 The Gershonites: Ladan and Shimei.

8 Ladan's sons: Jehiel was the first, then Zetham, and Joel — three.

9 Shimei's sons: Shelomoth, Haziel, and Haran — three. Those were the heads of the families of Ladan.

10 Shimei's sons: Jahath, Zizah, † Jeush, and Beriah. Those were Shimei's sons — four. 11 Jahath was the first and Zizah was the second; however, Jeush and Beriah did not have many sons, so they became one family † and received a single assignment.

12 Kohath's sons: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel — four.

13 Amram's sons: † Aaron and Moses.

Aaron, along with his descendants, † was set apart forever to consecrate the most holy things, to burn incense in the presence of the LORD, † to minister to him, and to pronounce blessings in his name forever. 14 As for Moses the man of God, † his sons were named among the tribe of Levi.

15 Moses's sons: Gershom and Eliezer.

16 Gershom's sons: Shebuel was first.

17 Eliezer's sons were Rehabiah, first; Eliezer did not have any other sons, but Rehabiah's sons were very numerous.

18 Izhar's sons: Shelomith was first.

19 Hebron's sons: Jeriah was first, Amariah second, Jahaziel third, and Jekameam fourth.

20 Uzziel's sons: Micah was first, and Isshiah second.

21 Merari's sons: Mahli and Mushi.
Mahli's sons: Eleazar and Kish.

22 Eleazar died having no sons, only daughters. Their cousins, the sons of Kish, married them.

23 Mushi's sons: Mahli, Eder, and Jeremoth — three.

24 These were the descendants of Levi by their ancestral families † — the family heads, according to their registration by name in the headcount — twenty years old or more, who worked in the service of the LORD's temple. † 25 For David said, "The LORD God of Israel has given rest to his people, † and he has come to stay in Jerusalem forever. 26 Also, the Levites no longer need to carry the tabernacle or any of the equipment for its service" † — 27 for according to the last words of David, the Levites twenty years old or more were to be counted — 28 "but their duty will be to assist the descendants of Aaron with the service of the LORD's temple, being responsible for the courts and the chambers, the purification of all the holy things, and the work of the service of God's temple — 29 as well as the rows of the Bread of the Presence, † the fine flour for the grain offering, † the wafers of unleavened bread, the baking, † † the mixing, † and all measurements of volume and length. † 30 They are also to stand every morning to give thanks and praise to the LORD, and likewise in the evening. 31 Whenever burnt offerings are offered to the LORD on the Sabbaths, New Moons, † and appointed festivals, they are to offer them regularly in the LORD's presence according to the number prescribed for them. † 32 They are to carry out their responsibilities for the tent of meeting, for the holy place, † and for their relatives, the descendants of Aaron, † in the service of the LORD's temple."

23:1-5 David made Solomon king over Israel and gathered the leaders, the priests, and the Levites to assist him. The Levites had properly brought the ark into Jerusalem (see 15:1-15), and they also had prominent roles in the temple service (see the note on 6:1).

23:26-32 The Levites had been responsible for transporting the tabernacle and its articles from one place to another (see Nm 4), but this would no longer be necessary once the temple was constructed. Their duties therefore changed to assisting the priests in the temple service (see also the note on 2Ch 7:7). This included giving thanks and praise to the LORD every morning and evening (v. 30).

THE DIVISIONS OF THE PRIESTS

24 The divisions of the descendants of Aaron were as follows: Aaron's sons were Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. † 2 But Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and they had no sons, so Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests. † 3 Together with Zadok † from the descendants of Eleazar and Ahimelech from the descendants of Ithamar, David divided them according to the assigned duties of their service. 4 Since more leaders were found among Eleazar's descendants than Ithamar's, they were divided accordingly: sixteen heads of ancestral families † were from Eleazar's descendants, and eight heads of ancestral families were from Ithamar's. 5 They † were assigned by lot, for there were officers of the sanctuary and officers of God among both Eleazar's and Ithamar's descendants.

6 The secretary, Shemaiah son of Nethanel, a Levite, recorded them in the presence of the king and the officers, the priest Zadok, Ahimelech † son of Abiathar, and the heads of families of the priests and the Levites. One ancestral family † was taken for Eleazar, and then one for Ithamar.

7 The first lot fell to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah,
8 the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim,
9 the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin,
10 the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to Abijah, †
11 the ninth to Jeshua, the tenth to Shecaniah, 12 the eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim,
13 the thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab, 14 the fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer,
15 the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Happizzez, 16 the nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkel, 17 the twenty-first to Jachin, the twenty-second to Gamul,
18 the twenty-third to Delaiah, and the twenty-fourth to Maaziah.

19 These had their assigned duties for service when they entered the LORD's temple, according to their regulations, which they received from their ancestor Aaron, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

THE REST OF THE LEVITES

20 As for the rest of Levi's sons:
from Amram's sons: Shubael;
from Shubael's sons: Jehdeiah.
21 From Rehabiah:
from Rehabiah's sons: Isshiah was the first.

22 From the Izharites: Shelomoth; from Shelomoth's sons: Jahath.
23 Hebron's † † sons:
Jeriah the first, Amariah the second,
Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth.
24 From Uzziel's sons: Micah;
from Micah's sons: Shamir.
25 Micah's brother: Isshiah; from Isshiah's sons: Zechariah.
26 Merari's sons: Mahli and Mushi, and from his sons, Jaaziah his son. † 27 Merari's sons, by his son Jaaziah: †
Shoham, Zaccur, and Ibri.
28 From Mahli: Eleazar, who had no sons.
29 From Kish, from Kish's sons: Jerahmeel.
30 Mushi's sons: Mahli, Eder, and Jerimoth.

Those were the descendants of the Levites according to their ancestral families. † 31 They also cast lots the same way as their relatives the descendants of Aaron did in the presence of King David, Zadok, Ahimelech, and the heads of the families of the priests and Levites — the family heads and their younger brothers alike. †

24:3-6 The priests were also organized for the temple service and assigned their duties by lot (see also v. 19).

THE LEVITICAL MUSICIANS

25 David and the officers of the army also set apart some of the sons of Asaph, Heman, † and Jeduthun, who were to prophesy † accompanied by lyres, harps, and cymbals. † This is the list of the men who performed their service:

2 From Asaph's sons:
Zaccur, Joseph, Nethaniah, and Asarelah, sons of Asaph, under Asaph's authority, who prophesied under the authority of the king.
3 From Jeduthun: † Jeduthun's sons:
Gedaliah, Zeri, Jeshaiah, Shimei, † Hashabiah, and Mattithiah — six — under the authority of their father Jeduthun, prophesying to the accompaniment of lyres, giving thanks and praise to the LORD.
4 From Heman: Heman's sons:
Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shebuel, Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, and Mahazioth. 5 All these sons of Heman, the king's seer, † were given by the promises of God to exalt him, † for God had given Heman fourteen sons and three daughters.

6 All these men were under their own fathers' authority for the music in the LORD's temple, with cymbals, harps, and lyres for the service of God's temple.
Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman were under the king's authority. 7 They numbered 288 together with their relatives who were all trained and skillful in music for the LORD. 8 They cast lots for their duties, young and old alike, teacher as well as pupil. †

9 The first lot for Asaph fell to Joseph, his sons, and his relatives —	12 †
to Gedaliah the second: him, his relatives, and his sons —	12
10 the third to Zaccur, his sons, and his relatives —	12
11 the fourth to Izri, † his sons, and his relatives —	12

12 the fifth to Nethaniah, his sons, and his relatives — 12

15 the eighth to Jeshaiah, his sons, and his relatives — 12

23 the sixteenth to Hananiah, his sons, and his relatives — 12
24 the seventeenth to Joshbekashah, his sons, and his relatives — 12
25 the eighteenth to Hanani, his sons, and his relatives — 12
26 the nineteenth to Mallothi, his sons, and his relatives — 12
27 the twentieth to Eliathah, his sons, and his relatives — 12
28 the twenty-first to Hothir, his sons, and his relatives — 12
29 the twenty-second to Giddalti, his sons, and his relatives — 12
30 the twenty-third to Mahazioth, his sons, and his relatives — 12
31 and the twenty-fourth to Romamti-ezer, his sons, and his relatives — 12.

25:1 These three musical leaders and their sons had been mentioned earlier (see the notes on 6:13-46 and 15:17). Their prophesying (see also vv. 2-3) may have consisted of the singing of lyrics centered on declaring truths about God and praising him, not necessarily on predicting the future (see also note on 1Sm 16:19-23).

THE LEVITICAL GATEKEEPERS

26 The following were the divisions of the gatekeepers:

From the Korahites: Meshelemiah son of Kore, one of the sons of Asaph.

2 Meshelemiah had sons:
Zechariah the firstborn, Jediael the second,
Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth,
3 Elam the fifth, Jehohanan the sixth, and Eliehoenai the seventh.
4 Obed-edom also had sons:
Shemaiah the firstborn, Jehozabad the second,
Joah the third, Sachar the fourth,
Nethanel the fifth, 5 Ammiel the sixth,
Issachar the seventh, and Peullethai the eighth,
for God blessed him.
6 Also, to his son Shemaiah were born sons who ruled their ancestral families † because they were strong, capable men.
7 Shemaiah's sons: Othni, Rephael, Obed, and Elzabad; his relatives Elihu and Semachiah were also capable men. 8 All of these were among the sons of Obed-edom with their sons and relatives; they were capable men with strength for the work — sixty-two from Obed-edom.
9 Meshelemiah also had sons and relatives who were capable men — eighteen.
10 Hosah, † from the Merarites, also had sons: Shimri the first (although he was not the firstborn, his father had appointed him as the first), 11 Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, and Zechariah the fourth. The sons and relatives of Hosah were thirteen in all.

12 These divisions of the gatekeepers, under their leading men, had duties for ministering in the LORD's temple, just as their relatives did. 13 They cast lots for each temple gate according to their ancestral families, young and old alike. † 14 The lot for the east gate fell to Shelemiah. † They also cast lots for his son Zechariah, an insightful counselor, and his lot came out for the north gate.
15 Obed-edom's was the south gate, and his sons' lot was for the storehouses;
16 it was the west gate and the gate of Shallecheth on the ascending highway for Shuppim and Hosah.
There were guards stationed at every watch. 17 There were six Levites each day † on the east, four each day on the north, four each day on the south, and two pair at the storehouses. 18 As for the court on the west, there were four at the highway and two at the court. 19 Those were the divisions of the gatekeepers from the descendants of the Korahites and Merarites.

THE LEVITICAL TREASURERS AND OTHER OFFICIALS

20 From the Levites, Ahijah was in charge of the treasuries of God's temple and the treasuries of what had been dedicated. † 21 From the sons of Ladan, who were the descendants of the Gershonites through Ladan and were the family heads belonging to Ladan the Gershonite: Jehieli. 22 The sons of Jehieli, Zetham and his brother Joel, were in charge of the treasuries of the LORD's temple.
23 From the Amramites, the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites:
24 Shebuel, a descendant of Moses's son Gershom, was the officer in charge of the treasuries. 25 His relatives through Eliezer: his son Rehabiah, his son Jeshaiah, his son Joram, his son Zichri, and his son Shelomith. † 26 This Shelomith and his relatives were in charge of all the treasuries of what had been dedicated by King David, † by the family heads who were the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, and by the army commanders. 27 They dedicated part of the plunder from their battles for the repair of the LORD's temple. 28 All that the seer Samuel, Saul son of Kish, Abner son of Ner, and Joab son of Zeruiah had dedicated, along with everything else that had been dedicated, were in the care of Shelomith and his relatives.
29 From the Izrahites: Chenaniah and his sons had duties outside the temple † † as officers and judges † over Israel. 30 From the Hebronites: Hashabiah † and his relatives, 1,700 capable men, had assigned duties in Israel west of the Jordan for all the work of the LORD and for the service of the king. 31 From the Hebronites: Jerijah † was the head of the Hebronites, according to the family records of his ancestors. A search was made in the fortieth year of David's reign and strong, capable men were found among them at Jazer † in Gilead. 32 There were among Jerijah's relatives 2,700 capable men who were family heads. King David appointed them over the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh as overseers in every matter relating to God and the king. †

26:1 The temple was also to have numerous gatekeepers (see 23:5). This role has been mentioned in several other passages so far (see the note on 9:17-27).

26:20-32 Some Levites had charge over the treasuries (vv. 20-28), and still others served as officers and judges over Israel (vv. 29-32).

DAVID'S SECULAR OFFICIALS

27 This is the list of the Israelites, the family heads, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, and their officers who served the king in every matter to do with the divisions that were on rotated military duty each month throughout † the year. There were 24,000 in each division:

2 Jashobeam son of Zabdiel was in charge of the first division, † for the first month; 24,000 were in his division. 3 He was a descendant of Perez and chief of all the army commanders for the first month.

month, and Mikloth was the leader; 24,000 were in his division.

5 The third army commander, as chief for the third month, was

6 This Benaiah was a mighty man among the Thirty and over the Thirty, and his son Ammizabad was in charge † of his division.

7 The fourth commander, for the fourth month, was Joab's brother 21 for half the tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, Iddo son of Zechariah; for Benjamin, Jaasiel son of Abner;

22 for Dan, Azarel son of Jeroham.
Those were the leaders of the tribes of Israel. †

23 David didn't count the men aged twenty or under, for the LORD had said he would make Israel as numerous as the stars of the sky. † 24 Joab son of Zeruiah began to count them, but he didn't complete it. There was wrath against Israel because of this census, † and the number was not entered in the Historical Record † of King David.

25 Azmaveth son of Adiel was in charge of the king's storehouses.
Jonathan son of Uzziah was in charge of the storehouses in the country, in the cities, in the villages, and in the fortresses.

27:23-24 Regarding this census, see the note on 21:1-6.

DAVID COMMISSIONS SOLOMON TO BUILD THE TEMPLE

28 David assembled all the leaders of Israel in Jerusalem: † the leaders of the tribes, the leaders of the divisions in the king's service, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, and the officials in charge of all the property and cattle of the king and his sons, along with the court officials, the fighting men, † and all the best soldiers. 2 Then King David rose to his feet and said, "Listen to me, my brothers and my people. It was in my heart to build a house as a resting place for the ark of the LORD's covenant † and as a footstool † for our God. I had made preparations to build, 3 but God said to me, 'You are not to build a house for my name because you are a man of war and have shed blood.' †

4 "Yet the LORD God of Israel chose me out of all my father's family † to be king over Israel forever. † For he chose Judah as leader, † and from the house of Judah, my father's family, and from my father's sons, † he was pleased to make me king over all Israel. 5 And out of all my sons † — for the LORD has given me many sons — he has chosen my son Solomon to sit on the throne of the LORD's kingdom over Israel. † 6 He said to me, † 'Your son Solomon is the one who is to build my house and my courts, for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father. 7 I will establish his kingdom forever if he perseveres in keeping my commands and my ordinances as he is doing today.' †

8 "So now in the sight of all Israel, the assembly of the LORD, and in the hearing of our God, observe and follow all the commands of the LORD your God so that you may possess this good land and leave it as an inheritance to your descendants forever.
9 "As for you, Solomon my son, know the God of your father, and serve him wholeheartedly and with a willing mind, † for the LORD searches every heart and understands the intention of every thought. † If you seek him, he will be found by you, but if you abandon him, he will reject you forever. † 10 Realize now that the LORD has chosen you to build a house for the sanctuary. Be strong, and do it." †
11 Then David gave his son Solomon the plans † for the portico † of the temple and its buildings, treasuries, upstairs rooms, inner rooms, and a room for the mercy seat. † 12 The plans contained everything he had in mind † † for the courts of the LORD's house, all the surrounding chambers, the treasuries † of God's house, and the treasuries for what is dedicated. 13 Also included were plans for the divisions of the priests and the Levites; all the work of service in the LORD's house; all the articles of service of the LORD's house; 14 the weight of gold for all the articles for every kind of service; the weight of all the silver articles for every kind of service; 15 the weight of the gold lampstands † and their gold lamps, including the weight of each lampstand and its lamps; the weight of each silver lampstand and its lamps, according to the service of each lampstand; 16 the weight of gold for each table for the rows of the Bread of the Presence and the silver for the silver tables; 17 the pure gold for the forks, sprinkling basins, and pitchers; the weight of each gold dish; the weight of each silver bowl; 18 the weight of refined gold for the altar of incense; † and the plans for the chariot of † † the gold cherubim that spread out their wings and cover the ark of the LORD's covenant. †

19 David concluded, “By the LORD’s hand on me, he enabled me to understand everything in writing, all the details of the plan.” † 20 Then David said to his son Solomon, “Be strong and courageous, † and do the work. Don’t be afraid or discouraged, for the LORD God, my God, is with you. He won’t leave you or abandon you † until all the work for the service of the LORD’s house is finished. 21 Here are the divisions of the priests and the Levites for all the service of God’s house. † Every willing person of any skill † will be at your disposal for the work, and the leaders and all the people are at your every command.”

28:1 The cumulative impression left by the many preceding lists is that of both a well-established kingdom and of extensive preparations for building the temple. Whereas David had spoken to Solomon individually about building it (22:6-16) and to the leaders of Israel briefly about helping him (22:17-19), he now gathered them all together along with the army to speak to them at length about the upcoming construction project.

28:2-10 David’s message to this group of leaders mirrors what he told Solomon earlier. He had wanted to build a temple but was forbidden by God because he had fought many wars (vv. 2-3; 22:7-8). The Lord had made a covenant with David that his kingdom would endure forever (v. 4; see 17:27), and he had chosen Solomon as his successor (v. 5; 22:9). Although Solomon was charged with obedience earlier (22:12-13), what is even clearer this time around is that God’s promise to establish his kingdom forever will only be fulfilled if he perseveres in keeping [God’s] commands (v. 7; see also 2Ch 6:16; 7:17-18). David publicly charged Solomon and the leaders to obey God so that they might possess this good land and leave it as an inheritance to [their] descendants forever (v. 8). As it turned out, Solomon’s son Rehoboam lost much of this land when the kingdom divided, and most of the tribes followed Jeroboam (see 2Ch 10:16-19). Solomon’s partial responsibility is strongly suggested through the mention of his “heavy yoke” (2Ch 10:4) and of Ahijah’s prophecy (2Ch 9:29; 10:15; see 1Kg 11:29-39).

28:11-12 David then gave Solomon the plans (Hb tavnit; translated “pattern” in Ex 25:9,40) for the temple. These plans had been understood by David with God’s help (v. 19; see also footnote on v. 19), in a way similar to Moses’s reception of the plans for the tabernacle.

28:20-21 The charge in v. 20 resembles the one Joshua received in Joshua 1:5-9. Regarding God’s presence with Solomon, see the note on 22:16. As in the case of the tabernacle (see Ex 36:2), willing and skilled workers staffed the construction project.

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR BUILDING THE TEMPLE

29 Then King David said to all the assembly, “My son Solomon — God has chosen him alone — is young and inexperienced. The task is great † because the building will not be built for a human but for the LORD God. † 2 So to the best of my ability I’ve made provision for the house of my God: † gold for the gold articles, silver for the silver, bronze for the bronze, iron for the iron, and wood for the wood, as well as onyx, stones for mounting, † antimony, † † stones of various colors, all kinds of precious stones, and a great quantity of marble. 3 Moreover, because of my delight in the house of my God, I now give my personal treasures of gold and silver for the house of my God over and above all that I’ve provided for the holy house: 4 100 tons † † of gold (gold of Ophir †) and 250 tons † of refined silver for overlaying the walls of the buildings, 5 the gold for the gold work and the silver for the silver, for all the work to be done by the craftsmen. Now who will volunteer to consecrate himself to the LORD today? ” 6 Then the leaders of the households, the leaders of the tribes of Israel, the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, † and the officials in charge of the king’s work † gave willingly. 7 For the service of God’s house they gave 185 tons † of gold and 10,000 gold coins, † † 375 tons † of silver, 675 tons † of bronze, and 4,000 tons † of iron. 8 Whoever had precious stones gave them to the treasury of the LORD’s house under the care of Jehiel † the Gershonite.
9 Then the people rejoiced because of their leaders’ willingness to give, for they had given to the LORD wholeheartedly. † King David also rejoiced greatly.

DAVID’S PRAYER

10 Then David blessed the LORD in the sight of all the assembly. David said,
May you be blessed, LORD God of our father Israel, from eternity to eternity.
11 Yours, LORD, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the splendor and the majesty, for everything in the heavens and on earth belongs to you.
Yours, LORD, is the kingdom, and you are exalted as head over all. † 12 Riches and honor come from you, and you are the ruler of everything. † Power and might are in your hand, and it is in your hand to make great and to give strength to all. † 13 Now therefore, our God, we give you thanks and praise your glorious name.

14 But who am I, and who are my people, that we should be able to give as generously as this? For everything comes from you, and we have given you only what comes from your own hand. † 15 For we are aliens and temporary residents in your presence as were all our ancestors. † Our days on earth are like a shadow, without hope. † 16 LORD our God, all this wealth that we've provided for building you a house for your holy name comes from your hand; everything belongs to you. 17 I know, my God, that you test the heart † and that you are pleased with what is right. † I have willingly given all these things with an upright heart, and now I have seen your people who are present † here giving joyfully and † willingly to you. 18 LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, our ancestors, keep this desire forever in the thoughts of the hearts of your people, and confirm their hearts toward you. 19 Give my son Solomon an undivided heart to keep and to carry out all your commands, your decrees, and your statutes, † and to build the building for which I have made provision. †
20 Then David said to the whole assembly, "Blessed be the LORD your God." So the whole assembly praised the LORD God of their ancestors. † They knelt low and paid homage to the LORD and the king. †
21 The following day they offered sacrifices to the LORD and burnt offerings to the LORD: a thousand bulls, a thousand rams, and a thousand lambs, along with their drink offerings, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel. † 22 They ate and drank with great joy in the LORD's presence that day.

THE ENTHRONEMENT OF SOLOMON

Then, for a second time, † they made David's son Solomon king; they anointed him † as the LORD's ruler, † and Zadok as the priest. 23 Solomon sat on the LORD's throne as king in place of his father David. He prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. † 24 All the leaders and the mighty men, and all of King David's sons as well, pledged their allegiance to King Solomon. 25 The LORD highly exalted Solomon in the sight of all Israel † and bestowed on him such royal majesty as had not been bestowed on any king over Israel before him. †

A SUMMARY OF DAVID'S LIFE

26 David son of Jesse was king over all Israel. † 27 The length of his reign over Israel was forty years; he reigned in Hebron for seven years and in Jerusalem for thirty-three. † 28 He died at a good old age, † full of days, † riches, and honor, and his son Solomon became king in his place. 29 As for the events of King David's reign, from beginning to end, note that they are written in the Events of the Seer Samuel, † the Events of the Prophet Nathan, † and the Events of the Seer Gad, † 30 along with all his reign, his might, and the incidents that affected him and Israel and all the kingdoms of the surrounding lands.

29:1 The extensive preparations for the temple (like those for the tabernacle) were appropriate given that it was not for a human but for the LORD God (see the note on 22:2-5; 2Ch 2:5-6).

29:6-9 David's deep interest in this project was evident through his donation of his own "personal treasures" for the work (v. 3). Having set the example, he appealed to the other leaders to respond similarly (v. 5), which they did wholeheartedly. This voluntary, generous giving is reminiscent of the building of the tabernacle (see the note on Ex 35:21–36:7).

29:11-16 David in this part of the prayer repeatedly asserted that all things belong to God. The kingdom is his (v. 11; see also v. 23; 28:5) and riches are his (vv. 12,16). On this basis, David recognized that he and the Israelites were merely giving back to God what was already his (v. 14). They, as mere aliens and temporary residents on this earth (v. 15), were unworthy to do this.

29:18-19 David also prayed for the Israelites and Solomon to continue in their devotion to God.

29:22-25 Solomon became king over all Israel (v. 23), just as David had been (v. 26). His sitting on the LORD's throne emphasizes God's sovereignty and his selection of David's line (see the note on 17:10-14). The kingdom was, in fact, God's (v. 11). This aligns with its endurance and with the eventual rule of the Messiah. The people (28:8) and the temple (17:14) were also God's.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

Second Chronicles shows that God blesses faithfulness to him and punishes his people when they turn away from him. God's "educational program" meant teaching his people that he values allegiance to him above all else. The book ends with a note of hope: the Israelite exiles have been permitted to return home in order to rebuild their temple. God's Spirit is noted as inspiring certain priests and prophets.

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

Second Chronicles focuses at length on Solomon, whose splendid rule in Jerusalem was a preview of Christ's everlasting reign in the new Jerusalem (Mt 12:42; Rv 21–22). As in 2 Kings, the worth of the kings is determined only by whether they did right or evil in the sight of the Lord.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

As in 2 Kings, God's prophets in 2 Chronicles called both king and people to repent for religious apostasy and to worship the Lord alone. (Isaiah and Jeremiah are known from their writings; Shemaiah, Oded, Micaiah, Eliezer, and Huldah are less familiar.) Four kings led Judah to turn from sin, repair the temple, and recommit to wholehearted worship of the Lord (Asa, Joash, Hezekiah, and Josiah).

SOLOMON'S REQUEST FOR WISDOM

1 Solomon son of David strengthened his hold on his kingdom.† The LORD his God was with him and highly exalted him.† 2 Then Solomon spoke to all Israel, to the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, to the judges, and to every leader in all Israel — the family heads.† 3 Solomon and the whole assembly with him went to the high place that was in Gibeon† because God's tent of meeting, which the LORD's servant Moses had made† in the wilderness, was there. 4 Now David had brought the ark of God from Kiriath-jearim to the place† he had set up for it, because he had pitched a tent for it in Jerusalem,† 5 but he put† the bronze altar, which Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur, had made,† in front of the LORD's tabernacle. Solomon and the assembly inquired of him† there. 6 Solomon offered sacrifices there in the LORD's presence on the bronze altar at the tent of meeting; he offered a thousand burnt offerings on it.†

7 That night† God appeared to Solomon and said to him: "Ask. What should I give you? "

8 And Solomon said to God: "You have shown great and faithful love to my father David, and you have made me king in his place.† 9 LORD God, let your promise to my father David now come true.† For you have made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth.† 10 Now grant me wisdom and knowledge so that I may lead these people,† for who can judge this great people of yours? "

11 God said to Solomon, "Since this was in your heart, and you have not requested riches, wealth, or glory, or for the life of those who hate you, and you have not even requested long life, but you have requested for yourself wisdom and knowledge that you may judge my people over whom I have made you king, 12 wisdom and knowledge are given to you. I will also give you riches, wealth, and glory, unlike what was given to the kings who were before you, or will be given to those after you."† 13 So Solomon went to Jerusalem from† the high place that was in Gibeon in front of the tent of meeting, and he reigned over Israel.

SOLOMON'S HORSES AND WEALTH

14 Solomon† accumulated 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen,† which he stationed in the chariot cities† and with the king in Jerusalem. 15 The king made silver and gold as common in Jerusalem as stones, and he made cedar as abundant as sycamore in the Judean foothills. 16 Solomon's horses came from Egypt and Kue.† The king's traders would get them from Kue at the going price. 17 A chariot could be imported from Egypt for fifteen pounds† of silver and a horse for nearly four pounds.† In the same way, they exported them to all the kings of the Hittites and to the kings of Aram through their agents.

1:1 This book resumes the narrative of 1 Chronicles. For issues that relate to both books, see the note on 1 Chronicles 1:1. Solomon had become king and enjoyed the favor of God (see also 1Ch 29:22-25). The LORD his God was with him (see also 1Ch 28:20), just as David had prayed (see the note on 1Ch 22:16).

1:3-5 The biblical author emphasizes the tabernacle's continuity up to this point by referring to the tent of meeting which Moses made (v. 3), the ark (v. 4), and the bronze altar which Bezalel had made (v. 5). Bezalel had been mentioned in the genealogies earlier (see the note on 1Ch 2:18-20).

1:11-13 Solomon's request for wisdom and knowledge that he might govern Israel well (vv. 7-10) pleased God, who not only granted his request but also promised to give him unequaled riches, wealth, and glory. This is partially described in vv. 14-17 (see also 9:1-28).

SOLOMON'S LETTER TO HIRAM

2 Solomon decided to build a temple for the name of the LORD and a royal palace for himself,† 2 so he assigned 70,000 men as porters, 80,000 men as stonecutters in the mountains, and 3,600 as supervisors over them.†
3 Then Solomon sent word to King Hiram†† of Tyre:†
Do for me what you did for my father David. You sent him cedars to build him a house to live in.† 4 Now I am building a temple for the name of the LORD my God in order to dedicate it to him for burning fragrant incense before him,† for displaying the rows of the Bread of the Presence continuously,† and for sacrificing burnt offerings for the morning and the evening,† the Sabbaths† and the New Moons, and the appointed festivals of the LORD our God. This is ordained for Israel permanently. 5 The temple that I am building will be great, for our God is greater than any of the gods.† 6 But who is able to build a temple for him, since even heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain him?† Who am I then that I should build a temple for him except as a place to burn incense before him? 7 Therefore, send me an artisan who is skilled in engraving to work with gold, silver, bronze, and iron, and with purple, crimson, and blue yarn. He will work with the artisans who are with me in Judah and Jerusalem,† appointed by my father David.† 8 Also, send me cedar, cypress, and algum†† logs from Lebanon, for I know that your servants know how to cut the trees of Lebanon. Note that my servants will be with your servants† 9 to prepare logs for me in abundance because the temple I am building will be great and wondrous. 10 I will give your servants, the woodcutters who cut the trees, one hundred thousand bushels† of wheat flour, one hundred thousand bushels of barley, one hundred ten thousand gallons† of wine, and one hundred ten thousand gallons of oil.

HIRAM'S REPLY

11 Then King Hiram of Tyre wrote a letter† and sent it to Solomon:
Because the LORD loves his people, he set you over them as king.†
12 Hiram also said:
Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, who made the heavens and the earth!† He gave King David a wise son with insight and understanding,† who will build a temple for the LORD and a royal palace for himself.† 13 I have now sent Huram-abi,† a skillful man who has understanding.† 14 He is the son of a woman from the daughters of Dan. His father is a man of Tyre. He knows how to work with gold, silver, bronze, iron, stone, and wood, with purple, blue, crimson yarn, and fine linen. He knows how to do all kinds of engraving and to execute any design that may be given him. I have sent him to be with your artisans and the artisans of my lord, your father David. 15 Now, let my lord send the wheat, barley, oil, and wine to his servants as promised.† 16 We will cut logs from Lebanon, as many as you need, and bring them to you as rafts by sea to Joppa. You can then take them up to Jerusalem.†

17 Solomon took a census of all the resident alien men in the land of Israel, after the census that his father David had conducted,† and the total was 153,600. 18 Solomon made 70,000 of them porters, 80,000 stonecutters in the mountains, and 3,600 supervisors to make the people work.†

2:1 In keeping with the preceding narrative, Chronicles focus on Solomon as temple-builder. The building of his palace and his other projects are passed over quickly (see also 8:1-6,11,17-18) in comparison to Kings (see 1Kg 7:1-12; 9:10-19,24-28). Likewise, his famously wise decision concerning a maternity case is unmentioned in Chronicles (see 1Kg 3:16-28).

2:5-6 The temple was to be great, for our God is greater than any of the gods (see also the notes on 1Ch 16:8,23-33 and 29:1). On the other hand, Solomon recognized that the temple could not contain the Lord and was merely a place to offer sacrifices before him (v. 6; 6:18; 7:12). Other passages will add that the temple would also be a place of prayer (6:19-40; 7:15).

2:11-12 The statement of praise to God from this Gentile king recalls David's words of thanksgiving spoken earlier when the ark was successfully transported to Jerusalem (see the notes on 1Ch 16:8,23-33). Just as the securing of the temple site was partially dependent on a Gentile (see the note on 1Ch 22:1), so was its construction (vv. 3-16).

2:17-18 These laborers had been mentioned in v. 2, and these verses further explain that these men were foreigners.

BUILDING THE TEMPLE

3 Then Solomon began† to build the LORD's temple in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah† where the LORD† had appeared to his father David, at the site David had prepared on the threshing floor of Ornan† the Jebusite.
2 He began to build on the second day of the second month in the fourth year of his reign. 3 These are Solomon's foundations† for building God's temple: the length† was ninety feet,† and the width thirty feet.† 4 The portico, which was across the front extending across the width of the temple, was thirty feet wide; its height was thirty feet;† he overlaid its inner surface with pure gold. 5 The larger room† he paneled with cypress wood, overlaid with fine gold, and decorated with palm trees and chains. 6 He adorned the temple with precious stones for beauty, and the gold was the gold of Parvaim. 7 He overlaid the temple — the beams, the thresholds, its walls and doors — with gold,† and he carved cherubim on the walls.†

THE MOST HOLY PLACE

8 Then he made the most holy place; its length corresponded to the width of the temple, 30 feet, and its width was 30 feet.† He overlaid it with forty-five thousand pounds† of fine gold. 9 The weight of the nails was twenty ounces† of gold, and he overlaid the ceiling with gold.
10 He made† two cherubim of sculptured work, for the most holy place, and he overlaid them with gold. 11 The overall length of the wings of the cherubim was 30 feet: the wing of one was 7 1/2 feet,† touching the wall of the room; its other wing was 7 1/2 feet, touching the wing of the other cherub. 12 The wing of the other† cherub was 7 1/2 feet, touching the wall of the room; its other wing was 7 1/2 feet, reaching the wing of the other cherub. 13 The wingspan of these cherubim was 30 feet. They stood on their feet and faced the larger room.†

14 He made the curtain of blue, purple, and crimson yarn and fine linen, and he wove cherubim into it.†

THE BRONZE PILLARS

15 In front of the temple† he made two pillars, each 27 feet† high. The capital on top of each was 7 1/2 feet high. 16 He had made chainwork in the inner sanctuary and also put it on top of the pillars.† He made a hundred pomegranates and fastened them into the chainwork. 17 Then he set up the pillars in front of the sanctuary, one on the right and one on the left. He named the one on the right Jachin† and the one on the left Boaz.†

3:1 Here continuity with the past is emphasized again (see the note on 1:3-5). Not only was the temple site the one that David had chosen (see the note on 1Ch 22:1), but it was also Mount Moriah, where Abraham had nearly sacrificed Isaac centuries before (Gn 22:2). The temple in process was thus linked to these two great men, Abraham and David, and their costly sacrifices (Gn 22:2; 1Ch 21:24). The Lord had made covenants with each of these men, and both would find their fulfillment in the Messiah (see the note on 2Sm 7:8-16).

3:6 Parvaim is mentioned only here in the OT and is usually taken as a geographical term, though its precise location is unknown.

3:8 The astounding amount of gold used to overlay the most holy place was in keeping with the need for the temple to be magnificent for God’s sake (see the note on 2:5-6).

THE ALTAR, RESERVOIR, AND BASINS

4 He made a bronze altar† 30 feet† long, 30 feet wide, and 15 feet† high.
2 Then he made the cast metal basin,†† 15 feet from brim to brim, perfectly round. It was 7 1/2 feet† high and 45 feet† in circumference. 3 The likeness of oxen† was below it, completely encircling it, ten every half yard,† completely surrounding the basin. The oxen were cast in two rows when the basin was cast. 4 It stood on twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east. The basin was on top of them and all their hindquarters were toward the center. 5 The basin was three inches† thick, and its rim was fashioned like the brim of a cup or a lily blossom. It could hold eleven thousand gallons.†

6 He made ten basins for washing and he put five on the right and five on the left.† The parts of the burnt offering were rinsed in them,† but the basin was used by the priests for washing.

THE LAMPSTANDS, TABLES, AND COURTS

7 He made the ten gold lampstands according to their specifications and put them in the sanctuary, five on the right and five on the left.† 8 He made ten tables and placed them in the sanctuary, five on the right and five on the left.† He also made a hundred gold bowls.

9 He made the courtyard† of the priests and the large court, and doors for the court. He overlaid the doors with bronze. 10 He put the basin on the right side, toward the southeast.† 11 Then Huram†† made† the pots, the shovels, and the bowls.

COMPLETION OF THE BRONZE FURNISHINGS

So Huram finished doing the work that he was doing for King Solomon in God's temple: 12 two pillars; the bowls and the capitals on top of the two pillars; the two gratings for covering both bowls of the capitals that were on top of the pillars; 13 the four hundred pomegranates for the two gratings (two rows of pomegranates for each grating covering both capitals' bowls on top of the pillars†). 14 He also made the water carts†† and the basins on the water carts. 15 The one basin and the twelve oxen underneath it, 16 the pots, the shovels, the forks, and all their utensils — Huram-abi†† made them for King Solomon for the LORD's temple. All these were made of polished bronze. 17 The king had them cast in clay molds in the Jordan Valley between Succoth and Zeredah. 18 Solomon made all these utensils in such great abundance that the weight of the bronze was not determined.

COMPLETION OF THE GOLD FURNISHINGS

19 Solomon also made all the equipment in God's temple: the gold altar; the tables on which to put the Bread of the Presence;† 20 the lampstands and their lamps of pure gold to burn in front of the inner sanctuary according to specifications;† 21 the flowers, lamps, and gold tongs — of purest gold; 22 the wick trimmers, sprinkling basins, ladles,† and firepans — of purest gold; and the entryway to the temple, its inner doors to the most holy place, and the doors of the temple sanctuary — of gold.

4:11 Huram had been sent by the king of Tyre to assist Solomon in construction (2:13-14).

5 So all the work Solomon did for the LORD's temple was completed. Then Solomon brought the consecrated things of his father David — the silver, the gold, and all the utensils — and put them in the treasuries of God's temple.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE TEMPLE DEDICATION

2 At that time† Solomon assembled at Jerusalem the elders of Israel — all the tribal heads, the ancestral chiefs of the Israelites — in order to bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD up from the city of David,† that is, Zion. 3 So all the men of Israel were assembled in the king's presence at the festival; this was in the seventh month.†
4 All the elders of Israel came, and the Levites picked up the ark. 5 They brought up the ark, the tent of meeting, and the holy utensils that were in the tent. The priests and the Levites brought them up. 6 King Solomon and the entire congregation of Israel who had gathered around him were in front of the ark sacrificing sheep, goats, and cattle that could not be counted or numbered because there were so many. 7 The priests brought the ark of the LORD's covenant to its place, into the inner sanctuary of the temple, to the most holy place, beneath the wings of the cherubim.† 8 And the cherubim spread their wings over the place of the ark so that the cherubim formed a cover above the ark and its poles. 9 The poles were so long that their ends were seen from the holy place†† in front of the inner sanctuary, but they were not seen from outside; they are still there today. 10 Nothing was in the ark except the two tablets that Moses had put in it at Horeb,†† where the LORD had made a covenant with the Israelites when they came out of Egypt.
11 Now all the priests who were present had consecrated themselves regardless of their divisions.† When the priests came out of the holy place, 12 the Levitical singers dressed in fine linen and carrying cymbals, harps, and lyres† were standing east of the altar, and with them were 120 priests blowing trumpets.† The Levitical singers were descendants of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun and their sons† and relatives. 13 The trumpeters and singers joined together to praise and thank the LORD with one voice. They raised their voices, accompanied by trumpets, cymbals, and musical instruments,† in praise to the LORD:

For he is good;
his faithful love endures forever.†

The temple, the LORD's temple, was filled with a cloud.† 14 And because of the cloud, the priests were not able to continue ministering, for the glory of the LORD filled God's temple.†

5:2-3 Having completed the temple, Solomon gathered the Israelites to bring in the ark.

5:4-5 Fittingly, the Levites carried the ark and the other articles. David and the Israelites had erred earlier in having others carry the ark and learned their lesson (see the notes on 1Ch 13:1-10 and 15:2-15).

5:10 This reminder that the ark contained the two tablets that Moses had put in it at Horeb links the temple to the covenant God made with Israel at Sinai (see 6:11; Jr 31:31-34).

5:11-14 Music had accompanied the transportation of the ark earlier (see 1Ch 13:8; 15:16-29), and David had prepared the Levites to continue this ministry at the temple (see 1Ch 25). Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun had been designated leaders of this work earlier (see the notes on 1Ch 6:31-46 and 15:17). Slight variations of he is good; his faithful love endures forever appear elsewhere in Chronicles (see the note on 1Ch 16:34-36). The filling of the temple with a cloud and the priests' consequent inability to continue ministering parallel what happened after the tabernacle was completed (7:2; Ex 40:34-35).

SOLOMON'S DEDICATION OF THE TEMPLE

Then Solomon said:†

6 The LORD said he would dwell in total darkness,†
2 but I have built an exalted temple for you, a place for your residence forever.

3 Then the king turned and blessed the entire congregation of Israel while they were standing. 4 He said:

Blessed be the LORD God of Israel!
He spoke directly to my father David,
and he has fulfilled the promise by his power.

He said,
5 “Since the day I brought my people Israel out of the land of Egypt,†
I have not chosen a city to build a temple in among any of the tribes of Israel,
so that my name would be there,
and I have not chosen a man to be ruler over my people Israel.
6 But I have chosen Jerusalem so that my name will be there,† and I have chosen David to be over my people Israel.”†

7 My father David had his heart set on building a temple for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.†
8 However, the LORD said to my father David, “Since it was your desire to build a temple for my name, you have done well to have this desire.
9 Yet, you are not the one to build the temple, but your son, your own offspring, will build the temple for my name.”
10 So the LORD has fulfilled what he promised.
I have taken the place of my father David
and I sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised.
I have built the temple for the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.
11 I have put the ark there, where the LORD’s covenant is that he made with the Israelites.†

SOLOMON’S PRAYER

12 Then Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in front of the entire congregation of Israel and spread out his hands. 13 For Solomon had made a bronze platform 7 1/2 feet† long, 7 1/2 feet wide, and 4 1/2 feet† high and put it in the court. He stood on it,† knelt down in front of the entire congregation of Israel, and spread out his hands toward heaven.† 14 He said:

LORD God of Israel, there is no God like you in heaven or on earth,† who keeps his gracious covenant with your servants who walk before you
with all their heart.†
15 You have kept what you promised to your servant, my father David.

You spoke directly to him,
and you fulfilled your promise by your power, as it is today.†
16 Therefore, LORD God of Israel, keep what you promised to your servant, my father David:
"You will never fail to have a man
to sit before me on the throne of Israel,†
if only your sons guard their way to walk in my Law as you have walked before me."
17 Now, LORD God of Israel, please confirm what you promised to your servant David.

18 But will God indeed live on earth with humans?
Even heaven, the highest heaven, cannot contain you,† much less this temple I have built.
19 Listen† to your servant's prayer and his petition, LORD my God, so that you may hear the cry and the prayer that your servant prays before you,
20 so that your eyes watch over this temple day and night, toward the place where you said
you would put your name;†
and so that you may hear the prayer
your servant prays toward this place.
21 Hear the petitions of your servant and your people Israel,
which they pray toward this place.
May you hear in your dwelling place in heaven.
May you hear and forgive.

22 If a man sins against his neighbor and is forced to take an oath† and he comes to take an oath
before your altar in this temple,
23 may you hear in heaven and act.
May you judge your servants,
condemning the wicked man by bringing
what he has done on his own head
and providing justice for the righteous
by rewarding him according to his righteousness.

24 If your people Israel are defeated before an enemy, because they have sinned against you, and they return to you and praise your name, and they pray and plead for mercy before you in this temple,
25 may you hear in heaven and forgive the sin of your people Israel.
May you restore them to the land
you gave them and their ancestors.

26 When the skies are shut and there is no rain because they have sinned against you,
and they pray toward this place
and praise your name,
and they turn from their sins because you are afflicting†† them, 27 may you hear in heaven and forgive the sin of your servants
and your people Israel,
so that you may teach them the good way
they should walk in.
May you send rain on your land
that you gave your people for an inheritance.

28 When there is famine in the land, when there is pestilence, when there is blight or mildew, locust or grasshopper, when their enemies besiege them
in the land and its cities,†††
when there is any plague or illness,
29 every prayer or petition that any person or that all your people Israel may have — they each know their own affliction† and suffering — as they spread out their hands toward this temple, 30 may you hear in heaven, your dwelling place, and may you forgive and give to everyone†
according to all their ways, since you know each heart, for you alone know the human heart,† 31 so that they may fear you and walk in your ways all the days they live on the land
you gave our ancestors.

32 Even for the foreigner who is not of your people Israel but has come from a distant land because of your great name and your strong hand and outstretched arm:†
when he comes and prays toward this temple, 33 may you hear in heaven in your dwelling place, and do all the foreigner asks you.
Then all the peoples of the earth will know your name, to fear you as your people Israel do and know that this temple I have built bears your name.†

34 When your people go out to fight against their enemies, wherever you send them, and they pray to you in the direction of this city you have chosen† and the temple that I have built for your name, 35 may you hear their prayer and petition in heaven and uphold their cause.

36 When they sin against you — for there is no one who does not sin† — and you are angry with them and hand them over to the enemy, and their captors deport them to a distant or nearby country, 37 and when they come to their senses in the land where they were deported and repent and petition you in their captors' land, saying: "We have sinned and done wrong;
we have been wicked," 38 and when they return to you with all their mind and all their heart in the land of their captivity where they were taken captive, and when they pray in the direction of their land that you gave their ancestors, and the city you have chosen, and toward the temple I have built for your name, 39 may you hear their prayer and petitions in heaven, your dwelling place, and uphold their cause.†
May you forgive your people who sinned against you.

40 Now, my God, please let your eyes be open and your ears attentive to the prayer of this place.†
41 Now therefore:†

Arise, LORD God, come to your resting place, you and your powerful ark.
May your priests, LORD God, be clothed with salvation, and may your faithful people rejoice in goodness.
42 LORD God, do not reject your anointed one;† remember the promises to your servant David.†

6:2 Despite Solomon's intention that this temple be a place for [God's] residence forever, it would be destroyed because of Israel's disobedience (cp. 7:19-22; 36:18-19).

6:4-10 Solomon's citation of God's promises to David reflect what his father said earlier in 1 Chronicles 28:2-10 (see note).

6:16 Referencing God's promises to David once again (see previous note), Solomon brings out the conditions: the Davidic dynasty in Israel will continue if only [David's] sons guard their way to walk in [God's] Law as [David] walked before [him] (see also 7:17-18; notes on 1 Chronicles 22:7-13 and 28:2-10). Solomon himself affirmed this aspect of God's promises (see also v. 17). His son Rehoboam, however, would not reign over all Israel (10:16-19), implying that the condition had not been met.

6:18 For a second time, Solomon confessed that even heaven, the highest heaven, cannot contain God—much less this temple (2:6).

6:24-27 Solomon asked that besides just being a place to offer incense and sacrifice (2:6; 7:12), the temple be a place where prayer is answered by God (v. 21; see the note on 1Kg 8:28-30). The situations described here are ones in which Israel had sinned but was repenting and asking for forgiveness. The statement that contrite Israelites would praise [God's] name (vv. 24,26) relates to other passages that mention praising God in the temple (see notes on 5:11-14 and 1Ch 16:34-36).

6:30 The Lord's ability to answer prayer properly and to do justice is based on his special knowledge of the human heart (see also v. 23).

6:32-33 Solomon's request that God hear prayer offered by worshipers was not limited to the Israelites but extended to the foreigner who has come from a distant land (v. 32). Answered prayer would serve an evangelistic purpose because all the people of the earth will know [the Lord's] name (v. 33; see the note on 1Ch 16:8,23-33).

6:36-39 This part of Solomon's prayer describes a time when Israel is in exile. Although the exile is not narrated until 2 Chronicles 36, it has been repeatedly mentioned earlier and is part of the perspective advanced by the biblical author (see the notes on 1Ch 1:1 and 3:10-24). Such a dire situation had been predicted by Moses (Dt 4:25-28) but so was Israel's genuine repentance with all their mind and all their heart (see Dt 4:29-30; 30:2). Solomon's request that God hear prayer at that time was thus also a prayer that he would fulfill his age-old promises (Dt 4:29-31; 30:3-7).

6:42 The end of Solomon's lengthy prayer emphasizes the link between the Davidic line and the temple.

THE DEDICATION CEREMONIES

7 When Solomon finished praying,† fire descended from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices,† and the glory of the LORD filled the temple. 2 The priests were not able to enter the LORD's temple because the glory of the LORD filled the temple of the LORD. 3 All the Israelites were watching when the fire descended and the glory of the LORD came on the temple. They bowed down on the pavement with their faces to the ground. They worshiped and praised the LORD:

For he is good,
for his faithful love endures forever.†

4 The king and all the people were offering sacrifices in the LORD's presence.† 5 King Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty-two thousand cattle and one hundred twenty thousand sheep and goats. In this manner the king and all the people dedicated God's temple. 6 The priests and the Levites were standing at their stations. The Levites had the musical instruments of the LORD, which King David had made to give thanks to the LORD — "for his faithful love endures forever" — when he offered praise with them.† Across from the Levites, the priests were blowing trumpets, and all the people were standing. 7 Since the bronze altar that Solomon had made† could not accommodate the burnt offering, the grain offering, and the fat of the fellowship offerings, Solomon first consecrated the middle of the courtyard† that was in front of the LORD's temple and then offered the burnt offerings and the fat of the fellowship offerings there.†
8 So Solomon and all Israel with him — a very great assembly, from the entrance to Hamath† to the Brook of Egypt — observed the festival at that time for seven days. 9 On the eighth day† they held a sacred assembly,† for the dedication of the altar lasted seven days and the festival seven days. 10 On the twenty-third day of the seventh month he sent the people home,† rejoicing and with happy hearts for the goodness the LORD had done for David, for Solomon, and for his people Israel.

11 So Solomon finished the LORD's temple and the royal palace. Everything that had entered Solomon's heart to do for the LORD's temple and for his own palace succeeded.†

THE LORD'S RESPONSE

12 Then the LORD appeared to Solomon at night and said to him:
I have heard your prayer and have chosen this place for myself as a temple of sacrifice.† 13 If I shut the sky so there is no rain, or if I command the grasshopper to consume the land, or if I send pestilence on my people,† 14 and my people, who bear my name, humble themselves, pray and seek my face, and turn from their evil ways, then I will hear from heaven, forgive their sin, and heal their land.† 15 My eyes will now be open and my ears attentive to prayer from this place.† 16 And I have now chosen and consecrated this temple so that my name may be there forever; my eyes and my heart will be there at all times.†
17 As for you, if you walk before me as your father David walked, doing everything I have commanded you, and if you keep my statutes and ordinances, 18 I will establish your royal throne, as I promised your father David: You will never fail to have a man ruling in Israel.†
19 However, if you turn away and abandon my statutes and my commands that I have set before you and if you go and serve other gods and bow in worship to them,† 20 then I will uproot Israel from the soil that I gave them, and this temple that I have sanctified for my name I will banish from my presence;† I will make it an object of scorn and ridicule among all the peoples.† 21 As for this temple, which was exalted, everyone who passes by will be appalled and will say:† Why did the LORD do this to this land and this temple? 22 Then they will say: Because they abandoned the LORD God of their ancestors who brought them out of the land of Egypt. They clung to other gods and bowed in worship to them and served them. Because of this, he brought all this ruin on them.

7:1-3 The temple had been built on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite (3:1), where fire . . . from heaven had consumed David's sacrifice there earlier (see 1Ch 21:26). A similar dramatic display of divine approval happened after Solomon's prayer, and the glory of the LORD filled the temple (see 5:14).

7:7 So many offerings could not fit on the bronze altar, which led to the consecration of part of the courtyard for offering sacrifices. For another adaptation made for practical reasons, see the note on 1 Chronicles 23:26-32.

7:8 The mention of Solomon and all Israel, . . . a very great assembly, celebrating at the temple is a high point in Chronicles (see also 30:23-26; 35:18). The festival was the Festival of Shelters, which was held in the seventh month (see v. 10; Lv 23:33-36,39-43).

7:13-14 This well-known passage is found in the context of Solomon's completion and dedication of the temple. Solomon had asked that God hear the prayers of his repentant people (see the note on 6:24-27), and God agreed to do so. His faithfulness to this promise to reward humble faith in him will be demonstrated in the subsequent narrative (e.g., 12:7-12; 13:13-18; 14:11-15; 20:1-23).

7:17-22 As mentioned several times already, the continuance of the Davidic monarchy depended on obedience to God (see the notes on 6:16 and 1Ch 28:2-10). Likewise, Israel's residence in the land and the continued existence of the temple depended on it too (vv. 19-22). The following narrative will describe the people's failure to obey God and the consequent exile of the nation, the end of Davidic rule, and the temple's destruction.

SOLOMON'S LATER BUILDING PROJECTS

8 At the end of twenty years† during which Solomon had built the LORD's temple and his own palace — 2 Solomon had rebuilt the cities Hiram† gave him and settled Israelites there — 3 Solomon went to Hamathzobah and seized it. 4 He built Tadmor in the wilderness along with all the storage cities that he built in Hamath. 5 He built Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon† — fortified cities with walls, gates, and bars† — 6 Baalath, all the storage cities that belonged to Solomon, all the chariot cities, the cavalry cities, and everything Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, Lebanon, or anywhere else in the land of his dominion.
7 As for all the peoples who remained of the Hethites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, who were not from Israel† — 8 their descendants who remained in the land after them, those the Israelites had not completely destroyed — Solomon imposed forced labor on them; it is this way today.† 9 But Solomon did not consign the Israelites to be slaves for his work; they were soldiers, commanders of his captains, and commanders of his chariots and his cavalry. 10 These were King Solomon's deputies: 250 who supervised the people.
11 Solomon brought the daughter of Pharaoh from the city of David to the house he had built for her,† for he said, "My wife must not live in the house† of King David of Israel because the places the ark of the LORD has come into are holy."

PUBLIC WORSHIP ESTABLISHED AT THE TEMPLE

12 At that time† Solomon offered burnt offerings to the LORD on the LORD's altar he had made in front of the portico.† 13 He followed the daily requirement† for offerings according to the commandment of Moses† for Sabbaths, New Moons, and the three annual appointed festivals: the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the Festival of Weeks, and the Festival of Shelters.† 14 According to the ordinances of his father David, he appointed the divisions of the priests over their service,† of the Levites over their responsibilities to offer praise and to minister before the priests following the daily requirement,† and of the gatekeepers by their divisions with respect to each temple gate,† for this had been the command of David, the man of God.† 15 They did not turn aside from the king's command regarding the priests and the Levites concerning any matter or concerning the treasuries.† 16 All of Solomon's work was carried out from the day the foundation was laid for the LORD's temple until it was finished. So the LORD's temple was completed.

SOLOMON'S FLEET

17 At that time† Solomon went to Ezion-geber and to Eloth† on the seashore in the land of Edom. 18 So Hiram† sent ships to him by his servants along with crews of experienced seamen. They went with Solomon's servants to Ophir, took from there seventeen tons† of gold, and delivered it to King Solomon.†

8:18 2Ch 9:10,13

8:13-15 The completion and dedication of the temple was followed by the proper execution of the temple service. These verses emphasize Solomon's obedience to Moses and to his father David, who had received instructions concerning the temple and its service from God (1Ch 28:11-19). David's designation as a man of God (v. 14) suggests that he was a prophet (see 11:2; 25:7-9; 30:16; Ac 2:30).

THE QUEEN OF SHEBA

9 The queen of Sheba heard of Solomon's fame,† so she came to test Solomon with difficult questions at Jerusalem with a very large entourage, with camels bearing spices, gold in abundance, and precious stones. She came to Solomon and spoke with him about everything that was on her mind. 2 So Solomon answered all her questions; nothing was too difficult for Solomon to explain to her. 3 When the queen of Sheba observed Solomon's wisdom, the palace he had built, 4 the food at his table, his servants' residence, his attendants' service and their attire, his cupbearers and their attire, and the burnt offerings he offered at the LORD's temple, it took her breath away.

5 She said to the king, "The report I heard in my own country about your words and about your wisdom is true. 6 But I didn't believe their reports until I came and saw with my own eyes. Indeed, I was not even told half of your great wisdom! You far exceed the report I heard. 7 How happy are your men.†† How happy are these servants of yours, who always stand in your presence hearing your wisdom. 8 Blessed be the LORD your God! He delighted in you and put you on his throne as king for the LORD your God.† Because your God loved Israel enough to establish them forever, he has set you over them as king to carry out justice and righteousness."†
9 Then she gave the king four and a half tons† of gold, a great quantity of spices, and precious stones. There never were such spices as those the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon. 10 In addition, Hiram's servants and Solomon's servants who brought gold from Ophir† also brought algum wood and precious stones. 11 The king made the algum wood into walkways for the LORD's temple and for the king's palace and into lyres and harps for the singers. Never before had anything like them been seen in the land of Judah.
12 King Solomon gave the queen of Sheba her every desire, whatever she asked — far more than she had brought the king. Then she, along with her servants, returned to her own country.

SOLOMON'S WEALTH

13 The weight of gold that came to Solomon† annually was twenty-five tons,† 14 besides what was brought by the merchants and traders. All the Arabian kings and governors of the land also brought gold and silver to Solomon.
15 King Solomon made two hundred large shields of hammered gold; 15 pounds† of hammered gold went into each shield. 16 He made three hundred small shields of hammered gold; 7 1/2 pounds† of gold went into each shield. The king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon.†
17 The king also made a large ivory throne and overlaid it with pure gold. 18 The throne had six steps; there was a footstool covered in gold for the throne, armrests on either side of the seat, and two lions standing beside the armrests. 19 Twelve lions were standing there on the six steps, one at each end. Nothing like it had ever been made in any other kingdom.

20 All of King Solomon’s drinking cups were gold, and all the utensils of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were pure gold. There was no silver, since it was considered as nothing in Solomon’s time, 21 for the king’s ships kept going to Tarshish† with Hiram’s servants, and once every three years the ships of Tarshish would arrive bearing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.†
22 King Solomon surpassed all the kings of the world in riches and wisdom.†
23 All the kings of the world wanted an audience with Solomon to hear the wisdom God had put in his heart. 24 Each of them would bring his own gift — items† of silver and gold, clothing, weapons,†† spices, and horses and mules — as an annual tribute.
25 Solomon† had four thousand stalls for horses and chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen.† He stationed them in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. 26 He ruled over all the kings from the Euphrates River to the land of the Philistines and as far as the border of Egypt.† 27 The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, and he made cedar as abundant as sycamore in the Judean foothills. 28 They were bringing horses for Solomon from Egypt and from all the countries.

SOLOMON’S DEATH

29 The remaining events† of Solomon’s reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Events of the Prophet Nathan, the Prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite, and the Visions of the Seer Iddo concerning Jeroboam son of Nebat.†
30 Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel for forty years. 31 Solomon rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of his father David.† His son Rehoboam became king in his place.

9:1-8 The visit of the queen of Sheba demonstrated that Solomon’s reputation for wisdom had reached other lands (see also v. 23; 1:12; 6:32-33). It therefore foreshadows the fulfillment of the prophecy that “all nations” and “many peoples” will go up to Zion “in the last days” to receive instruction from God himself (Is 2:2-4) and to bring their treasures (Hg 2:6-9). David, in fact, had desired this very thing (see the note on 1Ch 16:8,23-33). The queen of Sheba was also impressed by Solomon’s kingdom (vv. 3-4). Her reference to Solomon sitting on his throne as king for the LORD serves as a reminder that the throne was God’s (v. 8; see the note on 1Ch 29:22-25).

9:9-19 The Lord had promised that Solomon's wealth would be unprecedented and unequaled by his successors (1:12), and he fulfilled this promise (see v. 22). In addition to the vast amount of annual gold income (v. 13), the spices, musical instruments, and royal pomp of this period were unparalleled (vv. 9,11,19).

9:23-24 Not only did the queen of Sheba come to hear Solomon's wisdom (see the note on vv. 1-8), but so did all the kings of the world, who came bearing gifts. This scene foreshadows what is predicted in Isaiah 2:2-4 and Hg 2:6-9 (see also the notes on 17:11 and 1Ch 16:8,23-33).

9:26 Solomon's dominion was extensive but not as extensive as the Messiah's will be, since it will include all nations (Gn 49:10; Pss 2:8; 72:8-11).

9:29 Ahijah the Shilonite was mentioned in 1Kg 11:29-39, where he declared to Jeroboam that God would give him most of the kingdom of Israel because of Solomon's sins (see 10:15).

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

10 Then Rehoboam went to Shechem,† for all Israel had gone to Shechem to make him king. 2 When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard about it — for he was in Egypt where he had fled from King Solomon's presence — Jeroboam returned from Egypt.† 3 So they summoned him. Then Jeroboam and all Israel came and spoke to Rehoboam: 4 "Your father made our yoke harsh.
Therefore, lighten your father's harsh service and the heavy yoke he put on us, and we will serve you."
5 Rehoboam replied, "Return to me in three days." So the people left.
6 Then King Rehoboam consulted with the elders who had attended his father Solomon when he was alive, asking, "How do you advise me to respond to this people? "
7 They replied, "If you will be kind to this people and please them by speaking kind words to them, they will be your servants forever."
8 But he rejected the advice of the elders who had advised him, and he consulted with the young men who had grown up with him, the ones attending him. 9 He asked them, "What message do you advise we send back to this people who said to me, 'Lighten the yoke your father put on us'? "
10 Then the young men who had grown up with him told him, "This is what you should say to the people who said to you, 'Your father made our yoke heavy, but you, make it lighter on us! ' This is what you should say to them: 'My little finger is thicker than my father's waist! 11 Now therefore, my father burdened you with a heavy yoke, but I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I, with barbed whips.' "†

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam on the third day, just as the king had ordered, saying, “Return to me on the third day.” 13 Then the king answered them harshly. King Rehoboam rejected the elders’ advice 14 and spoke to them according to the young men’s advice, saying, “My father made your yoke heavy,†† but I will add to it; my father disciplined you with whips, but I, with barbed whips.”
15 The king did not listen to the people because the turn of events came from God,† in order that the LORD might carry out his word that he had spoken through Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat.† 16 When† all Israel saw†† that the king had not listened to them, the people answered the king:

What portion do we have in David?
We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse.
Israel, each to your tent;
David, look after your own house now!

So all Israel went to their tents. 17 But as for the Israelites living in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.
18 Then King Rehoboam sent Hadoram,†† who was in charge of the forced labor, but the Israelites stoned him to death. However, King Rehoboam managed to get into his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. 19 Israel is in rebellion against the house of David until today.

10:1 In keeping with Ahijah’s prophecy (see v. 15; 1Kg 11:29-39), most of the kingdom would be taken from Solomon’s son. Rehoboam could have been king over all Israel like David and Solomon, but his harsh response led to the rebellion of most Israelite tribes (vv. 13-17).

10:2 The reason for Jeroboam’s flight to Egypt is not given in Chronicles but is explained in 1 Kings He had been “over the entire labor force of the house of Joseph” (v. 28) when he received Ahijah’s prophecy of his eventual rule (vv. 29-39). Jeroboam fled because Solomon wanted to kill him (v. 40).

10:4 Solomon evidently had laid a heavy burden on the Israelites through his various construction projects.

10:16-19 Israel’s rebellion against King Rehoboam marks a major turning point in Chronicles. Henceforth, the sons of David would be kings of Judah only, not of all Israel. This division of the kingdom was from God, who fulfilled his word spoken through Ahijah (v. 15; 11:4). The throne was God’s (see the note on 1Ch 29:22-25), and he had taken away some of the power from the house of David (see the note on 1Ch 28:2-10).

REHOBOAM IN JERUSALEM

11 When Rehoboam arrived in Jerusalem,† he mobilized the house of Judah and Benjamin — one hundred eighty thousand fit young soldiers — to fight against Israel to restore the reign to Rehoboam. 2 But the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah,† the man of God: 3 "Say to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people: 4 'This is what the LORD says: You are not to march up and fight against your brothers.† Each of you return home, for this incident has come from me.' "†

So they listened to what the LORD said and turned back from going against Jeroboam.

JUDAH'S KING REHOBOAM

5 Rehoboam stayed in Jerusalem, and he fortified cities†† in Judah. 6 He built up Bethlehem, Etam, Tekoa, 7 Beth-zur, Soco, Adullam, 8 Gath, Mareshah, Ziph, 9 Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, 10 Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron, which are fortified cities in Judah and in Benjamin. 11 He strengthened their fortifications and put leaders in them with supplies of food, oil, and wine. 12 He also put large shields and spears in each and every city to make them very strong. So Judah and Benjamin were his.

13 The priests and Levites from all their regions throughout Israel took their stand with Rehoboam, 14 for the Levites left their pasturelands and their possessions† and went to Judah and Jerusalem, because Jeroboam and his sons refused to let them serve as priests of the LORD.† 15 Jeroboam appointed his own priests for the high places,† the goat-demons,† and the golden calves he had made.† 16 Those from every tribe of Israel who had determined in their hearts to seek the LORD their God followed the Levites to Jerusalem to sacrifice to the LORD, the God of their ancestors. 17 So they strengthened the kingdom of Judah and supported Rehoboam son of Solomon for three years,† because they walked in the ways of David and Solomon for three years.

18 Rehoboam married Mahalath, daughter of David's son Jerimoth and of Abihail daughter of Jesse's son Eliab.† 19 She bore sons to him: Jeush, Shemariah, and Zaham. 20 After her, he married Maacah daughter†† of Absalom. She bore Abijah, Attai, Ziza, and Shelomith to him. 21 Rehoboam loved Maacah daughter of Absalom more than all his wives and concubines. He acquired eighteen wives† and sixty concubines and was the father of twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters.

22 Rehoboam appointed Abijah son of Maacah as chief, leader among his brothers, intending to make him king.† 23 Rehoboam also showed discernment by dispersing some of his sons to all the regions of Judah and Benjamin and to all the fortified cities. He gave them plenty of provisions and sought many wives for them.

11:2-4 The prophet Ahijah's ministry was highlighted in the previous chapter (see 10:15), and here the message of the prophet Shemaiah to Rehoboam is mentioned (see also 12:5-8). As was fitting, the Israelites were obedient to God's message given through the prophet (see also 15:1-7; 20:20).

11:13-17 The priests and Levites . . . throughout Israel joined Rehoboam because of Jeroboam's false worship. Likewise, everyone else from every tribe of Israel who had determined . . . to seek the LORD their God went with them to worship in Jerusalem, where the temple was. Along with God's promises to David and his line, the presence of the temple was another reason for Chronicles' focus on Judah (see the note on 1Ch 1:1). Rehoboam's obedience, however, was short-lived (12:1).

SHISHAK'S INVASION

12 When Rehoboam had established his sovereignty and royal power,† he abandoned the law of the LORD — he and all Israel with him. 2 Because they were unfaithful to the LORD, in the fifth year of King Rehoboam, King Shishak† of Egypt went to war against Jerusalem† 3 with 1,200 chariots, 60,000 cavalrymen, and countless people who came with him from Egypt — Libyans,† Sukkiim, and Cushites. 4 He captured the fortified cities† of Judah and came as far as Jerusalem.

5 Then the prophet Shemaiah† went to Rehoboam and the leaders of Judah who were gathered at Jerusalem because of Shishak. He said to them: "This is what the LORD says: 'You have abandoned me; therefore, I have abandoned you to Shishak.' "†

6 So the leaders of Israel and the king humbled themselves and said, "The LORD is righteous."†

7 When the LORD saw that they had humbled themselves, the LORD's message came to Shemaiah: "They have humbled themselves; I will not destroy them but will grant them a little deliverance.† My wrath will not be poured out on Jerusalem through Shishak.† 8 However, they will become his servants so that they may recognize the difference between serving me and serving the kingdoms of other lands."†

9 So King Shishak of Egypt went to war† against Jerusalem.† He seized the treasuries of the LORD's temple and the treasuries of the royal palace. He took everything. He took the gold shields that Solomon had made.† 10 King Rehoboam made bronze shields to replace them and committed them into the care of the captains of the guards† who protected the entrance to the king's palace. 11 Whenever the king entered the LORD's temple, the guards would carry the shields and take them back to the armory.† 12 When Rehoboam humbled himself, the LORD's anger turned away from him, and he did not destroy him completely.† Besides that, conditions were good in Judah.†

REHOBOAM'S LAST DAYS

13 King Rehoboam† established his royal power in Jerusalem. Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city the LORD had chosen from all the tribes of Israel to put his name.† Rehoboam's mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. 14 Rehoboam did what was evil, because he did not determine in his heart to seek the LORD.†

15 The events† of Rehoboam's reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Events of the Prophet Shemaiah† and of the Seer Iddo concerning genealogies.† There was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam throughout their reigns. 16 Rehoboam rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. His son Abijah†† became king in his place.

12:2 Rehoboam and the Israelites were unfaithful to the LORD, just as Saul had been (1Ch 10:13) and Judah would be (1Ch 9:1). For more on "unfaithfulness" in Chronicles, see the note on 1 Chronicles 5:25-26.

12:5 Shemaiah the prophet made clear to Rehoboam and Judah that the war with Shishak was a direct result of God's judgment on them for abandoning him. God had said repeatedly that his blessing depended on obedience (see the notes on 6:16 and 7:17-22).

12:6-8 In the spirit of 7:13-14 (see the note there), the humble response of the king and the leaders led God to lessen the severity of his judgment (see also v. 12). Nevertheless, they were still made Shishak's servants, and the treasuries of the temple and palace were seized (v. 9).

12:13-14 Rehoboam's mother was an Ammonite, which may have influenced both his own wickedness and Solomon's idolatry, described in 1Kg 11:1-8.

JUDAH'S KING ABIJAH

13 In the eighteenth year† of Israel's King Jeroboam, Abijah† became king over Judah, 2 and he reigned three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Micaiah†† daughter of Uriel; she was from Gibeah.
There was war between Abijah and Jeroboam. 3 Abijah set his army of warriors in order with four hundred thousand fit young men. Jeroboam arranged his mighty army of eight hundred thousand fit young men in battle formation against him. 4 Then Abijah stood on Mount Zemaraim,† which is in the hill country of Ephraim, and said, "Jeroboam and all Israel, hear me. 5 Don't you know that the LORD God of Israel gave the kingship over Israel to David and his descendants forever† by a covenant of salt?† 6 But Jeroboam son of Nebat, a servant of Solomon son of David, rose up and rebelled against his lord.† 7 Then worthless and wicked men gathered around him to resist Rehoboam son of Solomon when Rehoboam was young, inexperienced, and unable to assert himself against them.
8 "And now you are saying you can assert yourselves against the LORD's kingdom, which is in the hand of one of David's sons. You are a vast number and have with you the golden calves that Jeroboam made for you as gods.††
9 Didn't you banish the priests of the LORD, the descendants of Aaron and the Levites, and make your own priests like the peoples of other lands do?† Whoever comes to ordain himself† with a young bull and seven rams may become a priest† of what are not gods.†
10 "But as for us, the LORD is our God. We have not abandoned him; the priests ministering to the LORD are descendants of Aaron, and the Levites serve at their tasks. 11 They offer a burnt offering and fragrant incense to the LORD every morning and every evening,† and they set the rows of the Bread of the Presence on the ceremonially clean table.† They light the lamps of the gold lampstand every evening. We are carrying out the requirements of the LORD our God, while you have abandoned him.† 12 Look, God and his priests are with us at our head. The trumpets are ready to sound the charge against you. Israelites, don't fight against the LORD God of your ancestors, for you will not succeed."†

13 Now Jeroboam had sent an ambush† around to advance from behind them. So they were in front of Judah, and the ambush was behind them. 14 Judah turned and discovered that the battle was in front of them and behind them, so they cried out to the LORD.† Then the priests blew the trumpets, 15 and the men of Judah raised the battle cry. When the men of Judah raised the battle cry, God routed Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and Judah.† 16 So the Israelites fled before Judah, and God handed them over to them.† 17 Then Abijah and his people struck them with a mighty blow, and five hundred thousand fit young men of Israel were killed. 18 The Israelites were subdued at that time. The Judahites succeeded because they depended on the LORD, the God of their ancestors.
19 Abijah pursued Jeroboam and captured some cities from him: Bethel, Jeshanah, and Ephron,† along with their surrounding villages. 20 Jeroboam no longer retained his power† during Abijah's reign; ultimately, the LORD struck him† and he died.†
21 However, Abijah grew strong, acquired fourteen wives, and fathered twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. 22 The rest of the events of Abijah's reign, along with his ways and his sayings, are written in the Writing† of the Prophet Iddo.†

13:4-9 Abijah's words to Jeroboam and Israel declare again God's promises to David and his line and the illegitimacy of the northern kingdom's worship of the golden calves (see the notes on 11:13-17 and 25:7-9). Meanwhile, Judah continued to be ruled by a descendant of David and worshiped at the temple in Jerusalem (vv. 10-12).

13:13-18 Israel's forces outnumbered Judah's (v. 3). When Jeroboam ambushed Judah, they recognized their trouble and cried out to the LORD for help. God aided Judah (vv. 15-16), who struck down five hundred thousand fit young men of Israel (v. 17). The biblical author emphasizes again the spiritual reasons for this turn of events: they depended on the LORD (see also the notes on 12:5,6-8).

14 Abijah rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. His son Asa became king in his place.† During his reign the land experienced peace for ten years.

JUDAH'S KING ASA

2 Asa did what was good and right† in the sight of the LORD his God. 3 He removed the pagan altars and the high places. He shattered their sacred pillars and chopped down their Asherah poles.† 4 He told the people of Judah to seek the LORD God of their ancestors and to carry out the instruction and the commands. 5 He also removed the high places and the shrines† from all the cities of Judah,† and the kingdom experienced peace under him.
6 Because the land experienced peace, Asa built fortified cities in Judah.† No one made war with him in those days because the LORD gave him rest.† 7 So he said to the people of Judah, "Let's build these cities and surround them with walls and towers, with doors and bars.† The land is still ours because we sought the LORD our God. We sought him and he gave us rest on every side." So they built and succeeded.

THE CUSHITE INVASION

8 Asa had an army of three hundred thousand from Judah bearing large shields and spears,† and two hundred eighty thousand from Benjamin bearing regular shields and drawing the bow. All these were valiant warriors. 9 Then Zerah the Cushite came against them with an army of one million men and three hundred† chariots. They came as far as Mareshah. 10 So Asa marched out against him and lined up in battle formation in Zephathah Valley at Mareshah.† 11 Then Asa cried out to the LORD his God:† "LORD, there is no one besides you to help the mighty and those without strength. Help us, LORD our God, for we depend on you,† and in your name we have come against this large army. LORD, you are our God. Do not let a mere mortal hinder you."
12 So the LORD routed the Cushites before Asa and before Judah,† and the Cushites fled. 13 Then Asa and the people who were with him pursued them as far as Gerar.† The Cushites fell until they had no survivors, for they were crushed before the LORD and his army. So the people of Judah carried off a great supply of loot. 14 Then they attacked all the cities around Gerar because the terror of the LORD was on them.† They also plundered all the cities, since there was a great deal of plunder in them. 15 They also attacked the tents of the herdsmen and captured many sheep and camels. Then they returned to Jerusalem.

14:2-7 The Lord gave Asa rest because he led Judah to seek him and removed idolatrous altars and high places from the land.

14:11-14 Once again, an outnumbered army of Judah was victorious because of its dependence on God (see the note on 13:13-18). This time the foe was a massive Cushite army (vv. 8-10). Asa's prayer confesses Judah's dependence on God and his strength (v. 11). He answered by giving them a triumphant victory (vv. 12-14).

REVIVAL UNDER ASA

15 The Spirit of God came on Azariah son of Oded.† 2 So he went out to meet Asa and said to him, "Asa and all Judah and Benjamin, hear me.
The LORD is with you† when you are with him. If you seek him, he will be found by you,† but if you abandon him, he will abandon you.† 3 For many years Israel has been without the true God,† without a teaching priest, and without instruction,† 4 but when they turned to the LORD God of Israel in their distress and sought him, he was found by them. 5 In those times there was no peace for those who went about their daily activities because the residents of the lands had many conflicts. 6 Nation was crushed by nation and city by city, for God troubled them with every possible distress. 7 But as for you, be strong;
don't give up,† for your work has a reward."† 8 When Asa heard these words and the prophecy of Azariah son of Oded the prophet, he took courage and removed the abhorrent idols from the whole land of Judah and Benjamin and from the cities he had captured in the hill country of Ephraim.† He renovated the altar of the LORD that was in front of the portico of the LORD's temple.† 9 Then he gathered all Judah and Benjamin, as well as those from the tribes of Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon who were residing among them, for they had defected to him from Israel in great numbers when they saw that the LORD his God was with him.†
10 They were gathered in Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of Asa's reign. 11 At that time they sacrificed to the LORD seven hundred cattle and seven thousand sheep and goats from all the plunder they had brought.† 12 Then they entered into a covenant to seek the LORD God of their ancestors with all their heart and all their soul.† 13 Whoever would not seek the LORD God of Israel would be put to death, young or old,† man or woman.† 14 They took an oath to the LORD in a loud voice, with shouting, with trumpets, and with rams' horns. 15 All Judah rejoiced over the oath, for they had sworn it with all their mind. They had sought him with all their heart, and he was found by them.† So the LORD gave them rest on every side.† 16 King Asa† also removed Maacah, his grandmother,†† from being queen mother because she had made an obscene image of Asherah. Asa chopped down her obscene image, then crushed it and burned it in the Kidron Valley.† 17 The high places were not taken away from Israel; nevertheless, Asa was wholeheartedly devoted his entire life.† 18 He brought his father's consecrated gifts and his own consecrated gifts into God's temple: silver, gold, and utensils.

19 There was no war until the thirty-fifth year of Asa's reign.

15:1-7 This lengthier prophetic message serves as another reminder of the importance of the role of the prophets (see also the notes on 11:2-4 and 20:20-23). Azariah exhorted King Asa, the nation of Judah, and the tribe of Benjamin to continue to be faithful to God and to seek him so that they could be blessed. When the Israelites in the past had done this, they had experienced his blessing. The Lord being with his people was not guaranteed but was contingent on them being with him (v. 2).

15:8-9 In response to this prophetic word, Asa continued his purge of idolatry from the land of Judah (see 14:2-7) and carried it forward in Benjamin and in parts of Ephraim. He also renovated the bronze altar and gathered not only Judah and Benjamin but also defectors from Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon to seek God (see vv. 10-15). The Lord blessed Asa because of his faithfulness to him (vv. 9,15,17).

ASA'S TREATY WITH ARAM

16 In the thirty-sixth year of Asa,† Israel's King Baasha went to war against Judah. He built Ramah in order to keep anyone from leaving or coming to King Asa of Judah. 2 So Asa brought out the silver and gold from the treasuries of the LORD's temple and the royal palace and sent it to Aram's King Ben-hadad, who lived in Damascus, saying, 3 "There's a treaty between me and you, between my father and your father. Look, I have sent you silver and gold. Go break your treaty with Israel's King Baasha so that he will withdraw from me."
4 Ben-hadad listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his armies to the cities of Israel. They attacked Ijon, Dan, Abel-maim,† and all the storage cities† of Naphtali. 5 When Baasha heard about it, he quit building Ramah and stopped his work. 6 Then King Asa brought all Judah, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and the timbers Baasha had built it with. Then he built Geba and Mizpah with them.

HANANI'S REBUKE OF ASA

7 At that time, the seer Hanani† came to King Asa of Judah and said to him,
"Because you depended on the king of Aram and have not depended on the LORD your God,† the army of the king of Aram has escaped from you. 8 Were not the Cushites and Libyans a vast army with many chariots and horsemen?† When you depended on the LORD, he handed them over to you.† 9 For the eyes of the LORD roam throughout the earth† to show himself strong for those who are wholeheartedly devoted to him.† You have been foolish in this matter.
Therefore, you will have wars from now on." 10 Asa was enraged with the seer and put him in prison† because of his anger over this. And Asa mistreated some of the people at that time.

ASA'S DEATH

11 Note that the events† of Asa's reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. 12 In the thirty-ninth year of his reign, Asa developed a disease in his feet, and his disease became increasingly severe.
Yet even in his disease he didn't seek the LORD but only the physicians. 13 Asa rested with his fathers; he died in the forty-first year of his reign. 14 He was buried in his own tomb that he had made for himself in the city of David. They laid him out in a coffin that was full of spices and various mixtures of prepared ointments;† then they made a great fire in his honor.†

16:7-9 Though Asa had relied on God when fighting against Cush (14:8-15), he dealt with Baasha king of Israel by securing the support of Aram through paying Ben-hadad to switch his allegiance from Israel to Judah (vv. 1-3). Though this was effective (vv. 4-6), the seer Hanani confronted Asa for having depended on the king of Aram instead of God (see also 13:18; 14:11). As a result, Aram would escape from Asa's hand, and he would henceforth be at war (see also 14:5-7; 15:15,19).

16:12 Sadly, Asa's lack of dependence on God continued when he didn't seek the LORD but only the physicians regarding his disease (see also previous note).

JUDAH'S KING JEHOSHAPHAT

17 His son Jehoshaphat became king in his place† and strengthened himself against Israel. 2 He stationed troops in every fortified city of Judah† and set garrisons in the land of Judah and in the cities of Ephraim that his father Asa had captured.†
3 Now the LORD was with Jehoshaphat because he walked in the former ways of his father David.† He did not seek the Baals 4 but sought the God of his father and walked by his commands, not according to the practices of Israel.† 5 So the LORD established the kingdom in his hand. Then all Judah brought him tribute, and he had riches and honor in abundance.† 6 His mind rejoiced in the LORD's ways, and he again† removed the high places and Asherah poles from Judah.†

JEHOSHAPHAT'S EDUCATIONAL PLAN

7 In the third year of his reign, Jehoshaphat sent his officials — Ben-hail,† Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethanel, and Micaiah — to teach in the cities of Judah.† 8 The Levites with them were Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah,† Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah; the priests, Elishama and Jehoram, were with these Levites. 9 They taught throughout Judah, having the book of the LORD's instruction with them.† They went throughout the towns of Judah and taught the people.
10 The terror of the LORD was on all the kingdoms of the lands that surrounded Judah,† so they didn't fight against Jehoshaphat. 11 Some of the Philistines also brought gifts and silver as tribute to Jehoshaphat, and the Arabs brought him flocks: 7,700 rams and 7,700 male goats.†

JEHOSHAPHAT'S MILITARY MIGHT

12 Jehoshaphat grew stronger and stronger. He built fortresses† and storage cities in Judah 13 and carried out great works in the towns of Judah. He had fighting men, valiant warriors, in Jerusalem. 14 These are their numbers according to their ancestral families.† For Judah, the commanders of thousands:

1. Adnah the commander and three hundred thousand valiant warriors with him;
2. 15 next to him, Jehohanan the commander and two hundred eighty thousand with him;

3. 16 next to him, Amasiah son of Zichri, the volunteer† of the LORD, and two hundred thousand valiant warriors with him;
4. 17 from Benjamin, Eliada, a valiant warrior, and two hundred thousand with him armed with bow and shield;
5. 18 next to him, Jehozabad and one hundred eighty thousand with him equipped for war.

19 These were the ones who served the king, besides those he stationed in the fortified cities throughout all Judah.†

17:3-6 The LORD was with Jehoshaphat because he followed David's example of obedience (see also 7:17; 15:2). He sought God, who established the kingdom in his hand and protected him (see vv. 10-11).

17:7-9 Jehoshaphat's plan to teach the Scriptures throughout Judah was carried out by his officials and the Levites, who play such a prominent role in Chronicles in the service of God (e.g., 11:13-16; 13:9-10; 19:8-11; see also the notes on 1Ch 15:2-15; 23:1-5).

17:11 The bringing of tribute to Jehoshaphat by foreign nations recalls Solomon's reign and foreshadows the rule of the Messiah over all nations (see the notes on 9:1-8,23-24).

JEHOSHAPHAT'S ALLIANCE WITH AHAB

18 Now Jehoshaphat† had riches and honor in abundance,† and he made an alliance with Ahab through marriage.†† 2 Then after some years, he went down to visit Ahab in Samaria. Ahab sacrificed many sheep, goats, and cattle for him and for the people who were with him. Then he persuaded him to attack Ramoth-gilead, 3 for Israel's King Ahab asked Judah's King Jehoshaphat, "Will you go with me to Ramoth-gilead? "

He replied to him, "I am as you are, my people as your people; we will be with you in the battle." 4 But Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, "First, please ask what the LORD's will is."

5 So the king of Israel gathered the prophets, four hundred men, and asked them, "Should we go to Ramoth-gilead for war or should I refrain? "

They replied, "March up, and God will hand it over to the king."

6 But Jehoshaphat asked, “Isn’t there a prophet of the LORD here anymore? Let’s ask him.”†
7 The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is still one man who can inquire of the LORD, but I hate him because he never prophesies good about me, but only disaster. He is Micaiah son of Imlah.”
“The king shouldn’t say that,” Jehoshaphat replied.
8 So the king of Israel called an officer and said, “Hurry and get Micaiah son of Imlah! ”
9 Now the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah, clothed in royal attire, were each sitting on his own throne. They were sitting on the threshing floor at the entrance to Samaria’s gate,† and all the prophets were prophesying in front of them. 10 Then Zedekiah son of Chenaanah made iron horns and said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘You will gore the Arameans with these until they are finished off.’ ” 11 And all the prophets were prophesying the same, saying, “March up to Ramoth-gilead and succeed, for the LORD will hand it over to the king.”

MICAIAH’S MESSAGE OF DEFEAT

12 The messenger who went to call Micaiah instructed him, “Look, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable for the king. So let your words be like theirs, and speak favorably.”
13 But Micaiah said, “As the LORD lives, I will say whatever my God says.”††
14 So he went to the king, and the king asked him, “Micaiah, should we go to Ramoth-gilead for war, or should I† refrain? ”
Micaiah said, “March up and succeed, for they will be handed over to you.”
15 But the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear not to tell me anything but the truth in the name of the LORD? ”
16 So Micaiah said:

I saw all Israel scattered on the hills
like sheep without a shepherd.†
And the LORD said, “They have no master;
let each return home in peace.”

17 So the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Didn’t I tell you he never prophesies good about me, but only disaster? ”

18 Then Micaiah said, “Therefore, hear the word of the LORD. I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, and the whole heavenly army was standing at his right hand and at his left hand.† 19 And the LORD said, ‘Who will entice King Ahab of Israel to march up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? ’ So one was saying this and another was saying that.
20 “Then† a spirit came forward, stood before the LORD, and said, ‘I will entice him.’
“The LORD asked him, ‘How? ’
21 “So he said, ‘I will go and become a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’
“Then he said, ‘You will entice him and also prevail. Go and do that.’
22 “Now, you see, the LORD has put a lying spirit into the mouth of† these prophets of yours, and the LORD has pronounced disaster against you.” 23 Then Zedekiah son of Chenaanah came up, hit Micaiah on the cheek, and demanded, “Which way did the spirit from the LORD leave me to speak to you? ” 24 Micaiah replied, “You will soon see when you go to hide in an inner chamber on that day.”† 25 Then the king of Israel ordered, “Take Micaiah and return him† to Amon, the governor of the city,† and to Joash, the king’s son, 26 and say, ‘This is what the king says: Put this guy in prison† and feed him only a little bread and water† until I come back safely.’ ” 27 But Micaiah said, “If you ever return safely, the LORD has not spoken through me.” Then he said, “Listen, all you people! ”†

AHAB’S DEATH

28 Then the king of Israel and Judah’s King Jehoshaphat went up to Ramoth-gilead. 29 But the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your royal attire.” So the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into battle.† 30 Now the king of Aram had ordered his chariot commanders, “Do not fight with anyone at all† except the king of Israel.”
31 When the chariot commanders saw Jehoshaphat, they shouted, “He must be the king of Israel! ” So they turned to attack him, but Jehoshaphat cried out† and the LORD helped him. God drew them away from him. 32 When the chariot commanders saw that he was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him.

33 But a man drew his bow without taking special aim and struck the king of Israel through the joints of his armor. So he said to the charioteer, “Turn around and take me out of the battle,† for I am badly wounded! ”† 34 The battle raged throughout that day, and the king of Israel propped himself up in his chariot facing the Arameans until evening. Then he died at sunset.

18:1-2 Jehoshaphat’s alliance with the wicked Ahab drew him into a joint military effort, which would be criticized by the prophet Jehu (see 19:2; 21:6).

18:5 Although these four hundred so-called prophets claimed to speak for God (see also vv. 9-11), they were not genuine prophets of God (see v. 6).

18:7 Despite being a prophet of God, Micaiah was hated by Ahab because he never prophesies good . . . but only disaster. This was because he was a true prophet, faithfully declaring whatever God revealed whether it was favorably received or not (see the note on 1Kg 22:8). The king of Israel thus resembles those who gather teachers around them to tell them what they want to hear (see 2Tm 4:3).

18:12-13 As Micaiah explained, the fact that the false prophets were unanimously encouraging Ahab to go to war had absolutely no bearing on the true prophet’s duty to say whatever . . . God says.

18:17 Ahab’s view of Micaiah was confirmed (see v. 7), but the king failed to recognize that the prophet was speaking the truth (see the following note).

18:25-26 Ahab’s assumption that he would come back safely from battle showed that he did not believe Micaiah’s prediction that he would go to his death at Ramoth-gilead (see vv. 18-22).

18:33-34 Despite Ahab’s disguise (v. 29), God fulfilled his own word when Ahab was struck by an arrow and later died. On the other hand, he protected Jehoshaphat after he cried out to him (v. 31).

JEHU’S REBUKE OF JEHOSHAPHAT

19 King Jehoshaphat of Judah returned to his home in Jerusalem in peace. 2 Then Jehu† son of the seer Hanani went out to confront him† and said to King Jehoshaphat, “Do you help the wicked and love those who hate the LORD?† Because of this, the LORD’s wrath is on you.† 3 However, some good is found in you, for you have eradicated the Asherah poles from the land and have decided to seek God.”†

JEHOSHAPHAT’S REFORMS

4 Jehoshaphat lived in Jerusalem, and once again he went out among the people from Beer-sheba to the hill country of Ephraim and brought them back to the LORD, the God of their ancestors.† 5 He appointed judges in all the fortified cities of the land of Judah, city by city.† 6 Then he said to the judges, “Consider what you are doing, for you do not judge for a mere mortal, but for the LORD, who is with you in the matter of judgment.† 7 And now, may the terror of the LORD be on you. Watch what you do, for there is no injustice or partiality or taking bribes with the LORD our God.”† 8 Jehoshaphat also appointed in Jerusalem some of the Levites and priests and some of the Israelite family heads for deciding the LORD’s will and for settling disputes of the residents of† Jerusalem. 9 He commanded them, saying, “In the fear of the LORD, with integrity, and wholeheartedly, you are to do the following: 10 For every dispute that comes to you from your brothers who dwell in their cities — whether it regards differences of bloodguilt, law, commandment, statutes, or judgments† — you are to warn them, so they will not incur guilt before the LORD and wrath will not come on you and your brothers.† Do this, and you will not incur guilt.
11 “Note that Amariah, the chief priest, is over you in all matters related to the LORD, and Zebadiah son of Ishmael, the ruler of the house of Judah, in all matters related to the king, and the Levites are officers in your presence. Be strong; may the LORD be with those who do what is good.”†

19:1-3 Although Jehoshaphat returned safely to Jerusalem, Jehu confronted him for assisting Ahab, who was wicked and an enemy of God (see 18:1-2; 20:35-37). Jehoshaphat was guilty of participating in Ahab’s sins (see 1Tm 5:22).

19:4-11 Jehoshaphat’s installation of judges in all the fortified cities . . . of Judah recalls Moses’s appointment of God-fearing men to decide disputes among Israelites (vv. 4-7; see the note on Ex 18:17-26). As is the case elsewhere in Chronicles, the Levites and priests were also involved with this important responsibility (vv. 8-11; see the notes on 17:7-9; 20:14-17).

WAR AGAINST EASTERN ENEMIES

20 After this, the Moabites and Ammonites, together with some of the Meunites,†† came to fight against Jehoshaphat. 2 People came and told Jehoshaphat, “A vast number from beyond the Dead Sea and from Edom† has come to fight against you; they are already in Hazazon-tamar”† (that is, En-gedi). 3 Jehoshaphat was afraid, and he resolved† to seek the LORD. Then he proclaimed a fast† for all Judah, 4 who gathered to seek the LORD. They even came from all the cities of Judah to seek him.

JEHOSHAPHAT'S PRAYER

5 Then Jehoshaphat stood in the assembly of Judah and Jerusalem in the LORD's temple before the new courtyard. 6 He said:
LORD, God of our ancestors, are you not the God who is in heaven,† and do you not rule over all the kingdoms of the nations?† Power and might are in your hand, and no one can stand against you. 7 Are you not our God who drove out the inhabitants of this land before your people Israel† and who gave it forever to the descendants of Abraham† your friend? 8 They have lived in the land and have built you a sanctuary in it for your name and have said, 9 "If disaster comes on us — sword or judgment, pestilence or famine† — we will stand before this temple and before you, for your name is in this temple.† We will cry out to you because of our distress, and you will hear and deliver."
10 Now here are the Ammonites, Moabites, and the inhabitants of Mount Seir.† You did not let Israel invade them when Israel came out of the land of Egypt, but Israel turned away from them and did not destroy them.† 11 Look how they repay us by coming to drive us out of your possession that you gave us as an inheritance. 12 Our God, will you not judge them?† For we are powerless before this vast number that comes to fight against us. We do not know what to do, but we look to you.††

GOD'S ANSWER

13 All Judah was standing before the LORD with their dependents, their wives, and their children. 14 In the middle of the congregation, the Spirit of the LORD came on† Jahaziel (son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite from Asaph's descendants), 15 and he said, "Listen carefully, all Judah and you inhabitants of Jerusalem, and King Jehoshaphat. This is what the LORD says: 'Do not be afraid or discouraged because of this vast number,† for the battle is not yours, but God's.† 16 Tomorrow, go down against them. You will see them coming up the Ascent of Ziz, and you will find them at the end of the valley facing the Wilderness of Jeruel. 17 You do not have to fight this battle. Position yourselves, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD.† He is with you, Judah and Jerusalem. Do not be afraid or discouraged.† Tomorrow, go out to face them, for the LORD is with you.' "† 18 Then Jehoshaphat knelt low with his face to the ground, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell down before the LORD to worship him.† 19 Then the Levites from the sons of the Kohathites and the Korahites† stood up to praise the LORD God of Israel shouting loudly.

VICTORY AND PLUNDER

20 In the morning they got up early and went out to the wilderness of Tekoa. As they were about to go out, Jehoshaphat stood and said, "Hear me, Judah and you inhabitants of Jerusalem. Believe in the LORD your God, and you will be established;† believe in his prophets, and you will succeed." 21 Then he consulted with the people and appointed some to sing for the LORD and some to praise the splendor of his holiness.† When they went out in front of the armed forces, they kept singing:†

22 The moment they began their shouts and praises, the LORD set an ambush† against the Ammonites, Moabites, and the inhabitants of Mount Seir who came to fight against Judah, and they were defeated. 23 The Ammonites and Moabites turned against the inhabitants of Mount Seir and completely annihilated them.† When they had finished with the inhabitants of Seir, they helped destroy each other.†
24 When Judah came to a place overlooking the wilderness, they looked for the large army, but there were only corpses lying on the ground; nobody had escaped. 25 Then Jehoshaphat and his people went to gather the plunder. They found among them† an abundance of goods on the bodies† and valuable items. So they stripped them until nobody could carry any more. They were gathering the plunder for three days because there was so much. 26 They assembled in the Valley of Beracah† on the fourth day, for there they blessed the LORD. Therefore, that place is still called the Valley of Beracah today.
27 Then all the men of Judah and Jerusalem turned back with Jehoshaphat their leader, returning joyfully to Jerusalem, for the LORD enabled them to rejoice over their enemies. 28 So they came into Jerusalem to the LORD's temple with harps, lyres, and trumpets.

29 The terror of God† was on all the kingdoms of the lands when they heard that the LORD had fought against the enemies of Israel. 30 Then Jehoshaphat's kingdom was quiet, for his God gave him rest on every side.†

SUMMARY OF JEHOSHAPHAT'S REIGN

31 Jehoshaphat became king over Judah.† He was thirty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. 32 He walked in the ways of Asa his father; he did not turn away from it but did what was right in the LORD's sight. 33 However, the high places were not taken away;† the people had not yet set their hearts on the God of their ancestors.†

34 The rest of the events of Jehoshaphat's reign from beginning to end are written in the Events of Jehu† son of Hanani, which is recorded in the Book of Israel's Kings.†

JEHOSHAPHAT'S FLEET OF SHIPS

35 After this,† Judah's King Jehoshaphat made an alliance with Israel's King Ahaziah, who was guilty of wrongdoing. 36 Jehoshaphat formed an alliance with him to make ships to go to Tarshish,† and they made the ships in Ezion-geber. 37 Then Eliezer son of Dodavahu of Mareshah prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, "Because you formed an alliance with Ahaziah, the LORD has broken up what you have made." So the ships were wrecked and were not able to go to Tarshish.

20:9-10 Jehoshaphat and the assembly had gathered in the temple (v. 5), and in his prayer he referenced Solomon's earlier prayer of dedication for the same temple (v. 9; see 6:20,28-30). At that time, God had promised to hear the humble, repentant prayers of his people (see the note on 7:13-14). Jehoshaphat also appealed to God on the basis of Israel's sparing of these peoples long ago in obedience to God's command (v. 10; see Dt 2:9,19).

20:14-17 Jehoshaphat and Judah had humbly and urgently sought God with fasting and waited on his direction (vv. 3-12). In accordance with his promise in 7:13-14 (see note), God heard their prayer and answered through a prophetic message spoken by a Levite (v. 14; see also the note on 17:7-9). The Spirit of the LORD came on Jahaziel at this critical time just as the "Spirit of God" had come upon Azariah earlier (see the note on 15:1-7). Jahaziel declared that Jehoshaphat and Judah did not need to fear because the battle was God's, and he would fight for them the following day.

20:20-23 True to his word, God himself won the victory for Israel (see previous note). Judah's faith in God and in his prophets who delivered his word was rewarded as it had been before (see the notes on 11:2-4 and 15:1-7). Whereas Levites singing and praising God had been connected with the temple earlier (see the notes on 1Ch 23:26-32 and 25:1), here they were instrumental in this military victory (vv. 19,21-22). The bearer of the recent prophetic message, Jahaziel, was likewise a descendant of Asaph the musician (v. 14; see the note on 1Ch 6:31-46). The musical worship of God was thus not intended to be restricted to the temple. Such worship can carry great power and has major significance to life in general. See "A Biblical View of Music," p. 727.

20:26-28 After their victory, which God had given through singing and praising him, Judah continued to praise God.

20:32-33 Despite Jehoshaphat's overall pattern of obedience, the nation had not yet set their hearts on the God of their ancestors.

20:35-37 Jehoshaphat had been rebuked for making an alliance with Ahab earlier (see the notes on 18:1-2 and 19:1-3), and he was rebuked again for making the same mistake with Ahab's son King Ahaziah (see 1Kg 22:51).

JEHORAM BECOMES KING OVER JUDAH

21 Jehoshaphat rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. His son Jehoram† became king in his place.† 2 He had brothers, sons of Jehoshaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zechariah, Azariah, Michael, and Shephatiah; all these were the sons of King Jehoshaphat of Judah.† 3 Their father had given them many gifts of silver, gold, and valuable things, along with fortified cities† in Judah, but he gave the kingdom to Jehoram because he was the firstborn. 4 When Jehoram had established himself over his father's kingdom, he strengthened his position by killing with the sword all his brothers as well as some of the princes of Israel.

JUDAH'S KING JEHORAM

5 Jehoram† was thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. 6 He walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done,† for Ahab's daughter was his wife.† He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, 7 but for the sake of the covenant the LORD had made with David, he was unwilling to destroy the house of David since the LORD had promised† to give a lamp† to David and to his sons forever.

8 During Jehoram's reign, Edom rebelled against Judah's control and appointed their own king. 9 So Jehoram crossed into Edom with his commanders and all his chariots. Then at night he set out to attack the Edomites who had surrounded him and the chariot commanders. 10 And now Edom is still in rebellion against Judah's control today. Libnah also rebelled at that time against his control because he had abandoned the LORD, the God of his ancestors. 11 Jehoram also built high places† in the hills† of Judah, and he caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to prostitute themselves,† and he led Judah astray.

ELIJAH'S LETTER TO JEHORAM

12 Then a letter came to Jehoram from the prophet Elijah, saying:
This is what the LORD, the God of your ancestor David says: "Because you have not walked in the ways of your father Jehoshaphat† or in the ways of King Asa of Judah† 13 but have walked in the ways of the kings of Israel,† have caused Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to prostitute themselves like the house of Ahab† prostituted itself, and also have killed your brothers,† your father's family, who were better than you, 14 the LORD is now about to strike your people, your sons, your wives, and all your possessions with a horrible affliction.
15 You yourself will be struck with many illnesses, including a disease of the intestines, until your intestines come out day after day because of the disease."†

JEHORAM'S LAST DAYS

16 The LORD roused the spirit of the Philistines and the Arabs† who lived near the Cushites to attack Jehoram.† 17 So they went to war against Judah and invaded it. They carried off all the possessions found in the king's palace and also his sons and wives; not a son was left to him except Jehoahaz,†† his youngest son.
18 After all these things, the LORD afflicted him in his intestines with an incurable disease. 19 This continued day after day until two full years passed. Then his intestines came out because of his disease, and he died from severe† illnesses. But his people did not hold a fire in his honor like the fire in honor of his fathers.†
20 Jehoram† was thirty-two years old when he became king; he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. He died to no one's regret†† and was buried in the city of

David but not in the tombs of the kings.†

21:4 Jehoram's murder of all his brothers was evil and put the continuance of the line of David at risk.

21:6 Jehoram was allied with the evil house of Ahab through marriage (see also 18:1).

21:7 Despite the wickedness of Jehoram, God did not destroy the house of David because of his faithfulness to his covenant with David (see the note on 1Ch 17:10-14). Nevertheless, God still punished Jehoram through the rebellions of Edom and Libnah (vv. 8-10; see also vv. 16-17).

21:12 The prophet Elijah, who played such a prominent role in Kings, appears only here in Chronicles. This letter to Jehoram was not mentioned in Kings.

21:14-15 Due to his many serious sins (vv. 12-13), Jehoram would be punished severely. His people, his family, and his own person would be struck by God (see vv. 18-19; 22:1).

21:16-17 The Lord continued to punish Jehoram through foreign peoples, this time through the Philistines and the Arabs (see vv. 8-10).

JUDAH'S KING AHAZIAH

22 Then the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah, his youngest son, king in his place, because the troops that had come with the Arabs† to the camp had killed all the older sons.† So Ahaziah son of Jehoram became king of Judah. 2 Ahaziah† was twenty-two† years old when he became king, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, granddaughter† of Omri.

3 He walked in the ways of the house of Ahab, for his mother gave him evil advice. 4 So he did what was evil in the LORD's sight like the house of Ahab, for they were his advisers after the death of his father, to his destruction. 5 He also followed their advice and went with Joram† son of Israel's King Ahab to fight against King Hazael of Aram, in Ramoth-gilead. The Arameans† wounded Joram, 6 so he returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds they inflicted on him in Ramoth-gilead† when he fought against King Hazael of Aram. Then Judah's King Ahaziah† son of Jehoram went down to Jezreel to visit Joram son of Ahab since Joram was ill.

7 Ahaziah's downfall came from God when he went to Joram.† When Ahaziah arrived, he went out with Joram to meet Jehu son of Nimshi,† whom the LORD had anointed to destroy the house of Ahab.† 8 So when Jehu executed judgment on the house of Ahab,† he found the rulers of Judah and the sons of Ahaziah's brothers who were serving Ahaziah, and he killed them. 9 Then Jehu looked for Ahaziah,† and Jehu's soldiers captured him (he was hiding in Samaria). So they brought Ahaziah to Jehu, and they killed him. The soldiers buried him, for they said, "He is the grandson of Jehoshaphat who sought the LORD with all his heart."† So no one from the house of Ahaziah had the strength to rule the kingdom.

ATHALIAH USURPS THE THRONE

10 When† Athaliah, Ahaziah's mother, saw that her son was dead, she proceeded to annihilate all the royal heirs† of the house of Judah. 11 Jehoshabeath,† the king's daughter, rescued Joash son of Ahaziah from the king's sons who were being killed and put him and the one who nursed him in a bedroom. Now Jehoshabeath was the daughter of King Jehoram and the wife of the priest Jehoiada. Since she was Ahaziah's sister, she hid Joash from Athaliah so that she did not kill him. 12 While Athaliah reigned over the land, he was hiding with them in God's temple six years.

22:1 As God had said, Jehoram's family would be struck (21:14), and only his youngest son survived the attack of the Arabs. Just as he had killed his brothers (21:4), all but one of his sons were killed (see also 21:17).

22:3-4 Judah continued to be dragged down through its connection to the evil house of Ahab (18:1; 21:13). Jehoram had married Ahab's daughter Athaliah (21:6), and she gave evil advice to Ahaziah. This entangling relationship ultimately led to Ahaziah's death (vv. 5-9).

22:10-11 For a third time, a large number of royal heirs was put death (see 21:4; 22:1). The rescue of Joash was critical for the continuance of the Davidic line of kings. It seems natural to perceive the sovereign hand of God at work in preserving David's descendants because of his covenant with their forefather.

ATHALIAH OVERTHROWN

23 Then, in the seventh year,† Jehoiada summoned his courage and took the commanders of hundreds into a covenant with him: Azariah son of Jeroham, Ishmael son of Jehohanan, Azariah son of Obed, Maaseiah son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat son of Zichri. 2 They made a circuit throughout Judah. They gathered the Levites from all the cities of Judah and the family heads of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem.

3 Then the whole assembly made a covenant with the king in God's temple. Jehoiada said to them, "Here is the king's son! He will reign, just as the LORD promised† concerning David's sons. 4 This is what you are to do: a third of you, priests and Levites who are coming on duty on the Sabbath,† are to be gatekeepers. 5 A third are to be at the king's palace, and a third are to be at the Foundation Gate, and all the troops will be in the courtyards of the LORD's temple. 6 No one is to enter the LORD's temple but the priests and those Levites who serve;† they may enter because they are holy, but all the people are to obey the requirement of the LORD. 7 Completely surround the king with weapons in hand. Anyone who enters the temple is to be put to death. Be with the king in all his daily tasks."†
8 So the commanders of hundreds did everything the priest Jehoiada commanded. They each brought their men — those coming on duty on the Sabbath and those going off duty on the Sabbath — for the priest Jehoiada did not release the divisions.† 9 The priest Jehoiada gave to the commanders of hundreds King David's spears, shields, and quivers† that were in God's temple. 10 Then he stationed all the troops with their weapons in hand surrounding the king — from the right side of the temple to the left side, by the altar and by the temple.
11 They brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, gave him the testimony,† and made him king. Jehoiada and his sons anointed him and cried, "Long live the king! "†
12 When Athaliah heard the noise from the troops, the guards, and those praising the king, she went to the troops in the LORD's temple. 13 As she looked, there was the king standing by his pillar† at the entrance. The commanders and the trumpeters were by the king, and all the people of the land were rejoicing and blowing trumpets† while the singers with musical instruments were leading the praise. Athaliah tore her clothes and screamed, "Treason! Treason! "
14 Then the priest Jehoiada sent out the commanders of hundreds, those in charge of the army, saying, "Take her out between the ranks, and put anyone who follows her to death by the sword," for the priest had said, "Don't put her to death in the LORD's temple." 15 So they arrested her, and she went by the entrance of the Horse Gate† to the king's palace, where they put her to death.

JEHOIADA'S REFORMS

JEHOIADA'S REFORMS

16 Then Jehoiada made a covenant between himself, the king, and the people that they would be the LORD's people. 17 So all the people went to the temple of Baal and tore it down. They smashed its altars and images and killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, at the altars.† 18 Then Jehoiada put the oversight of the LORD's temple into the hands of the Levitical priests,† whom David had appointed† over the LORD's temple, to offer burnt offerings to the LORD as it is written in the law of Moses,† with rejoicing and song ordained by† David. 19 He stationed gatekeepers† at the gates of the LORD's temple so that nothing unclean could enter for any reason. 20 Then he took with him the commanders of hundreds, the nobles, the governors of the people, and all the people of the land and brought the king down from the LORD's temple. They entered the king's palace through the Upper Gate and seated the king on the throne of the kingdom. 21 All the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet, for they had put Athaliah to death by the sword.

23:2 The Levites again played a key role, this time in the installation of Joash as king (see also the notes on 17:7-9 and 20:20-23).

23:3 Jehoiada's plan to overthrow Athaliah and install Joash as ruler was based on God's promises to David. This plan intertwines several key concerns in Chronicles: Davidic kings, the temple, and the Levites (vv. 4-13).

23:16-19 Jehoiada led the Israelites to make a covenant with God, which resulted in their destruction of the temple of Baal. He also made provisions for the oversight of the LORD's temple, as David had done earlier (see 1Ch 23–26).

JUDAH'S KING JOASH

24 Joash† was seven years old when he became king, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah; she was from Beersheba. 2 Throughout the time of the priest Jehoiada, Joash did what was right in the LORD's sight.† 3 Jehoiada acquired two wives for him, and he was the father of sons and daughters.

REPAIRING THE TEMPLE

4 Afterward,† Joash took it to heart to renovate† the LORD's temple. 5 So he gathered the priests and Levites and said, "Go out to the cities of Judah and collect silver from all Israel to repair the temple of your God as needed year by year,† and do it quickly."
However, the Levites did not hurry. 6 So the king called Jehoiada the high priest and said, "Why haven't you required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax imposed by the LORD's servant Moses and the assembly of Israel for the tent† of the testimony? 7 For the sons of that wicked Athaliah broke into the LORD's temple and even used the sacred things of the LORD's temple for the Baals."
8 At the king's command a chest was made and placed outside the gate of the LORD's temple. 9 Then a proclamation† was issued in Judah and Jerusalem that the tax God's servant Moses imposed on Israel in the wilderness be brought to the LORD. 10 All the leaders and all the people rejoiced, brought the tax, and put it in the chest until it was full. 11 Whenever the chest was brought by the Levites to the king's overseers, and when they saw that there was a large amount of silver, the king's secretary and the high priest's deputy came and emptied the chest, picked it up, and returned it to its place. They did this daily and gathered the silver in abundance. 12 Then the king and Jehoiada gave it to those in charge of the labor on the LORD's temple, who were hiring stonecutters and carpenters to renovate the LORD's temple, also blacksmiths and coppersmiths to repair the LORD's temple.†
13 The workmen did their work, and through them the repairs progressed. They restored God's temple to its specifications and reinforced it. 14 When they finished, they presented the rest of the silver to the king and Jehoiada, who made articles for the LORD's temple with it — articles for ministry and for making burnt offerings, and ladles† and articles of gold and silver. They regularly offered burnt offerings in the LORD's temple throughout Jehoiada's life.

JOASH'S APOSTASY

15 Jehoiada died when he was old and full of days; he was 130 years old at his death. 16 He was buried in the city of David with the kings† because he had done what was good in Israel with respect to God and his temple.
17 However, after Jehoiada died, the rulers of Judah came and paid homage to the king. Then the king listened to them, 18 and they abandoned the temple of the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and served the Asherah poles and the idols.† So there was wrath† against Judah and Jerusalem for this guilt of theirs.

19 Nevertheless, he sent them prophets† to bring them back to the LORD; they admonished them, but the people would not listen.† 20 The Spirit of God enveloped†† Zechariah son of Jehoiada the priest. He stood above the people and said to them, “This is what God says, ‘Why are you transgressing the LORD’s commands so that you do not prosper?† Because you have abandoned the LORD, he has abandoned you.’ ”† 21 But they conspired against him and stoned him at the king’s command in the courtyard of the LORD’s temple.† 22 King Joash didn’t remember the kindness that Zechariah’s father Jehoiada had extended to him, but killed his son. While he was dying, he said, “May the LORD see and demand† an account.”

ARAMEAN INVASION OF JUDAH

23 At the turn of the year, an Aramean army attacked Joash.† They entered Judah and Jerusalem and destroyed all the leaders of the people among them and sent all the plunder to the king of Damascus. 24 Although the Aramean army came with only a few men, the LORD handed over† a vast army to them because the people of Judah had abandoned† the LORD, the God of their ancestors. So they executed judgment on Joash.

JOASH ASSASSINATED

25 When† the Arameans saw that Joash had many wounds, they left him. His servants conspired against him, and killed him on his bed, because he had shed the blood of the sons of the priest Jehoiada. So he died, and they buried him in the city of David, but they did not bury him in the tombs of the kings.†
26 Those who conspired against him were Zabad, son of the Ammonite woman Shimeath, and Jehozabad, son of the Moabite woman Shimrith.†† 27 The accounts concerning his sons, the many divine pronouncements about him, and the restoration† of God’s temple are recorded in the Writing† of the Book of the Kings. His son Amaziah became king in his place.

24:2 Jehoiada’s strong spiritual leadership was a positive influence on Joash (see also the note on vv. 17-

24:4-7 Joash wanted to repair the temple quickly, but the Levites did not hurry and were slow in bringing the money collected to support this work (v. 6). This is a rare instance in Chronicles in which the Levites were not doing what they were supposed to do (see also 30:15; the notes on 17:7-9 and 20:20-23).

24:17-25 Sadly, Joash's faithfulness to God did not continue after Jehoiada's death (see v. 2). The king foolishly listened to the rulers of Judah and abandoned God and the temple for idols (vv. 17-18). The Lord was angry with Joash and sent prophets to warn Judah, but to no avail (vv. 18-19). One such prophetic message came through Zechariah son of Jehoiada the priest, who declared that the people's abandonment of God would lead to God's abandonment of them (v. 20; see also vv. 23-24). Despite the many good things that Zechariah's father Jehoiada had done for the nation, Joash and the people callously stoned Zechariah (v. 21). Joash would be killed by his servants (v. 25).

JUDAH'S KING AMAZIAH

25 Amaziah† became king when he was twenty-five years old, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jehoaddan; she was from Jerusalem. 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight but not wholeheartedly.†

3 As soon as the kingdom was firmly in his grasp,† he executed his servants who had killed his father the king. 4 However, he did not put their children to death, because — as it is written in the Law, in the book of Moses,† where the LORD commanded — "Fathers are not to die because of children, and children are not to die because of fathers, but each one will die for his own sin."†

AMAZIAH'S CAMPAIGN AGAINST EDOM

5 Then Amaziah gathered Judah and assembled them according to ancestral families,† according to commanders of thousands, and according to commanders of hundreds. He numbered those twenty years old or more† for all Judah and Benjamin. He found there to be three hundred thousand fit young men who could serve in the army, bearing spear and shield.† 6 Then for 7,500 pounds† of silver he hired one hundred thousand valiant warriors from Israel.

7 However, a man of God† came to him and said, "King, do not let Israel's army go with you, for the LORD is not with Israel — all the Ephraimites. 8 But if you go with them, do it! Be strong for battle! But God will make you stumble before the enemy,† for God has the power to help† or to make one stumble."

9 Then Amaziah said to the man of God, "What should I do about the 7,500 pounds of silver I gave to Israel's division? "

The man of God replied, "The LORD is able to give you much more than this."

10 So Amaziah released the division that came to him from Ephraim to go home.
But they got very angry with Judah and returned home in a fierce rage.
11 Amaziah strengthened his position and led his people to the Salt Valley. He struck down ten thousand Seirites,† 12 and the Judahites captured ten thousand alive. They took them to the top of a cliff where they threw them off, and all of them were dashed to pieces.
13 As for the men of the division that Amaziah sent back so they would not go with him into battle, they raided the cities of Judah from Samaria to Beth-horon, struck down three thousand of their people, and took a great deal of plunder.
14 After Amaziah came from the attack on the Edomites, he brought the gods of the Seirites and set them up as his gods. He worshiped before them and burned incense to them.† 15 So the LORD's anger was against Amaziah, and he sent a prophet to him, who said, "Why have you sought a people's gods that could not rescue their own people from you? "† 16 While he was still speaking to him, the king asked, "Have we made you the king's counselor? Stop, why should you lose your life? "
So the prophet stopped, but he said, "I know that God intends to destroy you, because you have done this and have not listened to my advice."

AMAZIAH'S WAR WITH ISRAEL'S KING JOASH

17 King Amaziah of Judah took counsel† and sent word to Jehoash† son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, and challenged him: "Come, let's meet face to face."
18 King Jehoash of Israel sent word to King Amaziah of Judah, saying, "The thistle in Lebanon sent a message to the cedar in Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son as a wife.' Then a wild animal in Lebanon passed by and trampled the thistle.† 19 You have said, 'Look, I† have defeated Edom,' and you have become overconfident†† that you will get glory. Now stay at home. Why stir up such trouble so that you fall and Judah with you? " 20 But Amaziah would not listen, for this turn of events was from God in order to hand them over to their enemies because they went after the gods of Edom.
21 So King Jehoash of Israel advanced. He and King Amaziah of Judah met face to face at Beth-shemesh that belonged to Judah. 22 Judah was routed before Israel, and each man fled to his own tent. 23 King Jehoash of Israel captured Judah's King Amaziah son of Joash, son of Jehoahaz,†† at Beth-shemesh. Then Jehoash took him to Jerusalem and broke down two hundred yards† of Jerusalem's wall from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate.†† 24 He took all the gold, silver, all the utensils that were found with Obed-edom† in God's temple, the treasures of the king's palace, and the hostages. Then he returned to Samaria.

AMAZIAH'S DEATH

25 Judah's King Amaziah† son of Joash lived fifteen years after the death of Israel's King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz. 26 The rest of the events of Amaziah's reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel.

27 From the time Amaziah turned from following the LORD, a conspiracy was formed against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. However, men were sent after him to Lachish, and they put him to death there. 28 They carried him back on horses and buried him with his fathers in the city of Judah.††

25:3-4 The murder of Amaziah's father Joash by these servants was described in 24:25-26.

25:7-9 Although Amaziah had already hired many soldiers from Israel (v. 6), a man of God instructed him not to allow these troops to fight with him because of God's disfavor with Israel (v. 7; see also the notes on 11:13-17 and 13:4-9). This prophet assured Amaziah that God had the power to give victory or defeat in battle (v. 8) and was able to make up for the financial loss (v. 9).

25:14-16 Despite his victory over Seir (vv. 11-12), Amaziah brought back their gods and worshiped them (v. 14). In the ancient world, taking the gods of a defeated people expressed victory over them. At the same time, worshiping those gods was often thought to gain their favor. In a polytheistic worldview, it is ideal to have the favor of as many gods as possible. A prophet confronted Amaziah for worshiping gods that could not rescue their own people (v. 15). Amaziah angrily commanded the prophet to stop, or he would lose his life (v. 16). His wickedness and stubbornness would lead to his destruction (see vv. 17-28).

25:20 Amaziah's stubbornness and pride got him in trouble with Jehoash king of Israel (vv. 17-19,21-24). All this was from God, who was punishing Amaziah for worshiping the gods of Edom.

JUDAH'S KING UZZIAH

26 All the people† of Judah took Uzziah,† who was sixteen years old, and made him king in place of his father Amaziah. 2 After Amaziah the king rested with his fathers, Uzziah rebuilt Eloth†† and restored it to Judah.

3 Uzziah was sixteen years old† when he became king, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah; she was from Jerusalem.
4 He did what was right in the LORD's sight just as his father Amaziah had done.
5 He sought God† throughout the lifetime of Zechariah, the teacher of the fear†† of God. During the time that he sought the LORD, God gave him success.†

UZZIAH'S EXPLOITS

6 Uzziah went out to wage war against the Philistines,† and he tore down the wall of Gath, the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod. Then he built cities in the vicinity of Ashdod and among the Philistines. 7 God helped him against the Philistines, the Arabs that live in Gur-baal, and the Meunites. 8 The Ammonites† paid tribute to Uzziah,† and his fame spread as far as the entrance of Egypt, for God made him very powerful. 9 Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at the Corner Gate,† the Valley Gate,† and the corner buttress, and he fortified them. 10 Since he had many cattle both in the Judean foothills† and the plain, he built towers in the desert and dug many wells.† And since he was a lover of the soil, he had farmers and vinedressers in the hills and in the fertile lands.† 11 Uzziah had an army equipped for combat that went out to war by division according to their assignments, as recorded by Jeiel the court secretary and Maaseiah the officer under the authority of Hananiah, one of the king's commanders. 12 The total number of family heads was 2,600 valiant warriors.
13 Under their authority was an army of 307,500 equipped for combat, a powerful force to help the king against the enemy.† 14 Uzziah provided the entire army with shields, spears, helmets, armor, bows, and slingstones. 15 He made skillfully designed devices in Jerusalem to shoot arrows and catapult large stones for use on the towers and on the corners. So his fame spread even to distant places, for he was wondrously helped until he became strong.

UZZIAH'S DISEASE

16 But when he became strong, he grew arrogant,† and it led to his own destruction. He acted unfaithfully against the LORD his God by going into the LORD's sanctuary to burn incense on the incense altar.† 17 The priest Azariah,† along with eighty brave priests of the LORD, went in after him. 18 They took their stand† against King Uzziah and said, "Uzziah, you have no right to offer incense to the LORD† — only the consecrated priests, the descendants of Aaron, have the right to offer incense.† Leave the sanctuary, for you have acted unfaithfully!

You will not receive honor from the LORD God." 19 Uzziah, with a firepan in his hand to offer incense, was enraged. But when he became enraged with the priests, in the presence of the priests in the LORD's temple beside the altar of incense, a skin disease† broke out on his forehead.
20 Then Azariah the chief priest and all the priests turned to him and saw that he was diseased on his forehead. They rushed him out of there. He himself also hurried to get out because the LORD had afflicted him. 21 So King Uzziah was diseased to the time of his death.† He lived in quarantine†† with a serious skin disease and was excluded from access to the LORD's temple, while his son Jotham was over the king's household governing the people of the land.
22 Now the prophet Isaiah† son of Amoz wrote about the rest of the events of Uzziah's reign, from beginning to end. 23 Uzziah rested with his fathers, and he was buried with his fathers in the burial ground of the kings' cemetery,† for they said, "He has a skin disease." His son Jotham became king in his place.

26:3-5 Like Joash earlier (24:2), Uzziah was faithful to God and experienced his blessing for as long as his spiritual guide was alive (see vv. 16-21). The Lord helped him in battle and made him very powerful (vv. 7-8).

26:16 Uzziah's strength led to pride (see Dt 6:10-15; 8:11-20), and his pride led to a fall (see Pr 16:18). Like others in Chronicles, he acted unfaithfully against the LORD (see the notes on 12:2 and 1Ch 5:25-26) by entering the temple sanctuary to offer incense, which only priests were permitted to do (vv. 17-18).

26:19-21 Like Amaziah (25:16), Uzziah also responded angrily when confronted about his sin. Nevertheless, his forehead broke out in a skin disease, which afflicted him until his death. Disobedience to divine truth bore serious consequences (see the note on 20:20-23).

JUDAH'S KING JOTHAM

27 Jotham was twenty-five years old† when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem.† His mother's name was Jerushah daughter of Zadok. 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight just as his father Uzziah had done. In addition, he didn't enter the LORD's sanctuary,† but the people still behaved corruptly.

3 Jotham built the Upper Gate of the LORD's temple, and he built extensively on the wall of Ophel.† 4 He also built cities in the hill country of Judah and fortresses and towers in the forests.† 5 He waged war against the king of the Ammonites. He overpowered the Ammonites, and that year they gave him 7,500 pounds† of silver, 50,000 bushels† of wheat, and 50,000 bushels of barley. They paid him the same in the second and third years. 6 So Jotham strengthened his position because he did not waver in obeying† the LORD his God.† 7 As for the rest of the events† of Jotham's reign, along with all his wars and his ways, note that they are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah.
8 He was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. 9 Jotham rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. His son Ahaz became king in his place.

27:6 Like his father, Jotham was a good king (v. 2) and was strengthened because of his obedience to God (see 26:5).

JUDAH'S KING AHAZ

28 Ahaz was twenty years old† when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the LORD's sight† like his ancestor David, 2 for he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel† and made cast images of the Baals.† 3 He burned incense in Ben Hinnom Valley† and burned his children in†† the fire, imitating the detestable practices of the nations the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites.† 4 He sacrificed and burned incense on the high places,† on the hills, and under every green tree.
5 So the LORD his God handed Ahaz over† to the king of Aram. He attacked him and took many captives to Damascus.
Ahaz was also handed over to the king of Israel, who struck him with great force: 6 Pekah son of Remaliah killed one hundred twenty thousand in Judah in one day — all brave men — because they had abandoned the LORD God of their ancestors. 7 An Ephraimite warrior named Zichri killed the king's son Maaseiah, Azrikam governor of the palace, and Elkanah who was second to the king.
8 Then the Israelites took two hundred thousand captives from their brothers — women, sons, and daughters.† They also took a great deal of plunder from them and brought it to Samaria.

9 A prophet of the LORD named Oded was there. He went out to meet the army that came to Samaria and said to them, “Look, the LORD God of your ancestors handed them over to you because of his wrath against Judah,† but you slaughtered them in a rage that has reached heaven.† 10 Now you plan to reduce the people of Judah and Jerusalem, male and female, to slavery. Are you not also guilty before the LORD your God? 11 Listen to me and return the captives you took from your brothers,† for the LORD’s burning anger is on you.”
12 So some men who were leaders of the Ephraimites — Azariah son of Jehohanan, Berechiah son of Meshillemoth, Jehizkiah son of Shallum, and Amasa son of Hadlai — stood in opposition to those coming from the war. 13 They said to them, “You must not bring the captives here, for you plan to bring guilt on us from the LORD to add to our sins and our guilt. For we have much guilt, and burning anger is on Israel.”
14 The army left the captives and the plunder in the presence of the officers and the congregation. 15 Then the men who were designated by name† took charge of the captives and provided clothes for their naked ones from the plunder. They clothed them, gave them sandals, food and drink,† dressed their wounds, and provided donkeys for all the feeble. The Israelites brought them to Jericho, the City of Palms,† among their brothers. Then they returned to Samaria.
16 At that time King Ahaz asked the king of Assyria for help.† 17 The Edomites came again, attacked Judah, and took captives.† 18 The Philistines also raided the cities of the Judean foothills† and the Negev of Judah.† They captured and occupied Beth-shemesh, Aijalon, and Gederoth, as well as Soco, Timnah, and Gimzo with their surrounding villages. 19 For the LORD humbled Judah because of King Ahaz of Judah,† who threw off restraint in Judah and was unfaithful to the LORD. 20 Then King Tiglath-pileser†† of Assyria came against Ahaz; he oppressed him and did not give him support.† 21 Although Ahaz plundered the LORD’s temple and the palace of the king and of the rulers and gave the plunder to the king of Assyria, it did not help him.
22 At the time of his distress, King Ahaz himself became more unfaithful to the LORD. 23 He sacrificed to the gods of Damascus which had defeated him; he said, “Since the gods of the kings of Aram are helping them, I will sacrifice to them so that they will help me.”† But they were the downfall of him and of all Israel.

24 Then Ahaz gathered up the utensils of God’s temple, cut them into pieces,† shut the doors of the LORD’s temple,† and made himself altars on every street corner in Jerusalem.† 25 He made high places in every city of Judah to offer incense to other gods, and he angered the LORD, the God of his ancestors.

AHAZ’S DEATH

26 As for the rest of his deeds† and all his ways, from beginning to end, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. 27 Ahaz rested with his fathers and was buried in the city, in Jerusalem, but they did not bring him into the tombs of the kings of Israel. His son Hezekiah became king in his place.

28:5-6 Ahaz was an evil king who worshiped idols (vv. 1-4). Consequently, God punished him through Aram and Israel (see also the note on 25:20).

28:9-11 Despite the sins of Ahaz and Judah, God sent a prophet to confront the army of the northern kingdom of Israel and instruct them to return the captives they had taken (see v. 8). They complied (vv. 12-15).

28:16-25 Like so many other kings in Chronicles, Ahaz was unfaithful to the LORD (see notes on 26:16 and 1Ch 5:25-26). He not only relied on Assyria (v. 16), who did not help him (vv. 19-20), but worshiped the gods of Damascus (vv. 22-23), among others (v. 25). He even plundered the LORD’s temple (v. 21) and shut its doors (v. 24). As a result, the LORD humbled Judah (v. 19).

JUDAH’S KING HEZEKIAH

29 Hezekiah was twenty-five years old† when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Abijah† daughter of Zechariah. 2 He did what was right in the LORD’s sight† just as his ancestor David had done.
3 In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he opened the doors of the LORD’s temple and repaired them.† 4 Then he brought in the priests and Levites and gathered them in the eastern public square.† 5 He said to them, “Hear me, Levites. Consecrate yourselves† now and consecrate the temple of the LORD, the God of your ancestors. Remove everything impure from the holy place. 6 For our fathers were unfaithful and did what is evil in the sight of the LORD our God. They abandoned him, turned their faces away from the LORD's dwelling place, and turned their backs on him.†† 7 They also closed the doors of the portico, extinguished the lamps, did not burn incense, and did not offer burnt offerings in the holy place of the God of Israel. 8 Therefore, the wrath of the LORD was on Judah and Jerusalem, and he made them an object of terror, horror, and mockery,†† as you see with your own eyes. 9 Our fathers fell by the sword, and our sons, our daughters, and our wives are in captivity because of this.† 10 It is in my heart now to make a covenant with the LORD, the God of Israel† so that his burning anger may turn away from us. 11 My sons, don't be negligent now, for the LORD has chosen you to stand in his presence, to serve him, and to be his ministers and burners of incense."†

CLEANSING THE TEMPLE

12 Then the Levites stood up:

1. Mahath† son of Amasai and Joel son of Azariah from the Kohathites;
2. Kish son of Abdi and Azariah son of Jehallelel from the Merarites;†
3. Joah son of Zimmah and Eden son of Joah from the Gershonites;
4. 13 Shimri and Jeuel from the Elizaphanites;
5. Zechariah and Mattaniah from the Asaphites;
6. 14 Jehiel† and Shimei from the Hemanites;
7. Shemaiah and Uzziel from the Jeduthunites.

15 They gathered their brothers together, consecrated themselves,† and went according to the king's command by the words of the LORD† to cleanse the LORD's temple.†

16 The priests went to the entrance of the LORD's temple to cleanse it. They took all the unclean things they found in the LORD's sanctuary to the courtyard of the LORD's temple. Then the Levites received them and took them outside to the Kidron Valley.† 17 They began the consecration on the first day of the first month, and on the eighth day of the month they came to the portico of the LORD's temple. They consecrated the LORD's temple for eight days, and on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished.

18 Then they went inside to King Hezekiah and said, "We have cleansed the whole temple of the LORD, the altar of burnt offering and all its utensils, and the table for the rows of the Bread of the Presence and all its utensils. 19 We have set up and consecrated all the utensils that King Ahaz rejected during his reign† when he became unfaithful. They are in front of the altar of the LORD."

RENEWAL OF TEMPLE WORSHIP

20 King Hezekiah got up early, gathered the city officials, and went to the LORD's temple. 21 They brought seven bulls, seven rams, seven lambs, and seven male goats as a sin offering for the kingdom, for the sanctuary, and for Judah. Then he told the descendants of Aaron, the priests, to offer them on the altar of the LORD. 22 So they slaughtered the bulls, and the priests received the blood and splattered it on the altar.† They slaughtered the rams and splattered the blood on the altar. They slaughtered the lambs and splattered the blood on the altar. 23 Then they brought the goats for the sin offering right into the presence of the king and the congregation, who laid their hands on them.† 24 The priests slaughtered the goats and put their blood on the altar for a sin offering, to make atonement for all Israel,† for the king said that the burnt offering and sin offering were for all Israel.
25 Hezekiah stationed the Levites in the LORD's temple with cymbals, harps, and lyres† according to the command of David,† Gad the king's seer,† and the prophet Nathan.† For the command was from the LORD through his prophets. 26 The Levites stood with the instruments of David,† and the priests with the trumpets.†
27 Then Hezekiah ordered that the burnt offering be offered on the altar. When the burnt offerings began, the song of the LORD and the trumpets began, accompanied by the instruments of King David of Israel. 28 The whole assembly was worshiping, singing the song, and blowing the trumpets — all this continued until the burnt offering was completed. 29 When the burnt offerings were completed, the king and all those present with him bowed down and worshiped.†
30 Then King Hezekiah and the officials told the Levites to sing praise to the LORD in the words of David and of the seer Asaph. So they sang praises with rejoicing and knelt low and worshiped.

31 Hezekiah concluded, “Now you are consecrated† to the LORD. Come near and bring sacrifices and thank offerings to the LORD’s temple.” So the congregation brought sacrifices and thank offerings, and all those with willing hearts† brought burnt offerings. 32 The number of burnt offerings the congregation brought was seventy bulls, one hundred rams, and two hundred lambs; all these were for a burnt offering to the LORD. 33 Six hundred bulls and three thousand sheep and goats were consecrated.
34 However, since there were not enough priests, they weren’t able to skin all the burnt offerings, so their Levite brothers helped them† until the work was finished and until the priests consecrated themselves. For the Levites were more conscientious†† to consecrate themselves than the priests were.† 35 Furthermore, the burnt offerings were abundant, along with the fat of the fellowship offerings† and with the drink offerings† for the burnt offering.
So the service of the LORD’s temple was established. 36 Then Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced over how God had prepared the people, for it had come about suddenly.

29:3-11 Ahaz had left the temple in serious need of restoration (28:21,24). One of Hezekiah’s first acts as king was to reopen the temple doors and to begin repairs (v. 3). He called the priests and Levites to consecrate [themselves] . . . and consecrate the temple of the LORD, which needed to be purified and have its service restored (vv. 5-7). Earlier failures in this regard had led to the wrath of God (vv. 8-9). A temple renovation had also taken place earlier under Joash (24:4-14; see also 34:8-15). For more on the Levites in Chronicles, see the note on 17:7-9.

29:15 The purification and restoration of the temple was in accordance with the words of the LORD (see also vv. 5-9).

29:24 Hezekiah not only made sacrifices for Judah (v. 21) but for all Israel (see also 30:1). For more on “all Israel” in Chronicles, see the notes on 1 Chronicles 11:9-10 and 29:22-25.

29:25-26 The restoration of the temple service necessarily included the reinstitution of its divinely ordained musical worship (see 1Ch 25).

29:34 The Levites again emerged as key players in the work of God (see the note on 17:7-9), even more so than the priests in this instance (see also 30:3).

29:36 The restoration of the temple and its service had been brought about by God suddenly. Isaiah 66:8 also celebrates a work of God that came about quickly.

CELEBRATION OF THE PASSOVER

30 Then Hezekiah sent word throughout all Israel and Judah, and he also wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasseh to come to the LORD's temple in Jerusalem to observe the Passover of the LORD, the God of Israel.† 2 For the king and his officials and the entire congregation in Jerusalem decided to observe the Passover of the LORD in the second month,† 3 because they were not able to observe it at the appropriate time. Not enough of the priests had consecrated themselves,† and the people hadn't been gathered together in Jerusalem. 4 The proposal pleased the king and the congregation, 5 so they affirmed the proposal and spread the message throughout all Israel, from Beer-sheba to Dan,† to come to observe the Passover of the LORD, the God of Israel in Jerusalem, for they hadn't observed it often,† as prescribed.†

6 So the couriers† went throughout Israel and Judah with letters from the hand of the king and his officials, and according to the king's command, saying, "Israelites, return to the LORD, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel so that he may return to those of you who remain, who have escaped the grasp of the kings of Assyria.† 7 Don't be like your fathers and your brothers who were unfaithful to the LORD, the God of their ancestors† so that he made them an object of horror† as you yourselves see. 8 Don't become obstinate†† now like your fathers did. Give your allegiance† to the LORD, and come to his sanctuary that he has consecrated forever. Serve the LORD your God so that he may turn his burning anger away from you,† 9 for when you return to the LORD, your brothers and your sons will receive mercy in the presence of their captors and will return to this land.† For the LORD your God is gracious and merciful;† he will not turn his face away from you if you return to him."

10 The couriers traveled from city to city in the land of Ephraim and Manasseh as far as Zebulun, but the inhabitants† laughed at them and mocked them.† 11 But some from Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem.† 12 Also, the power of God was at work in Judah to unite them† to carry out the command of the king and his officials by the word of the LORD.

13 A very large assembly of people was gathered in Jerusalem to observe the Festival of Unleavened Bread in the second month. 14 They proceeded to take away the altars that were in Jerusalem,† and they took away the incense altars and threw them into the Kidron Valley.† 15 They slaughtered the Passover lamb† on the fourteenth day of the second month. The priests and Levites were ashamed, and they consecrated themselves and brought burnt offerings to the LORD's temple. 16 They stood at their prescribed posts,† according to the law of Moses, the man of God. The priests splattered the blood received from the Levites, 17 for there were many in the assembly who had not consecrated themselves, and so the Levites were in charge of slaughtering the Passover lambs for every unclean person to consecrate the lambs to the LORD.† 18 A large number of the people — many from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun — were ritually unclean, yet they had eaten the Passover† contrary to what was written.† But Hezekiah had interceded for them, saying, "May the good LORD provide atonement on behalf of 19 whoever sets his whole heart on seeking God,† the LORD, the God of his ancestors, even though not according to the purification rules of the sanctuary." 20 So the LORD heard Hezekiah and healed the people.† 21 The Israelites who were present in Jerusalem observed the Festival of Unleavened Bread seven days with great joy,† and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD day after day with loud instruments. 22 Then Hezekiah encouraged†† all the Levites who performed skillfully before the LORD. They ate at the appointed festival for seven days, sacrificing fellowship offerings and giving thanks to the LORD, the God of their ancestors.†

23 The whole congregation decided to observe† seven more days, so they observed seven days with joy, 24 for King Hezekiah of Judah contributed one thousand bulls and seven thousand sheep for the congregation. Also, the officials contributed one thousand bulls and ten thousand sheep for the congregation,† and many priests consecrated themselves.† 25 Then the whole assembly of Judah with the priests and Levites, the whole assembly that came from Israel, the resident aliens who came from the land of Israel, and those who were living in Judah, rejoiced. 26 There was great rejoicing in Jerusalem, for nothing like this was known since the days of Solomon son of David, the king of Israel.†

27 Then the priests and the Levites† stood to bless the people,† and God heard them, and their prayer came into his holy dwelling place† in heaven.

30:1 Despite the division of the Israelites' nation into the northern kingdom of Israel and the southern kingdom of Judah (see 1Ch 10), Hezekiah sent word throughout all Israel and Judah to call the people to come to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover (see also v. 5).

30:6-9 The Israelites had not celebrated the Passover annually as they should have (v. 5), and the northern kingdom had been worshiping golden calves since its inception (see 11:14-16; 13:8-9). The upcoming Passover was thus an opportunity for all Israel to return to the LORD . . . so that he may return to those remaining in the land (v. 6). Some had already been taken captive by the Assyrians (see 29:9; 1Ch 5:25-26; 2Kg 17). Nevertheless, Hezekiah believed genuine repentance would lead to their return (v. 9; see also 7:13-14; Dt 30:2-6).

30:10-12 Sadly, some mocked the messengers who called them to celebrate the Passover at Jerusalem, but some from Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem. There were also some who came from Ephraim and Issachar (v. 18).

30:18-20 Although some of the Israelites were ritually unclean yet had eaten the Passover (v. 18), the LORD heard Hezekiah and healed the people (v. 20). The Passover was not perfectly executed (see also vv. 2-5), but God apparently recognized their genuine desire to seek him (see also the note on 7:7).

30:21-22 The Passover celebration also included the music of the Levites and priests with their instruments, which is not surprising given Chronicles' emphasis on such ministry (see the note on 29:25-26).

30:23-26 This is another high point in Chronicles, in which people from Judah and Israel continued to celebrate the Passover for an additional seven days with great joy. Nothing like this had happened since the days of Solomon (see the notes on 7:8 and 35:18). The Lord's pleasure with this is implied through his hearing of the prayer of the priests and Levites (v. 27).

REMOVAL OF IDOLATRY

31 When all this was completed, all Israel who had attended went out to the cities of Judah and broke up the sacred pillars, chopped down the Asherah poles, and tore down the high places and altars† throughout Judah and Benjamin, as well as in Ephraim and Manasseh, to the last one.† Then all the Israelites returned to their cities, each to his own possession.

OFFERINGS FOR LEVITES

2 Hezekiah reestablished the divisions† of the priests and Levites for the burnt offerings and fellowship offerings, for ministry, for giving thanks, and for praise in the gates of the camp of the LORD,† each division corresponding to his service among the priests and Levites. 3 The king contributed† from his own possessions† for the regular morning and evening burnt offerings, the burnt offerings of the Sabbaths, of the New Moons, and of the appointed feasts, as written in the law of the LORD.† 4 He told the people who lived in Jerusalem to give a contribution† for the priests and Levites so that they could devote their energy to the law of the LORD. 5 When the word spread, the Israelites gave liberally of the best of the grain, new wine, fresh oil, honey, and of all the produce of the field, and they brought in an abundance, a tenth† of everything.

6 As for the Israelites and Judahites who lived in the cities of Judah, they also brought a tenth of the herds and flocks, and a tenth of the dedicated things that were consecrated to the LORD their God.† They gathered them into large piles.
7 In the third month they began building up the piles, and they finished in the seventh month. 8 When Hezekiah and his officials came and viewed the piles, they blessed the LORD and his people Israel.
9 Hezekiah asked the priests and Levites about the piles. 10 The chief priest Azariah, of the household of Zadok,† answered him, “Since they began bringing the offering to the LORD’s temple, we eat and are satisfied and there is plenty left over because the LORD has blessed his people; this abundance is what is left over.”†
11 Hezekiah told them to prepare chambers† in the LORD’s temple, and they prepared them. 12 The offering, the tenth, and the dedicated things were brought faithfully. Conaniah the Levite was the officer in charge of them, and his brother Shimei was second.† 13 Jehiel, Azaziah, Nahath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, Mahath, and Benaiah were deputies under the authority of Conaniah and his brother Shimei by appointment of King Hezekiah and of Azariah the chief official of God’s temple.
14 Kore son of Imnah the Levite, the keeper of the East Gate, was over the freewill offerings to God to distribute the contribution to the LORD and the consecrated things.† 15 Eden,† Miniamin, Jeshua, Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah in the cities of the priests† were to distribute it faithfully under his authority to their brothers by divisions, whether large or small. 16 In addition, they distributed it to males registered by genealogy three†† years old and above; to all who would enter the LORD’s temple for their daily duty,† for their service in their responsibilities according to their divisions. 17 They distributed also to those recorded by genealogy of the priests by their ancestral families and the Levites twenty years old and above,† by their responsibilities in their divisions;
18 to those registered by genealogy — with all their dependents, wives, sons, and daughters — of the whole assembly (for they had faithfully consecrated themselves as holy); 19 and to the descendants of Aaron, the priests, in the common fields of their cities,† in each and every city. There were men who were registered by name† to distribute a portion to every male among the priests and to every Levite recorded by genealogy.

20 Hezekiah did this throughout all Judah. He did what was good and upright and true before the LORD his God.† 21 He was diligent in every deed that he began in the service of God's temple, in the instruction and the commands, in order to seek his God, and he prospered.

31:2-10 After reestablishing the divisions of the priests and Levites for the temple service (v. 2), Hezekiah called the Israelites to contribute to this work, which they did generously (vv. 4-10).

SENNACHERIB'S INVASION

32 After these faithful deeds, King Sennacherib of Assyria came and entered Judah. He laid siege to the fortified cities and intended† to break into them.† 2 Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib had come and that he planned† war on Jerusalem, 3 so he consulted with his officials and his warriors about stopping up the water of the springs that were outside the city, and they helped him. 4 Many people gathered and stopped up all the springs† and the stream that flowed through the land;† they said, "Why should the kings of Assyria come and find abundant water?" 5 Then Hezekiah strengthened his position by rebuilding the entire broken-down wall† and heightening the towers and the other outside wall.† He repaired the supporting terraces† of the city of David, and made an abundance of weapons and shields.
6 He set military commanders over the people and gathered the people in the square of the city gate. Then he encouraged them,†† saying, 7 "Be strong and courageous!† Don't be afraid or discouraged before the king of Assyria or before the large army that is with him, for there are more with us than with him.† 8 He has only human strength,† but we have the LORD our God to help us and to fight our battles."† So the people relied on the words of King Hezekiah of Judah.

SENNACHERIB'S SERVANT'S SPEECH

9 After this,† while King Sennacherib of Assyria with all his armed forces besieged† Lachish, he sent his servants to Jerusalem against King Hezekiah of Judah and against all those of Judah who were in Jerusalem, saying, 10 "This is what King Sennacherib of Assyria says: ‘What are you relying on that you remain in Jerusalem under siege? 11 Isn’t Hezekiah misleading you to give you over to death by famine and thirst when he says, “The LORD our God will keep us from the grasp of the king of Assyria”? 12 Didn’t Hezekiah himself remove his high places and his altars† and say to Judah and Jerusalem, “You must worship before one altar, and you must burn incense on it”?

13 “ ‘Don’t you know† what I and my fathers have done to all the peoples of the lands? Have any of the national gods of the lands been able to rescue their land from my power? 14 Who among all the gods of these nations that my predecessors completely destroyed was able to rescue his people from my power, that your God should be able to deliver you from my power?† 15 So now,† don’t let Hezekiah deceive you, and don’t let him mislead you like this. Don’t believe him, for no god of any nation or kingdom has been able to rescue his people from my power or the power of my fathers. How much less will your God rescue you from my power! ’ ”
16 His servants said more against the LORD God and against his servant Hezekiah. 17 He also wrote letters to mock the LORD, the God of Israel, saying against him:
Just like the national gods of the lands that did not rescue their people from my power, so Hezekiah’s God will not rescue his people from my power.†
18 Then they called out loudly in Hebrew† to the people of Jerusalem, who were on the wall, to frighten and discourage them in order that he might capture the city. 19 They spoke against the God of Jerusalem like they had spoken against the gods of the peoples of the earth, which were made by human hands.

DELIVERANCE FROM SENNACHERIB

20 King Hezekiah and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz prayed about this and cried out to heaven,† 21 and the LORD sent an angel who annihilated every valiant warrior, leader, and commander in the camp of the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria returned in disgrace to his land. He went to the temple of his god, and there some of his own children struck him down with the sword.†
22 So the LORD saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the power of King Sennacherib of Assyria and from the power of all others. He gave them rest†† on every side. 23 Many were bringing an offering to the LORD to Jerusalem and valuable gifts to King Hezekiah of Judah, and he was exalted in the eyes of all the nations after that.†

HEZEKIAH'S ILLNESS AND PRIDE

24 In those days Hezekiah became sick to the point of death, so he prayed to the LORD, and he spoke to him and gave him a miraculous sign.† 25 However, because his heart was proud,† Hezekiah didn't respond according to the benefit that had come to him. So there was wrath on him, Judah, and Jerusalem.† 26 Then Hezekiah humbled himself for the pride of his heart — he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem — so the LORD's wrath didn't come† on them during Hezekiah's lifetime.†

HEZEKIAH'S WEALTH AND WORKS

27 Hezekiah had abundant riches and glory, and he made himself treasuries for silver, gold, precious stones, spices, shields, and every desirable item. 28 He made warehouses for the harvest of grain, new wine, and fresh oil, and stalls for all kinds of cattle, and pens for flocks. 29 He made cities for himself, and he acquired vast numbers of flocks and herds, for God gave him abundant possessions.

30 This same Hezekiah blocked the outlet of the water of the Upper Gihon† and channeled it smoothly downward and westward to the city of David.† Hezekiah succeeded in everything he did. 31 When the ambassadors of Babylon's rulers† were sent† to him to inquire about the miraculous sign† that happened in the land, God left him to test him and discover what was in his heart.†

32 As for the rest of the events† of Hezekiah's reign and his deeds of faithful love, note that they are written in the Visions of the Prophet Isaiah son of Amoz,† and in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel.† 33 Hezekiah rested with his fathers and was buried on the ascent to the tombs of David's descendants. All Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem paid him honor at his death. His son Manasseh became king in his place.

32:6-8 Hezekiah had done much good in turning the nation back to God through the celebration of the Passover and the restoration of the worship of God at the temple (see 31:20-21). Nevertheless, he would be tested when Sennacherib king of Assyria invaded his land (v. 1). After making some preparation (vv. 2-5), Hezekiah encouraged his people that there are more with us than with him because we have the LORD our God to help us and to fight our battles.

32:10-17 Through his messengers, Sennacherib of Assyria questioned Hezekiah and Judah's faith in God (v. 11). No other gods had been able to stand up to Assyria so far, and the enemy king declared that God would be no different (vv. 13-15). He even wrote letters to mock the LORD, the God of Israel (v. 17) and foolishly considered him to be like the gods of the peoples of the earth, which were made by human hands.

32:20-23 Hezekiah and Isaiah took this threat to God in prayer, and he annihilated the Assyrian army. God judged Sennacherib so that he returned in disgrace to his land. There he was killed in the temple of his god by some of his own sons. It was Sennacherib's god who could not protect him (see previous note), whereas God showed his own supremacy. As a result, the surrounding nations exalted the LORD and Hezekiah.

32:24-26 Hezekiah was not a perfect man. Despite God giving him a miraculous sign related to a serious illness, Hezekiah's heart was proud, so there was wrath on him, Judah, and Jerusalem. Later, he humbled himself, so God delayed bringing his judgment (see 2Kg 20).

JUDAH'S KING MANASSEH

33 Manasseh was twelve years old† when he became king, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, imitating the detestable practices of the nations that the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites.† 3 He rebuilt the high places that his father Hezekiah had torn down† and reestablished the altars for the Baals. He made Asherah poles, and he bowed in worship to all the stars in the sky and served them. 4 He built altars† in the LORD's temple, where the LORD had said, "Jerusalem is where my name will remain forever."† 5 He built altars to all the stars in the sky in both courtyards† of the LORD's temple. 6 He passed his sons through the fire in Ben Hinnom Valley.† He practiced witchcraft, divination, and sorcery, and consulted mediums and spiritists.† He did a huge amount of evil in the LORD's sight, angering him.
7 Manasseh† set up a carved image of the idol, which he had made, in God's temple† that God had spoken about to David and his son Solomon: "I will establish my name forever†† in this temple and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel.† 8 I will never again remove the feet of the Israelites from the land where I stationed your†† ancestors,† if only they will be careful to do all I have commanded them through Moses — all the law, statutes, and judgments.” 9 So Manasseh caused Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to stray so that they did worse evil than the nations the LORD had destroyed before the Israelites.

MANASSEH’S REPENTANCE

10 The LORD spoke to Manasseh and his people, but they didn’t listen.† 11 So he brought against them the military commanders of the king of Assyria. They captured Manasseh with hooks, bound him with bronze shackles, and took him to Babylon.† 12 When he was in distress, he sought the favor of the LORD his God and earnestly humbled himself† before the God of his ancestors. 13 He prayed to him, and the LORD was receptive to his prayer. He granted his request† and brought him back to Jerusalem, to his kingdom. So Manasseh came to know that the LORD is God.†
14 After this, he built the outer wall of the city of David from west of Gihon† in the valley to the entrance of the Fish Gate;† he brought it around the Ophel,† and he heightened it considerably. He also placed military commanders in all the fortified cities of Judah.
15 He removed the foreign gods and the idol† from the LORD’s temple, along with all the altars that he had built on the mountain of the LORD’s temple and in Jerusalem, and he threw them outside the city. 16 He built† the altar of the LORD and offered fellowship and thank offerings on it. Then he told Judah to serve the LORD, the God of Israel. 17 However, the people still sacrificed at the high places,† but only to the LORD their God.

MANASSEH’S DEATH

18 The rest of the events† of Manasseh’s reign, along with his prayer† to his God and the words of the seers who spoke to him in the name of the LORD, the God of Israel, are written in the Events of Israel’s Kings. 19 His prayer and how God was receptive to his prayer, and all his sin and unfaithfulness and the sites where he built high places and set up Asherah poles and carved images before he humbled himself, they are written in the Events of Hozai. 20 Manasseh rested with his fathers, and he was buried in his own house. His son Amon became king in his place.

JUDAH’S KING AMON

21 Amon was twenty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. 22 He did what was evil in the LORD’s sight, just as his father

Manasseh had done.† Amon sacrificed to all the carved images that his father Manasseh had made, and he served them. 23 But he did not humble himself before the LORD like his father Manasseh humbled himself;† instead, Amon increased his guilt.

24 So his servants conspired against him and put him to death† in his own house.

25 The common people† killed all who had conspired against King Amon, and they made his son Josiah king in his place.

33:1-7 Manasseh was a very evil king who undid much of the good Hezekiah had worked so hard to accomplish (vv. 2-3,6). He not only worshiped idols but did so in the temple of God (vv. 4-5,7). Under his leadership, Judah "did worse evil than the nations that the LORD had destroyed before the Israelites" (v. 9).

33:10-13 The LORD spoke to Manasseh and Judah (presumably through prophets), but to no avail. He also punished them through a foreign power, Assyria. (Manasseh was taken captive to Babylon, where he sought God's favor and earnestly humbled himself. The Lord graciously heard his petition, and he was allowed to return to Jerusalem (v. 13; see 7:13-14). Manasseh then recognized that the LORD is God, and he took measures to turn his people back to him (vv. 15-17).

33:21-23 Amon was also an evil king like his father Manasseh, except he did not humble himself before the LORD like Manasseh had (33:12).

JUDAH'S KING JOSIAH

34 Josiah was eight years old† when he became king, and he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight and walked in the ways of his ancestor David;† he did not turn aside to the right or the left.

JOSIAH'S REFORM

3 In the eighth year of his reign, while he was still a youth, Josiah began to seek the God of his ancestor David,† and in the twelfth year he began to cleanse Judah and Jerusalem of the high places, the Asherah poles, the carved images,† and the cast images. 4 Then in his presence the altars of the Baals were torn down, and he chopped down the shrines† that were above them. He shattered the Asherah poles, the carved images, and the cast images, crushed them to dust, and scattered† them over the graves of those who had sacrificed to them.† 5 He burned the bones of the priests on their altars.† So he cleansed Judah and Jerusalem. 6 He did the same in the cities† of Manasseh, Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphtali and on their surrounding mountain shrines.† 7 He tore down the altars, and he smashed the Asherah poles and the carved images to powder. He chopped down all the shrines throughout the land of Israel and returned to Jerusalem.†

JOSIAH'S REPAIR OF THE TEMPLE

8 In the eighteenth year of his reign,† in order to cleanse the land and the temple, Josiah sent Shaphan son of Azaliah, along with Maaseiah the governor† of the city and the court historian Joah son of Joahaz, to repair the temple of the LORD his God.

9 So they went to the high priest Hilkiah† and gave him the silver brought into God's temple. The Levites and the doorkeepers had collected it from Manasseh, Ephraim,† and from the entire remnant of Israel, and from all Judah, Benjamin, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 10 They gave it to those doing the work — those who oversaw the LORD's temple. They gave it to the workmen who were working in the LORD's temple, to repair and restore the temple; 11 they gave it to the carpenters and builders and also used it to buy quarried stone and timbers — for joining and making beams — for the buildings that Judah's kings had destroyed.

12 The men were doing the work with integrity. Their overseers were Jahath and Obadiah, Levites from the Merarites, and Zechariah and Meshullam from the Kohathites as supervisors. The Levites were all skilled with musical instruments.† 13 They were also over the porters and were supervising all those doing the work task by task. Some of the Levites were secretaries, officers, and gatekeepers.

THE RECOVERY OF THE BOOK OF THE LAW

14 When they brought out the silver that had been deposited in the LORD's temple, the priest Hilkiah found the book of the law of the LORD written by the hand of Moses.† 15 Consequently,† Hilkiah told the court secretary Shaphan, "I have found the book of the law in the LORD's temple," and he gave the book to Shaphan.
16 Shaphan took the book to the king, and also reported, "Your servants are doing all that was placed in their hands. 17 They have emptied out the silver that was found in the LORD's temple and have given it to the overseers and to those doing the work." 18 Then the court secretary Shaphan told the king, "The priest Hilkiah gave me a book," and Shaphan read from it in the presence of the king.† 19 When the king heard the words of the law, he tore his clothes.† 20 Then he commanded Hilkiah, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Abdon son of Micah, the court secretary Shaphan, and the king's servant Asaiah, 21 "Go and inquire of the LORD for me and for those remaining in Israel and Judah, concerning the words of the book that was found. For great is the LORD's wrath that is poured out on us† because our ancestors have not kept the word of the LORD in order to do everything written in this book."

HULDAH'S PROPHECY OF JUDGMENT

22 So Hilkiah and those the king had designated† went to the prophetess Huldah, the wife of Shallum son of Tokhath, son of Hasrah, keeper of the wardrobe. She lived in Jerusalem in the Second District. They spoke with her about this.
23 She said to them, "This is what the LORD God of Israel says: Say to the man who sent you to me, 24 'This is what the LORD says: I am about to bring disaster on this place and on its inhabitants,† fulfilling† all the curses written in the book that they read in the presence of the king of Judah,† 25 because they have abandoned me† and burned incense to other gods so as to anger me with all the works of their hands. My wrath will be poured out on this place, and it will not be quenched.' 26 Say this to the king of Judah who sent you to inquire of the LORD: 'This is what the LORD God of Israel says: As for the words that you heard, 27 because† your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before God when you heard his words against this place and against its inhabitants, and because you humbled yourself before me, and you tore your clothes and wept before me, I myself have heard' — this is the LORD's declaration. 28 'I will indeed gather you to your fathers, and you will be gathered to your grave in peace. Your eyes will not see all the disaster that I am bringing on this place and on its inhabitants.' "†

Then they reported to the king.

AFFIRMATION OF THE COVENANT BY JOSIAH AND THE PEOPLE

29 So the king sent messengers and gathered all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. 30 The king went up to the LORD's temple with all the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as well as the priests and the Levites — all the people from the oldest to the youngest. He read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant that had been found in the LORD's temple.† 31 Then the king stood at his post† and made a covenant in the LORD's presence† to follow the LORD and to keep his commands, his decrees, and his statutes with all his heart and with all his soul† in order to carry out the words of the covenant written in this book.†
32 He had all those present in Jerusalem and Benjamin agree† to it. So all the inhabitants of Jerusalem carried out the covenant of God, the God of their ancestors.
33 So Josiah removed everything that was detestable from all the lands belonging to the Israelites,† and he required all who were present in Israel to serve the LORD their God. Throughout his reign they did not turn aside from following the LORD, the God of their ancestors.

34:1-6 Josiah was a good king who began seeking God while a teenager. He cleansed Judah and Jerusalem from the idolatry that had arisen (vv. 3-5). His efforts even extended to the cities of Manasseh, Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphtali. Hezekiah's earlier purge had likewise extended "to Ephraim and Manasseh" (31:1).

34:8-11 The temple was once again in need of purification and restoration, as it had been under Joash and Hezekiah (see 24:4-14; 29:3-11). The present effort under Josiah was funded not only by Judah and Benjamin but also by Manasseh, Ephraim, and from the entire remnant of Israel (see also the note on 30:10-12).

34:12-13 The Levites again led the way in this important work (see the note on 17:7-9).

34:14-21 While collecting money that had been deposited in the temple (see v. 9), Hilkiah the high priest found a copy of the book of the law of the LORD written by the hand of Moses (v. 14). Upon hearing the words of Scripture, Josiah tore his clothes and commanded his servants to inquire of the LORD (vv. 18-21).

34:23-28 The prophetess Huldah declared that God was about to bring disaster on Judah because of their idolatry (vv. 23-25). Because Josiah's heart was tender and he humbled himself (v. 27), however, he would die in peace and would not see this destruction.

34:29-33 Despite the prophetess Huldah's proclamation of judgment, Josiah earnestly tried to turn the people back to God. He gathered the people to hear the reading of Scripture, led them to make a covenant to obey God, and cleansed the land of idolatry.

JOSIAH'S PASSOVER OBSERVANCE

35 Josiah observed the LORD's Passover† and slaughtered the Passover lambs on the fourteenth day of the first month.† 2 He appointed the priests to their responsibilities and encouraged them to serve in the LORD's temple.† 3 He said to the Levites who taught all Israel† the holy things of the LORD, "Put the holy ark in the temple built by Solomon son of David king of Israel. Since you do not have to carry it on your shoulders,† now serve the LORD your God and his people Israel.
4 "Organize your ancestral families† by your divisions† according to the written instruction of King David of Israel and that of his son Solomon.† 5 Serve in the holy place by the groupings of the ancestral families† for your brothers, the lay people,† and according to the division of the Levites by family.† 6 Slaughter the Passover lambs,† consecrate yourselves,† and make preparations for your brothers to carry out the word of the LORD through Moses."
7 Then Josiah donated thirty thousand sheep, lambs, and young goats, plus three thousand cattle from his own possessions, for the Passover sacrifices for all the lay people who were present.
8 His officials also donated willingly for the people, the priests, and the Levites.
Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, chief officials of God's temple, gave twenty-six hundred Passover sacrifices and three hundred cattle for the priests. 9 Conaniah† and his brothers Shemaiah and Nethanel, and Hashabiah, Jeiel, and Jozabad, officers of the Levites, donated five thousand Passover sacrifices for the Levites, plus five hundred cattle.
10 So the service was established; the priests stood at their posts and the Levites in their divisions according to the king's command.† 11 Then they slaughtered the Passover lambs, and while the Levites were skinning the animals,† the priests splattered the blood† they had been given.† 12 They removed the burnt offerings so that they might be given to the groupings of the ancestral families† of the lay people to offer to the LORD, according to what is written in the book of Moses; they did the same with the cattle. 13 They roasted the Passover lambs with fire according to regulation.† They boiled the holy sacrifices in pots, kettles, and bowls; and they quickly brought them to the lay people.

14 Afterward, they made preparations for themselves and for the priests, since the priests, the descendants of Aaron, were busy offering up burnt offerings and fat until night. So the Levites made preparations for themselves and for the priests, the descendants of Aaron.
15 The singers, the descendants of Asaph, were at their stations according to the command of David, Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun the king's seer.† Also, the gatekeepers were at each temple gate.† None of them left their tasks because their Levite brothers had made preparations for them.
16 So all the service of the LORD was established that day for observing the Passover and for offering burnt offerings on the altar of the LORD, according to the command of King Josiah. 17 The Israelites who were present in Judah also observed the Passover at that time and the Festival of Unleavened Bread for seven days.† 18 No Passover had been observed† like it in Israel since the days of the prophet Samuel. None of the kings of Israel ever observed a Passover like the one that Josiah observed with the priests, the Levites, all Judah, the Israelites who were present in Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 19 In the eighteenth year of Josiah's reign, this Passover was observed.

JOSIAH'S LAST DEEDS AND DEATH

20 After all this† that Josiah had prepared for the temple, King Neco of Egypt† marched up to fight at Carchemish† by the Euphrates, and Josiah went out to confront him. 21 But Neco sent messengers to him, saying, "What is the issue between you and me, king of Judah?† I have not come against you today† but I am fighting another dynasty.† God told me to hurry. Stop opposing God who is with me; don't make him destroy you! " 22 But Josiah did not turn away from him; instead, in order to fight with him he disguised himself.†† He did not listen to Neco's words from the mouth of God, but went to the Valley of Megiddo† to fight. 23 The archers shot King Josiah, and he said to his servants, "Take me away, for I am severely wounded! "† 24 So his servants took him out of the war chariot, carried him in his second chariot, and brought him to Jerusalem. Then he died, and they buried him in the tomb of his fathers. All Judah and Jerusalem mourned† for Josiah. 25 Jeremiah chanted a dirge† over Josiah, and all the male and female singers still speak of Josiah in their dirges today. They established them as a statute for Israel, and indeed they are written in the Dirges.

26 The rest of the events† of Josiah's reign, along with his deeds of faithful love according to what is written in the law of the LORD, 27 and his words, from beginning to end, are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah.

35:1-14 For a second time, a good king of Judah led the nation in celebrating the Passover. Hezekiah had done the same in 2 Chronicles 30. The biblical author's inclusion of these two Passover celebrations toward the end of Chronicles serves as a reminder of God's deliverance of Israel from Egypt and likewise anticipates a future work of salvation (see the note on 36:22-23).

35:18 This Passover during Josiah's reign was even greater than the already notable one under Hezekiah (see the note on 30:23-26).

35:20-24 Despite the many good things Josiah had done, his life ended through a foolish decision. He unnecessarily got involved in the affairs of Neco king of Egypt, in spite of that king's warnings which came from the mouth of God (v. 22). In the battle, Josiah was shot by an arrow and died soon after.

JUDAH'S KING JEHOAHAZ

36 Then† the common people† took Jehoahaz son of Josiah and made him king in Jerusalem in place of his father.

2 Jehoahaz† was twenty-three years old when he became king, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. 3 The king of Egypt deposed him in Jerusalem and fined the land seventy-five hundred pounds† of silver and seventy-five pounds† of gold.

JUDAH'S KING JEHOIAKIM

4 Then King Neco of Egypt made Jehoahaz's brother Eliakim king over Judah and Jerusalem and changed Eliakim's name to Jehoiakim. But Neco took his brother Jehoahaz and brought him to Egypt.†

5 Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God.† 6 Now King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon attacked him† and bound him in bronze† shackles to take him to Babylon.† 7 Also Nebuchadnezzar took some of the articles of the LORD's temple to Babylon and put them in his temple in Babylon.†
8 The rest of the deeds of Jehoiakim,† the detestable actions he committed, and what was found against him, are written in the Book of Israel's Kings. His son Jehoiachin became king in his place.

JUDAH'S KING JEHOIACHIN

9 Jehoiachin was eighteen† years old† when he became king, and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. 10 In the spring†† Nebuchadnezzar sent for him and brought him to Babylon along with the valuable articles of the LORD's temple. Then he made Jehoiachin's brother Zedekiah king over Judah and Jerusalem.†

JUDAH'S KING ZEDEKIAH

11 Zedekiah was twenty-one years old† when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. 12 He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God and did not humble himself† before the prophet Jeremiah at the LORD's command.† 13 He also rebelled against† King Nebuchadnezzar who had made him swear allegiance by God. He became obstinate†† and hardened his heart against returning to the LORD, the God of Israel. 14 All the leaders of the priests and the people multiplied their unfaithful deeds, imitating all the detestable practices of the nations, and they defiled the LORD's temple that he had consecrated in Jerusalem.

THE DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM

15 But the LORD, the God of their ancestors sent word against them by the hand of his messengers, sending them time and time again,† for he had compassion on his people and on his dwelling place. 16 But they kept ridiculing God's messengers,† despising his words,† and scoffing at his prophets, until the LORD's wrath was so stirred up against his people that there was no remedy.† 17 So he brought up against them the king of the Chaldeans,† who killed their fit young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary. He had no pity on young men or young women, elderly or aged; he handed them all over to him. 18 He took everything to Babylon — all the articles of God's temple, large and small, the treasures of the LORD's temple, and the treasures of the king and his officials.

19 Then the Chaldeans burned God's temple.† They tore down Jerusalem's wall, burned all its palaces, and destroyed all its valuable articles.
20 He deported those who escaped from the sword to Babylon, and they became servants to him and his sons until the rise of the Persian† kingdom.† 21 This fulfilled the word of the LORD through Jeremiah,† and the land enjoyed its Sabbath rest all the days of the desolation† until seventy years were fulfilled.

THE DECREE OF CYRUS

22 In the first year of King Cyrus of Persia,† in order to fulfill the word of the LORD spoken through† Jeremiah,† the LORD roused the spirit of King Cyrus† of Persia to issue a proclamation throughout his entire kingdom and also to put it in writing:
23 This is what King Cyrus of Persia says: The LORD, the God of the heavens, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth and has appointed me to build him a temple at Jerusalem in Judah. Any of his people among you may go up, and may the LORD his God be with him.

36:6-7 Judah had already been troubled by Egypt (vv. 2-4), and now the even mightier Babylon came to afflict them. Jehoiakim was attacked by Nebuchadnezzar and taken as a prison to Babylon, along with some of the utensils of the temple. A similar thing would happen with his son, Jehoiachin (v. 10).

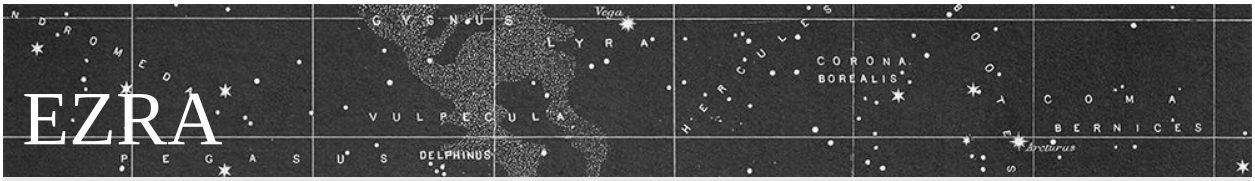
36:11 Zedekiah was the last king of Judah. He rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar (v. 13) and would experience the fall of the kingdom and the utter destruction of the temple, as well as the exile of the people (vv. 17-20).

36:14-16 Judah was guilty of having defiled the LORD's temple that he had consecrated. The Lord had repeatedly sent them prophets to declare his word because he had compassion on his people and on his dwelling place. Nevertheless, they ridiculed his messengers so that the wrath of God could not be avoided (see the notes on 15:1-7 and 20:20-23).

36:20-21 As mentioned earlier in Chronicles (see the note on 1Ch 9:1-2), Judah was exiled to Babylon.

This fulfilled the words of the prophet Jeremiah that the land would enjoy its Sabbath rest (see Jr 25:1-14).

36:22-23 Just as Jeremiah's prophecy of judgment and exile came true (see previous note), so his promise of restoration after exile began to come true through the decree of Cyrus, who permitted anyone among God's people to return to Jerusalem to build a temple for the Lord (see "A Biblical View of History," p. 525). In light of the importance of the temple in Chronicles and its association with the line of David (see the notes on vv. 14-16 and 1Ch 1:1), these concluding lines give strong hope for a new work of God involving a son of David, the building of a temple, and a return from exile.



EZRA

INTRODUCTION

The books of Ezra and Nehemiah bear the names of the key person in each of the books. Until the third century AD, though, the books of Ezra and Nehemiah were regarded as a single book. Each contains material found in the other, and they complete each other. The separation of the book in the Christian community took place through the influence of the Vulgate, the Latin translation prepared by Jerome who, following Origen before him, separated Ezra-Nehemiah into two distinct books. In the Jewish community, Ezra and Nehemiah were not separated into two distinct books until the fifteenth-century printing of the Hebrew Bible. In the Hebrew Bible, Ezra-Nehemiah is part of the third division of the canon, called the Writings (Hb ketuvim).

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

AUTHOR: Ezra and Nehemiah are anonymous. Ancient Jewish sources usually credit Ezra as the author of Ezra-Nehemiah. More likely Ezra-Nehemiah was written by the "Chronicler," the person (or persons) responsible for 1 and 2 Chronicles. Not only is Ezra-Nehemiah linked to Chronicles at its introduction (Ezr 1:1-2 = 2Ch 36:22-23), it also shares many similarities in language, terminology, themes, and perspective.

BACKGROUND: It is probably safe to assume that Ezra-Nehemiah was written soon after the conclusion of Nehemiah's ministry. Most likely the book was written no later than 400 BC.

In Ezra-Nehemiah it is clear that Ezra came to Jerusalem first, probably in 458 BC, and that Nehemiah followed him thirteen years later, probably in 445 BC. Nehemiah made no mention of Ezra, his ministry, or his reforms. Ezra and Nehemiah appear together in only two texts (Neh 8:9; 12:36). The two events in which Ezra and Nehemiah were together were significant. In Nehemiah 8, the context is the reading of the law to the people, while in Nehemiah 12 the two joyous processions walking around the city walls in the dedication ceremony include Ezra (Neh 12:36) and Nehemiah (Neh 12:38).

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

The events which occurred in Ezra and Nehemiah, the rebuilt the temple, the stabilizing of Jerusalem, and the Jewish community that developed, all played key roles in the life and ministry of Jesus recorded in the Gospels. The rebuilt temple may have paled in comparison to the temple that Solomon built, but it would serve the Jews for centuries until Christ removed the need for a physical temple.

STRUCTURE

Ezra-Nehemiah was written in two related but distinct languages—Hebrew and Aramaic. The Hebrew sections generally reflect the style of the postexilic era with some evidence of the impact of Aramaic on the language. Aramaic, a Semitic language similar to Hebrew, occurs in two sections in the book of Ezra (4:8–6:18; 7:12-26). During the Persian period (ca. 540 to 330 BC), Aramaic was the official language of diplomacy and commerce.

Ezra-Nehemiah is similar to Samuel and Kings, and especially Chronicles, in that many sources were utilized in its composition. These include two major types of sources. Much of Ezra-Nehemiah consists of material from the Ezra Memoir and the Nehemiah Memoir. The Ezra Memoir, usually written in the first person, includes Ezra 7–10, along with Nehemiah 8 and probably chapter 9 as well; embedded in this memoir are lists and records from other sources used by Ezra. The composition of the Nehemiah Memoir is regarded as including Nehemiah 1–7 as well as 11–13. But here also Nehemiah incorporated lists and records in his memoir. Ezra-Nehemiah also contains many lists, genealogies, inventories, letters, and census records throughout the book. For a community attempting to reestablish itself after the disaster of 586 BC and the subsequent exile to Babylon, this material was crucial in reordering their life as a community.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

Because God is righteous, he acts on behalf of his people. This includes working through pagan kings (who issue decrees) and godly teachers (who teach his Word to his people). Further, as the last two chapters show, God may require his people to forsake family ties for the sake of following his will.

S

As with 1 Chronicles, Ezra has many lists of names. Although such lists may seem tedious today, they show the importance of each individual in God's purposes. If the author made the effort to preserve all these names and numbers, then how much more does God care about individuals! This perspective is strengthened by observing that the work of restoring worship (altar and temple) was a community task. The work accomplished for God was done by people working together more than by a great leader.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

The people who returned from exile were cured of the idolatry that had taken their ancestors into captivity. Ezra revives an emphasis found in Mosaic law: without the shedding of blood, there is no forgiveness (Lv 17:11). Thus the first concern of the returning Israelites was to reinstate an altar on which to offer the appointed sacrifices (Ezr 3:1-6). Only secondarily were they concerned with the temple (6:13-18). As throughout the OT era, personal trust in God is expressed through participation in the right sacrifices and through obeying God's law.

THE DECREE OF CYRUS

1 In † the first year of King Cyrus of Persia, in order to fulfill the word of the LORD spoken through Jeremiah, † the LORD roused the spirit † of King Cyrus to issue a proclamation throughout his entire kingdom and to put it in writing:
2 This is what King Cyrus of Persia says: “The LORD, the God of the heavens, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth and has appointed me to build him a house at Jerusalem in Judah. † 3 Any of his people among you, may his God be with him, and may he go to Jerusalem in Judah and build the house of the LORD, the God of Israel, † the God who is in Jerusalem. 4 Let every survivor, † wherever he resides, be assisted by the men of that region with silver, gold, goods, and livestock, along with a freewill offering for the house of God in Jerusalem.”

RETURN FROM EXILE

5 So the family heads of Judah and Benjamin, along with the priests and Levites — everyone whose spirit God had roused † — prepared to go up and rebuild the LORD’s house in Jerusalem. 6 All their neighbors supported them † † with silver articles, gold, goods, livestock, and valuables, in addition to all that was given as a freewill offering. 7 King Cyrus also brought out the articles of the LORD’s house that Nebuchadnezzar had taken from Jerusalem and had placed in the house of his gods. † 8 King Cyrus of Persia had them brought out under the supervision of Mithredath the treasurer, who counted them out to Sheshbazzar the prince of Judah. † 9 This was the inventory:

30 gold basins, 1,000 silver basins,
29 silver knives, 10 30 gold bowls,
410 various † silver bowls, and 1,000 other articles.

11 The gold and silver articles totaled 5,400. Sheshbazzar brought all of them when the exiles went up from Babylon to Jerusalem.

1:1-4 The book of Ezra begins with the decree of King Cyrus of Persia, who allowed exiled Israelites within his kingdom to return to their homeland to build the temple at Jerusalem. This act of a Gentile king came about because God roused the spirit of Cyrus in order to fulfill his own word spoken through Jeremiah (v. 1). Chronicles also ends with a shortened form of this decree (see 2Ch 36:22-23). Though some have read Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah as a more or less continuous story because of their chronological relationship, others have treated Chronicles separately because it has some of its own unique concerns and emphases (see the notes on Chronicles). On the other hand, Ezra and Nehemiah have much in common and have even been treated as one book by some since ancient times (see the note on Neh 1:1).

1:5-6 Just as God had moved Cyrus to issue his decree (vv. 1-4), he also moved the family heads of Judah and Benjamin, along with the priests and Levites to return to Jerusalem to build the temple (see also 4:1). In accordance with the decree (v. 4), they were assisted by their neighbors. This is reminiscent of their ancestors' exodus from Egypt (see Ex 12:35-36).

A BIBLICAL VIEW OF HISTORY

Christians believe that the God of the Bible is the Lord of history. The history of everything—from an individual human life to the vast universe—is under God's sovereign control. By using the word history, I certainly mean the great stories of wars, kings, and political affairs, but I also mean the quieter narratives of forgotten people, those who do not appear in history books. Many are forgotten to human history, but they appear in God's view of it no matter how humble they are. Christ tells us that God does not even forget sparrows, and we are worth much more than they. Even the hairs of our heads are counted by him (Lk 12:6-7). God has never overlooked anything or anyone.

Nevertheless, God does not directly cause everything to happen in history. Most notably, he does not cause evil, for he is not the author of sin. On the other hand, nothing happens without his permission or consent, not even a sparrow's death (Mt 10:29). Critics have argued that this distinction between God allowing evil to occur but not actually causing it is a hollow one. Christians, however, affirm that God is absolutely holy, that he directs history toward the ultimate triumph of good, and that he has permitted evil and suffering to enter the world by the agency of fallen people and the devil.

HISTORY AND GOD'S PURPOSE

As opposed to secular or materialistic philosophies that see no overarching point to history or human existence, Christians have a linear, purposeful view of the past, present, and future. As Christian historian David Bebbington has written in his book Patterns in History, Christians embrace three core convictions about history: "that God intervenes in it; that he guides it in a straight line; and that he will bring it to the conclusion that he has planned" (p. 43). These ideas are central to the Christian belief in God's providence. God created the world with purpose—primarily to glorify himself—and since the fall of humanity in the garden of Eden, God has also been working out a plan of redemption, also for his own glory. As The Westminster Confession of Faith puts it, "God the great Creator of all things doth uphold, direct, dispose, and govern all creatures, actions, and things, from the greatest even to the least, by his most wise and holy providence."

God even plays a sustaining role in what might, at first glance, seem to be the "natural" things of history and everyday life. Hebrews 1:2-3 tells us that God the Father made the universe through the Son, who sustains "all things by his powerful word." Through Christ "all things hold together" (Col 1:17). God is, in a sense, always intervening to sustain and preserve his creatures and all creation. He has not even relinquished control of forces such as gravity or time.

But God also intervenes in special ways and particular places and times to accomplish his purposes. One could cite any number of examples. For instance, God raised up King Cyrus of Persia in order to bring about the return of the Jewish exiles to Jerusalem. Ezra 1:1 and 2 Chronicles 36:22 both speak of how God "roused the spirit of King Cyrus" to decree the return of the exiles, in spite of the fact that Cyrus probably worshiped pagan gods. In Isaiah 44:28, God calls Cyrus his "shepherd" who would fulfill all God's "pleasure" with regard to his chosen people, the Jews.

The fact of God's sovereignty over history is not just a dry philosophical proposition, but it lies at the heart of our personal trust in God's loving control over our lives. We all experience disappointments, and sometimes tragedies, and in those times many are tempted to wonder where God is. What is he doing? Does he not care? It proves a great comfort to know that nothing takes God by surprise; moreover, "all things work together for the good of those who love God, who are called according to his purpose" (Rm 8:28). We may not understand or like what is happening in the moment, but it is reassuring to know that God remains sovereign over everything—not only in our lives, but throughout the entire universe.

HISTORY AND HUMILITY

A great challenge for Christians regarding history is our limited ability to discern God's purposes. Our limitations come from living in a time-bound state and having minds only partially redeemed from the effects of the fall of humankind. God, conversely, is not bound by time or space; he is infinitely powerful and holy. Humans simply do not share God's level of understanding, as he says in Isaiah 55:8: "My thoughts are not your thoughts, and your ways are not my ways." Joseph had no idea when he was sold into slavery in Genesis 37 that it would result in his elevation to authority in Pharaoh's court as well as in the deliverance of his family. Yet in Genesis 50:20, Joseph makes a statement to his brothers that reveals a humble and wonderful shift in perspective: "You planned evil against me; God planned it for good to bring about the present result."

Because of our limited understanding of God's specific purposes, we should be humble about asserting that we know exactly what God is doing in history, except in matters such as those revealed in Scripture. In some cases, we may safely assert that God was moving in a certain event, or in a person's life, including our own. Seminal events in church history, such as the Reformation of the sixteenth century, or the Great Awakening of the eighteenth century, have obvious marks of God's providence, as do heroic Christian lives such those of Lottie Moon, the missionary to nineteenth-century China, or the great revival preacher Billy Graham. Of course, signs of God's providential role never mean that the event or person in question is sinless or perfect, unless the person in view is Christ himself.

Understanding God's role in other historical episodes, such as the creation of the United States, requires more reflection and caution. Many American Christians eagerly assert that America's founding was a special work of God's providence. Indeed, a number of the Founding Fathers saw it that way as well. We must certainly agree that America's independence from Britain, just as with any similar political transformation, happened by God's sovereign permission. But we must also remember that God's primary purpose in history is the building of his kingdom, not the building of a nation (outside of biblical Israel).

Similarly, we must be cautious about asserting that we understand God's purposes in allowing natural disasters or the acts of sinful people. In the wake of events such as the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, or Hurricane Katrina's devastation of New Orleans in 2005, certain Christians said these events were products of God's wrath. But other Christians contended that we are not given such direct insight into the workings of God's providence, absent the divine knowledge reserved for the Bible's prophetic authors. If New Orleans, for instance, was subject to God's judgment, then why not other American cities? And what of the godly people and churches that were devastated by the storm and floods? Does every hurricane represent God's judgment? Or just particularly devastating ones? The more we think about such questions, the harder it is for us, with our restricted vision, to know just what to make of such events from the divine perspective.

Though God does not permit us to understand the purpose for everything that happens in history, Scripture does certainly give assurance that God controls it all. It also tells us about God's most important purposes in history, especially about the redemption of believers in Jesus Christ and the building of the kingdom of God to his glory.

SACRIFICE RESTORED

3 When the seventh month arrived, † and the Israelites were in their towns, the people gathered as one in Jerusalem. † 2 Jeshua son of Jozadak and his brothers the priests along with Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel † and his brothers began to build the altar of Israel's God in order to offer burnt offerings on it, as it is written in the law of Moses, the man of God. †
3 They set up the altar on its foundation and offered burnt offerings for the morning and evening on it to the LORD even though they feared the surrounding peoples. † 4 They celebrated the Festival of Shelters as prescribed, and offered burnt offerings each day, based on the number specified by ordinance for each festival day. † 5 After that, they offered the regular burnt offering and the offerings for the beginning of each month † † and for all the LORD's appointed holy occasions, as well as the freewill offerings brought to † the LORD.
6 On the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt offerings to the LORD, † even though the foundation of the LORD's temple had not yet been laid.
7 They gave money to the stonecutters and artisans, and gave food, drink, and oil to the people of Sidon and Tyre, so they would bring cedar wood from Lebanon to Joppa by sea, † according to the authorization given them by King Cyrus of Persia. †

REBUILDING THE TEMPLE

8 In the second month of the second year after they arrived at God's house in Jerusalem, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, Jeshua son of Jozadak, † and the rest of their brothers, including the priests, the Levites, and all who had returned to Jerusalem from the captivity, began to build. They appointed the Levites who were twenty years old or more to supervise the work on the LORD's house. †
9 Jeshua with his sons and brothers, Kadmiel with his sons, and the sons of Judah † and of Henadad, with their sons and brothers, the Levites, † joined together to supervise those working on the house of God.

TEMPLE FOUNDATION COMPLETED

10 When the builders had laid the foundation of the LORD's temple, the priests, dressed in their robes and holding trumpets, and the Levites descended from Asaph, † holding cymbals, took their positions to praise the LORD, as King David of Israel had instructed. † 11 They sang with praise and thanksgiving to the LORD: "For he is good; his faithful love to Israel endures forever." † Then all the people gave a great shout of praise to the LORD because the foundation of the LORD's house had been laid. †

12 But many of the older priests, Levites, and family heads, who had seen the first temple, wept loudly when they saw the foundation of this temple, † but many others shouted joyfully. 13 The people could not distinguish the sound of the joyful shouting from that of the † weeping, † because the people were shouting so loudly. 3:1-5 Two important leaders for this community of returnees were Jeshua son of Jozadak and Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel (see also v. 8; 2:2; 4:2-3; 5:3). Jeshua (also called Joshua) was the high priest, and Zerubbabel was the governor and a descendant of David (see Hg 1:1). They led the effort to rebuild the temple by starting with the altar, where they began to offer sacrifices to God. The surrounding peoples would be a source of trouble for this Israelite community (see 4:1-16).

3:8-9 Several months after the altar was built and the sacrifices reinstituted (v. 1), the Israelites began to build the rest of the temple. They had also made arrangements to bring stonecutters, artisans, and cedar wood (v. 7).

3:10-13 The laying of the temple foundation was a momentous occasion and was accompanied by music and celebration (see "A Biblical View of Music," p. 727). Nevertheless, this joyous response was mixed with a sorrowful one, which was expressed by the older people who had seen Solomon's temple (v. 12). While laying the foundation was a positive development, it drew attention to the fact that the new structure would pale in comparison to Solomon's glorious temple (see also Hg 2:3). The books of Ezra and Nehemiah have multiple instances of such tensions between positive developments and signs that not all was well (see also Ezr 9–10; Neh 5:1-13; 9:36-37; 13:4-28).

OPPOSITION TO REBUILDING THE TEMPLE

4 When the enemies of Judah and Benjamin † heard that the returned exiles † † were building a temple for the LORD, the God of Israel, 2 they approached Zerubbabel and the family heads and said to them, “Let us build with you, for we also worship your God and have been sacrificing to him † since the time King Esar-haddon of Assyria brought us here.” †

3 But Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the other heads of Israel’s families answered them, “You may have no part with us in building a house for our God, † since we alone will build it for the LORD, the God of Israel, as King Cyrus, the king of Persia has commanded us.” † 4 Then the people who were already in the land † discouraged † the people of Judah and made them afraid † to build. 5 They also bribed officials to act against them to frustrate their plans † throughout the reign of King Cyrus of Persia and until the reign of King Darius of Persia. †

OPPOSITION TO REBUILDING THE CITY

6 At the beginning of the reign of Ahasuerus, † the people who were already in the land † wrote an accusation against the residents of Judah and Jerusalem.
7 During the time of King Artaxerxes of Persia, † Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeel and the rest of his colleagues wrote to King Artaxerxes. The letter was written in Aramaic † and translated. †

8 Rehum the chief deputy and Shimshai the scribe † wrote a letter to King Artaxerxes concerning Jerusalem as follows:

9 From Rehum † the chief deputy, Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their colleagues — the judges and magistrates † from Tripolis, Persia, Erech, Babylon, Susa † (that is, the people of Elam), † 10 and the rest of the peoples whom the great and illustrious Ashurbanipal † deported and settled in the cities of Samaria † and the region west of the Euphrates River. †
11 This is the text of the letter they sent to him:
To King Artaxerxes from your servants, the men from the region west of the Euphrates River: 12 Let it be known to the king that the Jews who came from you have returned to us at Jerusalem. They are rebuilding that rebellious and evil city, finishing its walls, and repairing its foundations. 13 Let it now be known to the king that if that city is rebuilt and its walls are finished, † they will not pay tribute, duty, or land tax, † and the royal revenue † will suffer. 14 Since we have taken an oath of loyalty to the king, † and it is not right for us to witness his dishonor, we have sent to inform the king 15 that a search should be made in your fathers' record books. † In these record books you will discover and verify that the city is a rebellious city, harmful to kings and provinces. There have been revolts in it since ancient times. That is why this city was destroyed. 16 We advise the king that if this city is rebuilt and its walls are finished, you will not have any possession west of the Euphrates.

ARTAXERXES'S REPLY

17 The king sent a reply to his chief deputy Rehum, Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their colleagues living in Samaria and elsewhere in the region west of the Euphrates River:
Greetings.

18 The letter you sent us has been translated and read † † in my presence. 19 I issued a decree and a search was conducted. It was discovered that this city has had uprisings against kings since ancient times, and there have been rebellions and revolts in it. 20 Powerful kings have also ruled over Jerusalem and exercised authority over the whole region west of the Euphrates River, and tribute, duty, and land tax were paid to them. 21 Therefore, issue an order for these men to stop, so that this city will not be rebuilt until a further decree has been pronounced by me. † 22 See that you not neglect this matter. Otherwise, the damage will increase and the royal interests † will suffer.

23 As soon as the text of King Artaxerxes's letter was read to Rehum, Shimshai the scribe, and their colleagues, † they immediately went to the Jews in Jerusalem and forcibly stopped them.

4:1-5 Potential opposition to the building of the temple from neighbors had been hinted at earlier (3:3) and manifested after their help was refused. Despite appearances, these neighbors were enemies of Judah and Benjamin. They attempted to discourage the builders and even bribed officials in order to frustrate their plans (vv. 4-5; see also the note on Neh 2:10). One example was the accusatory letter sent to Artaxerxes, alleging that Jerusalem had a history of rebellion and its reconstruction would be harmful to the kingdom (vv. 6-16).

4:21-24 As a result of the letter (vv. 11-16), Artaxerxes investigated further and found that Jerusalem had been both powerful and troublesome in the past (vv. 19-20). He then ordered the builders to stop.

5 But when the prophets Haggai and Zechariah son of Iddo † prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel who was over them, 2 Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak † began to rebuild God's house in Jerusalem. The prophets of God † were with them, helping them.
3 At that time Tattenai the governor of the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues † came to the Jews and asked, "Who gave you the order to rebuild this temple and finish this structure?" † † 4 They also asked them, "What are the names of the workers † who are constructing this building?" 5 But God was watching † over † the Jewish elders. These men wouldn't stop them until a report was sent to Darius, so that they could receive written instructions about this matter.

THE LETTER TO DARIUS

6 This is the text of the letter that Tattenai the governor of the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues, the officials in the region, sent to King Darius. 7 They sent him a report, written as follows:
To King Darius:
All greetings.
8 Let it be known to the king that we went to the house of the great God in the province of Judah. It is being built with cut † stones, and its beams are being set in the walls. This work is being done diligently and succeeding through the people's efforts. † 9 So we questioned the elders and asked, "Who gave you the order to rebuild this temple and finish this structure?" 10 We also asked them for their names, so that we could write down the names of their leaders for your information.

11 This is the reply they gave us: We are the servants of the God of the heavens and earth, and we are rebuilding the temple that was built many years ago, which a great king of Israel built and finished. † 12 But since our fathers angered the God of the heavens, he handed them over to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this temple and deported the people to Babylon. † 13 However, in the first year of King Cyrus of Babylon, he issued a decree to rebuild the house of God. † 14 He also took from the temple in Babylon the gold and silver articles of God's house that Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple in Jerusalem and carried them to the temple in Babylon. † He released them from the temple in Babylon to a man named Sheshbazzar, the governor by the appointment of King Cyrus. † 15 Cyrus told him, "Take these articles, put them in the temple in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be rebuilt on its original site." † 16 Then this same Sheshbazzar came and laid the foundation of God's house in Jerusalem. † It has been under construction from that time until now, † but it has not been completed.
17 So if it pleases the king, let a search of the royal archives † in Babylon be conducted to see if it is true that a decree was issued by King Cyrus to rebuild the house of God in Jerusalem. † Let the king's decision regarding this matter be sent to us. †

5:1-2 The construction of the temple had been stopped (see previous note), but it restarted through the prophetic ministry of Haggai and Zechariah. Zerubbabel the governor and Jeshua the high priest led the renewed effort (see the note on 3:1-5).

5:3-5 Naturally, the restarting of the temple project caught the attention of Tattenai the governor of the region. Nevertheless, God was watching over the Jewish elders, and the builders were allowed to continue until an inquiry had been made with Darius the king.

5:13-16 The Israelites appealed to Cyrus' decree (1:1-4) to explain why they had restarted their work on the temple. They reminded Tattenai and his associates that Cyrus had even brought out the temple articles that had been taken by Nebuchadnezzar to be put back in the rebuilt temple in Jerusalem.

DARIUS'S SEARCH

6 King Darius gave the order, and they searched † in the library of Babylon in the archives. † † 2 But it was in the fortress of Ecbatana in the province of Media † that a scroll was found with this record written on it:

3 In the first year of King Cyrus, he issued a decree † concerning the house of God in Jerusalem: Let the house be rebuilt as a place for offering sacrifices, and let its original foundations be retained. † Its height is to be ninety feet † and its width ninety feet, † 4 with three layers of cut † stones and one of timber. † The cost is to be paid from the royal treasury. † † 5 The gold and silver articles of God's house that Nebuchadnezzar took from the temple in Jerusalem and carried to Babylon must also be returned. They are to be brought to the temple in Jerusalem where they belong † and put into the house of God. †

DARIUS'S DECREE

6 Therefore, you must stay away from that place, Tattenai governor of the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and your † colleagues, the officials in the region. † 7 Leave the construction of the house of God alone. Let the governor † and elders of the Jews rebuild this house of God on its original site.

8 I hereby issue a decree concerning what you are to do, so that the elders of the Jews can rebuild the house of God: The cost is to be paid in full to these men out of the royal revenues † from the taxes of the region west of the Euphrates River, so that the work will not stop. 9 Whatever is needed — young bulls, rams, and lambs for burnt offerings to the God of the heavens, or wheat, salt, wine, and oil, as requested by the priests in Jerusalem — let it be given to them every day without fail, † 10 so that they can offer sacrifices of pleasing aroma to the God of the heavens and pray for the life of the king and his sons. †

11 I also issue a decree concerning any man who interferes with this directive: Let a beam be torn from his house and raised up; he will be impaled on it, and his house will be made into a garbage dump because of this offense. † 12 May the God who caused his name to dwell there † overthrow any king or people who dares † to harm or interfere with this house of God in Jerusalem. I, Darius, have issued the decree. Let it be carried out diligently.

13 Then Tattenai governor of the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues † diligently carried out what King Darius had decreed. 14 So the Jewish elders continued successfully with the building under the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah son of Iddo. † They finished the building according to the command of the God of Israel and the decrees of Cyrus, † Darius, and King Artaxerxes † of Persia. 15 This house was completed on the third day of the month of Adar † in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius.

TEMPLE DEDICATION AND THE PASSOVER

16 Then the Israelites, including the priests, the Levites, and the rest of the exiles, celebrated the dedication of the house of God with joy. 17 For the dedication of God's house they offered one hundred bulls, two hundred rams, and four hundred lambs, as well as twelve male goats † as a sin offering for all Israel — one for each Israelite tribe. 18 They also appointed the priests by their divisions and the Levites by their groups to the service of God in Jerusalem, according to what is written in the book of Moses. †
19 The exiles † observed the Passover † on the fourteenth day of the first month. 20 All of the priests and Levites were ceremonially clean, because they had purified themselves. They killed the Passover lamb for themselves, their priestly brothers, and all the exiles. † 21 The Israelites who had returned from exile † ate it, together with all who had separated themselves from the uncleanness of the Gentiles of the land † † in order to worship the LORD, the God of Israel. 22 They observed the Festival of Unleavened Bread for seven days † with joy, because the LORD had made them joyful, having changed the Assyrian king's attitude toward them, so that he supported them † in the work on the house of the God of Israel. †

6:6-12 Darius launched a search for the decree of Cyrus, which was found (5:17–6:5). As a result, he commanded Tattenai and his colleagues to stay away from Jerusalem and not to obstruct the construction project (vv. 6-7). Moreover, the project was to be funded by the taxes of their region and whatever animals were needed were to be supplied to them (vv. 8-10). Anyone who disobeyed these commands would face the severest of punishments (vv. 11-12). The Lord was with his people in this effort and was watching over them so that the temple was completed (vv. 14-15).

6:16-17 The dedication of the rebuilt temple was done with joy. Although many of those who had returned were from the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, and Levi (see 1:5; 3:8-9; 4:1), the offering of twelve male goats showed their concern for all twelve tribes. Other passages show this concern for the unity of the nation as well (see also 2:2,70; 3:1; 6:21; 8:35). The prophets had predicted the eventual regathering of the whole nation (see Ezk 37:15-24; Hs 1:11).

6:22 The Lord's presence with the Israelites who had returned is emphasized here. Previous passages had referred to his involvement with them (1:1; 5:1,5; see also 7:6,9,27-28; 8:18,21-23,31).

EZRA'S ARRIVAL

7 After these events, during the reign of King Artaxerxes † of Persia, Ezra —

Hilkiah's † son, 2 Shallum's son,
Zadok's † son, Ahitub's son,
3 Amariah's son, Azariah's son,

Uzzi's son, Bukki's son,
5 Abishua's son, Phinehas's son,
Eleazar's son, the chief priest Aaron's son †

6 — came up from Babylon. He was a scribe skilled in the law of Moses, † which the LORD, the God of Israel, had given. The king had granted him everything he requested † because the hand of the LORD his God was on him. †
7 Some of the Israelites, priests, Levites, singers, gatekeepers, and temple servants † accompanied him to Jerusalem in the seventh year of King Artaxerxes.

8 Ezra † came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, during the seventh year of the king. 9 He began the journey from Babylon on the first day of the first month † and arrived in Jerusalem on the first day of the fifth month † since the gracious hand of his God was on him. † 10 Now Ezra had determined in his heart to study the law of the LORD, obey it, and teach † its statutes and ordinances in Israel.

LETTER FROM ARTAXERXES

11 This is the text of the letter King Artaxerxes gave to Ezra the priest and scribe, an expert in matters of the LORD's commands and statutes for Israel: †
12 Artaxerxes, king of kings, † to Ezra the priest, an expert in the law of the God of the heavens: Greetings.
13 I issue a decree that any of the Israelites in my kingdom, including their priests and Levites, who want to go to Jerusalem, may go with you. † 14 You are sent by the king and his seven counselors † to evaluate Judah and Jerusalem according to the law of your God, which is in your possession. 15 You are also to bring the silver and gold the king and his counselors have willingly given to the God of Israel, † whose dwelling is in Jerusalem, † 16 and all the silver and gold you receive throughout the province of Babylon, together with the freewill offerings given by the people and the priests to the house of their God in Jerusalem. † 17 Then you are to be diligent to buy with this money bulls, rams, and lambs, along with their grain and drink offerings, and offer them on the altar at the house of your God in Jerusalem. † 18 You may do whatever seems best to you and your brothers with the rest of the silver and gold, according to the will of your God. 19 Deliver to the God of Jerusalem all the articles given to you for the service of the house of your God. † 20 You may use the royal treasury † to pay for anything else needed for the house of your God. †
21 I, King Artaxerxes, issue a decree to all the treasurers in the region west of the Euphrates River: †

Whatever Ezra the priest, an expert in the law of the God of the heavens, asks of you must be provided in full, † 22 up to 7,500 pounds † of silver, 500 bushels † of wheat, 550 gallons † of wine, 550 gallons of oil, and salt without limit. † 23 Whatever is commanded by the God of heaven must be done diligently for the house of the God of the heavens, so that wrath will not fall on the realm of the king and his sons. † 24 Be advised that you do not have authority to impose tribute, duty, and land tax on any priests, Levites, singers, doorkeepers, temple servants, or other servants of this house of God.

25 And you, Ezra, according to † God's wisdom that you possess, appoint magistrates and judges to judge all the people in the region west of the Euphrates who know the laws of your God and to teach anyone who does not know them. † 26 Anyone who does not keep the law of your God and the law of the king, let the appropriate judgment be executed against him, whether death, banishment, confiscation of property, or imprisonment. †

27 Blessed be the LORD, the God of our fathers, who has put it into the king's mind † to glorify the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, † 28 and who has shown favor to me before the king, † his counselors, and all his powerful officers. So I took courage because I was strengthened by the hand of the LORD my God, † † and I gathered Israelite leaders to return with me. †

7:1-6 Ezra appears here for the first time in the book that bears his name. His genealogy shows that he was from the priestly line (vv. 1-5). He was also a scribe skilled in the law of Moses, who had come from Babylon and enjoyed the favor of both the Persian king and of God (see also vv. 11-12).

7:10 Having presumably lived in exile without a temple for his whole life (see v. 6), Ezra did not have to fulfill priestly duties related to temple service (see also the note on 1Ch 23:26-32) and instead devoted himself wholeheartedly to study, to obey, and to teach the Scriptures.

7:12-20 This decree was in the same spirit as the earlier decrees of Cyrus (1:1-4) and Darius (6:3-12). Israelites were permitted to go with Ezra back to Jerusalem (v. 13), and the temple restoration was to be well-supported (vv. 15-20). Ezra himself was highly respected as an expert in the law of the God of the heavens who could rightly apply it to the situation in Judah and Jerusalem (v. 14).

7:21-24 Artaxerxes had already mentioned that the "royal treasury" would supply whatever was necessary for the temple and its service (v. 20), and here he specifically ordered all the treasurers in the region west of the Euphrates to ensure this (see also 6:8-9). Like Darius (6:10), Artaxerxes desired God's favor on him and his sons (v. 23). He even commanded that tax not be imposed on the priests, Levites, and others involved with the temple service.

7:25-26 Ezra, the respected priest and biblical scholar, was to appoint leaders in that region and to teach God's laws to anyone who does not know them. Along with Persian law, this law was to be enforced.

7:27-28 Ezra recognized God's work in granting him and the Israelites favor before the Persian king. For other examples of God's blessing on the Israelites of this time, see the note on 6:22.

THOSE RETURNING WITH EZRA

8 These are the family heads and the genealogical records of those who returned with me from Babylon during the reign of King Artaxerxes: †

2 Gershom, from Phinehas's descendants;
Daniel, from Ithamar's descendants;
Hattush, from David's descendants,
3 who was of Shecaniah's descendants; †
Zechariah, from Parosh's † descendants, and 150 men † with him who were registered by genealogy;
4 Eliehoenai son of Zerahiah from Pahath-moab's descendants, †
and 200 men with him;
5 Shecaniah † son of Jahaziel from Zattu's descendants,
and 300 men with him;
6 Ebed son of Jonathan from Adin's descendants, †
and 50 men with him;
7 Jeshaiah son of Athaliah from Elam’s descendants,

and 70 men with him;
8 Zebadiah son of Michael from Shephatiah’s descendants,
and 80 men with him;
9 Obadiah son of Jehiel
from Joab’s descendants,
and 218 men with him;
10 Shelomith † son of Josiphiah from Bani’s descendants,
and 160 men with him;
11 Zechariah son of Bebai from Bebai’s descendants,
and 28 men with him;
12 Johanan son of Hakkatan from Azgad’s descendants,
and 110 men with him;
13 these are the last ones, from Adonikam’s descendants, † and their names are Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah,
and 60 men with them;
14 Uthai and Zaccur † from Bigvai’s descendants,
and 70 men with them.

15 I gathered them at the river † that flows to Ahava, † and we camped there for three days. I searched among the people and priests, but found no Levites † there. 16 Then I summoned the leaders: Eliezer, Ariel, Shemaiah, Elnathan,

Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam, † as well as the teachers Joiarib and Elnathan. 17 I sent them to Iddo, the leader at Casiphia, with a message for † him and his brothers, the temple servants † at Casiphia, that they should bring us ministers for the house of our God. 18 Since the gracious hand of our God was on us, † they brought us Sherebiah † — a man of insight from the descendants of Mahli, a descendant of Levi son of Israel — along with his sons and brothers, 18 men, 19 plus Hashabiah, † along with Jeshaiah, from the descendants of Merari, and his brothers and their sons, 20 men. 20 There were also 220 of the temple servants, † who had been appointed by David and the leaders for the work of the Levites. All were identified by name.

PREPARING TO RETURN

21 I proclaimed a fast † by the Ahava River, † so that we might humble ourselves before our God and ask him for a safe journey for us, our dependents, and all our possessions. 22 I did this because I was ashamed to ask the king for infantry and cavalry to protect us from enemies during the journey, since we had told him, “The hand of our God is gracious to all who seek him, but his fierce anger is against all who abandon him.” † 23 So we fasted and pleaded with our God about this, and he was receptive to our prayer.

24 I selected twelve of the leading priests, along with Sherebiah, † Hashabiah, and ten of their brothers. 25 I weighed out to them the silver, the gold, and the articles — the contribution for the house of our God that the king, his counselors, his leaders, and all the Israelites who were present had offered. 26 I weighed out to them 24 tons † of silver, silver articles weighing 7,500 pounds, † 7,500 pounds of gold, 27 twenty gold bowls worth a thousand gold coins, † and two articles of fine gleaming bronze, as valuable as gold. † 28 Then I said to them, “You are holy to the LORD, and the articles are holy. The silver and gold are a freewill offering † to the LORD God of your fathers.
29 Guard them carefully until you weigh them out in the chambers of the LORD’s house before the leading priests, Levites, and heads of the Israelite families in Jerusalem.” 30 So the priests and Levites took charge of the silver, the gold, and the articles that had been weighed out, to bring them to the house of our God in Jerusalem. †

ARRIVAL IN JERUSALEM

31 We set out from the Ahava River on the twelfth day of the first month to go to Jerusalem. We were strengthened by our God, † † and he kept us from the grasp of the enemy and from ambush along the way. † 32 So we arrived at Jerusalem and rested there for three days. † 33 On the fourth day the silver, the gold, and the articles were weighed out in the house of our God into the care of the priest Meremoth son of Uriah. Eleazar son of Phinehas was with him. The Levites Jozabad † son of Jeshua and Noadiah son of Binnui were also with them. 34 Everything was verified by number and weight, and the total weight was recorded at that time.

35 The exiles who had returned from the captivity † offered burnt offerings to the God of Israel: twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams, and seventy-seven lambs, along with twelve male goats as a sin offering. All this was a burnt offering for the LORD. † 36 They also delivered the king's edicts to the royal satraps and governors of the region west of the Euphrates, † so that they would support the people and the house of God. †

8:17-20 Ezra realized he had "no Levites" in his traveling group (v. 15) and sent to Iddo for some (vv. 16-17). The Lord again demonstrated his favor through the sending of Sherebiah, Hashabiah, and others (vv. 18-20). These two men and those with them would be made responsible for transporting silver, gold, and temple articles to Jerusalem (vv. 24-30).

8:21-23 Though he could have asked the king for military protection for the journey, Ezra did not because he had mentioned his confidence in God's protection over all who seek him. By the Ahava River, Ezra proclaimed a fast so that God would indeed grant such protection. Ezra's faith and his humble fast worked together hand-in-hand, and God graciously granted their request (see also v. 31).

8:35 The sacrifice of twelve bulls for all Israel showed a concern for the unity of all twelve tribes (see also the note on 6:16-17).

ISRAEL'S INTERMARRIAGE

9 After these things had been done, the leaders approached me and said:
"The people of Israel, the priests, and the Levites have not separated themselves † from the surrounding peoples whose detestable practices † are like those of the Canaanites, Hethites, Perizzites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, and Amorites. † 2 Indeed, the Israelite men † have taken some of their daughters as wives for themselves and their sons, so that the holy seed † has become mixed with the surrounding peoples. † The leaders † and officials have taken the lead in this unfaithfulness!" † 3 When I heard this report, I tore my tunic and robe, pulled out some of the hair from my head and beard, and sat down devastated. †

EZRA'S CONFESSION

4 Everyone who trembled at the words of the God of Israel † gathered around me, because of the unfaithfulness of the exiles, † while I sat devastated until the evening offering. † 5 At the evening offering, I got up from my time of humiliation, with my tunic and robe torn. Then I fell on my knees and spread out my hands to the LORD my God. † 6 And I said: †
My God, I am ashamed and embarrassed to lift my face toward you, my God, because our iniquities are higher than our heads and our guilt is as high as the heavens. † 7 Our guilt has been terrible from the days of our fathers until the present. Because of our iniquities we have been handed over, along with our kings and priests, to the surrounding kings, and to the sword, captivity, plundering, and open shame, † as it is today. 8 But now, for a brief moment, grace has come from the LORD our God to preserve a remnant † for us and give us a stake † in his holy place. Even in our slavery, God has given us a little relief and light to our eyes. † 9 Though we are slaves, † our God has not abandoned us in our slavery. He has extended grace to us in the presence of the Persian kings, † giving us relief, so that we can rebuild the house of our God and repair its ruins, † to give us a wall in Judah and Jerusalem.

10 Now, our God, what can we say in light of † this? For we have abandoned the commands 11 you gave through your servants the prophets, saying: “The land you are entering to possess is an impure land. The surrounding peoples have filled it from end to end with their uncleanness by their impurity and detestable practices. † 12 So do not give your daughters to their sons in marriage or take their daughters for your sons. † Never pursue their welfare or prosperity, † so that you will be strong, eat the good things of the land, and leave it as an inheritance to your sons forever.” 13 After all that has happened to us because of our evil deeds and terrible guilt — though you, our God, have punished us less than our iniquities deserve and have allowed us to survive † † — 14 should we break your commands again and intermarry with the peoples who commit these detestable practices? † Wouldn’t you become so angry with us that you would destroy us, leaving neither remnant nor survivor? † 15 LORD God of Israel, you are righteous, for we survive as a remnant † today. Here we are before you with our guilt, though no one can stand in your presence because of this. †

9:6-9 Despite repeated demonstrations of God’s favor (see 8:31 and the note on 6:22), not all was well (see also the note on 3:10-13). Those who had returned, including the priests, Levites, leaders, and officials, had intermarried with the idolatrous surrounding peoples (vv. 1-2; see also the note on Neh 9:1-3). Moses had forbidden this long ago (see the note on Dt 7:1-6), and the sin had repeatedly led to idolatry (see the notes on Jdg 2:20-3:6 and 1Kg 11:1-8)—just as he had warned. The issue had nothing to do with ethnicity, for marriage to foreigners was allowed (see Joseph, Moses, and Boaz). This was an issue of faith: Israel was to be a separate people, committed to fidelity to God’s covenant. Those from other nations were welcome to commit themselves to God and fully join the covenant community (e.g. Rahab, Ruth), but intermarriage without conversion frequently led to apostasy (e.g. Solomon). Ezra was distraught (v. 3), and others “who trembled at the words of the God of Israel” mourned with him over “the unfaithfulness of the exiles” (v. 4). He confessed the Israelites’ guilt before God for their sins (see also vv. 10-15). He also acknowledged that as subjects of Persia they were still slaves, even though they had been allowed to return to their land (v. 9; see also the note on Neh 9:32-37). The Israelites were clearly in need of spiritual transformation, just as they had been throughout their history.

SENDING AWAY FOREIGN WIVES

10 While Ezra prayed and confessed, weeping and falling facedown † before the house of God, an extremely large assembly of Israelite men, women, and children gathered around him. The people also wept bitterly. †
2 Then Shecaniah son of Jehiel, † an Elamite, responded to Ezra: “We have been unfaithful to our God by marrying foreign women from the surrounding peoples, † but there is still hope for Israel in spite of this. 3 Let us therefore make a covenant before our God † to send away all the foreign wives and their children, according to the counsel of my lord and of those who tremble at the command of our God. † Let it be done according to the law. 4 Get up, for this matter is your responsibility, † and we support you. Be strong and take action! ” †
5 Then Ezra got up and made the leading priests, Levites, and all Israel take an oath to do what had been said; so they took the oath. † 6 Ezra then went from the house of God and walked to the chamber of Jehohanan son of Eliashib, where he spent the night. † He did not eat food or drink water, because he was mourning over the unfaithfulness of the exiles. †
7 They circulated a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem that all the exiles should gather at Jerusalem. 8 Whoever did not come within three days would forfeit all his possessions, † according to the decision of the leaders and elders, and would be excluded † from the assembly of the exiles.
9 So all the men of Judah and Benjamin gathered in Jerusalem within the three days. On the twentieth day of the ninth month, all the people sat in the square at the house of God, † trembling because of this matter and because of the heavy rain. 10 Then the priest Ezra stood up and said to them, “You have been unfaithful by marrying foreign women, adding to Israel’s guilt. † 11 Therefore, make a confession to the LORD, the God of your fathers, and do his will. Separate yourselves from the surrounding peoples and your foreign wives.”
12 Then all the assembly responded loudly: “Yes, we will do as you say! 13 But there are many people, and it is the rainy season. We don’t have the stamina to stay out in the open. This isn’t something that can be done in a day or two, for we have rebelled terribly in this matter. 14 Let our leaders represent the entire assembly. Then let all those in our towns who have married foreign women come at appointed times, together with the elders and judges of each town, in order to avert the fierce anger of our God † concerning † this matter." 15 Only Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiah son of Tikvah opposed this, with Meshullam † and Shabbethai the Levite supporting them.

16 The exiles did what had been proposed. The priest Ezra selected men † who were family heads, all identified by name, to represent † their ancestral families. † They convened on the first day of the tenth month to investigate the matter, 17 and by the first day of the first month they had dealt with all the men who had married foreign women.

THOSE MARRIED TO FOREIGN WIVES

18 The following were found to have married foreign women from the descendants of the priests:

from the descendants of Jeshua son of Jozadak and his brothers:
Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah. 19 They pledged † to send their wives away, and being guilty, they offered a ram from the 10:10-11 Ezra was called upon to lead the effort in sending away these foreign wives (see also vv. 2-4). He made the whole nation take an oath to do this (v. 5) and also called a mandatory meeting at Jerusalem for all (vv. 7-9). At this meeting, Ezra confronted them with their sin and commanded them to confess and to send away their foreign women.

10:16-17 Due to weather and the extent of the problem (v. 13), the community was unable to deal with the sin of intermarriage completely on that day (see v. 9). They did, however, set a plan in place involving their leaders (v. 14), which was carried out effectively.

10:18-44 This list drives home the extent and seriousness of the sin of intermarriage among the exiles. Intermarriage among the Israelites who had returned is also mentioned in Nehemiah 13:23-27. As stated in 9:1-2, those guilty of marrying foreign women with no desire to align themselves with Israel's God included priests and Levites. A few singers and gatekeepers were guilty as well.

NEHEMIAH

INTRODUCTION

See the Introduction to Ezra for Nehemiah's introductory material.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

God works on behalf of his people to enable them to accomplish his purposes. He works through kings; he sends good leaders (such as Ezra and Nehemiah). Further, God does not change, even though the circumstances of his people change. The same God who had graciously revealed himself at Mount Sinai as the covenant-making God a thousand years before (ca 1446 BC) still wanted Israel to be in a covenant relationship with him (10:29).

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

Nehemiah shows that there are really only two kinds of people: those who oppose God and his purposes and those who identify with God and his purposes. Equally evident in this book (as in Leviticus) is the concept that God's holiness requires his redeemed people to live different from the pagans that surround them. Although Ezra and Nehemiah fulfilled different personal roles, each illustrates someone who was wholly committed to God and whom God used to accomplish kingdom purposes.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

Nehemiah teaches the doctrine of salvation as clearly as any OT book. It contains no more profound confession of sin at the community level than Nehemiah 9: salvation means acknowledging and turning away from wrongdoing and then clinging steadfastly to God.

1 The words of Nehemiah † son of Hacaliah:

NEWS FROM JERUSALEM

During the month of Chislev † in the twentieth year, † when I was in the fortress city of Susa, † 2 Hanani, † one of my brothers, arrived with men from Judah, and I questioned them about Jerusalem and the Jewish remnant † that had survived the exile. † 3 They said to me, “The remnant in the province, † who survived the exile, are in great trouble and disgrace. Jerusalem’s wall has been broken down, and its gates have been burned.” †

NEHEMIAH’S PRAYER

4 When I heard these words, I sat down and wept. I mourned for a number of days, fasting and praying † before the God of the heavens. † 5 I said, †
LORD, the God of the heavens, the great and awe-inspiring God who keeps his gracious covenant with those who love him † and keep his commands, † 6 let your eyes be open and your ears be attentive † to hear your servant’s prayer that I now pray to you day and night † for your servants, the Israelites. I confess the sins † we have committed against you. Both I and my father’s family have sinned. † 7 We have acted corruptly toward you and have not kept the commands, statutes, and ordinances you gave your servant Moses. † 8 Please remember what you commanded your servant Moses: “If you are unfaithful, I will scatter you among the peoples. † 9 But if you return to me and carefully observe my commands, even though your exiles were banished to the farthest horizon, † I will gather them from there and bring them to the place where I chose to have my name dwell.” † 10 They are your servants and your people. You redeemed them by your great power and strong hand. † 11 Please, Lord, let your ear be attentive † to the prayer of your servant and to that of your servants who delight to revere your name. Give your servant success today, † and grant him compassion in the presence of this man. † †

At the time, I was the king’s cupbearer. †

1:1 The book of Nehemiah shares many of the same concerns as the book of Ezra, and they have been considered to be one book by some since ancient times. Both books concern the community of Israelites who had returned from exile, and both describe key construction projects (i.e., the temple and the walls of Jerusalem, respectively). Moreover, both mention Ezra teaching the Scriptures to the Israelites (e.g., Ezr 7; Neh 8).

1:2-4 Nehemiah was living in exile in Susa as the royal cupbearer (vv. 1,11) when he inquired about Jerusalem and the Jewish remnant (the Israelites) who had returned there. He was deeply grieved to learn they were in great trouble and disgrace, as the city wall was broken down and the gates burned (2:3). More importantly, he was fasting and praying, confessing the sins of Israel and asking God for favor before the king (vv. 5-11; see also 2:4; the note on 4:4-5).

NEHEMIAH SENT TO JERUSALEM

2 During the month of Nisan in the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes, † when wine was set before him, I took the wine and gave it to the king. I had never been sad in his presence, 2 so the king said to me, “Why are you † sad, when you aren’t sick? This is nothing but sadness of heart.” †
I was overwhelmed with fear 3 and replied to the king, “May the king live forever! Why should I † not be sad when the city where my ancestors are buried lies in ruins and its gates have been destroyed by fire? ” † 4 Then the king asked me, “What is your request? ”
So I prayed to the God of the heavens † 5 and answered the king, “If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor with you, send me to Judah and to the city where my ancestors are buried, † † so that I may rebuild it.” † 6 The king, with the queen seated beside him, asked me, “How long will your journey take, and when will you return? ” So I gave him a definite time, † and it pleased the king to send me.
7 I also said to the king: “If it pleases the king, let me have letters written to the governors of the region west of the Euphrates River, † so that they will grant me safe passage until I reach Judah. † 8 And let me have a letter written to Asaph, keeper of the king’s forest, so that he will give me timber to rebuild the gates of the temple’s fortress, † the city wall, and the home where I will live.” † † The king granted my requests, for the gracious hand of my God was on me. † 9 I went to the governors of the region west of the Euphrates and gave them the king’s letters. † The king had also sent officers of the infantry and cavalry with me. 10 When Sanballat the Horonite † and Tobiah the Ammonite official heard that someone had come to pursue the prosperity of the Israelites, they were greatly displeased. †

PREPARING TO REBUILD THE WALLS

11 After I arrived in Jerusalem and had been there three days, † 12 I got up at night and took a few men with me. I didn't tell anyone what my God had laid on my heart to do for Jerusalem. The only animal I took † was the one I was riding. 13 I went out at night through the Valley Gate toward the Serpent's † Well and the Dung Gate, † and I inspected the walls of Jerusalem that had been broken down and its gates that had been destroyed by fire. † 14 I went on to the Fountain Gate † and the King's Pool, † but farther down it became too narrow for my animal to go through. 15 So I went up at night by way of the valley and inspected the wall. Then heading back, I entered through the Valley Gate † and returned. 16 The officials did not know where I had gone or what I was doing, for I had not yet told the Jews, priests, nobles, officials, or the rest of those who would be doing the work. 17 So I said to them, "You see the trouble we are in. Jerusalem lies in ruins and its gates have been burned. † Come, let's rebuild Jerusalem's wall, † so that we will no longer be a disgrace." 18 I told them how the gracious hand of my God had been on me, † and what the king had said to me.

They said, "Let's start rebuilding," and their hands were strengthened † to do this good work.

19 When Sanballat the Horonite, Tobiah the Ammonite official, † and Geshem the Arab † heard about this, they mocked and despised us, and said, "What is this you're doing? Are you rebelling against the king? "

20 I gave them this reply, "The God of the heavens is the one who will grant us success. We, his servants, will start building, but you have no share, right, or historic claim in Jerusalem." †

2:2 Nehemiah was probably afraid. Being sad in the king's presence could have caused offense.

2:7-8 Nehemiah had prayed twice regarding his desire to return to Jerusalem to repair it (see v. 4; 1:9-11), and God answered his prayer (vv. 6,8). The king even gave him letters granting safe passage and supplies of lumber.

2:10 As was the case in the book of Ezra, there were some who opposed the Israelites' construction efforts (see also the note on Ezr 4:1-5). Sanballat, governor of Samaria, and Tobiah, governor of the Transjordan, were powerful and influential men who would repeatedly mock and trouble them (see v. 19; 4:1-3,7-9; 6:1-14).

2:12-16 Though God had laid this project on Nehemiah's heart, he covertly inspected the walls and gates of Jerusalem before disclosing his intentions to others.

2:17-18 Having completed his inspection of the walls and gates, Nehemiah shared his rebuilding plan with the leaders, who agreed to participate. The ruinous state of Jerusalem's walls and gates was a disgrace to Israel, especially to those Israelites who had returned to live there (see also 1:3).

2:20 In response to the insults of Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem (v. 19; see the note on v. 10), Nehemiah affirmed that God would grant him success and that these three men would have no part in it.

REBUILDING THE WALLS

3 The high priest Eliashib † and his fellow priests began rebuilding the Sheep Gate. † They dedicated it and installed its doors. After building the wall to the Tower of the Hundred and the Tower of Hananel, † they dedicated it. 2 The men of Jericho † built next to Eliashib, † and next to them Zaccur son of Imri built.

FISH GATE

3 The sons of Hassenaah built the Fish Gate. † They built it with beams and installed its doors, bolts, and bars. † 4 Next to them Meremoth † son of Uriah, son of Hakkoz, made repairs. Beside them Meshullam † son of Berechiah, son of Meshezabel, made repairs. Next to them Zadok son of Baana made repairs.
5 Beside them the Tekoites † made repairs, but their nobles did not lift a finger to help † their supervisors.

OLD GATE, BROAD WALL, AND TOWER OF THE OVENS

6 Joiada son of Paseah and Meshullam son of Besodeiah repaired the Old † Gate. † They built it with beams and installed its doors, bolts, and bars. 7 Next to them the repairs were done by Melatiah the Gibeonite, Jadon the Meronothite, and the men of Gibeon † and Mizpah, who were under the authority † † of the governor † of the region west of the Euphrates River. † 8 After him Uzziel son of Harhaiah, the goldsmith, † made repairs, and next to him Hananiah son of the perfumer made repairs. They restored Jerusalem as far as the Broad Wall. † 9 Next to them Rephaiah son of Hur, ruler of half the district of Jerusalem, made repairs. 10 After them Jedaiah son of Harumaph made repairs across from his house. † Next to him Hattush the son of Hashabneiah made repairs. 11 Malchijah son of Harim and Hasshub son of Pahath-moab made repairs to another section, as well as to the Tower of the Ovens. † 12 Beside him Shallum son of Hallohesh, ruler of half the district of Jerusalem, made repairs — he and his daughters.

VALLEY GATE, DUNG GATE, AND FOUNTAIN GATE

13 Hanun and the inhabitants of Zanoah repaired the Valley Gate. They rebuilt it and installed its doors, bolts, and bars, and repaired five hundred yards † of the wall to the Dung Gate. † 14 Malchijah son of Rechab, ruler of the district of Beth-haccherem, † repaired the Dung Gate. † He rebuilt it and installed its doors, bolts, and bars.
15 Shallun † son of Col-hozeh, ruler of the district of Mizpah, repaired the Fountain Gate. † He rebuilt it and roofed it. Then he installed its doors, bolts, and bars. He also made repairs to the wall of the Pool of Shelah † near the king's garden, † as far as the stairs that descend from the city of David. †
16 After him Nehemiah son of Azbuk, ruler of half the district of Beth-zur, † made repairs up to a point opposite the tombs of David, † as far as the artificial pool † and the House of the Warriors. † 17 Next to him the Levites † made repairs under Rehum son of Bani. Beside him Hashabiah, ruler of half the district of Keilah, † made repairs for his district. 18 After him their fellow Levites made repairs under Binnui † son of Henadad, ruler of half the district of Keilah. 19 Next to him Ezer son of Jeshua, ruler of Mizpah, made repairs to another section opposite the ascent to the armory at the Angle. †

THE ANGLE, WATER GATE, AND TOWER ON THE OPHEL

20 After him Baruch son of Zabbai † diligently repaired another section, from the Angle to the door of the house of the high priest Eliashib. † 21 Beside him Meremoth † son of Uriah, son of Hakkoz, made repairs to another section, from the door of Eliashib's † house to the end of his house. 22 And next to him the priests from the surrounding area made repairs.
23 After them Benjamin and Hasshub made repairs opposite their house. Beside them Azariah son of Maaseiah, son of Ananiah, made repairs beside his house.
24 After him Binnui † son of Henadad made repairs to another section, from the house of Azariah to the Angle and the corner. 25 Palal son of Uzai made repairs opposite the Angle and tower that juts out from the king's upper palace, † † by the courtyard of the guard. † Beside him Pedaiah son of Parosh 26 and the temple servants † living on Ophel † made repairs opposite the Water Gate † toward the east and the tower that juts out. 27 Next to him the Tekoites † made repairs to another section from a point opposite the great tower that juts out, as far as the wall of Ophel. †

HORSE GATE, INSPECTION GATE, AND SHEEP GATE

28 Each of the priests made repairs above the Horse Gate, † each opposite his own house. 29 After them Zadok son of Immer made repairs opposite his house.
And beside him Shemaiah son of Shecaniah, guard of the East Gate, made repairs. 30 Next to him Hananiah son of Shelemiah and Hanun the sixth son of Zalaph made repairs to another section.
After them Meshullam son of Berechiah made repairs opposite his room.
31 Next to him Malchijah, one of the goldsmiths, † made repairs to the house of the temple servants † and the merchants, opposite the Inspection † Gate, and as far as the upstairs room on the corner. 32 The goldsmiths † and merchants made repairs between the upstairs room on the corner and the Sheep Gate. †

3:1 From the beginning, the reconstruction of the walls and gates had to be a group effort (2:16-18). Even the high priest participated.

3:12 Whereas certain nobles did not lend a hand (v. 5), the daughters of Shallum did make repairs.

3:16 This Nehemiah was probably not the same Nehemiah as the one who had spearheaded this building. There was at least one other man also named Nehemiah (see Ezr 2:2).

3:16-32 The collaborative effort to rebuild the walls and gates of Jerusalem was remarkable for its involvement of rulers (vv. 16-17), Levites (vv. 17-18), priests (vv. 22,28), citizens (vv. 19-21,23-25,30), temple servants (vv. 26,31), goldsmiths, and merchants (vv. 31-32).

PROGRESS IN SPITE OF OPPOSITION

4 When Sanballat † heard that we were rebuilding the wall, † he became furious. He mocked the Jews † 2 before his colleagues and the powerful men † of Samaria, † and said, “What are these pathetic Jews doing? Can they restore it by themselves? Will they offer sacrifices? Will they ever finish it? Can they bring these burnt stones † back to life from the mounds of rubble? ” † 3 Then Tobiah the Ammonite, † who was beside him, said, “Indeed, even if a fox † climbed up what they are building, he would break down their stone wall! ”

4 Listen, our God, for we are despised. Make their insults return on their own heads and let them be taken as plunder to a land of captivity. 5 Do not cover their guilt or let their sin be erased from your sight, because they have angered † the builders. †

6 So we rebuilt the wall until the entire wall was joined together up to half its height, for the people had the will to keep working. †

7 When Sanballat, Tobiah, and the Arabs, † Ammonites, and Ashdodites heard that the repair to the walls of Jerusalem was progressing and that the gaps were being closed, † they became furious. † 8 They all plotted together to come and fight against Jerusalem and throw it into confusion. 9 So we prayed to our God and stationed a guard because of them day and night.

10 In Judah, it was said: †

The strength of the laborer fails, since there is so much rubble.
We will never be able to rebuild the wall.

11 And our enemies said, “They won’t realize it † until we’re among them and can kill them and stop the work.” 12 When the Jews who lived nearby arrived, they said to us time and again, † “Everywhere you turn, they attack † us.” 13 So I stationed people behind the lowest sections of the wall, at the vulnerable areas.
I stationed them by families with their swords, spears, and bows. 14 After I made an inspection, I stood up and said to the nobles, the officials, and the rest of the people, † “Don’t be afraid of them. † Remember the great and awe-inspiring Lord, and fight for your countrymen, your sons and daughters, your wives and homes.” †

SWORD AND TROWEL

15 When our enemies heard that we knew their scheme and that God had frustrated it, every one of us returned to his own work on the wall. 16 From that day on, half of my men did the work while the other half held spears, shields, bows, and armor. † The officers supported all the people of Judah, 17 who were rebuilding the wall. The laborers who carried the loads worked with one hand and held a weapon with the other. 18 Each of the builders had his sword strapped around his waist while he was building, and the trumpeter was beside me.
19 Then I said to the nobles, the officials, and the rest of the people: † “The work is enormous and spread out, and we are separated far from one another along the wall. † 20 Wherever you hear the trumpet sound, rally to us there. Our God will fight for us! ” † 21 So we continued the work, while half of the men were holding spears from daybreak until the stars came out. 22 At that time, I also said to the people, “Let everyone and his servant spend the night inside Jerusalem, so that they can stand guard by night and work by day.” 23 And I, my brothers, my servants, and the men of the guard with me never took off our clothes. Each carried his weapon, even when washing. †

4:1-3 The progress of the construction project angered Sanballat, who mocked the Jews before his colleagues and the powerful men of Samaria. Tobiah the Ammonite joined him in casting doubt on the success of their efforts. These two influential men had been "greatly displeased" earlier about this work (see the note on 2:10).

4:4-5 As he had done previously, Nehemiah responded to challenges with prayer (see 1:4-11; 2:4). The insults of Sanballat and Tobiah were serious, and he prayed that God would take notice and punish the two men who had angered the builders.

4:7-14 As the building progressed (v. 6), Sanballat, Tobiah, and their associates stepped up opposition to it. Whereas they had used mockery earlier (see the note on vv. 1-3), now they planned to fight against Jerusalem and kill them and stop the work. This plot seems to have resulted in discouragement among the builders (vv. 10,12). Nehemiah characteristically responded with prayer (v. 9), and he also took practical measures of both stationing guards for protection (vv. 9,13) and encouraging the people (v. 14).

4:15-23 Under duress and having made necessary adjustments (see the previous note), the repair of the wall continued (v. 15). They built the wall and simultaneously were on guard against attack (vv. 16-19,21-23), all the while trusting in God (v. 20).

SOCIAL INJUSTICE

5 There was a widespread outcry from the people and their wives against their Jewish countrymen. 2 Some were saying, "We, our sons, and our daughters are numerous. Let us get grain so that we can eat and live."
3 Others were saying, "We are mortgaging our fields, vineyards, and homes to get grain during the famine." † 4 Still others were saying, "We have borrowed money to pay the king's tax † on our fields and vineyards. † 5 We and our children are just like our countrymen and their children, yet we are subjecting our sons and daughters to slavery. † Some of our daughters are already enslaved, † but we are powerless † because our fields and vineyards belong to others."
6 I became extremely angry † when I heard their outcry and these complaints.
7 After seriously considering the matter, I accused the nobles and officials, saying to them, "Each of you is charging his countrymen interest." † So I called a large assembly against them 8 and said, "We have done our best to buy back our Jewish countrymen who were sold to foreigners, but now you sell your own countrymen, and we have to buy them back." † They remained silent and could not say a word. † 9 Then I said, "What you are doing isn't right. Shouldn't you walk in the fear of our God † and not invite the reproach of our foreign enemies? † 10 Even I, as well as my brothers and my servants, have been lending them money and grain. Please, let us stop charging this interest. † 11 Return their fields, vineyards, olive groves, and houses to them immediately, along with the percentage † of the money, grain, new wine, and fresh oil † that you have been assessing them."

12 They responded: "We will return these things and require nothing more from them. † We will do as you say."
So I summoned the priests and made everyone take an oath † to do this. 13 I also shook the folds of my robe and said, "May God likewise shake from his house and property everyone who doesn't keep this promise. May he be shaken out † and have nothing! "
The whole assembly said, "Amen," and they praised the LORD. Then the people did as they had promised. †

GOOD AND BAD GOVERNORS

14 Furthermore, from the day King Artaxerxes † appointed me to be their governor in the land of Judah — from the twentieth year until his thirty-second year, twelve years † — I and my associates never ate from the food allotted to the governor. 15 The governors † who preceded me had heavily burdened the people, taking from them food and wine as well as a pound † of silver. Their subordinates also oppressed the people, but because of the fear of God, I didn't do this. † 16 Instead, I devoted myself to the construction of this wall, † and all my subordinates were gathered there for the work. We didn't buy any land. †
17 There were 150 Jews and officials, as well as guests from the surrounding nations at my table. † 18 Each † day, one ox, six choice sheep, and some fowl were prepared for me. An abundance of all kinds of wine was provided every ten days. † But I didn't demand the food allotted to the governor, because the burden on the people was so heavy.

19 Remember me favorably, my God, for all that I have done for this people. †

5:9-13 Not only were there challenges from without, but also from within. Whereas Sanballat and Tobiah were to blame for the former (see the notes on 4:1-3,7-14), the fault for the latter lay with the Israelites (see the note on Ezr 3:10-13). Famine and poverty had led some Jews to sell family members "to slavery" (v. 5) since they could not pay their debts. Also, they were mortgaging their fields, vineyards, and homes to their countrymen—who were exacerbating the situation by charging interest (vv. 1-4,7; see Dt 23:20). After investigating the matter, Nehemiah confronted "the nobles and officials" (v. 7). Ironically, they had been freed from bondage to another nation in exile, but now they were putting each other in bondage (v. 8). Nehemiah commanded them to stop their wrongdoing, and they promised to do so.

5:14-18 In contrast with those nobles and officials who had wrongly charged interest (vv. 7-12), Nehemiah had not abused his authority by laying unnecessary burdens upon the people for his own selfish reasons. He acted in this way because of the fear of God (see v. 9; 7:2).

ATTEMPTS TO DISCOURAGE THE BUILDERS

6 When Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem the Arab, and the rest of our enemies † heard that I had rebuilt the wall and that no gap was left in it † — though at that time I had not installed the doors in the city gates † — 2 Sanballat and Geshem † sent me a message: "Come, let's meet together in the villages of † the Ono Valley." † They were planning to harm me.

3 So I sent messengers to them, saying, "I am doing important work and cannot come down. Why should the work cease while I leave it and go down to you?"

4 Four times they sent me the same proposal, and I gave them the same reply.

5 Sanballat † sent me this same message a fifth time by his aide, who had an open letter in his hand. 6 In it was written:

It is reported among the nations — and Geshem † † agrees — that you and the Jews plan to rebel. This is the reason you are building the wall. According to these reports, you are to become their king 7 and have even set up the prophets in Jerusalem to proclaim on your behalf: "There is a king in Judah." † These rumors will be heard by the king. So come, let's confer together.

8 Then I replied to him, "There is nothing to these rumors you are spreading; you are inventing them in your own mind." † 9 For they were all trying to intimidate † us, saying, "They will drop their hands from † the work, † and it will never be finished."

But now, my God, strengthen my hands. †

ATTEMPTS TO INTIMIDATE NEHEMIAH

10 I went to the house of Shemaiah son of Delaiah, son of Mehetabel, who was restricted to his house. He said:

Let's meet at the house of God,
inside the temple.
Let's shut the temple doors
because they're coming to kill you.
They're coming to kill you tonight! †

11 But I said, "Should a man like me run away? How can someone like me enter the temple and live? † I will not go." 12 I realized that God had not sent him, because of the prophecy he spoke against me. Tobiah and Sanballat † had hired him. 13 He was hired, so that I would be intimidated, † do as he suggested, sin, and get a bad reputation, in order that they could discredit me.

14 My God, remember † Tobiah and Sanballat for what they have done, and also the prophetess Noadiah † and the other prophets who wanted to intimidate me.

THE WALL COMPLETED

15 The wall was completed † in fifty-two days, on the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul. † 16 When all our enemies † heard this, all the surrounding nations were intimidated † and lost their confidence, † for they realized that this task had been accomplished by our God. †

17 During those days, the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah, † and Tobiah's letters came to them. 18 For many in Judah were bound by oath † to him, since he was a son-in-law of Shecaniah son of Arah, and his son Jehohanan had married the daughter of Meshullam † son of Berechiah. 19 These nobles kept mentioning Tobiah's good deeds to me, and they reported my words to him. And Tobiah sent letters to intimidate † me.

6:1-9 Sanballat and Tobiah continued to oppose the rebuilding (see the notes on 4:1-3,7-14). Geshem had been mentioned in 2:19. Sanballat and Geshem repeatedly tried to get Nehemiah to meet them so that they could harm him. When that didn't work, they spread rumors that the Jews would rebel against the Persian Empire and Nehemiah was going to be made king over Israel. As before, Nehemiah met this trial with prayer (see v. 14 and the note on 4:4-5).

6:12-14 Having been refused several times already (vv. 1-9), Nehemiah's enemies tried an indirect approach of hiring a false prophet to request a meeting so that Nehemiah would be discredited (vv. 10-13). He again prayed that God would remember his enemies (see also 1:8; 5:19; and the note on 13:14).

6:15-16 The wall was finished in a mere fifty-two days. Even the surrounding nations recognized that this task had been accomplished by . . . God. The same Lord who had laid this project on the heart of Nehemiah (2:12) had faithfully seen it through to completion, despite many obstacles.

THE EXILES RETURN

7 When the wall had been rebuilt and I had the doors installed,† the gatekeepers,† singers, and Levites were appointed. 2 Then I put my brother Hanani† in charge of Jerusalem,† along with Hananiah,† commander of the fortress,† because he was a faithful man who feared God† more than most. 3 I said to them, "Do not open the gates of Jerusalem until the sun is hot, and let the doors be shut and securely fastened while the guards are on duty. Station the citizens of Jerusalem as guards, some at their posts and some at their homes."†

4 The city was large and spacious, but there were few people in it, and no houses had been built yet.† 5 Then my God put it into my mind† to assemble the nobles, the officials, and the people to be registered by genealogy. I found the genealogical record of those who came back first, and I found the following written in it:†

6 These are the people of the province who went up among the captive exiles deported by King Nebuchadnezzar† of Babylon. Each of them returned to Jerusalem and Judah, to his own town.† 7 They came with Zerubbabel,† Jeshua,† Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum, and Baanah.

7:5 As was the case earlier (see the note on Ezr 2:59), much importance was attached to Israelite identity as being distinct from neighboring peoples. The list found in vv. 8-69 is almost identical to the one found in Ezra 2.

7:61-65 Israelite identity was so important (see previous note) that priests who could not prove their lineage were disqualified from the priesthood.

8 all the people gathered together † at the square in front of the Water Gate. † They asked the scribe Ezra † to bring the book of the law of Moses † that the LORD had given Israel. 2 On the first day of the seventh month, † the priest Ezra † brought the law † before the assembly of men, women, and all who could listen with understanding. 3 While he was facing the square in front of the Water Gate, † he read out of it from daybreak until noon before the men, the women, and those who could understand. All the people listened attentively † to the book of the law. † 4 The scribe Ezra stood on a high wooden platform † made for this purpose. Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Uriah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah stood beside him on his right; to his left were Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchijah, Hashum, Hash-baddanah, Zechariah, and Meshullam. 5 Ezra opened the book in full view of all the people, since he was elevated above everyone. As he opened it, all the people stood up. 6 Ezra blessed the LORD, the great God, and with their hands uplifted † all the people said, "Amen, Amen! " † Then they knelt low and worshiped the LORD with their faces to the ground. †

7 Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, and Pelaiah, † who were Levites, † † explained the law † to the people as they stood in their places. 8 They read out of the book of the law of God, translating and giving the meaning so that the people could understand what was read. 9 Nehemiah the governor, † Ezra the priest and scribe, † and the Levites who were instructing the people said to all of them, "This day † is holy to the LORD your God. Do not mourn or weep." † For all the people were weeping as they heard the words of the law. 10 Then he said to them, "Go and eat what is rich, drink what is sweet, and send portions to those who have nothing prepared, † since today † is holy to our Lord. Do not grieve, because the joy of the LORD is your strength." † † 11 And the Levites quieted all the people, saying, "Be still, † since today † is holy. Don't grieve." 12 Then all the people began to eat and drink, send portions, and have a great celebration, † because they had understood the words that were explained to them.

FESTIVAL OF SHELTERS OBSERVED

13 On the second day, the family heads of all the people, along with the priests and Levites, † assembled before the scribe Ezra † to study the words of the law. 14 They found written in the law how the LORD had commanded through Moses that the Israelites should dwell in shelters during the festival of the seventh month. † 15 So they proclaimed and spread this news throughout their towns and in Jerusalem, saying, “Go out to the hill country and bring back branches of olive, wild olive, myrtle, palm, and other leafy trees to make shelters, just as it is written.” † 16 The people went out, brought back branches, and made shelters for themselves on each of their rooftops † and courtyards, the court of the house of God, the square by the Water Gate, † and the square by the Ephraim Gate. † 17 The whole community that had returned from exile † made shelters and lived in them. The Israelites had not celebrated like this from the days of Joshua son of Nun until that day. † And there was tremendous joy. † 18 Ezra † read out of the book of the law of God † every day, from the first day to the last. The Israelites celebrated the festival for seven days, and on the eighth day there was an assembly, according to the ordinance. †

8:1-5 As was the case in the book of Ezra, the completion of a construction project was followed by the teaching of Scripture by Ezra (see Ezr 6:15; 7:1-11; 9:1–10:11). The meeting took place outside at the square in front of the Water Gate. There were gathered men, women, and all who could listen with understanding; they listened for several hours (v. 3). That the people stood when Ezra opened the book (v. 5), and not when Ezra himself ascended the platform (v. 4), suggests that respect was due primarily to God’s Word and his authority rather than to the human teacher.

8:7-12 Assisting Ezra were Levites who explained the law to the people (v. 7) and gave the meaning so that the people could understand what was read (v. 8). The people grieved as they heard the Scriptures read, presumably because of their failures, and needed to be instructed and encouraged not to do so.

8:13-14 Led by Ezra, the community continued to hear from the Scriptures on the next day. They learned that they were to celebrate the Festival of Shelters that month (v. 14; see Lv 23:33-36,39-43), which they did (vv. 15-18).

8:18 Part of their celebration of the Festival of Shelters included Ezra reading Scripture on all seven days of the feast.

NATIONAL CONFESSION OF SIN

9 On the twenty-fourth day of this month † the Israelites assembled; they were fasting, wearing sackcloth, and had put dust on their heads. †

2 Those of Israelite descent separated themselves from all foreigners, † and they stood † and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their fathers. †

LITERATURE AND A CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW

Wherever humans gather, they tell stories. Storytelling is a distinctly human activity found nowhere else in creation. Literature expresses in writing the shared experiences that people have lived or have imagined.

For millennia, literature, or more broadly narrative, has held an instructional role across cultures. Once literacy was attained, writers used it to explain what was valued in their cultures: What does it mean to be honorable? How do we relate to nature? How do we live under the specter of death? Who (or what) is God? What is love? One of the best ways to understand a culture's worldview, in fact, is to read its literature.

Literature is significantly more effective than other means of discourse precisely because it is affective: it evokes emotions that enhance our thoughts in order to create lasting insights. In this way, literature cultivates empathy, through which we can step into other people's shoes.

Stories and poems thus allow us to share others' experiences. We may become friends with the characters; we may laugh with them, cry for them, and even pattern our own lives after those we find in literature. Reading literature helps to prevent the sense of isolation and even egocentrism that can easily slip into our lives.

THE BIBLE AS LITERATURE

For Christians, the quintessential work of literature is the Bible itself, with its incredible range of history, poetry, and narratives. It contains the greatest masterworks of the ages—material that may be mined repeatedly for moral insights. Even secular thinkers and atheists often note that an understanding of the Bible's basic contents is necessary for any educated person.

The Bible employs many genres of literature in its communication of truth. Likewise, it uses many common literary techniques such as allegory, metaphor, hyperbole, and many others.

Appreciating Scripture as a literary triumph, however, in no way undercuts its unique status as the authoritative, written revelation of God to his creation. The Bible is not merely just another human story; it is the inspired Word of God. While it displays the qualities we recognize in other written works, its unique status exalts it above all other stories, both thematically and theologically. Indeed, just as Christ is "the author and finisher of our faith" (Heb 12:2, KJV), God is the ultimate Author of the Bible. We rightly expect him to produce a work of exquisite perfection.

Moreover, understanding the literary qualities and techniques employed by the Scriptures is important to their interpretation. Without such tools, we may create weak or even false theological positions based on misreadings of the text. When Jesus said, "I am the gate for the sheep" (Jn 10:7), he employs a metaphor that helps us to see his role as the ultimate gatekeeper to eternity. His is the name by which all must be saved. A slavish literality would actually short-change the theological force of the declaration, which is foundational to understanding the exclusivity of Christ.

LITERATURE AND CHRISTIANITY

In the West, most literary traditions are either rooted in the Judeo-Christian tradition or are deeply complementary to them through the heritage of the Greco-Roman world. Rare is the work prior to the twentieth century that is not in some way generated with a foundational understanding of humankind that underlies the Christian faith. More recent literature may claim to make such a break, but even when it reacts against orthodoxy, it still touches on many of its presuppositions.

Christian thinkers have always wrestled with the right way to handle literature where it reflects divergent worldviews. Since Cyprian and Tertullian, some critics have called non-Christian thought worthless to the faithful, a charge that was countered by Augustine in particular. Augustine believed that because God created truth, just as he created gold, we have the right to reclaim truth, in this case literary gold, from those who have mixed it with error.

The wise reader will read literature in one hand with the Bible in the other, panning for the metaphorical gold that Augustine identified. In secular literature, we can see the foreshadowing of the truth that comes by the light of Christ. Such works struggle with brokenness, alienation, sin, and death—all of which culminate in a longing for something more, the kind of reconciliation that anticipates the Redeemer who will restore all things.

LITERATURE AND CHRISTIAN MISSION

Acts 7:22 tells us that "Moses was educated in all the wisdom of the Egyptians and was powerful in his speech and actions." Daniel likewise learned the literature of Babylon (Dn 1:17), which prepared him for his important calling. Believers are expected to prepare themselves to serve an unbelieving world, and understanding literature is foundational to being able to communicate with our culture or others. Just as Paul quoted from secular writers at the Areopagus (Ac 17), Christians are wise to develop the kind of cultural relevance that allows them to communicate the gospel in effective ways.

Someone who is undertaking a mission trip to another culture would be wise to read translations of the poetry and stories of that other culture; this act of cultural humility pays significant dividends not only in understanding the other people group's worldview but also in developing a genuine love for the people who love those stories. When traveling to India, for example, it is the wise Christian who reads the Ramayana, their national epic, which contains many tales that can provide gospel bridges to transformational relationships.

Finally, literature provides an incredible opportunity for Western Christian thinkers to engage our own culture. As our society becomes increasingly post-literate, the stories that we tell and share with others continue to have power to reach into their lives. History has shown that the intellectual culture of Christianity is both durable and effective in reflecting a Christian worldview. For example, while most of Europe now shows little commitment to Christian thought, a visit to almost any town in Europe will include a tour of the churches and cathedrals, whose stained-glass windows and architecture still provide witness to the faith that created them. In the same way, well-written literature persists for decades and even centuries. Works such as John Milton's Paradise Lost and the medieval dream-vision The Pearl continue to communicate Christian ideas long after their authors' deaths.

THE POWER OF GOOD LITERATURE

Good literature always finds a hearing because it owes its power to something transcendent to the drabness of everyday life. Literature that reflects the timeless truths of Christianity enjoys a matchless power—that of the faith communicated as the purest form of truth.

Advances in technology have allowed literature to find fresh platforms for exposure to new readers across the globe. While literature gives voice to the past, it also anticipates the future vision of Revelation 7:9, with "every nation, tribe, people, and language" giving praise to God. In this way, our present lives are enriched through the novels, stories, plays, and poems from around the world. Christian thinkers have a responsibility to include literature in the development of their own intellect and character, as they explore the worldviews that fill the globe and develop their own understanding of the Christian worldview.

GENE C. FANT

3 While they stood in their places, † they read from the book of the law of the LORD their God for a fourth of the day and spent another fourth of the day † in confession † and worship of the LORD their God. 4 Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani stood on the raised platform built for the Levites † and cried out loudly to the LORD their God. 5 Then the Levites — Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah † — said, "Stand up. Blessed be the LORD your God from everlasting to everlasting." †

Blessed be your glorious name, † and may it be exalted above all blessing and praise.
6 You, † LORD, are the only God. † †
You created the heavens,
the highest heavens with all their stars, the earth and all that is on it,
the seas and all that is in them.
You give life to all of them, † and all the stars of heaven worship you. † 7 You, the LORD, are the God who chose Abram and brought him out of Ur of the Chaldeans, † and changed his name to Abraham. † 8 You found his heart faithful in your sight, † and made a covenant with him to give the land of the Canaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Perizzites, Jebusites, and Girgashites — to give it to his descendants. †
You have fulfilled your promise, for you are righteous.

9 You saw the oppression of our ancestors in Egypt † and heard their cry at the Red Sea.

10 You performed signs and wonders against Pharaoh, all his officials, and all the people of his land, † for you knew how arrogantly they treated our ancestors.
You made a name for yourself that endures to this day.
11 You divided the sea before them, and they crossed through it on dry ground. †
You hurled their pursuers into the depths like a stone into raging water. † 12 You led them with a pillar of cloud by day, and with a pillar of fire by night, to illuminate the way they should go. † 13 You came down on Mount Sinai, † and spoke to them from heaven.
You gave them impartial ordinances, reliable instructions, and good statutes and commands.
14 You revealed your holy Sabbath to them, and gave them commands, statutes, and instruction through your servant Moses. † 15 You provided bread from heaven † for their hunger; you brought them water from the rock † for their thirst.
You told them to go in and possess the land you had sworn † to give them. †

16 But our ancestors acted arrogantly; they became stiff-necked and did not listen to your commands.
17 They refused to listen and did not remember your wonders you performed among them. †
They became stiff-necked and appointed a leader to return to their slavery in Egypt. † †
But you are a forgiving God, gracious and compassionate, slow to anger and abounding in faithful love, † and you did not abandon them.
18 Even after they had cast an image of a calf for themselves and said,
"This is your god who brought you out of Egypt," † and they had committed terrible blasphemies, 19 you did not abandon them in the wilderness because of your great compassion.

During the day the pillar of cloud never turned away from them, guiding them on their journey.
And during the night the pillar of fire illuminated the way they should go. †

20 You sent your good Spirit † to instruct them.
You did not withhold your manna † from their mouths, and you gave them water for their thirst. †

21 You provided for them in the wilderness forty years, † and they lacked nothing.
Their clothes did not wear out,
and their feet did not swell. †

22 You gave them kingdoms and peoples and established boundaries for them.
They took possession of the land of King Sihon † of Heshbon and of the land of King Og of Bashan. †

23 You multiplied their descendants like the stars of the sky † and brought them to the land you told their ancestors to go in and possess.

24 So their descendants went in and possessed the land: You subdued the Canaanites who inhabited the land before them and handed their kings and the surrounding peoples over to them, † to do as they pleased with them.

25 They captured fortified cities and fertile land and took possession of well-supplied houses, cisterns cut out of rock, vineyards, olive groves, and fruit trees in abundance. †
They ate, were filled, became prosperous, and delighted in your great goodness.

26 But they were disobedient and rebelled against you.
They flung your law behind their backs † and killed your prophets † who warned them
in order to turn them back to you.
They committed terrible blasphemies.

27 So you handed them over to their enemies, who oppressed them.
In their time of distress, they cried out to you, and you heard from heaven.
In your abundant compassion you gave them deliverers, who rescued them from the power of their enemies.
28 But as soon as they had relief, they again did what was evil in your sight.
So you abandoned them to the power of their enemies, who dominated them.
When they cried out to you again, you heard from heaven and rescued them many times in your compassion. † 29 You warned them to turn back to your law, but they acted arrogantly and would not obey your commands.
They sinned against your ordinances, which a person will live by if he does them. †
They stubbornly resisted, † stiffened their necks, and would not obey.
30 You were patient with them for many years, and your Spirit warned them through your prophets, † but they would not listen.
Therefore, you handed them over to the surrounding peoples. †
31 However, in your abundant compassion, you did not destroy them or abandon them, † for you are a gracious and compassionate God. †

32 So now, our God — the great, mighty, and awe-inspiring God who keeps his gracious covenant † — do not view lightly all the hardships that have afflicted us, our kings and leaders, our priests and prophets,
our ancestors and all your people,
from the days of the Assyrian kings † until today.
33 You are righteous concerning all that has happened to us, because you have acted faithfully, while we have acted wickedly. † 34 Our kings, leaders, priests, and ancestors did not obey your law or listen to your commands and warnings you gave them.

35 When they were in their kingdom, with your abundant goodness that you gave them, and in the spacious and fertile land you set before them, † they would not serve you or turn from their wicked ways.

36 Here we are today, slaves in the land you gave our ancestors so that they could enjoy its fruit and its goodness.

Here we are — slaves in it! †

37 Its abundant harvest goes to the kings you have set over us, because of our sins.
They rule over our bodies and our livestock as they please. †
We are in great distress.

ISRAEL'S VOW OF FAITHFULNESS

9:1-3 Later that month (see 8:2,13), the Israelites gathered again around the Scriptures. This time grieving over their sins was appropriate (cp. 8:8-12). The mention of separating themselves from all foreigners suggests the sin of intermarriage with idolatrous neighbors was again in view (see Ezr 9:1).

9:5-15 The first part of the Israelites' prayer of confession praises God who both created the universe and graciously chose their forefather Abram (vv. 5-7; see "Agnosticism and Secularism," p. 620). God promised him land as a part of the covenant he had made with him (v. 8), and he later brought out Abraham's descendants from Egypt so that they might possess this land (vv. 9-15).

9:16-19 Despite the Israelites' rebellion and disobedience, God, who is gracious and compassionate, did not abandon them and continued to guide them in the wilderness (see also the note on v. 31).

9:23-26 As God promised, the Israelites entered the land and took possession of it. Nevertheless, they continued to be disobedient and rebelled against God, who punished them through foreign enemies (vv. 27-28).

9:31 Despite centuries of sin leading ultimately to the nation's exile, God did not abandon them, for [he is] a gracious and compassionate God. The faithfulness of God had been mentioned earlier (see the note on vv. 16-19).

9:32-37 As the Israelites continued to confess their sins and God's righteous judgment, they also asked him to take notice of their current hardship (v. 32). Although they had returned to the land, they were slaves in it (v. 36) and were in great distress (v. 37). They needed a new act of salvation from God, just as their forefathers had experienced long ago in Egypt (see also the note on Ezr 9:6-9).

9:38–10:29 The leaders, Levites, and priests agreed to keep the law of Moses, with an emphasis on a few particulars (see the note on 10:28-39). Nehemiah is the first person listed (10:1).

10 Those whose seals were on the document were the governor Nehemiah † son of Hacaliah, and Zedekiah,

24 Hallohesh, Pilha, Shobek, 25 Rehum, Hashabnah, Maaseiah,
26 Ahijah, Hanan, Anan,
27 Malluch, Harim, Baanah.

28 The rest of the people — the priests, Levites, gatekeepers, singers, and temple servants, along with their wives, sons, and daughters, everyone who is able to understand † and who has separated themselves from the surrounding peoples † to obey the law of God — 29 join with their noble brothers and commit themselves with a sworn oath † † to follow the law of God given through God's servant Moses † and to obey carefully all the commands, ordinances, and statutes of the LORD our Lord.

DETAILS OF THE VOW

30 We will not give our daughters in marriage to the surrounding peoples and will not take their daughters as wives for our sons. †
31 When the surrounding peoples bring merchandise or any kind of grain to sell on the Sabbath day, we will not buy from them on the Sabbath or a holy day. †
We will also leave the land uncultivated in the seventh year † and will cancel every debt. †
32 We will impose the following commands on ourselves: To give an eighth of an ounce of silver † yearly for the service of the house of our God: † 33 the bread displayed before the LORD, † † the daily grain offering, the regular burnt offering, the Sabbath and New Moon offerings, † the appointed festivals, the holy things, the sin offerings to atone for Israel, † and for all the work of the house of our God.
34 We have cast lots † among the priests, Levites, and people for the donation of wood by our ancestral families † at the appointed times each year. They are to bring the wood to our God's house to burn on the altar of the LORD our God, † as it is written in the law.
35 We will bring the firstfruits of our land and of every fruit tree to the LORD's house year by year. † 36 We will also bring the firstborn of our sons and our livestock, as prescribed by the law, and will bring the firstborn of our herds and flocks to the house of our God, † to the priests who serve in our God's house.
37 We will bring a loaf from our first batch of dough † to the priests at the storerooms of the house of our God. We will also bring the firstfruits of our grain offerings, of every fruit tree, and of the new wine and fresh oil. † A tenth of our land's produce belongs to the Levites, for the Levites are to collect the one-tenth offering in all our agricultural towns. † 38 A priest from Aaron's descendants is to accompany the Levites when they collect the tenth, † and the Levites are to take a tenth of this offering to the storerooms of the treasury in the house of our God. † 39 For the Israelites and the Levites are to bring the contributions of grain, new wine, and fresh oil to the storerooms where the articles of the sanctuary are kept † and where the priests who minister are, along with the gatekeepers and singers. We will not neglect the house of our God. †

10:28-39 The commitment to keep the law of God given through Moses also involved separation from the surrounding peoples (see also the note on Ezr 2:59). The Israelites had been guilty of intermarriage with their idolatrous neighbors earlier (see Ezr 9:1-3; 10:1-11), and this sin is the first one mentioned in the present vow (v. 30). They also promised to keep the Sabbath laws (v. 31) and to provide financial support for the temple service (vv. 32-39).

RESETTLING JERUSALEM

11 Now the leaders of the people stayed in Jerusalem, † and the rest of the people cast lots † for one out of ten to come and live in Jerusalem, the holy city, † while the other nine-tenths remained in their towns. † 2 The people blessed all the men who volunteered † to live in Jerusalem.

3 These are the heads of the province who stayed in Jerusalem † (but in the villages of Judah each lived on his own property in their towns † — the Israelites, priests, Levites, temple servants, and descendants of Solomon's servants † — 4 while some of the descendants of Judah and Benjamin settled in Jerusalem):

Judah's † descendants: Athaiah son of Uzziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalalel, of Perez's descendants; 5 and Maaseiah son of Baruch, son of Col-hozeh, son of Hazaiah, son of Adaiah, son of Joiarib, son of Zechariah, a descendant of the Shilonite. 6 The total number of Perez's descendants, who settled in Jerusalem, was 468 capable men.

7 These were Benjamin's descendants: Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Joed, son of Pedaiah, son of Kolaiah, son of Maaseiah, son of Ithiel, son of Jeshaiah, 8 and after him Gabbai and Sallai: 928. 9 Joel son of Zichri was the officer over them, and Judah son of Hassenuah was second in command over the city.

10 The priests: Jedaiah son of Joiarib, Jachin, and 11 Seraiah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, the chief official of God's temple, 12 and their relatives who did the work at the temple: 822. Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pelaliah, son of Amzi, son of Zechariah, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah [13] and his relatives, the heads of families: 242. Amashsai son of Azarel, son of Ahzai, son of Meshillemoth, son of Immer, [14] and their relatives, capable men: 128. Zabdiel son of Haggedolim, was their chief.

[15] The Levites: Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Bunni; [16] and Shabbethai and Jozabad, from the heads of the Levites, who supervised the work outside the house of God; [17] Mattaniah son of Mica, son of Zabdi, son of Asaph, the one † who began the thanksgiving in prayer; † Bakbukiah, second among his relatives; and Abda son of Shammua, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun. † [18] All the Levites in the holy city: † 284.
[19] The gatekeepers: Akkub, Talmon, and their relatives, who guarded the city gates: 172.
[20] The rest of Israel, the priests, and the Levites were in all the villages of Judah, each on his own inherited property. † [21] The temple servants lived on Ophel; † Ziha and Gishpa supervised the temple servants.

THE LEVITES AND PRIESTS

[22] The leader of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzzi son of Bani, son of Hashabiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Mica, of the descendants of Asaph, who were singers for the service of God's house. [23] There was, in fact, a command of the king regarding them, and an ordinance regulating the singers' † daily tasks.
[24] Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, of the descendants of Zerah † son of Judah, was the king's † agent † in every matter concerning the people.
[25] As for the farming settlements with their fields:

Some of Judah's descendants lived in Kiriath-arba † and Dibon and their surrounding villages, † and Jekabzeel and its settlements;
[26] in Jeshua, Moladah, † Beth-pelet,
[27] Hazar-shual, and Beer-sheba † and its surrounding villages;
[28] in Ziklag † and Meconah and its surrounding villages;

29 in En-rimmon, Zorah, † Jarmuth, † and 30 Zanoah † and Adullam with their settlements; in Lachish † with its fields and Azekah † and its surrounding villages.
So they settled from Beer-sheba † to Hinnom Valley. †

31 Benjamin's descendants:
from Geba, † † Michmash, † Aija, and Bethel † and its surrounding villages,
32 Anathoth, † Nob, † Ananiah, 33 Hazor, † Ramah, † Gittaim, †
34 Hadid, Zeboim, † Neballat, 35 Lod, and Ono, † in Craftsmen's Valley.
36 Some of the Judean divisions of Levites were in Benjamin.

11:1-2 Few people were living in Jerusalem (7:4), and the Israelite community ensured that it would be sufficiently populated by casting lots for one out of every ten to live there. The others stayed in their towns.

11:4-19 Most of those who had returned from exile were from the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, and Levi (see Ezr 1:5-6), which explains the similar demographics of those who were to live in Jerusalem (vv. 4,7,10,15).

12 These † are the priests and Levites † who went up with Zerubbabel † son of Shealtiel and with Jeshua:

Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra,
2 Amariah, Malluch, Hattush,
3 Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth,
4 Iddo, † Ginnethoi, Abijah, †
5 Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah,
6 Shemaiah, Joiarib, Jedaiah, †
7 Sallu, Amok, Hilkiah, Jedaiah.

These were the heads of the priests and their relatives in the days of Jeshua. †
8 The Levites:

Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah † — he and his relatives were in charge of the songs of praise.
9 Bakbukiah, Unni, † and their relatives stood opposite them in the services.
10 Jeshua fathered Joiakim,
Joiakim fathered Eliashib,
Eliashib † fathered Joiada,
11 Joiada fathered Jonathan, and Jonathan fathered Jaddua. †

12 In the days of Joiakim, the heads of the priestly families were

Meraiah	of Seraiah,
Hananiah	of Jeremiah,
13 Meshullam	of Ezra,
Jehohanan	of Amariah,
14 Jonathan	of Malluchi,
Joseph	of Shebaniah,

15 Adna of Harim,
Helkai of Meraioth,
16 Zechariah of Iddo,
Meshullam of Ginnethon,
17 Zichri of Abijah,
Piltai of Moadiah, of Miniamin,
18 Shammua of Bilgah,
Jehonathan of Shemaiah,
19 Mattenai of Joiarib,
Uzzi of Jedaiah,
20 Kallai of Sallai,
Eber of Amok,
21 Hashabiah of Hilkiah, and Nethanel of Jedaiah.

22 In the days of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua, the heads of the families of the Levites and priests were recorded while Darius the Persian ruled. 23 Levi's descendants, the family heads, were recorded in the Book of the Historical Events † during the days of Johanan son of Eliashib. 24 The heads of the Levites — Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua son of Kadmiel, along with their relatives opposite them — gave praise and thanks, division by division, as David the man of God had prescribed. † 25 This included Mattaniah, † Bakbukiah, and Obadiah. Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub were gatekeepers who guarded the storerooms at the city gates. † 26 These served in the days of Joiakim son of Jeshua, son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governor † and Ezra the priest and scribe. †

DEDICATION OF THE WALL

27 At the dedication of the wall † of Jerusalem, they sent for the Levites wherever they lived and brought them to Jerusalem to celebrate the joyous dedication with thanksgiving and singing accompanied by cymbals, harps, and lyres. † 28 The singers gathered from the region around Jerusalem, from the settlements of the Netophathites, † 29 from Beth-gilgal, and from the fields of Geba and Azmaveth, for they had built settlements for themselves around

Jerusalem. 30 After the priests and Levites had purified themselves, they purified the people, the city gates, and the wall. † 31 Then I brought the leaders of Judah up on top of the wall, and I appointed two large processions that gave thanks. One went to the right on the wall, toward the Dung Gate. † 32 Hoshaiah and half the leaders of Judah followed, 33 along with Azariah, Ezra, Meshullam, 34 Judah, Benjamin, Shemaiah, Jeremiah, 35 and some of the priests' sons with trumpets, and Zechariah son of Jonathan, son of Shemaiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Micaiah, son of Zaccur, son of Asaph followed 36 as well as his relatives — Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethanel, Judah, and Hanani, with the musical instruments of David, the man of God. † Ezra the scribe † went in front of them. 37 At the Fountain Gate † they climbed the steps of the city of David † on the ascent of the wall and went above the house of David to the Water Gate † on the east.
38 The second thanksgiving procession went to the left, and I followed it with half the people along the top of the wall, past the Tower of the Ovens † to the Broad Wall, † 39 above the Ephraim Gate, † and by the Old Gate, † the Fish Gate, † the Tower of Hananel, and the Tower of the Hundred, to the Sheep Gate. † They stopped at the Gate of the Guard. † 40 The two thanksgiving processions stood in the house of God. So did I and half of the officials accompanying me, 41 as well as the priests:

Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah, with trumpets;
42 and Maaseiah, Shemaiah, Eleazar, Uzzi, Jehohanan, Malchijah, Elam, and Ezer.

Then the singers sang, with Jezrahiah as the leader. 43 On that day they offered great sacrifices and rejoiced because God had given them great joy. † The women and children also celebrated, and Jerusalem's rejoicing was heard far away. †

SUPPORT OF THE LEVITES' MINISTRY

44 On that same day men were placed in charge of the rooms † that housed the supplies, contributions, firstfruits, and tenths. † The legally required portions for the priests and Levites † were gathered from the village fields, because Judah was grateful to the priests and Levites who were serving. † 45 They performed the service of their God and the service of purification, along with the singers and gatekeepers, † as David and his son Solomon had prescribed. † 46 For long ago, in the days of David and Asaph, † there were heads † of the singers and songs of praise and thanksgiving to God. † 47 So in the days of Zerubbabel † and Nehemiah, † all Israel contributed the daily portions † for the singers and gatekeepers. They also set aside daily portions for the Levites, and the Levites set aside daily portions † for Aaron's descendants.

12:24 Instructions from David to the Levites to praise God can be found in 1 Chronicles 23:26-32 (see the note).

12:27-31 Like the dedication of Solomon's temple long ago, the dedication of the wall was accompanied by the Levite musicians (see the note on 2Ch 5:11-14).

12:36 Leading the first of these processions along the wall was Ezra the scribe. His prominent position serves as another reminder of the importance of the Scriptures (see notes on Ezr 8).

12:43 The dedication of the wall was a joyous occasion, and the sound of celebration was heard from far away. This is similar to what happened when the foundation of the temple was laid (see Ezr 3:12-13).

12:44-47 These contributions had been promised in 10:32-39.

NEHEMIAH'S FURTHER REFORMS

13 At that time † the book of Moses † was read publicly to † the people. † The command was found written in it that no Ammonite or Moabite † should ever enter the assembly of God, † 2 because they did not meet the Israelites with food and water. Instead, they hired Balaam against them to curse them, † but our God turned the curse into a blessing. † 3 When they heard the law, they separated all those of mixed descent † from Israel.

4 Now before this, the priest Eliashib † had been put in charge of the storerooms of the house of our God. † He was a relative † of Tobiah † 5 and had prepared a large room for him where they had previously stored the grain offerings, the frankincense, the articles, and the tenths of grain, new wine, and fresh oil † prescribed for the Levites, singers, and gatekeepers, along with the contributions for the priests. †

6 While all this was happening, I was not in Jerusalem, because I had returned to King Artaxerxes † of Babylon † in the thirty-second year of his reign. † It was only later that I asked the king for a leave of absence † 7 so I could return to Jerusalem. Then I discovered the evil that Eliashib had done on behalf of Tobiah by providing him a room in the courts of God's house. 8 I was greatly displeased and threw all of Tobiah's household possessions out of the room. 9 I ordered that the rooms be purified, † and I had the articles of the house of God restored there, along with the grain offering and frankincense. † 10 I also found out that because the portions for the Levites had not been given, † each of the Levites and the singers performing the service had gone back to his own field. †

11 Therefore, I rebuked the officials, asking, "Why has the house of God been neglected?" † I gathered the Levites and singers together and stationed them at their posts. † 12 Then all Judah brought a tenth of the grain, new wine, and fresh oil into the storehouses. † 13 I appointed as treasurers over the storehouses the priest Shelemiah, the scribe Zadok, and Pedaiah of the Levites, with Hanan son of Zaccur, son of Mattaniah to assist them, because they were considered trustworthy. † They were responsible for the distribution to their colleagues. †

14 Remember me for this, my God, and don't erase the deeds of faithful love I have done for the house of my God and for its services. †

15 At that time I saw people in Judah treading winepresses on the Sabbath. They were also bringing in stores of grain and loading them on donkeys, along with wine, grapes, and figs. All kinds of goods were being brought to Jerusalem on the Sabbath day. So I warned them against selling food on that day. † 16 The Tyrians living there were importing fish and all kinds of merchandise and selling them on the Sabbath to the people of Judah in Jerusalem. †

17 I rebuked the nobles of Judah and said to them: “What is this evil you are doing — profaning the Sabbath day? † 18 Didn’t your ancestors do the same, so that our God brought all this disaster on us and on this city? † And now you are rekindling his anger against Israel by profaning the Sabbath! ”
19 When shadows began to fall on the city gates of Jerusalem just before the Sabbath, I gave orders that the city gates be closed and not opened until after the Sabbath. † I posted some of my men at the gates, so that no goods could enter during the Sabbath day. † 20 Once or twice the merchants and those who sell all kinds of goods camped outside Jerusalem, 21 but I warned them, “Why are you camping in front of the wall? If you do it again, I’ll use force † against you.” After that they did not come again on the Sabbath. 22 Then I instructed the Levites to purify themselves † and guard the city gates in order to keep the Sabbath day holy. † Remember me for this also, my God, † and look on me with compassion according to the abundance of your faithful love. †
23 In those days I also saw Jews who had married women from Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab. † 24 Half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod or the language of one of the other peoples but could not speak Hebrew. † † 25 I rebuked them, cursed them, beat some of their men, and pulled out their hair. † I forced them to take an oath † before God and said, “You must not give your daughters in marriage to their sons or take their daughters as wives for your sons or yourselves! † 26 Didn’t King Solomon of Israel sin in matters like this? There was not a king like him among many nations. He was loved by his God, and God made him king over all Israel, yet foreign women drew him into sin. †
27 Why then should we hear about you doing all this terrible evil and acting unfaithfully against our God by marrying foreign women? ” † 28 Even one of the sons of Jehoiada, son of the high priest Eliashib, † had become a son-in-law to Sanballat the Horonite. † So I drove him away from me. †

29 Remember them, my God, for defiling the priesthood as well as the covenant of the priesthood and the Levites. †
30 So I purified them from everything foreign † and assigned specific duties to each of the priests and Levites. † 31 I also arranged for the donation of wood at the appointed times and for the firstfruits. †
Remember me, my God, with favor. †

13:1-3 The Israelites also separated themselves from all those of mixed descent. Such separation related to obedience to the law of Moses (see also the note on 10:28-39). The concern was not ethnic, for Israelites were allowed to marry foreigners. Rather, the issue was religious: to marry unbelieving spouses was to invite compromise and apostasy (see the note on Ezr 9:6-9). The story of Moab's hiring Balaam in order to curse the Israelites is told in Numbers 22–24.

13:4-9 While Nehemiah was away (v. 6), Eliashib the priest, a relative of Tobiah the Ammonite, prepared a room in the temple courts for this enemy of Israel (see the notes on 4:1-3,4-5,7-14). Nehemiah took swift action upon learning of it.

13:10-12 Despite Israel's promise not to neglect the temple (10:39) and their recent obedience in this regard (12:44-47), Nehemiah learned that each Levite had gone back to his own field because they were not being given their portions. As he had done before (see the previous note), he confronted those responsible and righted the situation.

13:14 As he had done previously (5:19), Nehemiah repeatedly prayed in this chapter that God would remember him favorably for his service (see vv. 22,29,31).

13:15-22 The Israelites had promised not only to support the temple service but also to keep the Sabbath (see the note on 10:28-39). Nehemiah discovered that they were breaking this law as well and warned them that they were rekindling [God's] anger (v. 18). He again took decisive action to prevent further violations of this law (see the previous note).

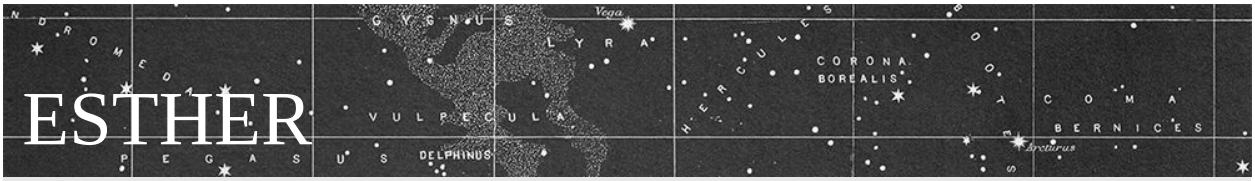
13:23-28 The Jews (Israelites) were also guilty of intermarriage with their idolatrous neighbors. Nehemiah was furious (v. 25) and warned them of Solomon's unfaithfulness in this area (v. 26). Thus, the Israelites had violated all three of the laws that they had specifically mentioned earlier when they had vowed to keep the law of Moses (see vv. 10-22 and the note on 10:28-39). The conclusion of the book of Nehemiah thus painfully illustrates that the Israelites' hearts had not changed; they were still in need of the new covenant (see the notes on Dt 30:1-6 and Ezr 3:10-13).



ESTHER

INTRODUCTION

Esther is a unique book. It is the only book in the Bible that never mentions God, although his presence is implied due to Mordecai's allusion to divine providence (4:14). At times the book seems rather secular; historically this has contributed to questions regarding its place in the canon of the synagogue and the church. Esther is tightly connected with specific historical events, yet it is also a piece of literature, a narrative with all of the literary features necessary to make it a great story. It is a book in which its purposes are not always explicitly stated but are derived from the story as a whole.

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

AUTHOR: As in most OT books, the author of the book is unknown. In the Jewish Talmud it is suggested that the members of the Great Synagogue wrote the book. However, it is hard to imagine this prestigious group of religious scholars writing a book that mentions the Persian king 190 times but never mentions God. Many early writers, Jewish as well as Christian, suggested Mordecai as the author.

BACKGROUND: The story of Esther is rooted in the historical situation of King Xerxes (Ahasuerus), who ruled as king of Persia from 486–465 BC.

Mid-twentieth century critical scholars tended to date the book late, even into the second century BC. However, most now argue for an earlier date. The discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls in 1947 showed that the Hebrew of Esther was very different from the Hebrew of the first century BC. Also, there are no Greek words in the text of Esther, which would suggest that it was written before Alexander the Great's conquest (ca. 333 BC) made Greek the language of the region. Most likely the book was written in the fourth century BC.

The book gives every indication of being a historical narrative. For that reason the alleged historical anomalies in the text raise for many interpreters problems in accepting the historicity of the story. While it is regrettable not to have any extant extrabiblical confirmation of the main characters in the story (Esther, Haman, Mordecai), several points must be considered.

First, there are few extant Persian records for Xerxes' reign; thus, very few historical figures are known from this time. Moreover, the Greek writers, especially Herotodus, were writing their history particularly as it related to the Greeks—not as court historians for the Persians—thus, their material is selective and would leave unmentioned many significant figures. Second, the absence of extrabiblical evidence does not mean these people did not exist. Third, while there is no positive extrabiblical confirmation of these individuals, they appear in an account that even ardent critics acknowledge as being remarkably accurate in its description of the Persian era.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

Without ever mentioning God directly, the book of Esther underscores the providence of God. God's promise to give the Jews an eternal ruler remained in place, even in the face of threatened annihilation. Esther shows us that many Jews remained faithful to their God even in exile. They kept their identity as God's people through the synagogues that developed as the centers of the Jewish community wherever Jews settled. The synagogues would later play a significant role as the gospel spread throughout the Roman Empire, for these served as natural starting places for the deliverance of the gospel in the towns visited by the apostles (e.g., Ac 9:20; 17:1-2; 18:19; 19:8).

STRUCTURE

The Hebrew of the Masoretic Text used as the basis for the Christian Standard Bible is a fairly straightforward text. It is written in a form of late biblical Hebrew common to the postexilic era and found in other biblical books of that time, such as Chronicles, Ezra-Nehemiah, and Daniel. Like Ezra-Nehemiah, Esther shows the growing influence of Aramaic in its grammar and vocabulary, as well as the presence of many Persian words.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

The book reveals the providence of God in caring for his covenant people. Although many evils —including satanic opposition—may come against God's people, nothing ever happens beyond God's ability to work all things "together for the good of those who love God, who are called according to his purpose" (Rm 8:28).

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

The villainy of Haman demonstrates human depravity at its worst; the integrity of Mordecai shows the enormous good that one person can do. Esther's story (like Joseph's in Genesis) demonstrates that when God's people face difficult circumstances they are to act courageously and risk themselves for a righteous cause rather than give in to "fate" or "being unlucky."

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

God will accomplish his redemptive purposes. If Haman's edict to destroy the Jews had succeeded, the coming of the Jews' ultimate deliverer, Jesus the Messiah-King, would have been imperiled. God's plan to save cannot be thwarted, and he has always taken the initiative to bring about salvation.

VASHTI ANGERS THE KING

1 These events took place during the days of Ahasuerus, † who ruled 127 provinces † from India to Cush. 2 In those days King Ahasuerus reigned from his royal throne † in the fortress at Susa. † 3 He held a feast † in the third year of his reign for all his officials and staff, the army of Persia and Media, † the nobles, † and the officials from the provinces. 4 He displayed the glorious wealth of his kingdom and the magnificent splendor of his greatness † for a total of 180 days.

5 At the end of this time, the king held a week-long banquet † in the garden courtyard † of the royal palace † for all the people, from the greatest to the least, † who were present in the fortress of Susa. † 6 White and violet linen hangings were fastened with fine white and purple linen cords to silver rods on marble † columns. Gold and silver couches † were arranged on a mosaic pavement of red feldspar, † marble, mother-of-pearl, and precious stones.

7 Drinks were served in an array of gold goblets, † each with a different design. Royal wine flowed freely, according to the king's bounty. † 8 The drinking was according to royal decree: "There are no restrictions." The king had ordered every wine steward in his household to serve whatever each person wanted. 9 Queen Vashti also gave a feast for the women of King Ahasuerus's palace.

10 On the seventh day, when the king was feeling good from the wine, † Ahasuerus commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, † Bigtha, Abagtha, Zethar, and Carkas — the seven eunuchs † who personally served him — 11 to bring Queen Vashti before him with her royal crown. He wanted to show off her beauty to the people and the officials, because she was very beautiful. † 12 But Queen Vashti refused to come at the king's command that was delivered by his eunuchs. The king became furious and his anger burned within him. †

THE KING'S DECREE

13 The king consulted the wise men † who understood the times, † † for it was his normal procedure to confer with experts in law and justice. 14 The most trusted ones † were Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, and Memucan. They were the seven officials † of Persia and Media † who had personal access to the king † and occupied the highest positions in the kingdom. † 15 The king asked, "According to the law, what should be done with Queen Vashti, since she refused to obey King Ahasuerus's command that was delivered by the eunuchs? "

16 Memucan said in the presence of the king and his officials, "Queen Vashti has wronged not only the king, but all the officials and the peoples who are in every one of King Ahasuerus's provinces. † 17 For the queen's action will become public knowledge to all the women and cause them to despise their husbands and say, 'King Ahasuerus ordered Queen Vashti brought before him, but she did not come.' 18 Before this day is over, the noble women of Persia and Media who hear about the queen's act will say the same thing to all the king's officials, resulting in more contempt and fury.
19 "If it meets the king's approval, he should personally issue a royal decree. Let it be recorded in the laws of Persia and Media, so that it cannot be revoked: † Vashti is not to enter King Ahasuerus's presence, and her royal position is to be given to another woman who is more worthy than she. † 20 The decree the king issues will be heard throughout his vast kingdom, † so all women will honor their husbands, † from the greatest to the least." †
21 The king and his counselors approved the proposal, and he followed Memucan's advice. 22 He sent letters to all the royal provinces, to each province in its own script and to each ethnic group in its own language, † that every man should be master of his own house and speak in the language of his own people.

1:1 The book of Esther is set in the Persian kingdom during the fifth century BC. The most notable feature of this book is the lack of any mention of "LORD" or "God." Although such explicit references are absent, his presence and activity are evident nevertheless through his sovereign orchestration of many circumstances leading to the salvation of Israel (see the notes on 2:9,17,21-23; 5:9-14; 6:1-3). In this way, the book serves as a reminder that although God sometimes does work through obvious miracles, signs, and wonders, he often works through more subtle means (see the notes on Ru 2:3; 1Kg 19:11-13).

1:3-12 These verses reveal that King Ahasuerus was given to pride, extravagance, alcohol, and anger. Nevertheless, God reigns and was still in control (see the note on v. 1; Pr 21:1). Ahasuerus commanded that Queen Vashti come before him with her royal crown in order to show off her beauty (v. 11). Jewish tradition teaches that she was expected to appear naked, but there is no historical evidence to support this. Rather, she probably thought the request to parade her beauty was demeaning and beneath her high status. It was usually concubines who were expected to act in this way.

1:21 Ahasuerus was also given to following bad advice (see the previous note; 3:8-11). Memucan ’s counsel recast Vashti’s embarrassment of the king as though it were a threat to the authority of husbands throughout the entire kingdom (vv. 16-20). This would not be the first time a relatively minor incident would be blown out of proportion (see 3:1-6).

THE SEARCH FOR A NEW QUEEN

2 Some time later, † when King Ahasuerus’s rage † had cooled down, he remembered Vashti, what she had done, and what was decided against her. † 2 The king’s personal attendants suggested, “Let a search be made for beautiful young virgins for the king. † 3 Let the king appoint commissioners † in each province of his kingdom, so that they may gather all the beautiful young virgins to the harem at the fortress of Susa. † Put them under the supervision of Hegai, the king’s eunuch, † keeper of the women, † and give them the required beauty treatments. 4 Then the young woman who pleases the king † will become queen instead of Vashti.” † This suggestion pleased the king, and he did accordingly.

5 In the fortress of Susa, there was a Jewish man named Mordecai † son of Jair, son of Shimei, † son of Kish, † a Benjaminite. 6 He had been taken into exile from Jerusalem with the other captives when King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon took King Jeconiah of Judah into exile. † 7 Mordecai was the legal guardian of his cousin † Hadassah (that is, Esther), because she had no father or mother. The young woman had a beautiful figure and was extremely good-looking. When her father and mother died, Mordecai had adopted her as his own daughter. †

8 When the king’s command and edict became public knowledge and when many young women were gathered at the fortress of Susa under Hegai’s supervision, Esther was taken to the palace, into the supervision of Hegai, keeper of the women. 9 The young woman pleased him and gained his favor so that he accelerated the process of the beauty treatments and the special diet that she received. He assigned seven hand-picked female servants to her from the palace and transferred her and her servants to the harem’s best quarters.

10 Esther did not reveal her ethnicity or her family background, because Mordecai had ordered her not to make them known. 11 Every day Mordecai took a walk in front of the harem's courtyard to learn how Esther was doing and to see what was happening to her.

12 During the year before each young woman's turn to go to King Ahasuerus, the harem regulation required her to receive beauty treatments with oil of myrrh for six months and then with perfumes and cosmetics for another six months.
13 When the young woman would go to the king, she was given whatever she requested to take with her from the harem to the palace. 14 She would go in the evening, and in the morning she would return to a second harem under the supervision of the king's eunuch Shaashgaz, keeper of the concubines. † She never went to the king again, unless he desired her and summoned her by name. †

ESTHER BECOMES QUEEN

15 Esther was the daughter of Abihail, † the uncle of Mordecai who had adopted her as his own daughter. When her turn came to go to the king, she did not ask for anything except what Hegai, the king's eunuch, keeper of the women, suggested. Esther gained favor in the eyes of everyone who saw her. † 16 She was taken to King Ahasuerus in the palace in the tenth month, the month Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign. † 17 The king loved Esther more than all the other women. She won more favor and approval from him than did any of the other virgins. He placed the royal crown on her head and made her queen in place of Vashti. † 18 The king held a great banquet for all his officials and staff. † It was Esther's banquet. He freed his provinces from tax payments and gave gifts worthy of the king's bounty. †

MORDECAI SAVES THE KING

19 When the virgins † were gathered a second time, Mordecai was sitting at the King's Gate. † 20 (Esther had not revealed her family background or her ethnicity, as Mordecai had directed. She obeyed Mordecai's orders, as she always had while he raised her.) 21 During those days while Mordecai was sitting at the King's Gate, Bigthan and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs † who guarded the entrance, became infuriated and planned to assassinate † King Ahasuerus. 22 When Mordecai learned of the plot, he reported it to Queen

Esther, and she told the king on Mordecai's behalf. † 23 When the report was investigated and verified, both men were hanged on the gallows. † This event was recorded in the Historical Record in the king's presence.

2:1-4 King Ahasuerus's anger is mentioned again in v. 1 (1:12), and he now must deal with the practical consequences of his banishment of Vashti (see 1:19). The result was a kingdom-wide search for a new queen.

2:5-7 Mordecai was an exiled Jew who had become the guardian of his cousin Esther when her parents died. She was extremely good looking and was taken as a part of the search for a new queen (v. 8). Mordecai's instruction to Esther not to reveal her ethnic background is mentioned twice (vv. 10,20; see also 3:6).

2:9 The Lord's own favor is subtly evident through Hegai's favor toward Esther so that he accelerated the process . . . she received (see also the notes on 1:1 and 5:1-5).

2:17 Esther also received favor from King Ahasuerus, who chose her to be queen (see the previous note).

2:21-23 Although this passage concerning Mordecai's report of the assassination plot may seem out of place, its critical importance to the development of the narrative will become clear. Furthermore, it was because of God's wise timing that Mordecai was not immediately rewarded for his good deed (see the note on 6:1-3).

HAMAN'S PLAN TO KILL THE JEWS

3 After all this took place, King Ahasuerus honored Haman, son of Hammedatha the Agagite. † He promoted him in rank and gave him a higher position than all the other officials. † 2 The entire royal staff at the King's Gate † bowed down and paid homage to Haman, because the king had commanded this to be done for him. But Mordecai would not bow down or pay homage. † 3 The members of the royal staff at the King's Gate asked Mordecai, "Why are you disobeying the king's command?" 4 When they had warned him day after day † and he still would not listen to them, they told Haman in order to see if Mordecai's actions would be tolerated, since he had told them he was a Jew.

5 When Haman saw that Mordecai was not bowing down or paying him homage, he was filled with rage. † 6 And when he learned of Mordecai's ethnic identity, it seemed repugnant to Haman to do away with † Mordecai alone. He planned to destroy all of Mordecai's people, the Jews, † throughout Ahasuerus's kingdom. †

7 In the first month, the month of Nisan, in King Ahasuerus's twelfth year, † the Pur — that is, the lot — was cast before Haman for each day in each month, and it fell on the twelfth month, † the month Adar. † 8 Then Haman informed King Ahasuerus, "There is one ethnic group, scattered throughout the peoples in every province of your kingdom, † keeping themselves separate. Their laws are different from everyone else's and they do not obey the king's laws. † It is not in the king's best interest to tolerate them. † 9 If the king approves, let an order be drawn up authorizing their destruction, and I will pay 375 tons of silver to † the officials for deposit in the royal treasury." †

10 The king removed his signet ring † from his finger and gave it to Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of the Jewish people. † 11 Then the king told Haman, "The money and people are given to you to do with as you see fit."

12 The royal scribes were summoned † on the thirteenth day of the first month, and the order was written exactly as Haman commanded. It was intended for the royal satraps, † the governors of each of the provinces, and the officials of each ethnic group and written for each province in its own script and to each ethnic group in its own language. † It was written in the name of King Ahasuerus † and sealed with the royal signet ring. † 13 Letters were sent by couriers † to each of the royal provinces telling the officials to destroy, kill, and annihilate all the Jewish people — young and old, women and children — and plunder their possessions on a single day, † the thirteenth day of Adar, the twelfth month. †

14 A copy of the text, issued as law throughout every province, was distributed to all the peoples so that they might get ready for that day. 15 The couriers left, spurred on by royal command, and the law was issued in the fortress of Susa. † The king and Haman sat down to drink, while the city of Susa was in confusion. †

3:1-6 The king once again showed his foolishness, this time by honoring an arrogant and evil man (see the note on 1:3-12,21). The promotion of Haman adds an increased sense of danger and uncertainty to the developing narrative (see also vv. 10,15; note on 1:3-12). Haman was not only infuriated at Mordecai for not bowing down to him, but planned to destroy all of Mordecai's people, the Jews (see the note on 2:5-7).

3:8-11 The king again followed bad advice (see the note on 1:21). Having deposed his previous wife Vashti, he was unwittingly authorizing the execution of his present wife Esther. His signet ring carried with it his own royal authority.

MORDECAI APPEALS TO ESTHER

4 When Mordecai learned all that had occurred, † he tore his clothes, † put on sackcloth and ashes, † went into the middle of the city, and cried loudly and bitterly. † 2 He went only as far as the King's Gate, † since the law prohibited anyone wearing sackcloth from entering the King's Gate.
3 There was great mourning among the Jewish people in every province where the king's command and edict † came. They fasted, wept, and lamented, and many lay in sackcloth and ashes. † 4 Esther's female servants and her eunuchs came and reported the news to her, and the queen was overcome with fear. † She sent clothes for Mordecai to wear so that he would take off his sackcloth, but he did not accept them. 5 Esther summoned Hathach, one of the king's eunuchs who attended her, and dispatched him to Mordecai to learn what he was doing and why. † 6 So Hathach went out to Mordecai in the city square in front of the King's Gate. 7 Mordecai told him everything that had happened as well as the exact amount of money Haman had promised to pay the royal treasury for the slaughter of the Jews. † 8 Mordecai also gave him a copy of the written decree issued in Susa ordering their destruction, so that Hathach might show it to Esther, explain it to her, and command her to approach the king, implore his favor, and plead with him personally for her people. † 9 Hathach came and repeated Mordecai's response to Esther.

10 Esther spoke to Hathach and commanded him to tell Mordecai, 11 “All the royal officials and the people of the royal provinces know that one law applies to every man or woman who approaches the king in the inner courtyard † and who has not been summoned — the death penalty — † unless the king extends the gold scepter, allowing that person to live. † I have not been summoned to appear before the king † for the last † thirty days.” 12 Esther’s response was reported to Mordecai.
13 Mordecai told the messenger to reply to Esther, “Don’t think that you will escape the fate of all the Jews because you are in the king’s palace. 14 If you keep silent at this time, relief and deliverance will come to the Jewish people from another place, † but you and your father’s family will be destroyed. Who knows, perhaps you have come to your royal position for such a time as this.” † 15 Esther sent this reply to Mordecai: 16 “Go and assemble all the Jews who can be found in Susa and fast for me. Don’t eat or drink for three days, † night or day. I and my female servants will also fast † in the same way. After that, I will go to the king even if it is against the law. † If I perish, I perish.” † 17 So Mordecai went and did everything Esther had commanded him.

4:8-12 News of the command to kill all Jews on “the thirteenth day of . . . the twelfth month” (3:13) was met with mourning by Jews throughout the kingdom, including Mordecai (4:1-3). Esther learned about the royal order through a message from her uncle in which he urged her to plead for mercy before the king. Esther’s initial response, however, was hesitant, emphasizing the possibly of the death penalty for anyone who approached the king uninvited (v. 11). Although Esther had her own quarters, she may not have slept with the king frequently because of his many concubines. Nevertheless, that she had not appeared before him for the last thirty days may indicate that she had fallen out of favor. This, in turn, may explain her hesitancy.

4:13-16 Mordecai insisted that Esther go before the king, and his words indirectly reflect confidence in God’s preservation of the Jews (deliverance will come to the Jewish people from another place) and his sovereign purpose behind Esther becoming queen (Who knows, perhaps you have come to your royal position for such a time as this). Esther courageously agreed to approach the king after three days of fasting (and presumably prayer), despite the risk to her own life.

ESTHER APPROACHES THE KING

5 On the third day, † Esther dressed in her royal clothing and stood in the inner courtyard † of the palace facing it. The king was sitting on his royal throne in the royal courtroom, † facing its entrance. 2 As soon as the king saw Queen Esther standing in the courtyard, she gained favor in his eyes. The king extended the gold scepter in his hand toward Esther, and she approached and touched the tip of the scepter. †
3 "What is it, Queen Esther?" the king asked her. "Whatever you want, even to half the kingdom, will be given to you." †
4 "If it pleases the king," Esther replied, "may the king and Haman come today to the banquet † I have prepared for them."
5 The king said, "Hurry, and get Haman so we can do as Esther has requested." So the king and Haman went to the banquet Esther had prepared.
6 While drinking the † wine, † the king asked Esther, "Whatever you ask will be given to you. Whatever you want, even to half the kingdom, will be done."
7 Esther answered, "This is my petition and my request: 8 If I have found favor in the eyes of the king, and if it pleases the king to grant my petition and perform my request, † may the king and Haman come to the banquet I will prepare for them. † Tomorrow I will do what the king has asked."
9 That day Haman left full of joy and in good spirits. † † But when Haman saw Mordecai at the King's Gate, and Mordecai didn't rise or tremble in fear at his presence, Haman was filled with rage toward Mordecai. † 10 Yet Haman controlled himself and went home. He sent for his friends and his wife Zeresh † to join him. 11 Then Haman described for them his glorious wealth and his many sons. He told them all how the king had honored him and promoted him in rank over the other officials and the royal staff. † 12 "What's more," Haman added, "Queen Esther invited no one but me to join the king at the banquet she had prepared. I am invited again tomorrow to join her with the king. 13 Still, none of this satisfies me since I see Mordecai the Jew sitting at the King's Gate all the time."
14 His wife Zeresh and all his friends told him, "Have them build a gallows seventy-five feet † tall. † Ask the king in the morning to hang Mordecai on it.

Then go to the banquet with the king and enjoy yourself." The advice pleased Haman, so he had the gallows constructed. †

5:1-5 Yet again, Esther received favor (see the notes on 2:9,17), and this time it saved her life (vv. 1-2). The king graciously heard and granted her request that he and Haman attend a banquet she had prepared (vv. 3-5).

5:9-14 The ultimate reason why Esther did not reveal her intentions at the first banquet is not entirely clear (vv. 6-8), but it gave Haman a chance to become infuriated with Mordecai again while on his way home (v. 9) and to prepare to have him hanged (vv. 12-14). The Lord's sovereign hand is evident through such timing (see the note on 1:1).

MORDECAI HONORED BY THE KING

6 That night sleep escaped † the king, so he ordered the book recording daily events to be brought and read to the king. 2 They found the written report of how Mordecai had informed on Bigthana and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs who guarded the entrance, when they planned to assassinate King Ahasuerus. † 3 The king inquired, "What honor and special recognition have been given to Mordecai for this act?" †

The king's personal attendants replied, "Nothing has been done for him."

4 The king asked, "Who is in the court?" Now Haman was just entering the outer court of the palace to ask the king to hang Mordecai on the gallows he had prepared for him. †

5 The king's attendants answered him, "Haman is there, standing in the court."

"Have him enter," the king ordered. 6 Haman entered, and the king asked him, "What should be done for the man the king wants to honor?" †

Haman thought to himself, "Who is it the king would want to honor more than me?" 7 Haman told the king, "For the man the king wants to honor: 8 Have them bring a royal garment that the king himself has worn † and a horse the king himself has ridden, † which has a royal crown on its head. 9 Put the garment and the horse under the charge of one of the king's most noble officials. † Have them clothe the man the king wants to honor, parade him on the horse through the city square, and proclaim before him, 'This is what is done for the man the king wants to honor.' "

10 The king told Haman, “Hurry, and do just as you proposed. Take a garment and a horse for Mordecai the Jew, † who is sitting at the King’s Gate. Do not leave out anything you have suggested.”
11 So Haman took the garment and the horse. He clothed Mordecai and paraded him through the city square, crying out before him, “This is what is done for the man the king wants to honor.”
12 Then Mordecai returned to the King’s Gate, † but Haman hurried off for home, mournful and with his head covered. † 13 Haman told his wife Zeresh and all his friends † everything that had happened. His advisers and his wife Zeresh said to him, “Since Mordecai is Jewish, and you have begun to fall before him, you won’t overcome him, because your downfall is certain.” † 14 While they were still speaking with him, the king’s eunuchs † arrived and rushed Haman to the banquet Esther had prepared. †

6:1-3 Tension is building in the narrative on the night between Esther’s two banquets, since she has not yet made her appeal and Haman is about to request permission to hang Mordecai (see the previous note). God uses the king’s insomnia to turn the tide against Haman (see the note on 1:1). As the royal records were read to the king, he was reminded of Mordecai’s earlier good deed, which had been recorded (2:23) but not rewarded.

6:6-11 Blinded by arrogance (see Pr 16:18), Haman thought the king wanted to honor him and listed honors that he desired for himself (vv. 6-9). Instead, Haman was told to bestow these on Mordecai as a belated reward for his good deed (vv. 10-11; see the previous note). Not only was Haman thus humiliated, but he never had the opportunity to request that Mordecai be hanged. Even Haman’s wife and friends recognized that his “downfall” was imminent (v. 13).

HAMAN IS EXECUTED

7 The king and Haman came to feast † † with Esther the queen. 2 Once again, on the second day while drinking wine, † the king asked Esther, “Queen Esther, whatever you ask will be given to you. Whatever you seek, even to half the kingdom, will be done.” † 3 Queen Esther answered, “If I have found favor in your eyes, Your Majesty, and if the king is pleased, † spare my life; this is my request. And spare my people; this is my desire. † 4 For my people and I have been sold † to destruction, death, and extermination. † If we had merely been sold as male and female slaves, † I would have kept silent. Indeed, the trouble wouldn't be worth burdening the king."

5 King Ahasuerus spoke up and asked Queen Esther, "Who is this, and where is the one who would devise such a scheme?" † †
6 Esther answered, "The adversary and enemy † is this evil Haman."
Haman stood terrified † before the king and queen. 7 The king arose in anger † and went from where they were drinking wine to the palace garden. † † Haman remained to beg Queen Esther for his life because he realized the king was planning something terrible for him. † 8 Just as the king returned from the palace garden to the banquet hall, † Haman was falling on the couch † where Esther was reclining. The king exclaimed, "Would he actually violate the queen while I am in the house?" As soon as the statement left the king's mouth, they covered Haman's face. †
9 Harbona, one of the king's eunuchs, † said: "There is a gallows seventy-five feet † tall at Haman's house that he made for Mordecai, † who gave the report that saved † the king." †
The king said, "Hang him on it."
10 They hanged Haman on the gallows he had prepared for Mordecai. † Then the king's anger subsided. †

7:3-6 At the second banquet (see the notes on 5:1-5,9-14), Esther revealed that she and her people had been sold to destruction, death, and extermination by Haman.

7:8-10 Already angry (v. 7), the king became even more so when he returned and saw Haman falling on the couch where Esther was reclining. Whatever the cause or motivation, touching the king's wife called for the death penalty. The downfall of Haman was complete when he was hanged on the very gallows he had intended for Mordecai (see also the notes on 6:1-3,6-11).

ESTHER INTERVENES FOR THE JEWS

8 That same day King Ahasuerus awarded Queen Esther the estate † of Haman, the enemy of the Jews. † Mordecai entered the king's presence because Esther had revealed her relationship to Mordecai. † 2 The king removed his signet ring he had recovered from Haman † and gave it to Mordecai, and Esther put him in charge of Haman's estate.

3 Then Esther addressed the king again. † She fell at his feet, wept, and begged † him to revoke the evil of Haman the Agagite † and his plot he had devised against the Jews. † 4 The king extended the gold scepter † toward Esther, so she got up and stood before the king.

5 She said, "If it pleases the king and I have found favor before him, if the matter seems right to the king and I am pleasing in his eyes, † let a royal edict be written. Let it revoke the documents the scheming Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite wrote to destroy the Jews who are in all the king's provinces. † 6 For how could I bear to see the disaster that would come on my people? † How could I bear to see the destruction of my relatives? " †

7 King Ahasuerus said to Esther the queen and to Mordecai the Jew, "Look, I have given Haman's estate to Esther, † and he was hanged on the gallows because he attacked † the Jews. † 8 Write in the king's name whatever pleases you † concerning the Jews, and seal it with the royal signet ring. † A document written in the king's name and sealed with the royal signet ring cannot be revoked." †

9 On the twenty-third day of the third month † — that is, the month Sivan — the royal scribes were summoned. Everything was written exactly as Mordecai † commanded for the Jews, to the satraps, † the governors, and the officials of the 127 provinces from India to Cush. † The edict was written for each province in its own script, for each ethnic group in its own language, † and to the Jews in their own script and language.

10 Mordecai wrote in King Ahasuerus's name and sealed the edicts with the royal signet ring. He sent the documents by mounted couriers, † who rode fast horses † bred in the royal stables.

11 The king's edict gave the Jews in each and every city the right to assemble and defend themselves, to destroy, kill, and annihilate every ethnic and provincial army hostile to them, including women and children, and to take their possessions as spoils of war. † 12 This would take place on a single day throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, the month Adar. † 13 A copy of the text, issued as law throughout every province, was distributed to all the peoples † so the Jews could be ready to avenge themselves against their enemies on that day. 14 The couriers rode out in haste on their royal horses at the king's urgent command. The law was also issued in the fortress of Susa. † 15 Mordecai went from the king's presence clothed in royal purple and white, with a great gold crown and a purple robe of fine linen. † The city of Susa shouted and rejoiced, † 16 and the Jews celebrated † with gladness, joy, and honor. † 17 In every province and every city, wherever the king's command and his law reached, joy and rejoicing took place among the Jews. There was a celebration and a holiday. † † And many of the ethnic groups of the land professed themselves to be Jews because fear of the Jews † had overcome them.

8:1-2 The humiliation of Haman continued after his death, when his estate was given to Esther and Mordecai was honored in the way that he had been earlier (3:10).

8:7-12 The edict issued earlier could not be revoked but another one could be issued. Mordecai oversaw such an edict (vv. 9-10), which gave the Jews the right to defend themselves on the same day that Haman had commanded that they be destroyed (v. 12; 3:13).

8:16-17 Jews throughout the kingdom were overjoyed with the news of the edict, and many others allied themselves with them (see also 6:13; 9:3).

VICTORIES OF THE JEWS

9 The king's command and law † went into effect on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, † the month Adar. On the day when the Jews' enemies † had hoped to overpower them, just the opposite happened. The Jews overpowered those who hated them. † 2 In each of King Ahasuerus's provinces † the Jews assembled in their cities to attack those who intended to harm them. † Not a single person could withstand them; fear of them † fell on every nationality. †

3 All the officials of the provinces, the satraps, the governors, and the royal civil administrators † † aided the Jews because they feared Mordecai. † 4 For Mordecai exercised great power in the palace, † and his fame spread throughout the provinces as he became more and more powerful. †
5 The Jews put all their enemies to the sword, killing and destroying them. † They did what they pleased to those who hated them. 6 In the fortress of Susa † the Jews killed and destroyed five hundred men, 7 including Parshandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, 8 Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, 9 Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai, and Vaizatha. 10 They killed these ten sons † of Haman son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews. † However, they did not seize † any plunder. †
11 On that day the number of people killed in the fortress of Susa was reported to the king. 12 The king said to Queen Esther, "In the fortress of Susa the Jews have killed and destroyed five hundred men, including Haman's ten sons. What have they done in the rest of the royal provinces? Whatever you ask will be given to you. Whatever you seek will also be done." †
13 Esther answered, "If it pleases the king, may the Jews who are in Susa also have tomorrow † to carry out today's law, † and may the bodies of Haman's ten sons † be hung on the gallows." † 14 The king gave the orders for this to be done, so a law was announced in Susa, and they hung the bodies of Haman's ten sons. 15 The Jews in Susa assembled again on the fourteenth day of the month of Adar † and killed three hundred men in Susa, but they did not seize any plunder. † 16 The rest of the Jews in the royal provinces assembled, defended themselves, and gained relief from their enemies. They killed seventy-five thousand † of those who hated them, † but they did not seize any plunder. 17 They fought on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar and rested on the fourteenth, and it became a day of feasting and rejoicing.

18 But the Jews in Susa had assembled on the thirteenth and the fourteenth days of the month. They rested on the fifteenth day of the month, and it became a day of feasting and rejoicing. † 19 This explains why the rural Jews who live in villages observe the fourteenth day of the month of Adar as a time of rejoicing and feasting. It is a holiday when they send gifts to one another. †
20 Mordecai † recorded these events and sent letters to all the Jews in all of King Ahasuerus's provinces, both near and far. 21 He ordered † them to celebrate the fourteenth and fifteenth days of the month of Adar every year 22 because during those days the Jews gained relief from † their enemies. That was the month when their sorrow was turned into rejoicing and their mourning into a holiday. † They were to be days of feasting, † rejoicing, and of sending gifts to one another and to the poor.
23 So the Jews agreed to continue the practice they had begun, as Mordecai had written them to do. 24 For Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, † had plotted against the Jews to destroy them. He cast the Pur — that is, the lot — to crush and destroy them. † 25 But when the matter was brought before the king, † he commanded by letter that the evil plan Haman had devised against the Jews return on his own head † and that he should be hanged with his sons on the gallows. † 26 For this reason these days are called Purim, from the word Pur. † Because of all the instructions in this letter as well as what they had witnessed and what had happened to them, 27 the Jews bound themselves, their descendants, and all who joined † with them to a commitment that they would not fail to celebrate these two days each and every year according to the written instructions and according to the time appointed. 28 These days are remembered and celebrated by every generation, family, province, and city, so that these days of Purim will not lose their significance in Jewish life † and their memory will not fade from their descendants. †
29 Queen Esther, daughter of Abihail, † along with Mordecai the Jew, † wrote this second letter with full authority † to confirm the letter about Purim. 30 He sent letters with assurances of peace and security † to all the Jews who were in the 127 provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, 31 in order to confirm these days of Purim at their proper time just as Mordecai the Jew and Esther the queen had established them and just as they had committed themselves and their descendants to the practices of fasting † and lamentation. † 32 So Esther's command confirmed these customs of Purim, which were then written into the record.

9:1-2 Instead of being a day on which the Jews were destroyed, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month ended up being a day of victory for the Jews.

9:6-15 These verses focus on the Jews in Susa. Perhaps because opposition against the dispersed Israelites was more intense there, Esther asked the king to permit these Jews to defend themselves on the next day also and to hang the bodies of Haman's sons (v. 13). Thus, the Jews in Susa defended themselves on the fourteenth day of the month of Adar also.

9:20-28 The Jews in Susa rested on the fifteenth of the month, whereas the Jews elsewhere in the kingdom rested on the fourteenth (vv. 17-19). Both days were designated as a holiday (vv. 21-22) called Purim, from the word Pur (meaning "lot").

JOB

INTRODUCTION

The book of Job is named after the central character and speaker. The narrative deals with a man who lost everything and the subsequent discussions he had about the reason for his suffering. God alone had the final word and eventually restored all that Job had lost.

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

AUTHOR: The author of Job is unknown, but he was a learned man whose knowledge embraced the heavens (22:12; 38:32-33) and earth (26:7-8; 28:9-11; 37:11,16). His knowledge touched on foreign lands (28:16,19), various products (6:19), and human professions (7:6; 9:26; 18:8-10; 28:1-11). He was familiar with plants (14:7-9) and animals (4:10-11; 38:39–39:30; 40:15–41:34). He was a wise man, familiar with traditional wisdom (6:5-6; 17:5; 28:12,28), but was above all a man of spiritual sensitivity (1:1,5,8; 2:3; 14:14-15; 16:11-21; 19:23-27; 23:10; 34:26-28; 40:1-5; 42:1-6). He was doubtless an Israelite as confirmed by his frequent use of God's covenant name (Yahweh).

BACKGROUND: The story of Job is set in the patriarchal period. In that era wealth consisted of the possession of cattle and servants. Like other OT patriarchal family heads, Job performed priestly duties, including offering sacrifices for his family. Like the patriarchs, Job lived to be more than a hundred years old. Geographically, the action took place in the northern Arabian Peninsula, in the land of Uz (1:1), often associated with Edom. Job's three friends also had Edomite or southern associations, as did the young Elihu (see notes at 2:11; 32:2-3).

Although Job is set in the patriarchal period, its date of writing is unknown. Jewish tradition places the authorship of Job in the time of Moses.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

The book of Job teaches that suffering comes to everyone, the righteous and unrighteous alike. God does not always keep the righteous from danger or suffering. Ultimately God controls all of life's situations, including limiting the power of Satan. God's comfort and strength are always available to the trusting soul.

Although the book of Job does take note of the problem of suffering, it focuses more on the nature of human conduct before a sovereign and holy God. In harmony with the rest of Scripture, the book teaches that even a consistent practice of religion is insufficient without a genuine heart relationship with God (Dt 6:4-6; Ps 86:11-12; Mt 22:37). The answer to life's problems and goals lies in a proper reverence for him who is perfect in all his being and actions. Man needs not just to confess God but to surrender everything to him. By letting him truly be God in every area of life, a person will find him sufficient.

STRUCTURE

The writer was a skilled storyteller, artistically characterizing the distinctions between the protagonist (Job), antagonist (Satan), and literary foils (the three friends and Elihu). The characterization demonstrates that God himself is the ultimate protagonist (or "hero") of the story. Satan was as much challenging God as Job's piety. Although Job's three "comforters" applied traditional wisdom to Job's situation, each did it in a different way. Eliphaz, the rationalist, reasoned with Job (15:17-18); Bildad, the apologist, sought to defend God (25:1-6); and Zophar acted much like a prosecutor (11:1-6). The youthful Elihu served as a mediating influence in order to prepare for the divine speeches that follow (33:23-26). The writer constructed a well-developed plot built around dramatic dialogue. The fact that he related the account of Job's test in story form does not mean that Job was not a real person who underwent a real test.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

Job reveals God in his heavenly court (Is 6 and Ezk 1 may be compared). The book shows that God permits an adversary (Satan) to challenge his sovereign righteousness but that God's glory is served in the end. Job's expectation of a coming Redeemer (19:25) was fulfilled in Jesus Christ. The creative work of God's Spirit is evident in such texts as Job 33:4.

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

The prose sections of Job (chaps. 1–2 and 42) show that human behavior is on display before supernatural powers. The poetic sections (chaps. 3–41) show that, however logical it appears, human reasoning alone can never penetrate the mind of God. Job and his counselors reached only partial truth about suffering, and only when God revealed himself did the inadequacy of human wisdom become evident.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

Job 1 is consistent with Genesis in showing a family head offering sacrifices for the sins of his own family members. Job's personal confession of faith anticipated both the coming of Christ and the resurrection (19:25-26).

JOB AND HIS FAMILY

1 There was a man in the country of Uz † named Job. † He was a man of complete integrity, † who feared God and turned away from evil. †
2 He had seven sons and three daughters. † 3 His estate included seven thousand sheep and goats, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen, five hundred female donkeys, † and a very large number of servants. Job was the greatest man among all the people of the east. †
4 His sons used to take turns having banquets at their homes. They would send an invitation to their three sisters to eat and drink with them. 5 Whenever a round of banqueting was over, Job would send for his children and purify them, rising early in the morning to offer burnt offerings for † all of them. For Job thought, "Perhaps my children have sinned, having cursed God in their hearts." † This was Job's regular practice.

SATAN'S FIRST TEST OF JOB

6 One day the sons of God † came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan † also came with them. 7 The LORD asked Satan, “Where have you come from? ”

8 Then the LORD said to Satan, “Have you considered my servant Job? No one else on earth is like him, a man of perfect integrity, † who fears God and turns away from evil.” †

9 Satan answered the LORD, “Does Job fear God for nothing? 10 Haven’t you placed a hedge around † him, his household, and everything he owns? You have blessed the work of his hands, and his possessions have increased in the land. 11 But stretch out your hand and strike † everything he owns, and he will surely curse you to your face.”

12 “Very well,” the LORD told Satan, “everything he owns is in your power. However, do not lay a hand on Job himself.” So Satan left the LORD’s presence.

13 One day when Job’s sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in their oldest brother’s house, 14 a messenger came to Job and reported: “While the oxen were plowing and the donkeys grazing nearby, 15 the Sabeans † swooped down and took them away. They struck down the servants with the sword, and I alone have escaped to tell you! ”

16 He was still speaking when another messenger came and reported: “God’s fire fell from heaven. † It burned the sheep and the servants and devoured them, and I alone have escaped to tell you! ”

17 That messenger was still speaking when yet another came and reported: “The Chaldeans formed three bands, made a raid on the camels, and took them away. They struck down the servants with the sword, and I alone have escaped to tell you! ”

18 He was still speaking when another messenger came and reported: “Your sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in their oldest brother’s house. 19 Suddenly a powerful wind swept in from the desert and struck the four corners of the house. It collapsed on the young people so that they died, and I alone have escaped to tell you! ”

20 Then Job stood up, tore † his robe, and shaved † his head. He fell to the ground and worshiped, 21 saying:

Naked I came from my mother's womb, † and naked I will leave this life. † †
The LORD gives, and the LORD takes away.
Blessed be the name of the LORD. †

22 Throughout all this Job did not sin or blame God for anything. † †

1:1 Perhaps more than any other biblical book, the book of Job wrestles with the problem of suffering. Job was a man of complete integrity, who feared God and turned away from evil (see also v. 8; 2:3), but he would experience intense sorrow and anguish. Though the reader knows about the conversations between God and Satan, Job did not (see the notes on vv. 20-22 and 2:10). Thus, one of the messages of the book is that God has greater purposes for our suffering than we can see (see Gn 50:20; Rm 8:28). The country of Uz is also mentioned in Jeremiah 25:20 and Lamentations 4:21. It was outside the nation of Israel, though its exact location is uncertain.

1:4-5 This brief passage illustrates Job's faith in God and sensitivity to sin (see v. 1). He offered sacrifices for his children just in case they had sinned by cursing God in their hearts.

1:8-11 God drew attention to the character and faith of Job (see also v. 1; 28:28; Pr 3:7; 16:6). Nevertheless, Satan accused Job of fearing God only because God had blessed him so abundantly (v. 10). He also claimed that Job would surely curse [God] to [his] face if these gifts were taken away. At issue is the so-called "Retribution Principle" which states that, generally speaking, obedience leads to blessing and disobedience leads to consequences. This idea is taught throughout the Bible, from the covenant blessings and curses (Lv 26; Dt 28) to the teaching about consequences in Proverbs. Here Satan is reversing the principle and suggesting that blessing has led to obedience.

1:12 God's granting of permission shows that Satan, though powerful, is still subject to his rule and authority. See "Satan and Demons," p. 1611; "Spiritual Warfare," p. 1454.

1:20-22 Job lost his wealth and children in a single day (vv. 13-19), but he recognized that the LORD gives, and the LORD takes away. Thus, he did not sin or blame God for anything. Satan's accusation was thus proven false (v. 11). Job mourned, but also worshiped God (v. 20). Although he did not know about the conversation between God and Satan (vv. 6-12; see the note on v. 1), he recognized God's sovereignty in the midst of his terrible circumstances and even praised him (v. 21; see also the note on 2:10).

SATAN'S SECOND TEST OF JOB

2 One day the sons of God † came again to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan also came with them to present himself before the LORD.
2 The LORD asked Satan, “Where have you come from? ”
“From roaming through the earth,” Satan answered him, “and walking around on it.”
3 Then the LORD said to Satan, “Have you considered my servant Job? No one else on earth is like him, a man of perfect integrity, † who fears God and turns away from evil. † He still retains his integrity, even though you incited me against him, to destroy him for no good reason.”
4 “Skin for skin! ” Satan answered the LORD. “A man will give up everything he owns in exchange for his life. 5 But stretch out your hand and strike † his flesh and bones, and he will surely curse you to your face.”
6 “Very well,” the LORD told Satan, “he is in your power; only spare his life.”
7 So Satan left the LORD’s presence and infected Job with terrible boils from the soles of his feet to the top of his head. † 8 Then Job took a piece of broken pottery to scrape himself while he sat among the ashes. †
9 His wife said to him, “Are you still holding on to your integrity? Curse God and die! ”
10 “You speak as a foolish woman speaks,” he told her. “Should we accept only good from God and not adversity? ” Throughout all this Job did not sin in what he said. †

JOB’S THREE FRIENDS

11 Now when Job’s three friends — Eliphaz the Temanite, † Bildad the Shuhite, † and Zophar the Naamathite — heard about all this adversity that had happened to him, each of them came from his home. They met together to go and sympathize with him and comfort † him. 12 When they looked from a distance, they could barely recognize him. They wept aloud, † and each man tore his robe and threw dust into the air and on his head. † 13 Then they sat on the ground with him seven days and nights, † but no one spoke a word to him because they saw that his suffering † was very intense.

2:1-6 For a second time, God and Satan have a conversation that is known to the reader but not to Job or those in the narrative (see 1:6-12). God continued to affirm Job's godliness and described Satan's schemes against him as being for no good reason (v. 3). In other words, Job's suffering did not come as consequences for any particular sin. Although proven wrong once already (see the previous note), Satan claimed Job would surely curse [God] to [his] face if his person was harmed (vv. 4-5). For Satan's need of God's permission (v. 6), see the note on 1:12.

2:10 Job had been afflicted with "terrible boils" all over his body (v. 7), leading his wife to suggest that he forsake his "integrity" and "curse God" (v. 9). Though Job did not know what had transpired in heaven between God and Satan, he rebuked her and continued to recognize God's sovereignty, even in the midst of excruciating pain (see the notes on 1:1,20-22). To be sure, Satan was involved, but the adversity was still, in an important sense, from God (see also v. 3; 42:11). Again, Job had not sinned through anything he said (see also 1:22).

JOB'S OPENING SPEECH

3 After this, Job began to speak and cursed the day he was born. 2 He said:

3 May the day I was born perish, and the night that said,
"A boy is conceived." †
4 If only that day had turned to darkness!
May God above not care about it,
or light shine on it.
5 May darkness and gloom † reclaim it, and a cloud settle over it.
May what darkens the day terrify it.
6 If only darkness had taken that night away!
May it not appear † among the days of the year or be listed in the calendar. †
7 Yes, may that night be barren; may no joyful shout † be heard in it.
8 Let those who curse days condemn † it, those who are ready to rouse Leviathan. †
9 May its morning stars grow dark.
May it wait for daylight but have none;
may it not see the breaking † of dawn.
10 For that night did not shut the doors of my mother's womb, and hide sorrow from my eyes.

11 Why was I not stillborn; why didn't I die as I came from the womb? †
12 Why did the knees receive me, and why were there breasts for me to nurse? †
13 Now I would certainly be lying down in peace; I would be asleep. †
Then I would be at rest † 14 with the kings and counselors † of the earth, who rebuilt ruined cities for themselves, 15 or with princes who had gold, who filled their houses † with silver.
16 Or why was I not hidden like a miscarried child, † like infants who never see daylight?
17 There the wicked † cease to make trouble, and there the weary find rest.
18 The captives are completely at rest; † they do not hear a taskmaster's voice. †
19 Both small and great are there, and the slave is set free from his master. †

20 Why is light given to one burdened with grief, and life to those whose existence is bitter, † 21 who wait for death, † but it does not come, and search for it more than for hidden treasure, 22 who are filled with much joy and are glad when they reach the grave? † 23 Why is life given to a man whose path is hidden, † whom God has hedged in?
24 I sigh when food † is put before me, † and my groans pour out like water. † 25 For the thing I feared has overtaken me, and what I dreaded has happened to me. †
26 I cannot relax or be calm; I have no rest, † for turmoil has come.

3:1 When Job finally broke the silence, he did not curse God, though he cursed the day he was born. He reasoned that if he had been stillborn (v. 11; see also v. 16), then he would not have experienced this intense suffering (v. 13).

3:8 Leviathan is mentioned five times in the Bible (41:1; Pss 74:14; 104:26; Is 27:1). On the surface, the word seems to refer to some kind of mighty sea creature, which nevertheless was created by God (Gn 1:21) and hence subject to him. Here and in every other instance perhaps except one (i.e., Ps 104:26), however, "Leviathan" seems to refer to an evil supernatural being, which was indeed created by God but remains subject to him (see the notes on 26:12-13 and 41:1-11).

3:20-26 Job lamented that life is given to those like him who are so burdened with bitter suffering that they would rather die so that their pain might cease (see also 10:18-19). Whereas Satan earlier had said that God had "placed a hedge" around him (1:10), now Job believed that he had been hedged in by God (v. 23; see also 38:8).

ELIPHAZ SPEAKS

Then Eliphaz the Temanite replied:

4 2 Should anyone try to speak with you when you are exhausted?
Yet who can keep from speaking?
3 Indeed, you have instructed many and have strengthened † weak hands.
4 Your words have steadied the one who was stumbling and braced the knees that were buckling. †
5 But now that this has happened to you, you have become exhausted.
It strikes † you, and you are dismayed.
6 Isn't your piety your confidence, and the integrity of your life † your hope? †
7 Consider: Who has perished when he was innocent?
Where have the honest † been destroyed? †
8 In my experience, those who plow injustice and those who sow trouble † reap the same. †
9 They perish at a single blast † from God and come to an end by the breath of his nostrils. †
10 The lion may roar and the fierce lion † growl, but the teeth of young lions are broken. †

11 The strong lion dies if it catches no prey, and the cubs of the lioness are scattered. †

12 A word was brought to me in secret; my ears caught a whisper of it. †
13 Among unsettling thoughts from visions in the night, † when deep sleep † comes over men, 14 fear and trembling came over me † and made all my bones shake.
15 I felt a draft † on my face, and the hair on my body stood up.
16 A figure stood there, but I could not recognize its appearance; a form loomed before my eyes.
I heard a whispering voice:
17 "Can a mortal be righteous before God?
Can a man be more pure than his Maker? " †
18 If God puts no trust in his servants and he charges his angels with foolishness, † †
19 how much more those who dwell in clay houses, † whose foundation is in the dust, who are crushed like a moth!
20 They are smashed to pieces from dawn to dusk; they perish forever while no one notices. †
21 Are their tent cords not pulled up?
They die without wisdom. †

4:1 Eliphaz was one of Job's three friends who had come to comfort him (2:11). Teman is closely associated with Edom in the OT (e.g., Jr 49:20; Ezk 25:12-13; Am 1:11-12), both of which are sometimes associated with wisdom (Jr 49:7; Ob8-9). The conversation between Job and his three friends in Job 4–31 concerns the nature of wisdom and the limits of human knowledge. None of them know the true reason for Job's suffering. The friends blame Job and insist that his pain must be the result of sin. Job insists that the answers lie with God. In the end, Job's position is affirmed while God is angry with the friends for what they said (42:7-8).

4:5 Having heard Job's lament in the previous chapter, Eliphaz pointed out that although Job had strengthened others when they were weak (vv. 3-4), now Job was dismayed because of his own trial. While true, these words seem to lack compassion (see 5:17; 6:27; 16:2).

4:6-8 Eliphaz wrongly believed that Job's suffering necessarily meant that he had sinned. Eliphaz was limited by his own experience (v. 8; see also the notes on 5:2-7 and 15:17) and did not account for God's secret, mysterious purposes. Job's suffering fell outside of Eliphaz's preconceived framework of strict retribution in this life.

4:17-21 Although he referred in passing to the overall uprightness of Job's life (v. 6), Eliphaz also stated the obvious: no man is more righteous or pure than God (v. 17), which he reinforced by asserting mankind's inferiority to angels (vv. 18-21). Eliphaz may have been suggesting that since Job was still a sinner, some sin of his was being punished (see also 5:17; 6:24). This, of course, was not the case (see also the notes on Jb 1–2).

5:2-7 Eliphaz again appealed to his limited experience (I have seen) to argue that the wicked are punished in this life (vv. 2-5; see the note on 4:6-8). In his view, distress and trouble do not arise naturally (v. 6) but are the result of man's own sin.

5:17 While on the one hand Eliphaz suggested that Job appeal to God, presumably on the basis of his blamelessness (v. 8; see also the notes on 4:6-8,17-21), he also implied that Job was at least partially in the wrong (see also 6:24). He saw Job as the person whom God corrects and who should not reject the discipline of the Almighty (see also Pr 3:11-12) because he would be restored in due time (vv. 18-26).

5:27 Eliphaz's self-confidence that what he has said is true is ironic given God's later verdict: "You have not spoken the truth about me" (42:7).

JOB'S REPLY TO ELIPHAZ

6 Then Job answered:

2 If only my grief could be weighed and my devastation † placed with it on the scales. †
3 For then it would outweigh the sand of the seas!
That is why my words are rash.
4 Surely the arrows of the Almighty have pierced † me; my spirit drinks their poison.
God's terrors are arrayed against me. †
5 Does a wild donkey bray over fresh grass or an ox low over its fodder?
6 Is bland food eaten without salt?
Is there flavor in an egg white? †
7 I refuse to touch them; they are like contaminated food. †

8 If only my request would be granted and God would provide what I hope for:
9 that he would decide to crush me, to unleash his power and cut me off!
10 It would still bring me comfort, and I would leap for joy in unrelenting pain that I have not denied † the words of the Holy One. †

11 What strength do I have, that I should continue to hope?
What is my future, that I should be patient?
12 Is my strength that of stone, or my flesh made of bronze?
13 Since I cannot help myself, the hope for success has been banished from me.

14 A despairing man should receive loyalty from his friends, † † even if he abandons the fear of the Almighty.
15 My brothers are as treacherous as a wadi, as seasonal streams that overflow 16 and become darkened † because of ice, and the snow melts into them.
17 The wadis evaporate in warm weather; they disappear from their channels in hot weather.
18 Caravans turn away from their routes, go up into the desert, and perish.
19 The caravans of Tema look for these streams.
The traveling merchants of Sheba hope for them.
20 They are ashamed because they had been confident of finding water.
When they arrive there, they are disappointed. †
21 So this is what you have now become to me. †
When you see something dreadful, you are afraid.
22 Have I ever said: "Give me something" or "Pay a bribe for me from your wealth" 23 or "Deliver me from the enemy's hand" or "Redeem me from the hand of the ruthless"?

24 Teach me, and I will be silent.
Help me understand what I did wrong.
25 How painful honest words can be!
But what does your rebuke prove?
26 Do you think that you can disprove my words or that a despairing man's words are mere wind? †
27 No doubt you would cast lots for a fatherless child and negotiate a price to sell your friend. †

28 But now, please look at me; I will not lie to your face. †
29 Reconsider; don't be unjust.
Reconsider; my righteousness † is still the issue.
30 Is there injustice on my tongue or can my palate not taste disaster? †

6:2-13 Job's grief and devastation continued to overwhelm him (vv. 2-3), so much so that he repeated his wish to die (vv. 8-13; see the note on 3:20-26). That Job picked up where he left off previously emphasizes how irrelevant Eliphaz's preceding words were. Though Job rightly recognized God's sovereignty in the midst of these tragedies (see the notes on 1:20-22 and 2:10), he depicts God as an archer who has shot him with poisonous arrows (v. 4; 16:12-13). Job believed God had become his enemy and was directly opposing him (e.g., 7:12-14,20; 9:17-18,34; 13:21,24-27; 14:19-20), which was not true (see 1:11-12; 2:5-7). The Lord was not angry with him, as is the case elsewhere when his "arrows" are mentioned in genuine connection with his wrath (see Dt 32:23 and Ps 38:1-2).

6:14-21 Despite their journey and initial silence (2:11-13), Job criticized Eliphaz and his friends (you is plural in v. 21) for their lack of loyalty (v. 14), comparing them to a dry wadi that disappoints the thirsty.

6:24 Job understood Eliphaz's insinuations as implying that he had done wrong (see the notes on 4:17-21 and 5:17). He rightly insisted that he had not (vv. 24-26) and called Eliphaz and his friends both cruel and traitorous (you is plural in v. 27; see also vv. 14-15).

6:28-30 Job continued to defend his innocence as he pleaded with his friends to recognize that his righteousness was at stake (see also 27:2; 34:5-6).

7:3-5 Job was tormented even at night since he had difficulty sleeping (vv. 3-4); perhaps this was related to his painful boils (see 2:7). He was also experiencing nightmares (v. 14).

7:6-7 Job was despairing, as shown through his belief that he was without hope and would never again see anything good (cp. Jb 42:10-16).

7:12-21 For the first time, Job speaks directly to God using the pronoun you. He had already expressed his belief that God had shot him with poisonous arrows (see the note on 6:2-13), and now he directly asked God why he was tormenting him so (vv. 12,17-18,20) and requested that he stop (vv. 16,19; see 10:20). Job also asked what sin he had committed to deserve the trials he was enduring (vv. 20-21; see 6:24-30). Of course, there were none (see the notes on Jb 1–2).

BILDAD SPEAKS

8 Then Bildad the Shuhite replied:

2 How long will you go on saying these things?
Your words † are a blast of wind. †
3 Does God pervert justice? †
Does the Almighty pervert what is right? †
4 Since your children sinned against him, he gave them over to their rebellion.
5 But if you earnestly seek † God and ask the Almighty for mercy, † 6 if you are pure and upright, then he will move even now on your behalf and restore the home where your righteousness dwells. † 7 Then, even if your beginnings were modest, your final days will be full of prosperity. †

8 For ask the previous generation, and pay attention to what their fathers discovered, †
9 since we were born only yesterday and know nothing.
Our days on earth are but a shadow. †
10 Will they not teach you and tell you and speak from their understanding?
11 Does papyrus grow where there is no marsh?
Do reeds flourish without water?
12 While still uncut shoots, they would dry up quicker than any other plant.

13 Such is the destiny † of all who forget God; the hope of the godless † will perish.

14 His source of confidence is fragile; † what he trusts in is a spider's web. †

15 He leans on his web, but it doesn't stand firm.

He grabs it, but it does not hold up.

16 He is a well-watered plant in the sunshine; his shoots spread out over his garden.

17 His roots are intertwined around a pile of rocks.

He looks for a home among the stones.

18 If he is uprooted † from his place, it will deny knowing him, saying, "I never saw you." †

19 Surely this is the joy of his way of life; yet others will sprout from the dust.

20 Look, God does not reject a person of integrity, and he will not support † evildoers. †

21 He will yet fill your mouth with laughter and your lips with a shout of joy. †

8:2 In contrast with Eliphaz, Bildad harshly confronted Job, calling his words a blast of wind.

8:3-7 Like Eliphaz (see the note on 4:6-8), Bildad also believed that just as God justly deals with the righteous and wicked in this life according to their conduct (see also vv. 8-19), so one could infer backward from consequences to actions. This is fallacious reasoning, however, and went beyond the doctrine of retribution. This led Bildad to the misguided conclusion that Job's children died because God was punishing them for their sins (vv. 3-4). On the other hand, Job would be restored if he sought God, asked for mercy, and was pure and upright (vv. 5-7). Bildad's counsel seems to unfairly call Job's character into question yet again (see the note on 6:24).

8:20-21 Bildad affirmed that God does not reject a person of integrity, which ironically was who Job really was (1:1,8; 2:3). Job's struggle, however, was rooted in his experiencing disasters in spite of his integrity. Bildad's belief in Job's restoration seems to indicate that he believed Job would satisfy the necessary conditions in vv. 5-6 and contrasts with Job's despair (see the notes on 6:2-13 and 7:6-7).

JOB'S REPLY TO BILDAD

9 Then Job answered:

2 Yes, I know what you've said is true, but how can a person be justified before God? †
3 If one wanted to take † him to court, he could not answer God † once in a thousand times. †
4 God is wise † and all-powerful.
Who has opposed him and come out unharmed?
5 He removes mountains without their knowledge, overturning them in his anger. †
6 He shakes the earth from its place so that its pillars tremble.
7 He commands the sun not to shine and seals off the stars. †
8 He alone stretches out the heavens † and treads on the waves of the sea. † 9 He makes the stars: the Bear, † Orion, the Pleiades, † and the constellations † of the southern sky.
10 He does great and unsearchable things, wonders without number. † 11 If he passed by me, I wouldn't see him; †
if he went by, I wouldn't recognize him.
12 If he snatches something, who can stop † him?
Who can ask him, "What are you doing? " † 13 God does not hold back his anger; Rahab's † assistants cringe in fear beneath him!

14 How then can I answer him or choose my arguments against him?
15 Even if I were in the right, I could not answer.
I could only beg my Judge for mercy. † 16 If I summoned him and he answered me, I do not believe he would pay attention to what I said.
17 He batters me with a whirlwind † and multiplies my wounds without cause.

18 He doesn’t let me catch my breath but fills me with bitter experiences.
19 If it is a matter of strength, look, he is the powerful one! †
If it is a matter of justice, who can summon † him? †
20 Even if I were in the right, my own mouth would condemn me; † if I were blameless, my mouth would declare me guilty.

21 Though I am blameless, I no longer care about myself;
I renounce my life. †
22 It is all the same. Therefore I say, “He destroys both the blameless and the wicked.” †
23 When catastrophe † brings sudden death, he mocks the despair of the innocent.
24 The earth † is handed over to the wicked; he blindfolds † its judges. †
If it isn’t he, then who is it?

25 My days fly by faster than a runner; † † they flee without seeing any good. † 26 They sweep by like boats made of papyrus, like an eagle swooping down on its prey. †
27 If I said, “I will forget my complaint, change my expression, and smile,” 28 I would still live in terror of all my pains. †
I know you will not acquit me. †
29 Since I will be found guilty, † why should I struggle in vain?
30 If I wash myself with snow, and cleanse my hands with lye,
31 then you dip me in a pit of mud, and my own clothes despise me!

32 For he is not a man like me, that I can answer him, † that we can take each other to court.
33 There is no mediator between us, to lay his hand on both of us.
34 Let him take his rod away from me so his terror will no longer frighten me. †
35 Then I would speak and not fear him.

But that is not the case; I am on my own.

9:2-4 Job acknowledged Bildad's point that God is just (8:3), but he doubted whether appealing to him would be effective (v. 2), as Bildad suggested (8:5-7). The reason had less to do with God's justice than with his vastly superior wisdom and power. As a result, Job was utterly inadequate to oppose him (vv. 3-4; 40:2-5), though he would change his stance (see the note on 23:3-5). Ironically, this is precisely God's point later when he finally breaks the silence (Jb 38–41).

9:14-16 Having given several examples of God's superior wisdom and power (vv. 5-13), Job repeated his point that, as a mere man, he was inadequate to dispute with God (see previous note).

9:17-18 Job again attributed his sufferings to the direct action of God (see the note on 6:2-13). Though Job was unaware, he had been given into Satan's hand (1:12-12; 2:5-7). He says that his suffering was without cause (v. 17); the same Hebrew word is used when God himself described Satan's scheme (2:3). Job characterizes his distress as being struck by a whirlwind. This image of overwhelming, destructive power reappears when God answers Job "from the whirlwind" (see the note on 38:1; 40:6).

9:21-24 Job's claim to be blameless is valid, since the same Hebrew word is used to characterize him (1:1,8; 2:3). Because of the calamities that had come upon him, he declared, contrary to the strict retribution espoused by his friends (see the notes on 4:6-8 and 8:3-7), that God destroys both the blameless and the wicked (v. 22; 21:22-26). Moreover, Job generalized his experience (see also the notes on 4:6-8 and 12:3-6) so as to say that God mocks the despair of the innocent and perpetuates injustice (v. 24).

9:32-35 Job's wish for a mediator was based in his earlier lament that he was not equal to God and could not hope to go to court with him (see the notes on vv. 2-4,14-16).

10 I am disgusted with my life. †
I will give vent to my complaint

10:2 Job asked God to vindicate him and to tell him why he was afflicting him (see the notes on 6:2-13; 7:12-21; 19:6-7; 23:8-9). Part of his struggle had to do with wanting to know why (see 13:24; 21:7; 24:1).

10:8 The Hebrew word for destroy used by Job is the same as the one used by God in 2:3, when he said that Satan "incited [him] . . . to destroy him for no good reason."

10:17-21 Although God had dealt kindly with him in the past (vv. 10-12; 29:1-25), Job mistakenly saw God as increasingly angry toward him (v. 17; see also the note on 6:2-13). As before, he wished he had never been born (vv. 18-19; see 3:20-26) and asked God again to leave [him] alone (v. 20; see 7:16,19).

ZOPHAR SPEAKS

11 Then Zophar the Naamathite replied:

2 Should this abundance of words † go unanswered and such a talker † be acquitted?
3 Should your babbling put others to silence, so that you can keep on ridiculing with no one to humiliate you?
4 You have said, "My teaching † is sound, and I am pure in your sight."
5 But if only God would speak and open his lips against you!
6 He would show you the secrets of wisdom, † for true wisdom has two sides.

Know then that God has chosen to overlook some of your iniquity. †

7 Can you fathom the depths of God or discover the limits of the Almighty? †
8 They are higher than the heavens — what can you do?
They are deeper than Sheol — what can you know? †
9 Their measure is longer than the earth and wider than the sea.

10 If he passes by and throws someone in prison or convenes a court, who can stop him? †
11 Surely he knows which people are worthless.
If he sees iniquity, will he not take note of it? †
12 But a stupid person will gain understanding as soon as a wild donkey is born a human!

13 As for you, if you redirect your heart and spread out your hands to him in prayer — 14 if there is iniquity in your hand, remove it, and don't allow injustice to dwell in your tents — 15 then you will hold your head high, free from fault.
You will be firmly established and unafraid. †
16 For you will forget your suffering, recalling it only as water that has flowed by.
17 Your life will be brighter than noonday; its darkness † will be like the morning. †
18 You will be confident, because there is hope. †
You will look carefully about and lie down in safety. †

19 You will lie down with no one to frighten you, and many will seek your favor. †
20 But the sight of the wicked † will fail.
Their way of escape will be cut off, and their only hope is their last breath. †

11:2-3 The third of Job's friends, Zophar, now takes his turn. His opening words indicate that he felt that Job was way out of line and needed to be put in his place.

11:5-6 Zophar also thought one could reverse the principle of retribution (see the notes on 4:6-8 and 8:3-7). He was convinced from Job's current distress that he had sinned, and this friend even declared that God has chosen to overlook some of your iniquity. In other words, Job was getting off easy! This is difficult to believe, since the reader knows that Satan had been given permission to afflict him with anything but death (2:6). Job had expressed the wish that God would tell him how he had sinned (see 7:20; 10:2). Zophar also wished for this, but so that Job would be proven wrong.

11:13-20 Having already accused Job of sin (v. 6), Zophar called him to repent of it (vv. 13-14). Doing so would bring about restoration (vv. 15-19), whereas the alternative was destruction (v. 20).

JOB'S REPLY TO ZOPHAR

12 Then Job answered:

2 No doubt you are the people, and wisdom will die with you!
3 But I also have a mind like you; I am not inferior to you.
Who doesn't know the things you are talking about? † †

4 I am a laughingstock to my † friends, by calling on God, who answers me. † and they will tell you. †

8 Or speak to the earth, and it will instruct you; let the fish of the sea inform you.

of all mankind. †

14 Whatever he tears down cannot be rebuilt; whoever he imprisons cannot be released. †
15 When he withholds water, everything dries up, and when he releases it, it destroys the land. †
16 True wisdom and power belong to him.
The deceived and the deceiver are his.
17 He leads counselors away barefoot and makes judges go mad. † 18 He releases the bonds † put on by kings † and fastens a belt around their waists.

22 He reveals mysteries from the darkness and brings the deepest darkness into the light. †
23 He makes nations great, then destroys them; he enlarges nations, † then leads them away.

12:2 Zophar had harshly spoken to Job (see 11:2-3), and Job responded in kind sarcastically, declaring to his friends that wisdom will die with [them].

12:3-6 Part of Job's frustration with his friends was that they were condescendingly telling him things he obviously knew (v. 3; see also v. 9; 9:2; 13:1-2). For example, Job knew that God is righteous (4:17; 8:3), wise (11:7-9), and powerful (9:4; 11:10). Nevertheless, his friends were at ease and did not respect Job and his pain (vv. 4-5). They also did not consider that Job's situation could have been an exception to their rigid understanding of God's justice (v. 6). Job, however, again generalized his personal experience (see also the note on 9:21-24).

12:12 This had been Bildad's point earlier (8:8-10), but complete wisdom and strength belong to God alone (vv. 13,16; 9:4; Pr 21:30).

13 2 Look, my eyes have seen all this; my ears † have heard and understood it.

5 If only you would shut up and let that be your wisdom!

6 Hear now my argument, and listen to my defense. †
7 Would you testify unjustly on God's behalf or speak deceitfully for him?
8 Would you show partiality † to him or argue the case in his defense?
9 Would it go well if he examined you?
Could you deceive him as you would deceive a man? †
10 Surely he would rebuke you if you secretly showed partiality.
11 Would God's majesty not terrify you? †
Would his dread not fall on you?

I will still defend † my ways before him.
16 Yes, this will result in my deliverance, for no godless person † can appear before him.

17 Pay close attention to my words; let my declaration ring in your ears.
18 Now then, I have prepared my case; †
I know that I am right.
19 Can anyone indict me?
If so, I will be silent and die.

20 Only grant these two things to me, God, so that I will not have to hide from your presence: 21 remove your hand from me, and do not let your terror frighten me. † 22 Then call, and I will answer, † or I will speak, and you can respond to me.
23 How many iniquities † and sins have I committed? † Reveal to me my transgression and sin.
24 Why do you hide your face and consider me your enemy? †
25 Will you frighten a wind-driven leaf?
Will you chase after dry straw?

13:1-2 Having affirmed again God's wisdom and power (12:13-25), Job reiterated that he was not inferior to his friends in knowledge (see also the note on 12:3-6).

13:3 Whereas earlier Job had said that he could not dispute with God (see the notes on 9:2-4,14-16,32-35), he now wanted to speak to the Almighty and argue [his] case (see also the note on vv. 20-27). What he wanted was risky, but perhaps he felt he had little to lose (see v. 13).

13:4-12 Job continued forcefully confronting his friends (see 12:2-5). He accused them of speaking falsehood (vv. 4,7) and preferred that they keep silent (v. 5; Pr 17:28). His claim that God would rebuke them if they had shown partiality was true (v. 10; 42:7-8).

13:15 In the midst of his pain, despair, and confusion, there were nevertheless moments when Job expressed hope in God (see also 14:13-17; 16:19; 19:25-27). This is one of them, in which he declared that he would believe in him until the end (see also v. 16).

13:20-27 Job asked God to stop afflicting him and to give him a hearing (vv. 20-22; see also the note on v. 3). He vehemently rejected his friends' view that his suffering was because of sin and argued that his upright life (see vv. 15-19) meant that he did not deserve the distress he was experiencing (vv. 23-26). Once again, he misunderstood God as having become his enemy (v. 24; see the note on 6:2-13).

14:13-17 Though having lamented the solemnity of death (vv. 7-12), Job also hoped for God to be kind to him after death (see also the notes on 13:15 and 19:25-27). He wished that after death God would remember him (v. 13), converse with him (v. 15), and forget all his sins (vv. 16-17).

14:19-20 Job concluded his speech and the first round of speeches with yet another lament that God had overwhelmed him with calamity.

CHRISTIANS AND SUFFERING

Suffering is a common human experience. No matter one's wealth, pedigree, or status in life, suffering touches each individual at some point. Pain is no respecter of persons. If one takes an existential or postmodern view of life, then suffering is something to avoid at all costs, for life is what you make it. Suffering is out of place in these types of worldviews, for they do not account for the existence of pain and evil due to their relativistic underpinnings of life apart from God.

A biblical worldview, however, provides a rational explanation for the problem of pain and suffering in the world. But one must come to the problem of pain with a coherent biblical worldview that values the life that God intends to develop in order to fully grasp it. God's value system is counterintuitive to a worldview that seeks to gain pleasure and avoid pain, an outlook in which one's god is experientially self-derived and self-determined. On the contrary, the God of the Bible seeks to break humans free from the tyranny of self and to provide life that is truly life (Jn 10:10). With this foundation in mind, our approach to the problem of suffering takes on new, life-giving dimensions that shape our response to the various forms of pain all humans encounter.

Oneness with God was the original intention for humankind in the garden of Eden. Adam and Eve though, broke out on their own, distrusting the union that God had developed for them with himself (Gn 3:6-7). The result of that original sin is that all humankind is now born separated from the life of God (Rm 5:12), and the whole of creation is negatively affected (Rm 8:19-22). The sin of autonomy, if never repented of, leads to eternal destruction (Jn 3:36). Only through Christ can one be saved from the destructive forces of independence (Rm 6:23). While salvation happens positionally at the moment of conversion, salvation from independence continues to be worked out through the pattern of Christian maturity and growth (sanctification). One of God's chief tools to wean a believer off the preconverted strategy of autonomy and onto the life-giving source of Christ is suffering.

The lie of the preconverted self is that self is sufficient for life. God often penetrates this lie when a non-Christian is suffering. Humans are stripped of self-sufficiency as weakness exposes the human soul for what it is: precariously limited and finite. Exposing the true state of affairs of the soul is the kindest thing God can do. This shock of ultimate reality is intended to lead the human soul back to its original state of trusting dependence on the Creator. The "thorns and thistles" so common in this life after the fall (Gn 3:17-18) provide fertile soil for humans to embrace their need for a Savior. When a believer is exposed to suffering because of these same imperfections in this world, God uses this too for good (1Pt 1:6-7). Suffering provides an ongoing experience of the soul's true state of affairs that drives one back to the safety of the arms of God; only he has the power to deliver from death. In God's economy, spiritual death or separation from him is far worse than any other fate that could befall a human.

One dimension of the life-giving work of suffering in the sanctification of a believer is spelled out in Romans 8:28-30. Paul states that God works all things together for the good of those who love him (Rm 8:28), even those things that humans may deem to be bad. The ultimate good that God is working conforms the believer into "the image of his Son" (Rm 8:29). This is God's highest purpose; and to accomplish it he has all things at his disposal, even pain and suffering.

What good does pain do to promote growth into the image of the Son of God? God knows that the human's proclivity toward autonomy is the most dangerous and destructive strategy the enemy uses against the non-believer. Even after conversion, autonomy continues to compel and constrain the believer as an unconscious habit. But through allowing suffering, God helps the Christian to leave the patterns of this world, namely autonomy, in order to depend more fully on him.

Suffering, contrary to the world's view, offers some potent benefits to the believer who will let God work to accomplish his goal of shaping Christ in him. One of the most important benefits of suffering is that it provides believers with the opportunity to despair of self and learn to trust in God, for the temptation to rely on self does not disappear at conversion. The apostle Paul, speaking of his own experience, had the sentence of death on him "so that [he] would not trust in [himself] but in God who raises the dead" (2Co 1:9). While we Christians may be united positionally with Christ, it is in suffering that believers begin to learn experientially how to turn from depending on self and turn to God for deliverance. This is a learned skill taught in the moments of testing and trial.

While our initial reaction to suffering often is to figure out a way to escape the pain, there is great benefit in looking at trials with an understanding of God's heart of love toward us. In enduring suffering with hearts full of trust in God's goodness, we will grow in the spiritual maturity that the biblical author, James, knows will happen within those who do (Jms 1:2-4). Everyone is enrolled in the school of life, but God does not force everyone to learn. Willingness and humility are necessary ingredients to learn, grow, and mature. Without these, one will go through the school of life and not learn anything of eternal value. But with openness toward God, one can learn how to live according to the intention of the original Designer. The focus, then, for the believer, is to allow suffering to promote a broken spirit over the tendency to lean on preconverted strategies and to embrace instead God's eternal value system.

While we are not in control of adversity, we are in control of how we respond to the trials that come our way. James 1:4 reassures believers that "endurance [must] have its full effect, so that [we] may be mature and complete, lacking nothing." God matures believers, but it's our responsibility to recognize his work as such. This takes faith to consider that what God is doing, forming Christ in the believer, is more valuable than relieving pain. "Now without faith it is impossible to please God" (Heb 11:6). This perspective that believers can exercise faith and thus please God can provide joy in the midst of suffering. Hardship bonds the believer's heart to God, showing ongoing faith and dependence on his provision and goodness.

The author of Hebrews reassures believers that those who have been trained by the discipline of the Lord will yield the "peaceful fruit of righteousness" (Heb 12:11). The believer's response to the curriculum of suffering is to die to self-sufficiency and open to Christ's sufficiency, so that God can conform us to the image of his Son (2Co 12:9). This is a critical part of character transformation. God does not wave a magic wand over the believer to produce righteousness. He trains us into such a life. We cannot be intentional about the content or specific outcome of adversity; we can only be intentional in our response to it. Therefore, a biblical response to discipline is to intentionally seek God's heart in the midst of suffering and ask him to produce the character fruit he desires to see.

God's ultimate vision for humanity is for us to find our life in him (Rv 21:3). At the end of this life, a new life will appear. It will be the restoration of all things, where the dwelling of God will be with humankind as he originally intended. "The one who conquers," the Lord promises "will inherit these things, and I will be his God, and he will be my son" (Rv 21:7). This is the larger story of God's love: bringing people into his family and being the Father that he longs to be to us. We are all enrolled in the school of life. The question each one needs to answer in the midst of suffering is whether or not he will let God do his good work to make him look more like his Son.

CHRISTY M. HILL

7 Were you the first human ever born, or were you brought forth before the hills? †
8 Do you listen in on the council of God, or have a monopoly on wisdom? †
9 What do you know that we don't?
What do you understand that is not clear to us?
10 Both the gray-haired and the elderly are with us— older than your father.
11 Are God's consolations not enough for you, even the words that deal gently with you?
12 Why has your heart misled you, and why do your eyes flash
13 as you turn your anger † against God and allow such words to leave your mouth?

14 What is a mere human, that he should be pure, † or one born of a woman, that he should be righteous?
15 If God puts no trust in his holy ones † and the heavens are not pure in his sight, † 16 how much less one who is revolting and corrupt, † who drinks injustice † like water?

17 Listen to me and I will inform you.
I will describe what I have seen, 18 what the wise have declared and not concealed, that came from their ancestors, †
19 to whom alone the land was given when no foreigner passed among them.
20 A wicked person writhes in pain all his days, throughout the number of years reserved for the ruthless.
21 Dreadful sounds fill his ears; when he is at peace, a robber attacks him.

22 He doesn't believe he will return from darkness; he is destined for the sword. †

23 He wanders about for food, asking, "Where is it? "
He knows the day of darkness is at hand.

24 Trouble † and distress terrify him, overwhelming him like a king prepared for battle.

25 For he has stretched out his hand † against God and has arrogantly opposed the Almighty.

26 He rushes headlong at him with his thick, studded shields.

27 Though his face is covered with fat † and his waistline bulges with it,

28 he will dwell in ruined cities, in abandoned houses destined to become piles of rubble. †

29 He will no longer be rich; his wealth will not endure.
His possessions † will not increase in the land.

30 He will not escape from the darkness; flames will wither his shoots, and by the breath of God's mouth, he will depart. †

31 Let him not put trust in worthless things, being led astray, for what he gets in exchange will prove worthless.

32 It will be accomplished before his time, and his branch will not flourish.

33 He will be like a vine that drops its unripe grapes † and like an olive tree that sheds its blossoms.

34 For the company of the godless † will have no children, and fire will consume the tents of those who offer bribes.

35 They conceive trouble † and give birth to evil; their womb † prepares deception. †

15:1-6 Eliphaz's second speech accused Job of saying useless things (vv. 2-3), even to the point of committing sin (vv. 4-6; see also vv. 13,25).

15:14-16 Eliphaz made a similar point in his first speech, also through comparing man to angels and to God (see the note on 4:17-21). Whereas the first time he argued that man cannot "be more pure than his Maker" (4:17), this time he argued that man cannot be righteous at all (v. 14). Now convinced of Job's sin (see previous note), Eliphaz characterized him as revolting and corrupt (v. 16). Eliphaz had been more indirect earlier, and now he confronted Job directly.

15:17 Eliphaz appealed to his experience before (see the notes on 4:6-8 and 5:2-7), and he did so here again (what I have seen). In v. 18 he added an appeal to the longstanding tradition of wise men (see also 5:27), as Bildad had similarly done (see 8:8-10).

15:20 Eliphaz's view that the justice of God is manifested through strict retribution in this life has not changed (see the note on 4:6-8). In particular, the wicked writhes in pain all his days. Whereas previously he had encouraged Job with the prospect of restoration (5:17-26), this time Eliphaz seemed to be warning him with the certainty of judgment on the wicked (see the notes on vv. 1-6; 18:5; 20:4-5).

15:29-31 Eliphaz may have been indirectly referring to Job (see also v. 25; note on 18:11-21).

JOB'S REPLY TO ELIPHAZ

16 Then Job answered:

2 I have heard many things like these.
You are all miserable comforters. †
3 Is there no end to your empty † † words?
What provokes you that you continue testifying?
4 If you were in my place I could also talk like you.
I could string words together against you and shake my head at you.
5 Instead, I would encourage you with my mouth, and the consolation from my lips would bring relief. † 6 If I speak, my suffering is not relieved, and if I hold back, does any of it leave me?
7 Surely he † has now exhausted me.
You have devastated my entire family.
8 You have shriveled me up † — it has become a witness; my frailty rises up against me and testifies to my face.
9 His anger tears at me, and he harasses † me.
He gnashes his teeth at me.

My enemy pierces me with his eyes.

10 They open their mouths against me and strike my cheeks with contempt; † they join themselves together against me.

11 God hands me over to the unjust; †
he throws me to the wicked.

12 I was at ease, but he shattered me; he seized me by the scruff of the neck and smashed me to pieces.

He set me up as his target; †

13 his archers † surround me.
He pierces my kidneys without mercy and pours my bile on the ground.

14 He breaks through my defenses again and again; †

he charges at me like a warrior. †

15 I have sewn sackcloth over my skin; I have buried my strength † in the dust. †

16 My face has grown red with weeping, and darkness † covers my eyes, 17 although my hands are free from violence † and my prayer is pure.

18 Earth, do not cover my blood; may my cry for help find no resting place. †

19 Even now my witness is in heaven, and my advocate is in the heights! †

20 My friends scoff at me as I weep before God.

21 I wish that someone might argue for a man with God † just as anyone † would for a friend.

22 For only a few years will pass before I go the way of no return.

16:2-5 The conversation between Job and his friends had not led to mutual understanding. Both sides believed the other to be saying empty things (8:2; 11:2-3; 15:2-6), and both sides believed the other to be condescending (12:3; 13:1-2; 15:9; 16:2). The friends were indeed miserable comforters (see the notes on 4:5 and 6:14-21,24), who did not respect Job's distress (vv. 4-5; 12:5; 21:34). Accordingly, Job's speech eventually moves away from addressing his friends.

16:7-14 Job continued to insist that God was the immediate, direct cause of his suffering (see also 19:8-13,21-22). For example, he had torn at him in anger (v. 9), become his enemy (v. 9), smashed him to pieces (v. 12), and set him up as a target to be shot with arrows mercilessly (vv. 12-13). The reader, however, knows that God had not struck Job but had given him into Satan's hand (see 1:11-12; 2:5-7; the note on 6:2-13).

16:17-19 Despite Eliphaz's certainty that Job had sinned (see the notes on 15:1-6,14-16), Job insisted that he was innocent (v. 17; see 9:21). This was also another moment in which Job showed confidence that God saw him and would favor him again (v. 19; see also the notes on 13:15 and 14:13-17).

BILDAD SPEAKS

18 Then Bildad the Shuhite † replied:

2 How long until you stop talking?
Show some sense, and then we can talk.
3 Why are we regarded as cattle, as stupid in your sight?
4 You who tear yourself in anger † — should the earth be abandoned on your account, or a rock be removed from its place?

5 Yes, the light † of the wicked † is extinguished; the flame of his fire does not glow.

and the lamp beside him is put out.
7 His powerful stride is shortened, and his own schemes trip him up. †
8 For his own feet lead him into a net, and he strays into its mesh.
9 A trap catches him by the heel; a noose seizes him.
10 A rope lies hidden for him on the ground, and a snare waits for him along the path.
11 Terrors frighten him on every side † and harass him at every step.

12 His strength is depleted; disaster lies ready for him to stumble. †
13 Parts of his skin are eaten away; death's firstborn consumes his limbs.
14 He is ripped from the security of his tent and marched away to the king of terrors.
15 Nothing he owned remains in his tent.
Burning sulfur † is scattered over his home.
16 His roots below dry up, and his branches above wither away. †
17 All memory † of him perishes from the earth; he has no name anywhere. †
18 He is driven from light to darkness and chased from the inhabited world.
19 He has no children or descendants among his people, no survivor where he used to live. †
20 Those in the west are appalled † at his fate, while those in the east tremble in horror.
21 Indeed, such is the dwelling of the unjust man, and this is the place of the one who does not know God. †

18:2-4 Bildad continued the antagonistic tone of the conversation (see the note on 16:2-5). Job's repeated rejection of his friends' so-called wisdom did not help (17:4,10). Bildad thought Job was foolish and felt insulted by Job (vv. 2-3). Whereas Job had accused God of tearing him to pieces (16:9), Bildad asserted that Job had done it to himself (v. 4). His belief in strict retribution was unchanged (see the note on 8:3-7).

18:5 Like Eliphaz (see the note on 15:20), Bildad earlier had mentioned the possibility of restoration (see 8:5-7,20-22), but now he emphasized the doom of the wicked. This suggests that he believed Job to be in genuine danger of suffering this fate (see the following note and the note on 20:4-5).

18:11-21 Much of the description here aligns with Job's experience and as such appears to be an indirect reference to him (see the note on 15:29-31). Particularly relevant are the mentions of multiple disasters (v. 11), physical suffering (vv. 12-13), loss of possessions (v. 15), death of children (v. 19), and the horrified reaction of onlookers (v. 20; see 2:12).

JOB'S REPLY TO BILDAD

19 Then Job answered:
2 How long will you torment me and crush me with words?

3 You have humiliated me ten times now, and you mistreat † me without shame. †

4 Even if it is true that I have sinned, my mistake concerns only † me.

5 If you really want to appear superior † to me and would use my disgrace as evidence against me, 6 then understand that it is God who has wronged me and caught me in his net. †

7 I cry out: “Violence! ” but get no response; †
I call for help, but there is no justice.

8 He has blocked † my way so that I cannot pass through; he has veiled my paths with darkness. †

9 He has stripped me of my honor and removed the crown from my head.

10 He tears me down on every side so that I am ruined. †
He uproots my hope like a tree. †

11 His anger † burns against me, and he regards me as one of his enemies. †

12 His troops advance together; they construct a ramp † against me and camp † around my tent.

13 He has removed my brothers from me; my acquaintances have abandoned me. †

14 My relatives stop coming by, and my close friends have forgotten me.

15 My house guests † and female servants regard me as a stranger; I am a foreigner in their sight. †

16 I call for my servant, but he does not answer, even if I beg him with my own mouth.

17 My breath is offensive to my wife, and my own family † finds me repulsive.

18 Even young boys scorn me.
When I stand up, they mock me. †

19 All of my best friends † despise me, † and those I love have turned against me. †

20 My skin and my flesh cling to my bones; I have escaped with only the skin of my teeth.

21 Have mercy on me, my friends, † have mercy, for God's hand † has struck me. †
22 Why do you persecute me as God does?
Will you never get enough of my flesh?

23 I wish that my words were written down, that they were recorded on a scroll 24 or were inscribed in stone forever by an iron stylus and lead!
25 But I know that my Redeemer lives, † † and at the end he will stand on the dust. † 26 Even after my skin has been destroyed, † yet I will see God in † my flesh. †
27 I will see him myself; my eyes will look at him, and not as a stranger. †
My heart longs † within me. †

28 If you say, "How will we pursue him, since the root of the problem lies with him?" †
29 then be afraid of the sword, because wrath brings punishment by the sword, † so that you may know there is a judgment.

19:2-3 Job had wished that his friends would stop talking (13:5); instead, their arrogant insistence was tormenting and crushing him (see also v. 5; 16:2-5).

19:6-7 While Job maintained his innocence as before, he took it a step further by declaring that God has wronged [him]. Psalm 119:78 and Lamentations 3:36 both use the same Hebrew verb in a similar construction to indicate unjust treatment. Along these lines, Job also lamented that there is no justice (see also Hab 1:2) and that God was not answering him (see the note on 10:2).

19:21-22 Job pleaded with his friends to be gracious to him. Their words had hurt him deeply (vv. 2-3). He also continued to see God as directly attacking him (see also vv. 8-13 and the note on 16:7-14).

19:25-27 This is another moment when Job's faith shines (see the note on 13:15). Despite the disasters he was suffering, he believed that his Redeemer is living (see footnote v. 25) and that after death he indeed would see him. Job also expressed hope beyond the grave in 14:13-17 (see note).

ZOPHAR SPEAKS

20 Then Zophar the Naamathite † replied:

2 This is why my unsettling thoughts compel me to answer, because I am upset! †

3 I have heard a rebuke that insults me, and my understanding † makes me reply. †

4 Don't you know that ever since antiquity, from the time a human was placed on earth, 5 the joy of the wicked has been brief and the happiness of the godless has lasted only a moment? †

6 Though his arrogance reaches heaven, and his head touches the clouds, †
7 he will vanish forever like his own dung.
Those who know † him will ask, "Where is he? " †

8 He will fly away like a dream and never be found; he will be chased away

12 Though evil tastes sweet in his mouth and he conceals it under his tongue, 13 though he cherishes it and will not let it go but keeps it in his mouth, †
14 yet the food in his stomach turns into cobras' venom inside him.

15 He swallows wealth but must vomit it up; God will force it from his stomach.
16 He will suck the poison of cobras; a viper's fangs † will kill him. †
17 He will not enjoy the streams, the rivers flowing with honey and curds. †
18 He must return the fruit of his labor without consuming it; he doesn't enjoy the profits from his trading.

23 When he fills his stomach, God will send his burning anger against him, raining † it down on him while he is eating. †
24 If he flees from an iron weapon, an arrow from a bronze bow will pierce him.

20:2-3 Zophar had been arrogant the first time (11:2-3), and his pride had been offended again.

20:4-5 Although he goes on about them at length (vv. 4-29), Zophar's views of strict retribution in this life were unchanged (see the note on 11:5-6). Like Eliphaz and Bildad (see the notes on 15:20 and 18:5), he had mentioned the possibility of restoration earlier (11:13-19) but focused on the judgment of the wicked this time. What this suggests in the second round of the conversation (Jb 15–21) is that Job's friends had given up urging him to repent and instead threatened him implicitly with descriptions of the fate of the wicked.

20:19 Zophar may have been suggesting that Job had sinned in this way before (see also 22:6-9). Verses 22,28 could also be indirect references to Job.

20:29 Since he does not speak during the third round of speeches (Jb 22–31), these are Zophar's last words in the book of Job, and they serve as a fitting conclusion to his position. As described above in detail, he was convinced that the joy of the wicked is brief and that they will be punished by God in this life (vv. 4-28). Though their sins may be hidden, they will be revealed eventually (vv. 12-15,27).

JOB'S REPLY TO ZOPHAR

21 Then Job answered:

2 Pay close attention to my words; let this be the consolation you offer.

3 Bear with me while I speak; then after I have spoken, you may continue mocking.

4 As for me, is my complaint † against a human being?
Then why shouldn't I be impatient?

5 Look at me and shudder; † put your hand over your mouth. †

6 When I think about it, I am terrified and my body trembles † in horror.

7 Why do the wicked continue to live, growing old and becoming powerful?

8 Their children are established while they are still alive, † and their descendants, before their eyes.

9 Their homes are secure and free of fear; † no rod from God strikes them. †

10 Their bulls breed without fail; their cows calve and do not miscarry.

11 They let their little ones run around like lambs; their children skip about,
12 singing to the tambourine and lyre and rejoicing at the sound of the flute. † 13 They spend † their days in prosperity † and go down to Sheol in peace.
14 Yet they say to God, “Leave us alone!
We don’t want to know your ways. †
15 Who is the Almighty, that we should serve him, and what will we gain by pleading with him? ” †
16 But their prosperity is not of their own doing.
The counsel of the wicked is far from me! †

17 How often is the lamp † of the wicked put out?
Does disaster † come on them?
Does he apportion destruction in his anger?
18 Are they like straw before the wind, like chaff † a storm sweeps away?
19 God reserves a person’s punishment for his children. †
Let God repay the person himself, so that he may know it.
20 Let his own eyes see his demise; let him drink from the Almighty’s wrath! †
21 For what does he care about his family once he is dead, † when the number of his months has run out? †

22 Can anyone teach God knowledge, † since he judges the exalted ones? † 23 One person dies in excellent health, † completely secure † and at ease.
24 His body is † well fed, † and his bones are full of marrow. †
25 Yet another person dies with a bitter † soul, having never tasted prosperity.
26 But they both lie in the dust, and worms cover them. †

27 I know your thoughts very well, the schemes by which you would wrong me.

28 For you say, “Where now is the nobleman’s house? ” and “Where are the tents † the wicked lived in? ”
29 Have you never consulted those who travel the roads?
Don’t you accept their reports? †
30 Indeed, the evil person is spared from the day of disaster, rescued from the day of wrath.
31 Who would denounce his behavior to his face?
Who would repay † him for what he has done?
32 He is carried to the grave, and someone keeps watch over his tomb.
33 The dirt on his grave is † sweet to him.
Everyone follows behind him,
and those who go before him are without number.

34 So how can you offer me such futile comfort?
Your answers are deceptive.

21:7 Job directly contradicted Zophar’s assertion that the “joy of the wicked” is “brief” (20:5). Rather, the wicked continue to live, growing old and becoming powerful, which Job illustrates in vv. 8-16. Thus, the strict retribution in this life that Zophar and the others espoused is false (see the notes on 15:20; 18:2-4; 20:4-5).

21:17-21 Continuing his counterargument against strict retribution (see previous note), Job this time contradicted Bildad’s assertion that the lamp of the wicked is put out (see 18:5-6). Along these same lines, he lamented that God does not punish the wicked person during his lifetime but causes his children to experience the consequences after the person is already gone (vv. 19-21; see also vv. 30-31; and the note on 27:13-23).

21:22-26 Job’s preceding refutation of strict retribution leads to the heart of the issue: the inscrutable ways and wisdom of God (v. 22). For example, one person lives a prosperous life, whereas another lives a bitter one (vv. 23-25). At the same time, both die (vv. 23,25-26; see 9:22).

21:27 Job's friends had harmed him with their insinuations and accusations that he was in the wrong (see 19:2-3,21-22 and the note on 20:4-5).

21:34 Job had already called his friends "miserable comforters" (16:2), and now he similarly referred to their words as futile comfort.

ELIPHAZ SPEAKS

22 Then Eliphaz the Temanite replied:

2 Can a man be of any use to God?
Can even a wise man be of use to him?
3 Does it delight the Almighty if you are righteous?
Does he profit if you perfect your behavior? †

4 Does he correct you and take you to court because of your piety? †
5 Isn't your wickedness abundant and aren't your iniquities endless?
6 For you took collateral † from your brothers without cause, stripping off their clothes and leaving them naked.
7 You gave no water to the thirsty and withheld food from the famished, †
8 while the land belonged to a powerful man and an influential man lived on it.
9 You sent widows away empty-handed, and the strength of the fatherless † was † crushed.
10 Therefore snares surround you, and sudden dread terrifies † you, 11 or darkness, so you cannot see, and a flood of water covers you. †

12 Isn't God as high as the heavens?
And look at the highest stars — how lofty they are!
13 Yet you say, "What does God know?
Can he judge through total darkness? †
14 Clouds † veil him so that he cannot see, as he walks on the circle of the sky."
15 Will you continue on the ancient path that wicked men have walked?
16 They were snatched away before their time, and their foundations † were washed away by a river.
17 They were the ones who said to God, "Leave us alone! " and "What can the Almighty do to us? " † †

18 But it was he who filled their houses with good things.
The counsel of the wicked is far from me!
19 The righteous see this and rejoice; the innocent mock them, saying, †
20 "Surely our opponents are destroyed, and fire has consumed what they left behind." †

21 Come to terms with God and be at peace; † in this way † good will come to you.
22 Receive instruction from his mouth, † and place his sayings † in your heart.
23 If you return † to the Almighty, you will be renewed.
If you banish injustice from your tent
24 and consign your gold to the dust, the gold of Ophir † to the stones in the wadis, 25 the Almighty will be your gold and your finest silver.
26 Then you will delight † in the Almighty and lift up your face to God. †
27 You will pray to him, and he will hear you, † and you will fulfill your vows.
28 When you make a decision, it will be carried out, † and light will shine on your ways. †
29 When others are humiliated and you say, "Lift them up,"
God will save the humble. † †
30 He will even rescue the guilty one, who will be rescued by the purity of your hands. †

22:4-11 Going beyond what he said in his second speech (see the notes on 15:1-6,20), Eliphaz asserted that

Job's wickedness was abundant and his iniquities endless. In particular, he accused him of callous cruelty to his needy neighbors (vv. 6-9; see also 20:19). According to the logic that one could reason from consequences back to actions (see the note on 4:6-8), this was why Job was suffering the way he was (vv. 10-11). Eliphaz's earlier indirectness and insinuations (see the notes on 4:17-21 and 5:17) have been unmasked: he believed Job had sinned and was suffering as a result.

22:21-30 Eliphaz's last remarks to Job consist of one more appeal to repent (vv. 21-23; see also 5:17; 8:5-7; 11:13-18). He was convinced that Job had acted wickedly (vv. 4-9,15) but could be restored (vv. 21,25-30).

JOB'S REPLY TO ELIPHAZ

23 Then Job answered:

2 Today also my complaint is bitter. † †
His † hand is heavy despite my groaning.
3 If only I knew how to find him, so that I could go to his throne.
4 I would plead my case before him † and fill my mouth with arguments.
5 I would learn how † he would answer me; and understand what he would say to me.
6 Would he prosecute † me forcefully?
No, he would certainly pay attention to me.
7 Then an upright man could reason † with him, and I would escape from my Judge † † forever.

8 If I go east, he is not there, and if I go west, I cannot perceive him. †
9 When he is at work to the north, I cannot see him; when he turns south, I cannot find him.
10 Yet he knows the way I have taken; † when he has tested me, † I will emerge as pure gold.
11 My feet have followed in his tracks; I have kept to his way † and not turned aside.
12 I have not departed from the commands from his lips; I have treasured † the words † from his mouth more than my daily food.

13 But he is unchangeable; who can oppose him?

He does what he desires. †

14 He will certainly accomplish what he has decreed for me, and he has many more things like these in mind. †

15 Therefore I am terrified † in his presence; when I consider this, I am afraid of him.

16 God has made my heart faint; † the Almighty has terrified me.

17 Yet I am not destroyed † by the darkness, †

23:3-5 Rather than respond to Eliphaz, Job expressed his wish to meet God and dispute with him. Whereas earlier he did not think himself adequate to do such a thing (see the notes on 9:2-4,14-16,32-35), now he wanted not only to go to his throne but also to fill [his own] mouth with arguments. Job has gone too far, as God will make clear (Jb 38–41).

23:8-9 The Lord's silence and apparent absence continued to burden Job (see the note on 10:2), such that he was in "darkness" (v. 17; 19:8).

23:13-16 His own desires notwithstanding, Job lamented that God's power and will superseded his and could not be resisted.

24 Why does the Almighty not reserve times for judgment? †
Why do those who know him never see his days?

2 The wicked displace boundary markers.
They steal a flock and provide pasture for it.

3 They drive away the donkeys owned by the fatherless † and take the widow's ox as collateral.

4 They push the needy off the road; the poor of the land are forced into hiding. †

5 Like wild donkeys in the wilderness, the poor go out to their task of foraging for food; the desert provides nourishment for their children.

6 They gather their fodder in the field and glean the vineyards of the wicked.

7 Without clothing, they spend the night naked, having no covering against the cold. †
8 Drenched by mountain rains, they huddle against † the rocks, shelterless.
9 The fatherless infant is snatched from the breast; the nursing child of the poor is seized as collateral. †
10 Without clothing, they wander about naked.
They carry sheaves but go hungry. †
11 They crush olives in their presses; † they tread the winepresses, but go thirsty.
12 From the city, men † groan; the mortally wounded cry for help, yet God pays no attention to this crime. †

13 The wicked are those who rebel against the light.
They do not recognize its ways or stay on its paths.
14 The murderer rises at dawn to kill the poor and needy, and by night he becomes a thief.
15 The adulterer's eye watches for twilight, thinking, "No eye will see me," and he covers his face.
16 In the dark they break † into houses; by day they lock themselves in, † never experiencing the light.
17 For the morning is like darkness to them.
Surely they are familiar with the terrors of darkness!

18 They float † on the surface of the water.
Their section of the land is cursed,
so that they never go to their vineyards.
19 As dry ground and heat snatch away the melted snow, so Sheol † steals those who have sinned.
20 The womb forgets them; worms feed on them;
they are remembered † no more.
So injustice is broken like a tree.

21 They prey on † the childless woman who is unable to conceive, and do not deal kindly with the widow.
22 Yet God drags away † the mighty by his power; when he rises up, they have no assurance of life.
23 He gives them a sense of security, so they can rely on it, † but his eyes † watch over their ways.
24 They are exalted for a moment, then gone; they are brought low and shrivel up like everything else. †
They wither like heads of grain. †

25 If this is not true, then who can prove me a liar †

24:1 Job revisited his earlier complaint that the wicked prosper in this life (see the notes on 21:7,17-21), which is depicted in vv. 2-17. He lamented that the Almighty [does] not reserve times for judgment and that "God pays no attention to this crime"(v. 12).

24:18-24 These verses have posed a challenge to scholars because they seem to conflict with Job's words in the present speech and elsewhere. He had repeatedly lamented the wicked prospering in this life (see previous note), but this section describes their punishment through death, similar to what his friends had argued. Nevertheless, Job had affirmed that the wicked are still subject to death (9:22; 21:22-26), in agreement with these verses (see also 27:7-23).

BILDAD SPEAKS

25 Then Bildad the Shuhite replied:

2 Dominion and dread † belong to him, the one who establishes harmony

4 How can a human be justified before God? †

25:2-6 This is the last time any of Job's three friends speak, since Zophar spoke only twice (see the note on 20:29). Bildad speaks briefly here, appealing to the greatness of God and the impossibility of a man to be justified before God, as had been stated before (see 4:17-21; 9:2; 15:14-16).

JOB'S REPLY TO BILDAD

26 Then Job answered:

2 How you have helped † the powerless and delivered the arm that is weak!

3 How you have counseled the unwise † and abundantly provided insight!

4 With whom did you speak these words?
Whose breath came out of your mouth?

5 The departed spirits tremble beneath the waters and all that inhabit them. †

6 Sheol † is naked before God, and Abaddon † has no covering. †

7 He stretches the northern skies over empty space; he hangs the earth on nothing.

8 He wraps up the water in his clouds, yet the clouds do not burst beneath its weight. †

9 He obscures the view of his throne, spreading his cloud over it.

10 He laid out the horizon on the surface of the waters † at the boundary between light and darkness.

11 The pillars that hold up the sky tremble, astounded at his rebuke. †

12 By his power he stirred † the sea, and by his understanding he crushed Rahab. †

13 By his breath the heavens gained their beauty; his hand pierced the fleeing serpent. † †
14 These are but the fringes of his ways; how faint is the word we hear of him!
Who can understand his mighty thunder?

26:2-4 Job employed sarcasm again (12:2) as he began his final defense before his friends. He will speak again, but only to God (see 40:3-5; 42:1-6).

26:12-13 Job had previously cited God's power over Rahab, ostensibly a fearsome sea creature, as evidence of his greatness (9:13; see also 7:12; Ps 89:10; Is 51:9). A fleeing serpent is mentioned only once elsewhere in Isaiah 27:1, where it is equated with "Leviathan" (see the note on 3:8). All three designators often suggest a figurative reference to an evil spiritual being, most likely Satan (see Gn 3:1 and the note on 41:1-11).

26:14 Job again recognized God's surpassing power, citing the preceding examples (vv. 5-13) as but the fringes of his ways.

27 Job continued his discourse, saying:

2 As God lives, who has deprived me of justice, † and the Almighty who has made me bitter, † 3 as long as my breath is still in me and the breath from God remains in my nostrils, †
4 my lips will not speak unjustly, and my tongue will not utter deceit.
5 I will never affirm that you are right.
I will maintain my integrity † † until I die.
6 I will cling to my righteousness and never let it go.
My conscience † will not accuse me as long as I live!

7 May my enemy be like the wicked and my opponent like the unjust.
8 For what hope does the godless person † have when he is cut off, when God takes away his life? †
9 Will God hear his cry when distress comes on him?
10 Will he delight † in the Almighty?

Will he call on God at all times?
11 I will teach you about God's power.
I will not conceal what the Almighty has planned. †
12 All of you have seen this for yourselves, why do you keep up this empty talk? †

13 This is a wicked man's lot † from God, the inheritance the ruthless receive from the Almighty.
14 Even if his children increase, they are destined for the sword; his descendants will never have enough food.
15 Those who survive him will be buried by the plague, yet their widows will not weep for them. †
16 Though he piles up silver like dust and heaps up fine clothing like clay —
17 he may heap it up, but the righteous will wear it, and the innocent will divide up his silver. †
18 The house he built is like a moth's cocoon or a shelter set up by a watchman. †
19 He lies down wealthy, but will do so no more; when he opens his eyes, it is gone.
20 Terrors overtake him like a flood; † a storm † wind sweeps him away at night.
21 An east wind picks him up, and he is gone; it carries him away from his place.
22 It blasts at him without mercy, while he flees desperately from its force.
23 It claps † its hands at him and scoffs at him from its place.

27:1 The introductory formula used here (and in 29:1) differs from the preceding ones (e.g., 3:1; 6:1; 9:1; 12:1; 16:1), which sets apart Job's concluding remarks to his friends.

27:2-6 As he had done in 19:6-7 (see note), Job called God's justice into question (v. 2; 34:5). He also declared to his friends that he would never affirm that [they] are right (v. 5; you is plural). Furthermore, he referred to them as his "enemy" (vv. 7-12).

27:13-23 Job wished that God would judge the wicked while they were still alive (see the notes on 21:7,17-21 and 24:1), but he also recognized God's justice through their deaths and their shameful legacy (see also the note on 24:18-24).

A HYMN TO WISDOM

28 Surely there is a mine for silver and a place where gold is refined.
2 Iron is taken from the ground, and copper is smelted from ore.
3 A miner puts an end to the darkness; he probes † the deepest recesses for ore in the gloomy darkness.
4 He cuts a shaft far from human habitation, in places unknown to those who walk above ground.
Suspended far away from people,
the miners swing back and forth.
5 Food may come from the earth, but below the surface the earth is transformed as by fire.
6 Its rocks are a source of lapis lazuli, † containing flecks of gold.
7 No bird of prey knows that path; no falcon's eye has seen it.
8 Proud beasts have never walked on it; no lion has ever prowled over it.
9 The miner uses a flint tool and turns up ore from the root of the mountains.
10 He cuts out channels in the rocks, and his eyes spot every treasure.
11 He dams up the streams from flowing † so that he may bring to light what is hidden.

12 But where can wisdom † be found, and where is understanding located?
13 No one can know its value, †
since it cannot be found in the land of the living.
14 The ocean depths say, "It's not in me," while the sea declares, "I don't have it." † 15 Gold cannot be exchanged for it, and silver cannot be weighed out for its price.
16 Wisdom cannot be valued in the gold of Ophir, † in precious onyx or lapis lazuli. † 17 Gold and glass do not compare with it, and articles of fine gold cannot be exchanged for it. † 18 Coral and quartz are not worth mentioning.

The price of wisdom is beyond pearls.
19 Topaz from Cush cannot compare with it, and it cannot be valued in pure gold.

20 Where then does wisdom come from, and where is understanding located?
21 It is hidden from the eyes of every living thing and concealed from the birds of the sky.
22 Abaddon and Death † say, “We have heard news of it with our ears.”
23 But God understands the way to wisdom, and he knows its location.
24 For he looks to the ends of the earth and sees everything under the heavens.
25 When God fixed the weight of the wind and distributed the water by measure, †
26 when he established a limit † for the rain † and a path for the lightning, 27 he considered wisdom and evaluated it; he established it and examined it.
28 He said to mankind, “The fear of the Lord —that is wisdom.
And to turn from evil is understanding.” †

28:1-11 Though the focus on wisdom in this chapter seems an abrupt change of topic, there is no question that such a focus highlights one of the central themes of the book. Job has already been presented as a wise man (1:1,8; 2:3; Pr 1:7) seeking understanding regarding his present suffering (see the note on 10:2). The extended metaphor of mining illustrates searching diligently in an unfrequented place for a hidden thing of great value, which parallels the search for wisdom (see following note).

28:12-19 Although precious metals can be discovered (see previous note), wisdom cannot be found in the land of the living (v. 13). Moreover, it is even more valuable than the precious metals for which men expend so much effort to unearth (vv. 15-19). Likewise, wisdom requires great effort to find. Proverbs 2:1-5 agrees with this and even uses many of the same words and themes. In the book of Job, the friends had relied on human wisdom to find the answer to Job’s suffering. They had reasoned with their best logic, but it proved inadequate. There was no way that they could have known the real reasons for Job's suffering. The reasons were mysteries in heaven.

28:20-23 Wisdom cannot be found as precious metals are found with physical eyes (vv. 12-14,20-21), but God understands the way to wisdom, and he knows its location. This begins to answer the questions posed in vv. 12,20 (see following note).

28:27-28 Though wisdom "is hidden from the eyes of every living thing" (v. 21), God knows where it is because he "sees everything under the heavens" (vv. 23-24). For Job and for all of mankind, the fear of the LORD is wisdom, and to turn from evil is understanding—just as Job's life had been characterized earlier (1:1,8; 2:3). Such wisdom, paradoxically, is not marked by complete knowledge (e.g., 1:5) but by acknowledgement of God's perfect wisdom, character, and moral standards.

JOB'S FINAL CLAIM OF INNOCENCE

29 Job continued his discourse, saying:

2 If only I could be as in months gone by, in the days when God watched over me,
3 when his lamp shone above my head, and I walked through darkness by his light! †
4 I would be as I was in the days of my youth when God's friendship † rested on my tent, 5 when the Almighty was still with me and my children were around me,
6 when my feet were bathed in curds and the rock † poured out streams of oil for me!

7 When I went out to the city gate † and took my seat in the town square,
8 the young men saw me and withdrew, while older men stood to their feet.
9 City officials stopped talking and covered their mouths with their hands. †
10 The noblemen's voices were hushed, and their tongues stuck to the roof of their mouths. †
11 When they heard me, they blessed me, and when they saw me, they spoke well of me. †
12 For I rescued the poor who cried out for help, and the fatherless child who had no one to support him. †
13 The dying blessed me, and I made the widow's heart rejoice.
14 I clothed myself in righteousness, † and it enveloped me;

my just decisions were like a robe and a turban.
15 I was eyes to the blind and feet to the lame. †
16 I was a father to the needy, and I examined the case of the stranger.
17 I shattered the fangs of the unjust † and snatched the prey from his teeth.

18 So I thought, "I will die in my own nest and multiply my days as the sand. † 19 My roots will have access to water, † and the dew will rest on my branches all night.
20 My whole being will be refreshed within me, and my bow will be renewed in my hand." †

21 Men listened to me with expectation, waiting silently for my advice.
22 After a word from me they did not speak again; my speech settled on them like dew. †
23 They waited for me as for the rain and opened their mouths as for spring showers.
24 If I smiled at them, they couldn't believe it; they were thrilled at † the light of my countenance.
25 I directed their course and presided as chief.
I lived as a king among his troops, like one who comforts those who mourn.

29:2-8 In Job's final defense, he began by recalling the many blessings he enjoyed prior to his present trials. Among them were God's favor (vv. 2-5), his children (v. 6), prosperity (v. 6), and the respect of his community (vv. 7-8,21-25).

29:12-17 Job had been kind to the needy, contrary to what his friends alleged (20:19; 22:6-9).

29:18-20 In those days, Job had thought he would live out the rest of his days enjoying these many blessings.

30 But now they mock † me, men younger than I am, whose fathers I would have refused to put with my sheep dogs.
2 What use to me was the strength of their hands?
Their vigor had left them.
3 Emaciated from poverty and hunger, they gnawed the dry land, the desolate wasteland by night.
4 They plucked mallow † † among the shrubs, and the roots of the broom tree were their food.
5 They were banished from human society; people shouted at them as if they were thieves.
6 They are living on the slopes of the wadis, among the rocks and in holes in the ground.
7 They bray among the shrubs; they huddle beneath the thistles.
8 Foolish † men, without even a name.
They were forced to leave the land.

9 Now I am mocked by their songs; †
I have become an object of scorn to them.
10 They despise me and keep their distance from me; †
they do not hesitate to spit † in my face.
11 Because God has loosened my † bowstring and oppressed me, they have cast off restraint in my presence. †
12 The rabble † rise up at my right; they trap † my feet and construct their siege ramp † against me. †
13 They tear up my path; they contribute to my destruction, † without anyone to help them.
14 They advance as through a gaping breach; they keep rolling in through the ruins. †
15 Terrors † are turned loose against me; they chase my dignity away like the wind, and my prosperity has passed by like a cloud.

16 Now my life is poured out before me, and days of suffering † have seized me.

17 Night pierces my bones, but my gnawing pains never rest. †
18 My clothing is distorted with great force; he chokes me by the neck of my garment. †
19 He throws me into the mud, and I have become like dust and ashes. †

20 I cry out to you for help, but you do not answer me; † when I stand up, you merely look at me.
21 You have turned against me with cruelty; you harass † me with your strong hand.
22 You lift me up on the wind and make me ride it; you scatter me in the storm. †
23 Yes, I know that you will lead me to death — the place † appointed for all who live.

24 Yet no one would stretch out his hand against a ruined person † when he cries out to him for help because of his distress. †
25 Have I not wept for those who have fallen on hard times?
Has my soul not grieved for the needy? †
26 But when I hoped for good, evil came; when I looked for light, darkness † came.
27 I am churning within † and cannot rest; days of suffering confront me.
28 I walk about blackened, but not by the sun. †
I stood in the assembly and cried out for help.
29 I have become a brother to jackals and a companion of ostriches.

and my bones burn with fever. †

30:1 Whereas Job had been like a “chief” and a “king” in his community (29:25), now he was mocked by the lowly in his society (see also vv. 2-8).

30:11 The mockery Job experienced was because of the disasters God had brought on him.

30:20-23 Job speaks to God directly and again lamented his silence (v. 20) and his apparent cruelty (vv. 21-23; see also the notes on 6:2-13 and 16:7-14).

30:25-26 Though Job had wept for others who were in trouble, none had comforted him (16:2; 19:2-3).

31 I have made a covenant with my eyes. †
How then could I look at a young woman? † †
2 For what portion † would I have from God above, or what inheritance from the Almighty on high?
3 Doesn’t disaster come to the unjust and misfortune to evildoers?
4 Does he not see my ways and number all my steps? †

5 If I have walked in falsehood or my foot has rushed to deceit, 6 let God weigh me on accurate scales, † and he will recognize my integrity. †

7 If my step has turned from the way, my heart has followed my eyes, or impurity has stained my hands, †
8 let someone else eat what I have sown, and let my crops be uprooted. †

9 If my heart has gone astray over a woman or I have lurked at my neighbor’s door, 10 let my own wife grind grain for another man, and let other men sleep with † her.
11 For that would be a disgrace; it would be an iniquity deserving punishment. †
12 For it is a fire that consumes down to Abaddon; it would destroy my entire harvest. †

13 If I have dismissed the case of my male or female servants when they made a complaint against me,
14 what could I do when God stands up to judge?
How should I answer him when he calls me to account?
15 Did not the one who made me in the womb also make them?
Did not the same God form us both in the womb? †

16 If I have refused the wishes of the poor or let the widow's † eyes go blind, 17 if I have eaten my few crumbs alone without letting the fatherless eat any of it — 18 for from my youth, I raised him as his father, and since the day I was born † I guided the widow — 19 if I have seen anyone dying for lack of clothing or a needy person without a cloak, † 20 if he † did not bless me while warming himself with the fleece from my sheep, 21 if I ever cast my vote † against a fatherless child when I saw that I had support in the city gate, † 22 then let my shoulder blade fall from my back, and my arm be pulled from its socket.
23 For disaster from God terrifies me, and because of his majesty I could not do these things. †

24 If I placed my confidence in gold or called fine gold my trust, † 25 if I have rejoiced because my wealth is great or because my own hand has acquired so much, 26 if I have gazed at the sun when it was shining or at the moon moving in splendor, †
27 so that my heart was secretly enticed and I threw them a kiss, †
28 this would also be an iniquity deserving punishment, for I would have denied God above.

29 Have I rejoiced over my enemy's distress, or become excited when trouble came his way?
30 I have not allowed my mouth to sin by asking for his life with a curse.
31 Haven't the members of my household said, "Who is there who has not had enough to eat at Job's table? "

32 No stranger had to spend the night on the street, for I opened my door to the traveler.
33 Have I covered my transgressions † as others do † by hiding my iniquity in my heart † 34 because I greatly feared the crowds and because the contempt of the clans terrified me, so I grew silent and would not go outside?

35 If only I had someone to hear my case! †
Here is my signature; let the Almighty answer me.
Let my Opponent compose his indictment.
36 I would surely carry it on my shoulder and wear it like a crown. † 37 I would give him an account of all my steps; I would approach him like a prince.

38 If my land cries out against me and its furrows join in weeping, 39 if I have consumed its produce without payment or shown contempt for its tenants, †
40 then let thorns † grow instead of wheat and stinkweed † instead of barley.

31:1 Having cited his kindness to the needy (29:12-17), Job gave as another example of his innocence, his abstention from lust (see the notes on 6:28-30 and 16:17-19). He knew that God would know of such an offense (vv. 2-4).

31:5-12 Job continued his defense of his blamelessness with statements that he was innocent of falsehood and adultery (see previous note).

31:13-23 Job had also treated his servants fairly (vv. 13-15,31) and the needy kindly (vv. 16-23,32; see also the note on 29:12-17) 31:24-30 Neither had Job trusted in his wealth or committed idolatry (see the notes on vv. 1,5-12,13-23). He had not rejoiced over [his] enemy's distress or desired harm for him either (vv. 29-30).

31:35-37 Having concluded his final defense, Job again wished for a hearing with the Almighty. He boldly called him to compose his indictment and even said he would approach like a prince (v. 37). These words are similar to those found in 23:3-5 (see note).

ELIHU'S ANGRY RESPONSE

32 So these three men quit answering Job, because he was righteous in his own eyes. † 2 Then Elihu son of Barachel the Buzite † from the family of Ram became angry. He was angry at Job because he had justified † himself rather than God. 3 He was also angry at Job's three friends because they had failed to refute him and yet had condemned him. †
4 Now Elihu had waited to speak to Job because they were all older than he.
5 But when he saw that the three men could not answer Job, he became angry.
6 So Elihu son of Barachel the Buzite replied:

I am young in years,
while you are old;
therefore I was timid and afraid to tell † you what I know.
7 I thought that age should speak and maturity should teach wisdom.
8 But it is the spirit in a person— the breath † from the Almighty— that gives anyone understanding.
9 It is not only the old who are wise or the elderly who understand how to judge.
10 Therefore I say, "Listen to me.
I too will declare what I know."
11 Look, I waited for your conclusions; I listened to your insights as you sought for words.
12 I paid close attention to you.
Yet no one proved Job wrong;
not one of you refuted his arguments.
13 So do not claim, "We have found wisdom; let God deal with him, not man."
14 But Job has not directed his argument to me, and I will not respond to him with your arguments.

15 Job's friends are dismayed and can no longer answer; words have left them.

16 Should I continue to wait now that they are silent, now that they stand there and no longer answer?
17 I too will answer; †
yes, I will tell what I know.
18 For I am full of words, and my spirit † compels me to speak. †
19 My heart † is like unvented wine; it is about to burst like new wineskins. †
20 I must speak so that I can find relief; I must open my lips and respond.
21 I will be partial to no one, † and I will not give anyone an undeserved title.
22 For I do not know how to give such titles; otherwise, my Maker would remove me in an instant.

32:3 Alt Hb tradition reads condemned God 32:17 Lit answer my part 32:18 Lit and the spirit of my belly 32:19 Lit belly

32:1-3 Job's three friends were finally silenced because he was righteous in his own eyes (see also 33:32). This description uses language distinct from that characterizing the foolish (Pr 12:15) and humans with their limited understanding (Pr 16:2; 21:2). Elihu was angry at Job for having justified himself rather than God (v. 2; 4:17; 19:6; 27:2) and at his friends for having condemned him (v. 3; see the notes on 11:5-6 and 15:1-6). His words provide a transition from the conversation up to this point (see vv. 12-14) to God's words beginning in 38:1.

32:4-9 Although Elihu was younger than Job's three friends, God would be angry with them and not with him (42:7-9). Though Scripture does encourage respect for the aged (e.g., Lv 19:32; Pr 16:31; 20:29), wisdom does not come automatically with age (vv. 8-9; Ps 119:98-100; 1Tm 4:12).

ELIHU CONFRONTS JOB

33 But now, Job, pay attention to my speech, and listen to all my words.
2 I am going to open my mouth; my tongue will form words on my palate.
3 My words come from my upright † heart, and my lips speak with sincerity what they know.
4 The Spirit of God has made me, and the breath of the Almighty † gives me life. †
5 Refute me if you can.
Prepare † your case against me; take your stand. †

6 I am just like you before God; I was also pinched off from a piece of clay. †
7 Fear † of me should not terrify you; no pressure from me should weigh you down.

8 Surely you have spoken in my hearing, and I have heard these very † words:
9 “I am pure, without transgression; I am clean and have no iniquity. †
10 But he finds reasons to oppose me; he regards me as his enemy. †
11 He puts my feet in the stocks; he stands watch † over all my paths.”

12 But I tell you that you are wrong in this matter, since God is greater than man. †
13 Why do you take † him to court for not answering anything a person asks? †
14 For God speaks time and again, but a person may not notice it.
15 In a dream, a vision † in the night, when deep sleep comes over people † as they slumber on their beds, 16 he uncovers their ears † and terrifies them † with warnings, 17 in order to turn a person from his actions and suppress the pride of a person.
18 God spares his soul from the Pit, † his life from crossing the river of death. †
19 A person may be disciplined on his bed † with pain and constant distress in his bones, †
20 so that he detests bread, and his soul despises his favorite food. † 21 His flesh wastes away to nothing, † and his unseen bones stick out.
22 He draws near to the Pit, and his life to the executioners.
23 If there is an angel † on his side, one mediator out of a thousand, to tell a person what is right for him †
24 and to be gracious to him and say, “Spare him from going down to the Pit;
I have found a ransom,” †

25 then his flesh will be healthier † than in his youth, and he will return to the days of his youthful vigor. †
26 He will pray to God, and God will delight in him.
That person will see his face † with a shout of joy, and God will restore his righteousness to him. †
27 He will look at men and say, “I have sinned and perverted what was right; yet
I did not get what I deserved. † 28 He redeemed my soul from going down to the Pit, and I will continue to see the light.”
29 God certainly does all these things two or three times to a person
30 in order to turn him back from the Pit, so he may shine with the light of life. †
31 Pay attention, Job, and listen to me.
Be quiet, and I will speak.
32 But if you have something to say, † answer me; speak, for I would like to justify you.
33 If not, then listen to me; be quiet, and I will teach you wisdom.

33:8-18 Elihu addressed Job’s complaint that God was afflicting him even though he had done no wrong (vv. 8-11; see also 9:21; 10:7; 13:18,24-27) and that God had not answered him (v. 13). Elihu contested that Job was wrong in this matter (v. 12) because God speaks time and again through various means such as dreams, but a person may not notice it (v. 14). Job himself had been having nightmares (7:13-15). Elihu’s suggestion that such terror (see also vv. 19-30) can be the divine means of preventing catastrophic sin (vv. 17-18) does not seem to speak to Job’s situation, but it does give an alternative to the strict retribution espoused by his friends. Furthermore, he does not want Job to cast God as an adversary but as One who wants to preserve his life (vv. 29-30; see also the note on 35:10-11).

34 Then Elihu continued, † saying:

2 Hear my words, you wise ones, and listen to me, you knowledgeable ones.
3 Doesn't the ear test words as the palate tastes food?
4 Let us judge for ourselves what is right; let us decide together what is good.
5 For Job has declared, "I am righteous, yet God has deprived me of justice. †
6 Would I lie about my case? †
My wound † is incurable, though I am without transgression."
7 What man is like Job?
He drinks derision † like water.
8 He keeps company with evildoers and walks with wicked men.
9 For he has said, "A man gains nothing when he becomes God's friend." †

10 Therefore listen to me, you men of understanding.
It is impossible for God to do wrong, and for the Almighty to act unjustly. †
11 For he repays † a person according to his deeds, and he gives him what his conduct deserves. †
12 Indeed, it is true that God does not act wickedly and the Almighty does not pervert justice. †
13 Who gave him authority over the earth?
Who put him in charge of the entire world? †
14 If he put his mind to it and withdrew the spirit † and breath he gave, 15 every living thing would perish together and mankind would return to the dust. †

16 If you have understanding, hear this; listen to what I have to say.
17 Could one who hates justice govern the world?
Will you condemn the mighty Righteous One, † 18 who says to a king, "Worthless man! " and to nobles, "Wicked men! "? †
19 God is not partial † to princes and does not favor the rich over the poor, for they are all the work of his hands.
20 They die suddenly in the middle of the night; people shudder, then pass away.
Even the mighty are removed without effort.

21 For his eyes watch over a man's ways, and he observes all his steps. †
22 There is no darkness, no deep darkness, where evildoers can hide. †
23 God does not need to examine a person further, that one should † approach him in court.
24 He shatters the mighty without an investigation and sets others in their place. † 25 Therefore, he recognizes their deeds † and overthrows them by night, and they are crushed.
26 In full view of the public, †
he strikes them for their wickedness, 27 because they turned aside from following him and did not understand any of his ways
28 but caused the poor to cry out to him, and he heard the outcry of the needy. †
29 But when God is silent, who can declare him guilty?
When he hides his face, who can see him?
Yet he watches over both individuals and nations, 30 so that godless men should not rule or ensnare the people.

31 Suppose someone says to God, "I have endured my punishment;
I will no longer act wickedly.
32 Teach me what I cannot see; if I have done wrong, I won't do it again."
33 Should God repay you on your terms when you have rejected his?
You must choose, not I!
So declare what you know.
34 Reasonable men will say to me, along with the wise men who hear me, 35 "Job speaks without knowledge; † his words are without insight."
36 If only Job were tested to the limit, because his answers are like those of wicked men.
37 For he adds rebellion to his sin; he scornfully claps † in our presence, while multiplying † his words against God.

34:5-9 For a second time (see the note on 33:8-18), Elihu took issue with something Job had said (vv. 8-9). In particular, Job had implied that God was unjust for bringing these trials to him (v. 5; 27:2) and that there was little benefit to being righteous (v. 9). Indeed, Job had at points forcefully lamented the injustice of this life (see the notes on 9:21-24 and 21:7,17-21; though see the note on 24:18-24). Contrary to what Job asserted in 19:6 and 27:2, Elihu insisted that God is just—even in Job's situation (vv. 10-12).

34:16-20 Elihu cited several examples of God's justice (vv. 18-20) to reinforce his point (see the previous note). The implication is that God is not one who hates justice and should not be condemn[ed] by anyone, including Job (v. 17).

34:29-30 Job had wanted to dispute with God (23:3-5; 31:35-37; 33:13), but Elihu reminded him that God did not owe him an answer or explanation (v. 29; see also 33:12). He is not guilty because he is silent.

34:35-37 Elihu was not saying that Job's suffering resulted from his sin but that he had sinned in some of the things he had said in the midst of his pain (see the notes on 32:1-3; 33:8-18; 34:5-9).

35 Then Elihu continued, saying:

2 Do you think it is just when you say, "I am righteous before God"?

3 For you ask, "What does it profit you, † and what benefit comes to me, if I do not sin? " †

4 I will answer you and your friends with you.

5 Look at the heavens and see; gaze at the clouds high above you.

6 If you sin, how does it affect God?

If you multiply your transgressions, what does it do to him?

7 If you are righteous, what do you give him, or what does he receive from your hand? †

8 Your wickedness affects a person like yourself, and your righteousness, a son of man. †

9 People cry out because of severe oppression; they shout for help because of the power of the mighty. †

10 But no one asks, "Where is God my Maker, † who provides us with songs in the night, †

11 who gives us more understanding than the animals of the earth and makes us wiser than the birds of the sky? ” † 12 There they cry out, but he does not answer, because of the pride of evil people. † 13 Indeed, God does not listen to empty cries, and the Almighty does not take note of it — 14 how much less when † you complain † that you do not see him, that your case † is before him and you are waiting † for him.
15 But now, because God’s anger does not punish and he does not pay attention to transgression, †
16 Job opens his mouth in vain and multiplies words without knowledge. †

35:2-8 For a third time (see the notes on 33:8-18 and 34:5-9), Elihu responded directly to Job’s complaint against God regarding whether there was any benefit to being righteous compared to being wicked (9:22-23; 21:7,17-21). Elihu’s point seems to be that although sin does not injure God (v. 6), it does harm the sinner himself and other humans (v. 8).

35:10-11 Elihu’s words bring out God’s attributes of kindness and grace (see also 33:18,29-30).

35:16 Elihu’s characterization of Job as one who multiplies words without knowledge (see also 34:35-37) foreshadows God’s opening words to Job (38:2; 42:3).

36 Then Elihu continued, saying:

2 Be patient with me a little longer, and I will inform you, for there is still more to be said on God’s behalf.
3 I will get my knowledge from a distant place and ascribe justice to my Maker.
4 Indeed, my words are not false; one who has complete knowledge is with you.

5 Yes, God is mighty, but he despises no one; he understands all things. † †
6 He does not keep the wicked alive, †
but he gives justice to the oppressed.
7 He does not withdraw his gaze from the righteous, but he seats them forever with enthroned kings, and they are exalted.

8 If people are bound with chains and trapped by the cords of affliction, 9 God tells them what they have done and how arrogantly they have transgressed.
10 He opens their ears † to correction and tells them to repent from iniquity.
11 If they listen and serve him, they will end their days in prosperity and their years in happiness. † 12 But if they do not listen, they will cross the river of death † and die without knowledge. †

13 Those who have a godless heart harbor anger; even when God binds them, they do not cry for help.
14 They die in their youth; their life ends among male cult prostitutes. †
15 God rescues the afflicted by their affliction; he instructs them by their torment.

16 Indeed, he lured you from the jaws † of distress to a spacious and unconfined place.
Your table was spread with choice food.
17 Yet now you are obsessed with the judgment due the wicked; judgment and justice have seized you.
18 Be careful that no one lures you with riches; † do not let a large ransom † lead you astray. †
19 Can your wealth † or all your physical exertion keep you from distress? †
20 Do not long for the night when nations will disappear from their places.
21 Be careful that you do not turn to iniquity, for that is why you have been tested by † affliction.

22 Look, God shows himself exalted by his power.
Who is a teacher like him?
23 Who has appointed his way for him, and who has declared, “You have done wrong”? †
24 Remember that you should praise his work, which people have sung about. †
25 All mankind has seen it; people have looked at it from a distance. †

26 Yes, God is exalted beyond our knowledge; † the number of his years cannot be counted. † 27 For he makes waterdrops evaporate; † they distill the rain into its † mist, †
28 which the clouds pour out and shower abundantly on mankind.
29 Can anyone understand how the clouds spread out or how the thunder roars from God's pavilion? †
30 See how he spreads his lightning † around him and covers the depths of the sea.
31 For he judges the nations with these; he gives food in abundance. †
32 He covers his hands with lightning and commands it to hit its mark.
33 The † thunder declares his presence; †

36:3 Elihu ascribed his wisdom to God himself (see also 32:8; 33:4).

36:5 Elihu's emphasis on the power and wisdom of God (see also v. 22) prepares the way for God's own words to be given soon. He also affirmed God's justice again (vv. 6-7; see the notes on 34:5-9,16-20).

36:15 Elihu returned to the idea that God can use suffering to teach, even though no sin was committed (see vv. 7-10; note on 33:8-18).

36:22-24 Elihu reminded Job that God has great power, and there is no teacher like him. In other words, his strength and understanding far surpass that of humans so that no one can rightly say to him, "You have done wrong" (v. 23), as Job had (19:6; 27:2). Instead, his work should be honored (v. 24).

36:26-33 Elihu continued on the themes of God's great wisdom and power (v. 26; see the notes on vv. 5,22-24), using a powerful storm as an illustration (see also the note on 38:1). His wisdom is evident through his role in the production of rain (vv. 27-28), through his understanding of how the clouds spread out and how the thunder roars (v. 29), and through how he spreads his lightning (v. 30). His power is self-evident through his control over all of these natural elements, which he even uses both to provide for mankind and to judge them (vv. 28,31; 37:13). Even these forces are subject to his careful oversight (v. 32). The Hebrew word for mark used in v. 32 is closely related to the one translated "target" in 7:20.

37 My heart † pounds at this and leaps from my chest. †
2 Just listen to his thunderous voice and the rumbling that comes from his mouth.
3 He lets it loose beneath the entire sky; his lightning to the ends † of the earth.

4 Then there comes a roaring sound; God thunders † with his majestic voice.
He does not restrain the lightning when his rumbling voice is heard.
5 God thunders wondrously with his voice; he does great things that we cannot comprehend.
6 For he says to the snow, † "Fall to the earth," and the torrential rains, his mighty torrential rains, 7 serve as his sign to all mankind, so that all men may know his work.
8 The wild animals enter their lairs and stay in their dens. †
9 The windstorm comes from its chamber, and the cold from the driving north winds.
10 Ice is formed by the breath of God, † and watery expanses are frozen.
11 He saturates clouds with moisture; †
he scatters his lightning through them.
12 They swirl about, turning round and round at his direction, accomplishing everything he commands them over the surface of the inhabited world.
13 He causes this to happen for punishment, for his land, or for his faithful love.

14 Listen to this, Job.
Stop and consider God's wonders.
15 Do you know how God directs his clouds or makes their lightning flash?
16 Do you understand how the clouds float, those wonderful works of him who has perfect knowledge?
17 You whose clothes get hot when the south wind brings calm to the land, 18 can you help God spread out the skies as hard as a cast metal mirror?
19 Teach us what we should say to him; †
we cannot prepare our case because of our darkness.
20 Should he be told that I want to speak?

Can a man speak when he is confused?
21 Now no one can even look at the sun when it is in the skies, after a wind has swept through and cleared the clouds away. †
22 Yet out of the north he comes, shrouded in a golden glow; awesome † majesty surrounds him.
23 The Almighty — we cannot reach him — he is exalted in power!
He will not violate justice and abundant righteousness, 24 therefore, men fear him.
He does not look favorably on any who are wise † in heart.

37:1-5 God is even mightier than the storm Elihu just described. In particular, his voice (vv. 2,4,5) is to be feared, since it commands the storm (see v. 6). Elihu again emphasized the inferiority of human understanding (v. 5; 36:26).

37:6-12 Elihu continued his use of a storm as an illustration of God's power and wisdom. The winter storm described here is instructive to men in understanding his work (v. 7), perhaps since it provides an example of his strength and a reminder of their frailty and need for humility (v. 8). Again, Elihu emphasized that God is in control of all of these powerful elements (vv. 6,10). Although they may seem out of control, they are actually moving at his direction, accomplishing everything he commands (v. 12).

37:13 A winter storm can serve the purpose of punishment, but it may instead be for his land, or for his faithful love (see the note on 36:26-33). This fits with Elihu's belief that Job's suffering, metaphorically described as a storm (see the note on 9:17-18), was not because of his sin but was for other reasons.

37:14-18 In keeping with his emphasis on God's superior wisdom and power (see the notes on 36:26-33 and 37:6-12), Elihu confronted Job with the fact that he could not understand how God orchestrates the elements of a storm nor could he participate with him in the sustenance of the universe.

37:23-24 Elihu appropriately concluded his remarks with both another affirmation of God's greatness and justice and with an encouragement to fear him (see also 28:28).

THE LORD SPEAKS

38 Then the LORD answered Job from the whirlwind. † He said:

2 Who is this who obscures my counsel with ignorant words? †
3 Get ready to answer me like a man; when I question † you, you will inform me.
4 Where were you when I established † the earth?

Tell me, if you have † understanding.
5 Who fixed its dimensions? Certainly you know!
Who stretched a measuring line across it?
6 What supports its foundations?
Or who laid its cornerstone
7 while the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God † shouted for joy?

8 Who enclosed the sea behind doors when it burst from the womb,
9 when I made the clouds its garment and total darkness its blanket, † † 10 when I determined its boundaries † and put its bars and doors in place,
11 when I declared: "You may come this far, but no farther; your proud waves stop here"?

A BIBLICAL BASIS FOR SCIENCE

A popular myth in our culture says that science and theology have always been at war with each other. It may come as a surprise to learn that most historians of science believe this idea to be untrue. In fact, the Bible provided some of the key intellectual foundations for the development of the sciences in the West.

GOD AS MASTER OF THE UNIVERSE

The first foundation is the expectation of regularity in nature, which stems from the Bible's monotheistic view of God. Polytheistic and pantheistic religions see the universe as run by committee, with unpredictable events arising from conflicts among the many supernatural personalities involved. As a result, nature is seen as capricious, without any expectation of regularity.

By contrast, the Bible presents God as the sole Master and Commander of the universe (Ps 89:11-13; Is 48:12-13) which he spoke into existence (Pss 33:6-9; 148:5) and over which he rules (Is 40:26). Since one God is in control of nature and has said that he does not change (Nm 23:19; Mal 3:6), we can expect his universe to run in a regular way. This is more than an inference: God explicitly says that he established the heavens and earth to follow regular laws (Gn 8:22; Jr 33:20,25).

SCIENCE AS A WORTHY PURSUIT

Another foundation is the Bible's teaching that the study of nature is a worthy pursuit in gaining wisdom and glorifying God. God's creation is good, and even though it is corrupted by sin, we are encouraged to learn from it (Ps 19:1; Pr 6:6). Psalm 104 and Job 38–39 praise God's wisdom, sovereignty, and control over creation.

Scientists such as Isaac Newton and Johannes Kepler often stated that they sought to glorify God by studying his creation. In his letter to the Grand Duchess Christina, Galileo remarked, “The glory and greatness of Almighty God are marvelously discerned in all His works and divinely read in the open book of Heaven.” By contrast, many world religions view nature in a dualistic manner, regarding the spiritual world as good and the material world as evil. So studying the physical world focuses one’s attention in the wrong direction.

THE COMPLEXITY OF GOD’S WORLD

A third biblical foundation for science is that God’s creation is not simple to understand. God informs us that “[His] thoughts are not [our] thoughts, and [our] ways are not [his] ways” (Is 55:8; see also Pr 25:2). Yet “The LORD founded the earth by wisdom and established the heavens by understanding” (Pr 3:19). This suggests that through difficult work we may be able to glimpse some of God’s wisdom. When doing science, as Kepler quipped, we are “thinking God’s thoughts after Him.”

GOD’S CONTINGENCY

The last foundation to mention here is God’s contingency: God created the world as he wanted it to be; he was not bound by outside constraints like human logic or philosophical principles. God “does whatever he pleases in heaven and on earth, in the seas and all the depths” (Ps 135:6; see also 115:3). Therefore, we cannot predict how God created; we must study God’s handiwork itself to see what he has done. Thus, good science is based on direct observations and experiments while theories are held tentatively until proven beyond doubt.

TENSIONS BETWEEN SCIENCE AND THEOLOGY

While the Bible is not a scientific textbook, we find that it provides the correct perspectives for viewing nature and the proper motivations for studying it. Science is arguably one of the tasks mankind is commissioned to do: Adam was to “name” the animals in the garden of Eden (Gn 2:19), and he was given stewardship over the earth (Gn 1:28), a task that required study and wisdom for it to be done well. Although the Bible has higher priorities than explaining how the heavens work, biblical descriptions of nature are profoundly true while simply stated. Examples are the creation event in Genesis 1:1 (see also Is 44:24; Heb 11:3), and the heavens and the earth’s wearing out over time (Ps 102:25-26), an echo of the second law of thermodynamics.

If the study of nature was historically grounded in biblical insights, how did the modern tensions between science and theology arise? The drift started in the late 1600s when the philosophers of the Enlightenment freed themselves from the shackles of Aristotle and other ancient authorities by attempting to rely only on reason and experience to establish truth claims. Newton’s discovery of the laws of motion and gravity led philosophers and theologians away from a theistic view (where God is actively involved in nature) to a deistic view (where God created the universe but now allows it to operate via laws he established). In the 1800s, T. H. Huxley and others desired to ground all knowledge on physical cause and effect, removing religious authority from society and replacing it with the authority of science. This narrowed the practice of science, limiting it to purely naturalistic explanations of the world.

Thus, the issues between the sciences and theology today hinge on the religious differences between naturalism and theism. In other words, should we view the universe as purely a machine which God cannot touch, or as a musical instrument which God plays for his glory? The difference is profound with respect to the explanations we can accept for natural phenomena. For example, if naturalism is assumed, something like Darwinism must be the “scientific” explanation for how life developed, because God’s guidance or intervention in nature is ruled out a priori. Any naturalistic explanation must be preferred, no matter how implausible it is, because others would not be naturalistic. Unfortunately, by ignoring some possible answers, science today may be missing the truth. This is perhaps most evident in the fields of biology, psychology, and the social sciences where the abandonment of man’s special place in creation in favor of explaining him as a machine or an animal has led to the devaluing of human life and personhood.

Strikingly, this philosophical shift in the foundation of science from theism to naturalism leaves people with little justification to pursue science. Better technology can earn one fame and fortune, a military advantage, or more comfortable living, but naturalistically minded scientists have no reason to expect mathematics to explain and predict how the universe behaves, no reason to expect the world to operate in a regular manner, and no explanation for what put the "material" in materialism in the first place. The ad hoc nature of the naturalistic presupposition has become more glaring with the recognition that our universe is not eternal but had a beginning and that the physical laws and constants themselves appear to be fine-tuned to allow for the possibility of complex, intelligent life. Naturalists sometimes suggest that our universe is just one among countless universes in a so-called multiverse, and that with so many universes the chances were good that at least one would turn out to be fine-tuned for life. But importantly, there is no evidence indicating that other universes exist.

CHRISTIANS AND SCIENCE

Is it possible for the sciences to return to a biblical basis? Certainly for Christians it is. We should look beyond the naturalistic, materialistic, and mechanistic blinders that limit the perspective of our culture, choosing to see that "the world is charged with the grandeur of God" (Gerard Manley Hopkins, "God's Grandeur"). Christians who marvel at the wisdom, power, and creativity demonstrated in God's handiwork, as the biblical writers and early scientists did, have a strong motive to pursue the sciences even if their colleagues espouse a narrower viewpoint.

The fine-tuning of our universe and the fact that it had a beginning strongly imply that Someone is behind it. So too does the dizzying complexity of life, which is becoming more evident as biochemistry unravels the secrets of life. If, through continued discoveries like these, the naturalistic straitjacket on valid scientific explanations comes to be seen for what it is—a theologically motivated restriction—perhaps science will soon shed naturalism, just as it shed its Aristotelian and Platonic straitjackets in the past. Perhaps then it will return to its theistic roots—the most fruitful perspective for viewing nature.

38:1 The Lord finally broke his silence. Job had described his suffering as though he were being battered by a whirlwind (see the notes on 9:17-18; 13:25; 30:22), and at long last God spoke from such a wind. The implication is that God was not absent but was with Job in the midst of overwhelming trials (see the note on 10:2). Indeed, he has complete power over a storm (see the notes on 36:26-33 and 37:6-12) so that it serves his purposes (see the note on 37:13). He knows its path and the exact quantities of its various elements (see 28:25-26; 38:22-30). Likewise, he knew the details of Job's trials (1:12; 2:6).

38:2-7 In calling God's justice into question and wanting to argue with him (19:6; 23:3-5; 27:2; 31:35-37), Job had spoken ignorantly and irreverently. Although he was not "a worm" (25:6), he was no match for the Almighty either (v. 3). The Lord reminded Job that he was not present at creation and did not understand it either (vv. 4-7; see also the note on 37:14-18).

38:8-11 God sets limits even for something as powerful as the sea and its proud waves (vv. 10-11). Earlier, he was described as setting a limit for rain and hence for a storm (28:26). Job's trial was also a "storm" (9:17; see the note on v. 1), and God had set limits for it too. Satan was not given free rein over Job (1:12; 2:6), and Job's trial would come to an end soon (42:10).

38:22-30 As Elihu had pointed out (see 36:27–37:18), God has complete control over snow, hail, wind, rain, and ice—all of which serve his purposes (vv. 23,26-27).

38:31-35 Like the other questions, those posed here are rhetorical. Not only was Job vastly inferior in understanding and in age to God (e.g., vv. 2,4,18-21), but he was severely lacking in power in comparison to him.

38:36-41 God's wisdom is shown through the fact that he imparts it to others (v. 36), and his complete understanding of the universe, and his provision for living things (vv. 37-41).

39:1-4 God's knowledge of the birthing process of mountain goats seems to highlight his understanding even of obscure aspects of the universe.

39:5-8 The wild donkey was given its freedom and its desolate home away from the rule of man by God. This gives further emphasis to God's sovereignty and design, applied to wild animals (see also the note on 38:8-11).

39:9-12 The wild ox is a powerful animal that does not listen to humans but is still subject to God (see also

v. 7). Elihu had made a similar point regarding the unpredictable forces of a storm being subject to God (see the note on 37:6-12). Job's suffering was under this same control (see the notes on 38:1,8-11).

39:13-18 The discussion of the ostrich serves as a reminder that God alone has complete wisdom and sovereignly imparts it to living things (vv. 17-18; 28:23-28; 38:36-38). Elihu had already mentioned that God "gives us more understanding than the animals of the earth and makes us wiser than the birds of the sky" (35:11; see also 28:7-8,21).

39:19-25 God not only imparts wisdom (vv. 17-18), but he is the One who imparts strength (vv. 19-20). He gives this to the powerful, fearless horse.

39:26-30 God's wisdom is also evident through his creation of flying birds, such as the hawk and eagle.

40 The LORD answered Job:

2 Will the one who contends with the Almighty correct him?
Let him who argues with God give an answer. †

3 Then Job answered the LORD:

4 I am so insignificant. How can I answer you? †
I place my hand over my mouth.
5 I have spoken once, and I will not reply; twice, but now I can add nothing. †

6 Then the LORD answered Job from the whirlwind: †

7 Get ready to answer me like a man; When I question † you, you will inform me.
8 Would you really challenge my justice?
Would you declare me guilty † to justify yourself? † 9 Do you have an arm like God's?
Can you thunder with a voice like his?

10 Adorn yourself with majesty † and splendor, and clothe yourself with honor and glory.
11 Pour out your raging anger; † look on every proud person and humiliate him. † 12 Look on every proud person and humble him; † trample the wicked where they stand. †
13 Hide them together in the dust; imprison them in the grave. †

14 Then I will confess to you that your own right hand † can deliver you. †

15 Look at Behemoth, which I made along with you.
He eats grass like cattle.
16 Look at the strength of his back † and the power in the muscles of his belly.
17 He stiffens his tail like a cedar tree; the tendons of his thighs are woven firmly together.
18 His bones are bronze tubes; his limbs are like iron rods.
19 He is the foremost of God's works; † only his Maker can draw the sword against him.
20 The hills yield food for him, while all sorts of wild animals play there.
21 He lies under the lotus plants, hiding in the protection † of marshy reeds.
22 Lotus plants cover him with their shade; the willows by the brook surround him.
23 Though the river rages, Behemoth is unafraid; he remains confident, even if the Jordan surges up to his mouth.
24 Can anyone capture him while he looks on, † or pierce his nose with snares?

40:1-5 Prior to beginning the second part of his speech (v. 6), God challenged Job directly to correct him and to give an answer (v. 2). Job said earlier that he wanted to argue with God (23:3-5; 31:35-37), but here he recognized that he was a mere man and utterly inadequate to do so.

40:6 The second part of God's response to Job was also from the whirlwind (see the note on 38:1) and begins by addressing Job's allegation of injustice (see the following note).

40:7-14 Job had essentially accused God of being unjust (v. 8; see 19:6; 27:2). The Lord's answer focuses on his power to humble the proud (v. 12) and imprison them in the grave (v. 13). Since Job obviously could not do this (see also 38:37-38), God, without directly defending his justice per se (see 38:13-15), rejected Job's challenge on these grounds.

40:15-24 God gives another example of an animal that is not subject to man but is under the control of God (see the note on 39:9-12). Man cannot capture behemoth, for only his Maker can draw the sword against him (v. 19). Because this creature eats grass (v. 15) and spends much of its time in marshes and rivers (vv. 21-23), it has been believed by many to be the hippopotamus. It could also be an animal now extinct.

41 Can you pull in Leviathan † with a hook † or tie his tongue down with a rope?
2 Can you put a cord † through his nose or pierce his jaw with a hook? †
3 Will he beg you for mercy or speak softly to you?
4 Will he make a covenant with you so that you can take him as a slave forever? †
5 Can you play with him like a bird or put him on a leash † for your girls?
6 Will traders bargain for him or divide him among the merchants?
7 Can you fill his hide with harpoons or his head with fishing spears?
8 Lay a † hand on him.
You will remember the battle and never repeat it!
9 Any hope of capturing him proves false.
Does a person not collapse at the very sight of him?
10 No one is ferocious enough to rouse Leviathan; † who then can stand against me?
11 Who confronted me, that I should repay him?
Everything under heaven belongs to me. †

12 I cannot be silent about his limbs, his power, and his graceful proportions.
13 Who can strip off his outer covering?
Who can penetrate his double layer of armor? † † 14 Who can open his jaws, † surrounded by those terrifying teeth?
15 His pride is in his rows of scales, closely sealed together.
16 One scale is so close to another † that no air can pass between them.
17 They are joined to one another, so closely connected † they cannot be separated.
18 His snorting † flashes with light, while his eyes are like the rays † of dawn.

19 Flaming torches shoot from his mouth; fiery sparks fly out!
20 Smoke billows from his nostrils † as from a boiling pot or burning reeds.
21 His breath sets coals ablaze, and flames pour out of his mouth.
22 Strength resides in his neck, and dismay dances before him.
23 The folds of his flesh are joined together, solid as metal † and immovable.
24 His heart is as hard as a rock, as hard as a lower millstone!
25 When Leviathan rises, the mighty † are terrified; they withdraw because of his thrashing.
26 The sword that reaches him will have no effect, nor will a spear, dart, or arrow.
27 He regards iron as straw, and bronze as rotten wood.
28 No arrow can make him flee; slingstones become like stubble to him.
29 A club is regarded as stubble, and he laughs † at the sound of a javelin.
30 His undersides are jagged potsherds, spreading the mud like a threshing sledge. †
31 He makes the depths seethe like a cauldron; he makes the sea like an ointment jar.
32 He leaves a shining wake behind him; †
one would think the deep had gray hair!
33 He has no equal on earth — a creature devoid of fear!
34 He surveys everything that is haughty; he is king over all the proud beasts. †

41:1-11 God concludes his words to Job with the mention of an even more fearsome creature that can overpower man but is subject to God (vv. 10-11). Leviathan might be identified as the crocodile or even as a creature now extinct.

41:18-21 This description has been explained as the misty exhaling associated with a crocodile or whale.

41:33-34 One of the key characteristics of Leviathan is his pride (see also v. 15). He is the greatest of all creatures and knows it. Nevertheless, he is still vastly inferior to his Creator (vv. 10-11). His association with the proud beasts (v. 34) implies that he knows nothing of wisdom (28:8; see the note on 39:13-18) and that he will be judged (40:10-14).

JOB REPLIES TO THE LORD

42 Then Job replied to the LORD:

2 I † know that you can do anything and no plan of yours can be thwarted. †

3 You asked, "Who is this who conceals my counsel with ignorance? " †
Surely I spoke about things I did not understand, things too wondrous for me to † know. †

4 You said, "Listen now, and I will speak.
When I question † you, you will inform me."

5 I had heard reports about you, but now my eyes † have seen you.

6 Therefore, I reject my words and am sorry for them; I am dust and ashes. † †

7 After the LORD had finished speaking † to Job, he said to Eliphaz the Temanite: "I am angry with you and your two friends, for you have not spoken the truth about me, as my servant Job has. 8 Now take seven bulls and seven rams, go to my servant Job, and offer a burnt offering for yourselves. Then my servant Job will pray for you. † I will surely accept his prayer and not deal with you as your folly deserves. For you have not spoken the truth about me, as my servant Job has." 9 Then Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite went and did as the LORD had told them, and the LORD accepted Job's prayer.

GOD RESTORES JOB

10 After Job had prayed for his friends, the LORD restored his fortunes and doubled his previous possessions. † 11 All his brothers, sisters, and former acquaintances † came to him and dined with him in his house. They sympathized with him and comforted him concerning all the adversity the LORD had brought on him. Each one gave him a piece of silver † † and a gold earring. †

12 So the LORD blessed the last part of Job's life more than the first. He owned fourteen thousand sheep and goats, six thousand camels, one thousand yoke of oxen, and one thousand female donkeys. 13 He also had seven sons and three daughters. 14 He named his first daughter Jemimah, his second Keziah, and his third Keren-happuch. † 15 No women as beautiful as Job's daughters could be found in all the land, and their father granted them an inheritance with their brothers.
16 Job lived 140 years after this and saw his children and their children to the fourth generation. 17 Then Job died, old and full of days. †

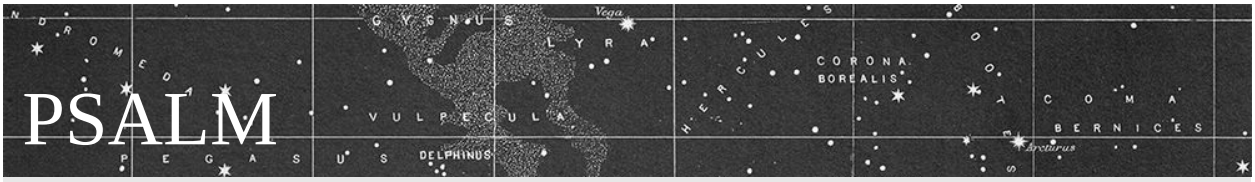
42:2-6 The Lord had emphasized his power and control over the forces of nature, wild animals, and Leviathan, which implied the same regarding Job's trials (see the notes on 38:1,8-11). Unlike his first response to God (40:3-5), Job this time recognized that God had a plan and repented for saying things beyond his understanding. This was despite never finding out about the conversation in heaven between God and Satan that led to all of this.

42:7-9 God himself disapproved of the words of Eliphaz, Bildad, and Zophar, who needed Job's gracious help to atone for their folly. They had assumed that Job's suffering had resulted from some sin of his.

42:12-17 Following Job's prayer for his friends (v. 10), God blessed Job even more than he had before. His possessions were doubled, and he had many more children. Job's restoration is itself an example of God's justice and kindness. Believers will not receive their complete reward in this life but in eternity (see Rm 8:18; 2Co 4:17).



PSALM

INTRODUCTION

The word for psalms in Hebrew is Tehilîm, which means "praise." The English title is derived from the Greek translation (LXX) Psalmoi, which means "songs of praise." Praise directed to the Lord, the God of Israel, is certainly the primary emphasis in the psalms. Some have referred to the Psalms as Israel's hymnbook, which is partially true but overall is insufficient to account for all that is in the Psalms. More than one-third of the collection is made up of prayers to God.

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

AUTHOR: Since the book is a collection of many different psalms written over a long time, there is not just one author for this collection. By far the most common designation in the titles is "Of David," which may refer to David as the author of those psalms. David's role as a musician in Saul's court (1Sm 16:14-23) as well as his many experiences as a shepherd, a soldier, and a king make him a likely candidate for writing many of these psalms.

The problem is that the mention of his name in the titles consists of an ambiguous Hebrew construction. It is nothing more than a preposition attached to David's name. The preposition could be translated "written by," "belonging to," "for," or "about." This does nothing more than relate the psalms bearing that title to David in some way but not necessarily naming him as author. The translation "Of David" accurately conveys this same ambiguity.

Other titles include the designations of Solomon (Pss 72; 172), Asaph (Pss 50; 70–83), the sons of Korah (Pss 42; 44–49), Ethan (Ps 89), Heman son of Korah (Ps 88), and Moses (Ps 90). In all of these the same ambiguity about authorship applies. In the case of Asaph, although he was one of David's chief musicians (1Ch 6:39), the name itself became associated with a group of musicians bearing the same name (Ezr 2:40-41; see note on Ps 50 title). This might explain why an apparently postexilic psalm (Ps 74) includes the title "of Asaph."

BACKGROUND: The book of Psalms consists of many different hymns and prayers composed by individuals but used by the community. If one were to take the names in the titles as authors, the date of composition ranges from the time of Moses (fifteenth century BC) to a time following the exile (sixth century BC or later). Some of the titles contain historical information that might indicate the setting of the composition, although even this (like the authorship) is ambiguous. They might not refer to the date of composition but to the setting of its contents, being composed some time after the events had taken place. This is a more likely scenario since some of these psalms describe life-threatening situations, where composing a psalm in the heat of the moment would not have been a top priority. In many cases, these psalms include thanksgiving sections as well, showing that they were written after God had answered the prayers.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

The relationship between God's activities in the lives of his people and their responses to them is the most significant contribution of this book. God never spoke directly in any of the psalms, as he often did in the narratives and prophets. They are written from the human perspective as authors work their way through various life situations. The struggle to understand how God's attributes, particularly his sovereignty and goodness, relate to life experiences is a major theme in the collection. These words are from people whose faith in God had been tested. They wrestled with how God was dealing with them personally and as a community.

STRUCTURE

The book of Psalms is a book of poetry. Hebrew poetry lacks rhyme and regular meter, but uses parallelism wherein lines are balanced and complete a thought. Some parallelism is synonymous, where the second line echoes the first. Antithetic parallelism uses a contrast between the two segments, and in synthetic parallelism the second segment completes the idea in the first segment.

The psalms can be divided into classes. There are hymns (145–150) and songs of thanksgiving (30–32). Psalms of lament (38–39) are prayers or cries to God on the occasion of distressful situations. Royal psalms (2; 110) are concerned with the earthly king of Israel. Enthronement psalms (96; 98) celebrate the kingship of the Lord. Penitential psalms (32; 38; 51) express contrition and repentance, and wisdom or didactic psalms (19; 119) tend to be proverbial.

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

The book of Psalms celebrates God as Creator. He is also Redeemer and Covenant-Maker. Many attributes of God are praised throughout the Psalter. The Spirit is God's active agent in accomplishing his purposes. (Ps 51:11 and Is 63:10-11 are the only OT passages referring to the Holy Spirit by name.) TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

The essential teaching of the book of Psalms about the human race is that God desires and enables people to praise and thank him. Humans reach their highest potential only when they seek joy and fulfillment in the Creator rather than in the creation. The psalms note the extremes of human existence. Psalm 8 shows the glory of humanity as made by God. On the other hand, the many psalms that mention enemies of God and of God's people show the shameful sinfulness to which humans may fall.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

The quotation of Psalm 32:1-2 by Paul in Romans 4:7-8 demonstrates that justification by faith was the same in OT times as in NT times. Other passages, such as Psalm 51, confirm that the psalmists' perspective was that salvation was initiated by the God of the covenant and was his gift to those who trusted in his chesed (usually translated "faithful love" or "kindness").

THE TWO WAYS

EMPEROR AND KING WORSHIP IN BIBLICAL TIMES

In the ancient Near Eastern world, kings held a status far above that of ordinary humans. It was not just that they had more power or authority; they were regarded as a higher order of being. They were intrinsically superhuman. Their superiority rested in their special tie to the gods.

In some texts, kings are called the "images" of the gods. Egyptian pharaohs such as Ahmose I, Hatshepsut, Amenhotep III, and Merneptah are explicitly referred to as the image or likeness of a god (often the god Amun). Some Mesopotamian texts also refer to kings as the image of a god. The oldest example is from the Tikulti-Ninurta Epic, an Assyrian text from the late thirteenth century BC. It describes king Tikulti-Ninurta as the image of the high god Enlil. Other Assyrian monarchs are said to be the image of Marduk.

In every case, describing the king as the image of a god raised him above the rest of humanity. Ordinary people were never said to be made in a god's image. In one text, the court astrologer Asharedu the Older flatters an Assyrian king by telling him that he is the image of Marduk. That is, the uniqueness of the king was that he was Marduk's image; other people were not.

Kings were more than mere images of gods. In Egypt, Pharaoh Thutmose III was regarded as the earthly manifestation of the god Horus, and his subordinates routinely spoke of the pharaoh's divine status. When in the fifteenth century BC, for example he proposed to his war council a plan for taking the city of Megiddo, his staff officers knew it was a risky strategy. Nevertheless, they submitted since, as they declared, he was the son of the god Amun. Throughout Egyptian history, the status of the pharaoh as a divine being worthy to be called a god was regarded as a given.

The full deification of the reigning king was fairly rare in early Mesopotamia, but there are a few examples of it. King Naram-Sin of Agade (2254–2218 BC) left behind a monument that shows he had a kind of divine status since it portrays him in a horned helmet, an emblem of deity. Ur-Nammu of Ur (2112–2095 BC) was raised to divine status on his death. But if the Mesopotamian texts are less consistent about treating the king as a full-fledged god, they are no less clear than the Egyptian material in asserting that the king was superhuman.

A classic example of this is from the Epic of Gilgamesh. This is the first great epic poem; it celebrates the life of the hero Gilgamesh, king of Uruk. The poem describes Gilgamesh as the ideal king, and it asserts that what enabled him to fulfill the royal ideal is that he was two-thirds divine.

From the start of Mesopotamian civilization, kings were represented as semidivine and as superior to all other humans. Ancient monuments would depict the kings as gigantic figures, towering over other men; eventually texts about them would mark their names with a special sign (called a "determinative") that was otherwise reserved for gods. To be a king was to be semidivine.

The ideal of divine kingship was linked to a nation's religious system, but it also served as propaganda. To question a king's authority was not merely treason but also blasphemy. The ideal set a great distance between the king and his court and a much greater distance between the king and the common people. Divine kingship asserts that the king deserves to rule because he is a higher order of being than everyone else. He is of the gods.

Several factors explain this phenomenon among the early royals. The first is the nature of ancient paganism. It treated inanimate objects such as the sun and stars as gods, and it asserted that natural entities such as rivers contained or embodied a deity. Certain animals could be regarded as especially sacred. In Egypt, a live bull was kept in a sacred shrine and called "the Apis." It was associated with the god Ptah and was the focus of enormous devotion and religious ceremony. In light of a religion like this, it is not difficult to imagine that certain people could be treated as semidivine.

Second, the phenomenon of hero-worship no doubt contributed to this system. Even today it is common for people to be so devoted to a political leader that any criticism of him is seen as tantamount to blasphemy. The ancient ideology took this kind of devotion to its natural conclusion and proclaimed kings to be divine beings.

Third, then as now, people with great authority were surrounded by "Yes-men." An ancient king could at will either kill a man or promote him to high office, and thus flatterers were anxious to outdo one another. The highest flattery one could give was to call the king a god.

Fourth, ancient kings were accomplished propagandists, as illustrated by the many monuments they created. In these monuments, the kings stride across the earth and slay their enemies at will. In numerous monumental inscriptions, Pharaoh Ramesses II claimed that at the battle of Kadesh he, through his divine majesty (and almost single-handedly), defeated the entire Hittite army. In reality, the battle was a stalemate and Ramesses was saved from ruin by the timely arrival of some Egyptian divisions. The state encouraged divine kingship because it was extremely useful politically.

The system persisted for centuries. Alexander the Great declared himself to be the son of Zeus, and Roman emperors were given religious honors in life and deified at death. The king's loyal followers no doubt took his semidivine status seriously, and those who did not believe it were wise enough to keep their thoughts to themselves. Christians of the early church were persecuted for refusal to burn incense to Caesar because Christians understood that such worship should be offered to God alone. They were willing to honor human rulers (1Pt 2:17), but would do no more than that.

Genesis 1:26 asserts that man is made in the image of God. This is true both for humanity as a corporate whole and for each individual person, both male and female. The Israelites knew well the ancient ideology of divine kingship, but from Genesis 1 they would have understood that the peasant woman grinding grain at the wheel had as much claim to being made in God's image as did any pharaoh.

But the point of Genesis is not that because we are all made in God's image, we are therefore all kings and queens. Rather, it is that being in the image of God is a function of being human and not a function of being a king. The highest dignity a creature can possess is to be made in God's image. Also, a king is by definition one man ruling absolutely over other people. The power to "rule" in Gn 1:28 does not involve one person ruling others; instead, all people rule over lower creation. Genesis 1 is therefore radically opposed to the royal ideology. All people, since they are made in God's image, rule the subhuman creations of this world. No king, on the false pretense that he alone is made in God's image, can rule all people.

When the Israelites did choose a king, he was not called the exclusive "image of God" and was certainly not regarded as a god. He was "the LORD's anointed" (1Sm 24:6). In addition, the Israelite king was required to keep a copy of God's law nearby precisely to remind him to fear the Lord so that "his heart [would] not be exalted above his countrymen" (Dt 17:20). No Israelite king was innately superior to the rest of the people, and all were subject to the judgment of the one God who shows no partiality (10:17).

RESPONSES TO TRANSHUMANISM

Most of us at one time or another have wished to be a little taller, thinner, or healthier. Most of us have desired to be a little more intelligent, more self-controlled, perhaps even a little more virtuous. These desires seem universal, but now, with the advancements in modern technology, a movement called transhumanism wants to make these enhancements and many others available to all.

Generously defined, transhumanism is "a loosely defined movement that has developed gradually over the past two decades. It promotes an interdisciplinary approach to understanding and evaluating the opportunities for enhancing the human condition and the human organism opened up by the advancement of technology" (Nick Bostrom, "Transhumanist Values").

More ominously described, "Transhumanists view human nature as a work in progress, a half-baked beginning that we can learn to remold in desirable ways. Current humanity need not be the endpoint of evolution" (ibid.). While the second description is worded more blatantly, the ideas that make it ominous are present in the first definition.

Two further terms help give perspective to transhumanism—the transhuman and the posthuman. A transhuman refers to an intermediary form between the human and the posthuman. A posthuman is a possible future being whose capacities exceed those of present humans to the extent that it is no longer clearly human by current standards. Thus, a transhumanist supports transhumanism's effort toward the posthuman by way of the transhuman.

In practice, there are many elements of transhumanism that are consistent with a biblical view of human nature and the human condition. Pronounced efforts to relieve human suffering and foster virtues that sustain human flourishing motivate transhumanist labors. Indeed, there is such significant overlap with the gospel and the transhumanist narrative that a prominent transhumanist website responds to why so many call it the "new religion." In an uncanny way, transhumanism tells a story of redemption: it has a view of the human predicament and why "salvation" is needed. It has a view of the nature of salvation and of what that salvation consists. It even has a vision of the future that could be called eschatological hope.

From a biblical perspective, however, transhumanism is rooted in key assumptions about human nature, the human condition, and the nature of reality that are antithetical to a biblical understanding of each. So, despite the superficial similarities, transhumanism represents a different gospel.

THE BELIEFS OF TRANSHUMANISTS

The transhumanist movement, according to Nick Bostrom, a transhumanist philosopher from the University of Oxford, has roots in secular humanist thinking, but extends beyond it. Secular humanism chooses to begin with several beliefs about the nature of reality and knowledge, beliefs that are shared equally by transhumanists. The first few statements of the secular Humanist Manifesto I, II and now III pronounce these beliefs.

First, there is a fundamental denial of God. Humanism is a progressive philosophy of life that, without supernaturalism, affirms our ability and responsibility to lead ethical lives of personal fulfillment that aspire to the greater good of humanity (III).

Second, human life arises from a naturalistic evolutionary process. Humanism believes that man is a part of nature and that he has emerged as the result of a continuous process (I). Holding an organic view of life, humanists find that the traditional dualism of mind and body must be rejected (I).

Third, consistent with its denial of supernaturalism, knowledge about and from God is denied and only naturalistic knowledge is available. Knowledge of the world is derived by observation, experimentation, and rational analysis. Humanists find that science is the best method for determining this knowledge as well as for solving problems and developing beneficial technologies (III).

These so-called beneficial technologies are those through which transhumanism extends beyond secular humanism.

According to Humanity Plus, an international transhumanist organization, transhumanists "are not limited to traditional humanistic methods, such as education and cultural development. We can also use technological means that will eventually enable us to move beyond what some would think of as human." This organization boasts over six thousand members from more than a hundred countries, with many affiliated organizations.

TRANSHUMANISM VERSUS THE GOSPEL

The "move beyond human" idea is where the movement's superficial similarities with the gospel appear. A key term used in transhumanist writing is enhancement. In the opening definition it is in reference to the use of emergent technologies to enhance the human condition. This includes such things as vaccinations and using technology to eradicate deadly diseases and unnecessary human suffering.

Bringing healing to those in pain, aid to those in need, and care for the aged are certainly consistent with the gospel. Many transhumanists even appeal to the words and work of Jesus as support for their efforts, claiming that Jesus did not simply accept sickness and death as "the Father's will," but sought to alleviate suffering. Indeed, Jesus exerted great effort in healing as a sign of his ministry. When questioned by John the Baptist's disciples (Mt 11:2-6), Jesus directly pointed to this part of his ministry as verification of his identity.

The transhumanist appeal to Jesus fails, however, when two things are considered. When the words and work of Jesus are kept in context, it becomes clear that Jesus's healing signified that God's kingdom had come and the power of sin had been broken. The healing and restoring were not ends—restoring life for life's sake—but means that signified that God in human form had come to redeem the world from sin.

While a biblical understanding of the brokenness of the human condition is shared with transhumanists, what causes that human predicament, and how redemption occurs, are drastically different. Because the brokenness of the human body is a result of sin's effects on the world, simply "enhancing" the body will never truly heal the human condition (Lk 5:31-32 and Mk 7:23).

A second related consideration is the nature of Jesus's healing and the distinction between restoration and alteration. When Jesus heals the blind, he restores sight. While technology has created the possibility of restoring sight to the blind by way of small cameras and "neural prostheses," bearing witness to the wonder of human ingenuity, technology used to "upgrade" natural sight to long-range zoom or night vision is alteration rather than restoration. Thus, the move toward the posthuman is made.

It is here that the presuppositions of transhumanism become evident. If there is no God and humans are a work in progress, then man's current limitations are a predicament and are in no way linked to sin. Implicit in this belief is that all current biological limitations are humanity's problem. These limitations are both physical and intellectual, so if the human organism can be enhanced, then overcoming current limitations is inherently good and is a step toward "redemption." Technology becomes the savior and "techno-sapiens" are born.

Consider this comment by transhumanist philosopher Max More: "The transhumans or posthumans we may become as individuals or as a species may quite possibly share our current DNA, but implants, regenerative medicine, medical nanotechnology, neural-computer interfaces, and other technologies and cultural practices are likely to gradually render our chromosomes almost vestigial components of our individual and species identity" ("H+: True Transhumanism," 2009).

Biblically understood, the life of Jesus gives a glimpse of the truly human life. In our fallen condition we might be called merely human. The truly human life did not see biological limitations as something to be overcome. When Jesus was thirsty, he drank; when hungry, he ate; when tired, he slept. None of these are portrayed as inherently problematic—something to be overcome—but as a source of delight in God the Father's provision. Jesus's resurrection likewise gives perspective to our current life. Jesus was resurrected to new life. This was not simply an enhanced version of his previous human life; rather, it consisted of a glorious resurrection body that will never again face death.

Another question worth considering is how the transhumanist knows that humanity could be so much more than it currently is. Interestingly, Bostrom suggests, "the limitations of the human mode of being are so pervasive and familiar that we often fail to notice them, and to question them requires manifesting an almost childlike naiveté." If current limitations are so pervasive, how would it occur to us to question them? Here, it seems, is a tacit recognition that humans were created in God's image and that we were made for eternity (Gn 1:27; Ec 3:11). Because of sin, all of creation, human nature particularly, is in an unnatural state. Implicit in the transhumanist life view is the recognition of this and the impulse to fight against it is right. The problem, however, is that the remedy suggested is the precise move that brought about our unnatural state. It was, and always will be wrong to extend the hand for fruit that promises to make us like God.

Proper hope, then, is not in technologically enhanced "ageless bodies and indefinite life spans," but rather our final resurrection. Our resurrection bodies will be like Christ's—glorious and no longer subject to death or decay. While the transhumanist hopes for such a reality in this life, prior to death, our hope is for the next life, when death is finally overcome. It is then that "this corruptible body [will] be clothed with incorruptibility . . . thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1Co 15:53,57).

NEED FOR GOD'S JUSTICE

10 LORD, † † why do you stand so far away? †
Why do you hide in times of trouble? †
2 In arrogance the wicked relentlessly pursue their victims; let them be caught in the schemes they have devised. †

3 For the wicked one boasts about his own cravings; † the one who is greedy curses † and despises the LORD. † 4 In all his scheming, the wicked person arrogantly thinks, †
"There's no accountability,
since there's no God." †
5 His ways are always secure; † your lofty judgments have no effect on him; † he scoffs at all his adversaries. †

6 He says to himself, “I will never be moved — from generation to generation without calamity.” †
7 Cursing, deceit, and violence fill his mouth; trouble and malice are under his tongue. †
8 He waits in ambush near settlements; †
he kills the innocent in secret places.
His eyes are on the lookout for the helpless; †
9 he lurks in secret like a lion in a thicket.
He lurks in order to seize a victim;
he seizes a victim and drags him in his net.
10 So he is oppressed and beaten down; helpless people fall because of the wicked one’s strength. †
11 He says to himself, “God has forgotten; he hides his face and will never see.” †

12 Rise up, LORD God! Lift up your hand. †
Do not forget the oppressed. †
13 Why has the wicked person despised God?
He says to himself, “You will not demand an account.” †
14 But you yourself have seen trouble and grief, observing it in order to take the matter into your hands. †
The helpless one entrusts himself to you; you are a helper of the fatherless. † 15 Break the arm of the wicked, evil person, † until you look for his wickedness, but it can’t be found. †

16 The LORD is King forever and ever; † the nations will perish from his land. † 17 LORD, you have heard the desire of the humble; you will strengthen their hearts.
You will listen carefully, †

18 doing justice for the fatherless and the oppressed so that mere humans from the earth may terrify them no more. †

REFUGE IN THE LORD

For the choir director. Of David.

11 I have taken refuge in the LORD. †
How can you say to me,
"Escape to the mountains † like a bird! †
2 For look, the wicked string bows; they put their arrows on bowstrings to shoot from the shadows at the upright in heart. † 3 When the foundations are destroyed, what can the righteous do? " † the LORD—his throne is in heaven. †

His eyes watch;
his gaze † examines everyone. †
5 The LORD examines the righteous, but he hates the wicked and † those who love violence. †

AGNOSTICISM AND SECULARISM

The term agnosticism derives from the Greek word gnosis, meaning "knowledge," with the prefix a– meaning "not" and the suffix –ism meaning "belief." In a generic sense, agnosticism can mean the belief that one does not or cannot know something, whatever that might be (e.g., someone may be "agnostic" about whether humans will ever travel to other planets).

Its original and most common usage, however, is specifically in reference to the belief that humans cannot know whether God exists. T. H. Huxley (1825–1895) coined the term in 1869 to denote his own belief that questions about the reality of nonempirical concepts such as God's existence or life after death were "insoluble," beyond the capacity of human minds to know. David Hume (1711–1776) had argued that it was never rational to believe that a miracle had occurred, regardless of the apparent evidence for it. Immanuel Kant (1724–1804) had argued that all of the philosophical proofs for God's existence failed. With the rise of evolutionary theory, for which Huxley was a noted advocate, arguments for God's existence from nature also seemed to have been overturned. The result was that in the second half of the nineteenth century, many people felt that there were no good reasons to accept religion or belief in God.

So-called soft or weak agnostics are unsure as to whether God exists, but they do not think the question is necessarily beyond investigation. So-called hard or strong agnostics like Huxley, on the other hand, are convinced that such questions are in principle unanswerable; they believe that the nature of the problem is such that no one can know whether God exists.

AGNOSTICISM AND ATHEISM

The boundary between agnosticism and atheism is a fuzzy one. Agnostics have often denied being atheists while stating in one way or another that they disbelieve in God.

For example, Robert Ingersoll (1833–1899), in an 1896 lecture entitled "Why I Am an Agnostic," explained that while he did not know if there was a God, he believed there was "no supernatural power that can answer prayer—no power that worship can persuade or change—no power that cares for man." The belief that there is no supernatural power that can answer prayer would seem to qualify as a type of atheism.

On the other side, atheists often define atheism not as the dogmatic assertion of God's nonexistence but as the lack of belief that God exists—it's a lack of belief, however, they try to justify rationally. In his book The God Delusion, atheist Richard Dawkins proposed a continuum between strong theism (belief that God certainly exists) and strong atheism (belief that God certainly does not exist), with agnosticism in the midrange of the continuum. Dawkins considered himself to be very close to strong atheism with only modest reservation. He said, "I cannot know for certain but I think God is very improbable, and I live my life on the assumption that he is not there." Dawkins's statement here is actually fairly representative of most people who identify themselves as agnostics: they disavow certainty as to God's nonexistence, but they feel confident in living their lives on the assumption that he is not there.

AGNOSTICISM AND CHRISTIANITY

The Bible presents a two-pronged response to disbelief in God, whether cast as agnosticism or atheism. First, Scripture teaches that God has made himself known through the natural world. People who reject God "suppress the truth," because since the creation of the world "his invisible attributes, that is, his eternal power and divine nature, have been clearly seen . . . being understood through what he has made. As a result, people are without excuse" (Rm 1:18,20; see also Neh 9:6; Ps 19:1-6; Ac 17:24-28). Recent advances in science furnish abundant evidence in support of the Bible's teaching on this point. It is now beyond reasonable doubt that the universe had a beginning, and the evidence is mounting that life was initiated on earth by a supremely intelligent Creator.

Second, God has acted to reveal himself even more directly in order to restore humans to a relationship with him. He did so by speaking to various individuals such as Abraham and Moses, by miraculously freeing the Israelites from their bondage in Egypt, and by demonstrating his sovereign rule in Israel's history (Gn 12:1-3; 17:1-5; Ex 3; Dt 4:32-39; Neh 9:7-15; Is 43:10-13). God has supremely revealed himself in Jesus Christ, who is God the Son incarnate (Jn 1:1-18). The Bible itself is a collection of writings inspired by God the Holy Spirit, who spoke through human authors (2Tm 3:15-17; 2Pt 1:20-21). This same Spirit illuminates people's minds to accept God's revelation of the good news of Jesus Christ (1Co 2:10-16).

AGNOSTICISM AND SECULARISM

Secularism as a worldview attempts to state positively what can be believed once one has concluded that life should be lived on the assumption that God is not there. The English word secular (from the Lat saeculum, meaning "age," "world") means anything pertaining to regular, earthly, mundane life (work, marriage, family, politics), as distinguished from religious or sacred matters (church, prayer, theology, Scripture). In this classic sense, there is nothing wrong or controversial about something being called secular.

Secularism, however, is a belief that all of human life and society should be secular. George Holyoake (1817–1906), who coined the term in 1851, defined it to mean "giving the precedence to the duties of this life, over those which pertain to another world" (Christianity and Secularism). Secularism focuses on the material world, seeks knowledge through science alone, and separates morality from religion.

In the twentieth century, secularism came to be known by the term secular humanism: this designation is understood as a positive, life-affirming worldview that inculcates such values as tolerance, respect, and kindness without any religious or spiritual foundation. Groups of influential secularists issued statements advocating their worldview in a work entitled Humanist Manifesto I (1933) and Humanist Manifesto II (1973). Secular humanists include both self-described agnostics and atheists.

SECULARISM AND SECULARIZATION

Secularism is closely associated in the modern world with secularization, so much so that the two terms are often used synonymously or interchangeably. To be precise, secularism is a belief or worldview whereas secularization is a corresponding movement or social process. Specifically, secularization is the process of removing religious, theological, or spiritual elements or influences from various aspects of society. The "separation of church and state" is an example of secularization.

The older, more moderate secularization removed ecclesiastical control or authority from government, as in the United States Constitution's Bill of Rights prohibiting the imposition of a religious test by the government on any candidate or official. The newer, more radical secularization is an overt campaign to bar religious expression or influence in government, politics, or civic matters—as in efforts to remove references to the Ten Commandments from government properties or to prohibit school teachers from expressing religious opinions in state-funded classrooms.

Moderate secularization was driven by the belief that religious institutional control of government, as when states recognized specific Christian denominations as the official state religion, interfered with the free expression and practice of religion in public life by those with different religious beliefs. Radical secularization, on the other hand, is driven by the belief that religious beliefs and values should have no influence in public life and so should be marginalized and limited wherever and as much as possible. This radical secularization, then, presupposes secularism as a worldview; it assumes that religious or spiritual beliefs and values are of no practical significance or benefit to society.

SECULARISM AND CHRISTIANITY

Secularism presupposes that God either does not exist or is irrelevant to human life, assumptions countered by the Bible's teaching noted above that God has made himself known in many ways. Scripture is clear that every aspect of life is to be seen in the light of the Creator. Followers of Jesus seek God's kingdom above all else (Mt 6:33). Their whole lives are geared toward loving God and other people (Mk 12:28-31). Far from irrelevant to society, a biblical worldview is the foundation of an enlightened view of relationships between men and women and of social matters of class and ethnicity (Gl 3:28).

Agnosticism and secularism are in the end unrealistic ways of viewing the world. The biblical worldview, according to which God exists, humans are fallen in sin, and God is at work to restore our relationship with him (Ps 14), is the only sound foundation for life.

A PRAYER FOR PROTECTION

A prayer of David.

17 LORD, hear a just cause; †

2 Let my vindication come from you, for you see what is right. †

6 I call on you, God, because you will answer me; † listen closely to me; hear what I say.

Savior of all who seek refuge † from those who rebel against your right hand. † 8 Protect me as the pupil of your eye; † hide me in the shadow of your wings †

my deadly enemies who surround me. †

With your sword, save me from the wicked. †

PRAISE FOR DELIVERANCE

For the choir director. Of the servant of the LORD, David, who spoke the words of this song to the LORD on the day the LORD rescued him from the grasp of all his enemies and from the power of Saul. † He said:

18 I love you, LORD, my strength.
2 The LORD is my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer, † my God, my rock where I seek refuge, my shield † and the horn of my salvation, †
my stronghold.
3 I called to the LORD, who is worthy of praise, †
and I was saved from my enemies. †

4 The ropes of death were wrapped around me; the torrents of destruction terrified me. †
5 The ropes of Sheol entangled me; the snares of death confronted me. †
6 I called to the LORD in my distress, and I cried to my God for help.
From his temple he heard my voice, †
and my cry to him reached his ears. †

7 Then the earth shook and quaked; the foundations of the mountains trembled; †
they shook because he burned with anger.
8 Smoke rose from his nostrils, and consuming fire came from his mouth; coals were set ablaze by it. † †
9 He bent the heavens and came down, †
total darkness beneath his feet.
10 He rode on a cherub and flew, soaring on the wings of the wind. †
11 He made darkness his hiding place, dark storm clouds his canopy around him. † 12 From the radiance of his presence, † his clouds swept onward with hail and blazing coals.
13 The LORD thundered from † heaven; the Most High made his voice heard. † †
14 He shot his arrows and scattered them; he hurled † lightning bolts and routed them. †

15 The depths of the sea became visible, the foundations of the world were exposed, at your rebuke, LORD, at the blast of the breath of your nostrils. †

16 He reached down from on high and took hold of me;
he pulled me out of deep water. †
17 He rescued me from my powerful enemy and from those who hated me, for they were too strong for me. †
18 They confronted me in the day of my calamity, but the LORD was my support. †
19 He brought me out to a spacious place; †
he rescued me because he delighted in me. †

20 The LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness; †
he repaid me
according to the cleanness of my hands. †
21 For I have kept the ways of the LORD and have not turned from my God to wickedness. †
22 Indeed, I let all his ordinances guide me †
and have not disregarded his statutes. † 23 I was blameless toward him † and kept myself from my iniquity.
24 So the LORD repaid me according to my righteousness, †
according to the cleanness of my hands in his sight. †

25 With the faithful you prove yourself faithful,
with the blameless
you prove yourself blameless,
26 with the pure you prove yourself pure;
but with the crooked
you prove yourself shrewd. †
27 For you rescue an oppressed people, † but you humble those with haughty eyes. †

28 LORD, you light my lamp; my God illuminates my darkness. †
29 With you I can attack a barricade, †
and with my God I can leap over a wall. †

30 God — his way is perfect; †
the word of the LORD is pure. †
He is a shield to all who take refuge in him. †
31 For who is God besides the LORD? †
And who is a rock? Only our God. †
32 God — he clothes me with strength † and makes my way perfect.
33 He makes my feet like the feet of a deer † and sets me securely on the heights. † † 34 He trains my hands for war; †
my arms can bend a bow of bronze. † 35 You have given me the shield of your salvation; your right hand upholds me, † and your humility exalts me.
36 You make a spacious place beneath me for my steps, † and my ankles do not give way. †

37 I pursue my enemies and overtake them; I do not turn back until they are wiped out. †
38 I crush them, and they cannot get up; they fall beneath my feet. †
39 You have clothed me with strength for battle; † you subdue my adversaries beneath me. †
40 You have made my enemies retreat before me; † †
I annihilate those who hate me. †

41 They cry for help, but there is no one to save them † — they cry to the LORD, but he does not answer them. †
42 I pulverize them like dust before the wind; †
I trample them † like mud in the streets. †

43 You have freed me from the feuds among the people; you have appointed me the head of nations; †
a people I had not known serve me. †
44 Foreigners submit to me cringing; as soon as they hear they obey me. †
45 Foreigners lose heart and come trembling from their fortifications. †

46 The LORD lives — blessed be my rock!
The God of my salvation is exalted. † 47 God — he grants me vengeance † and subdues peoples under me. †
48 He frees me from my enemies.
You exalt me above my adversaries;
you rescue me from violent men. †
49 Therefore I will give thanks to you among the nations, LORD; I will sing praises about your name. †
50 He gives great victories to his king; † he shows loyalty to his anointed,
to David and his descendants forever. †

THE WITNESS OF CREATION AND SCRIPTURE

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

19 The heavens declare the glory of God, and the expanse † proclaims the work of his hands. †
2 Day after day they pour out speech; night after night they communicate knowledge. †
3 There is no speech; there are no words; their voice is not heard.
4 Their message † has gone out to the whole earth, and their words to the ends of the world. †

In the heavens he has pitched a tent for the sun. †
5 It is like a bridegroom coming from his home; it rejoices like an athlete running a course.
6 It rises from one end of the heavens and circles to their other end; † nothing is hidden from its heat.

7 The instruction of the LORD is perfect, renewing one's life; † the testimony of the LORD is trustworthy, making the inexperienced wise. † 8 The precepts of the LORD are right, making the heart glad; † the command of the LORD is radiant, making the eyes light up. † 9 The fear of the LORD is pure, enduring forever; † the ordinances of the LORD are reliable and altogether righteous. † 10 They are more desirable than gold — than an abundance of pure gold; † and sweeter than honey dripping from a honeycomb. †

11 In addition, your servant is warned by them, and in keeping them there is an abundant reward. †

GENERAL REVELATION

One powerful question underlies discussion and debate of any religious issue: what is the source of our knowledge of God? This question determines all others because the source on which we depend—whether experience, tradition, society, Scripture, or science—determines the questions we ask and the answers we give. Christians believe that their knowledge of God comes from God's revelation of himself to humanity. When we recognize this self-disclosure and call it "revelation," we mean at least three things.

1. First, God initiates this self-disclosure freely. By his very nature, God communicates.
2. Second, God initiates it in order to reveal something about himself.
3. Third, he initiates it in order to display his glory and to evoke worship from humanity.

Christians usually divide this revelation into two types: special and general. In special revelation, God reveals himself through signs and miracles, the words of the prophets and apostles, the person and work of Christ, and the writings of Christian Scripture. This type of revelation is special because it is provided to particular people in specific times and places; it enables them to come to true and saving knowledge of the triune God.

In general revelation, God reveals himself through creation, history, and the moral law he has given to all people everywhere. This type of revelation is general because it is provided to all people of all times, and it provides a basic understanding of God and his moral law. It establishes the facts of God's existence and humanity's moral responsibility, but is not sufficient to save fallen humans, who without exception have turned their minds and wills against God. Although general revelation is sufficient to show humans their need to worship and obey the one true God, fallen sinners ultimately reject it and reject him (Rm 1:18-32).

THE FACT OF GENERAL REVELATION

The OT contains many passages that speak of the reality of general revelation. Genesis 1–2 teaches that God created humans in his image and likeness. When one looks at humans, one sees an image and likeness of God. Job 38–41 teaches that God has revealed himself through earth and sea, the rising of the sun, snow and hail, wind and rain, frost and ice, the constellations, the animal kingdom, and humans. All aspects of the created order testify to God's existence and character. In these chapters, Job's response to this point was worshipful silence as he recognized that he was very small indeed in comparison to our great God (Jb 40:4-5; 40:15–41:34). Job's worship is particularly significant when seen in contrast to his friends' response; they looked at the created order but allowed it to confirm their false worship.

Similarly, Psalm 19:1-4 tells us, "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the expanse proclaims the work of his hands. Day after day they pour out speech; night after night they communicate knowledge . . . Their message has gone out to the whole earth, and their words to the ends of the world." Stated differently, God's creation testifies clearly enough about God that it can be considered speech and knowledge.

The NT likewise articulates God's general revelation. In Acts 17, Paul preaches to a pagan Athenian audience on Mars Hill. In his sermon, he affirms at least six things that the Athenians could know about God by means of general revelation alone (vv. 22-31): he is the Creator and Lord of the universe (v. 24), the source of life and everything that is good (v. 25). He is entirely independent and self-sufficient (v. 25). He is the ruler of the nations (v. 26) and is intelligent (v. 26), close to them (v. 27), and greater than any other possible object of worship (v. 29).

Similarly, in Rm 1:18-25, Paul argues that all humans have a basic knowledge of God. They know that he exists, that he is Creator, and that he is powerful and worthy of worship (vv. 18-21). For these reasons, humanity is without excuse (v. 20). Nevertheless, humans respond to general revelation by suppressing the truth they know (v. 18), experiencing the corruption of their hearts and minds (v. 21), exchanging truth for a lie (v. 25), and worshiping the creature rather than the Creator (v. 25). In Rm 2:14-16, Paul also makes clear that all people everywhere have an intuitive knowledge of God's moral law.

THE CONTENT OF GENERAL REVELATION

These and other biblical passages establish not only the fact of general revelation, but also its content. Concerning God, general revelation makes clear that he is One (Ac 17:26; Rm 1:20) and is the Creator (Ac 17:25), Sustainer (Ac 14:15-16; 17:24-28), and Ruler (Rm 1:26); that he is wise (Ps 104:24), great (Jb 40:15–41:34), powerful (Rm 1:20), intelligent (Rm 1:26), immanent and active (Ac 17:24-27), just and good (Ac 14:17; Rm 2:14-15). He is worthy of worship (Rm 1:25).

Concerning God's law, God has written certain basic moral principles on the human heart. Although the Ten Commandments were crafted for the nation of Israel, the moral principles behind those commandments (Ex 20:1-17) are revealed to all people everywhere through general revelation. We are to worship God rather than other gods or idols (vv. 3-6), and we should set aside time to rest and worship him (vv. 8-11). We are not to use God's name in a careless or inappropriate manner (v. 7). We should honor our parents (v. 12) and refrain from murdering (v. 13), committing adultery (v. 14), stealing (v. 15), bearing false witness (v. 16), and coveting (v. 17). These moral principles are a universal possession of all humanity. We might not see them with perfect clarity or admit that we know them, and we might become confused about them, but we do indeed know them.

THE PURPOSE AND LIMITS OF GENERAL REVELATION

General revelation and special revelation share a common purpose in pointing to the God whom we should worship and adore. Psalm 19 instructs that general and special revelation have the common purpose of evoking worship and obedience (v. 14). Romans 1:18-34 teaches that general revelation makes clear that God exists and ought to be worshiped.

Scripture is equally clear, however, that humanity is immersed with rebellious inclinations and for this reason it rejects general revelation. In spite of general revelation, people foolishly reject God (Ps 14:1). They suppress the truth about God, exchange it for a lie, and worship the creature rather than the Creator (Rm 1:18-32). Instead of allowing God's creation to evoke worship of God, humans take God's created gifts and make idols out of them—idols such as sex, money, power, success, and approval. How often we worship them instead of worshiping the Creator.

Because humans inevitably twist and distort God's general revelation, we need a special revelation from God to help us hear God and submit to him in worship and obedience. This special revelation, which now comes to us in the form of Christian Scripture, is necessary to point us to Christ—God's ultimate revelation of himself.

DELIVERANCE IN BATTLE

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

20 May the LORD answer you in a day of trouble; † may the name of Jacob's God protect you. †

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

21 LORD, the king finds joy in your strength.

FROM SUFFERING TO PRAISE

For the choir director: according to "The Deer of the Dawn." A psalm of David.

22 My God, my God, why have you abandoned me? † Why are you so far from my deliverance † and from my words of groaning? †
2 My God, I cry by day, but you do not answer, by night, yet I have no rest. †
3 But you are holy, enthroned on the praises of Israel. †
4 Our fathers trusted in you; they trusted, and you rescued them. †
5 They cried to you and were set free; they trusted in you and were not disgraced. †

6 But I am a worm and not a man, † scorned by mankind and despised by people. †
7 Everyone who sees me mocks me; they sneer † and shake their heads: † 8 "He relies on † the LORD; let him save him;
let the LORD † rescue him, since he takes pleasure in him." †

9 It was you who brought me out of the womb, making me secure at my mother's breast. † 10 I was given over to you at birth; † you have been my God from my mother's womb. †

11 Don’t be far from me, because distress is near and there’s no one to help. †

12 Many bulls surround me; strong ones of Bashan encircle me. †
13 They open their mouths against me — lions, mauling and roaring. † 14 I am poured out like water, † and all my bones are disjointed; † my heart is like wax, melting within me. †
15 My strength is dried up like baked clay; † my tongue sticks to the roof of my mouth. †
You put me into the dust of death. † 16 For dogs have surrounded me; † a gang of evildoers has closed in on me; they pierced † my hands and my feet. †
17 I can count all my bones; people † look and stare at me. †
18 They divided my garments among themselves, and they cast lots for my clothing. †

19 But you, LORD, don’t be far away. †
My strength, come quickly to help me. † 20 Rescue my life from the sword, † my only life † from the power of these dogs.
21 Save me from the lion’s mouth, † from the horns of wild oxen.

You answered me! †
22 I will proclaim your name to my brothers and sisters; I will praise you in the assembly. †
23 You who fear the LORD, praise him! †
All you descendants of Jacob, honor him!
All you descendants of Israel, revere him! †
24 For he has not despised or abhorred the torment of the oppressed. †

He did not hide his face from him †
but listened when he cried to him for help. †

25 I will give praise in the great assembly because of you; †
I will fulfill my vows before those who fear you. † † 26 The humble will eat and be satisfied; † those who seek the LORD will praise him.
May your hearts live forever! †

27 All the ends of the earth will remember and turn to the LORD.
All the families of the nations will bow down before you, †
28 for kingship belongs to the LORD; he rules the nations. †
29 All who prosper on earth will eat and bow down; all those who go down to the dust will kneel before him —
even the one who cannot preserve his life. † 30 Their descendants will serve him; the next generation will be told about the Lord. †

they will declare what he has done. †

THE GOOD SHEPHERD

A psalm of David.

23 The LORD is my shepherd; †
I have what I need. †
2 He lets me lie down in green pastures; † he leads me beside quiet waters. †
3 He renews my life; he leads me along the right paths † for his name's sake. †
4 Even when I go through the darkest valley, †
I fear no danger,
for you are with me; †
your rod and your staff — they comfort me. †

5 You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies; you anoint my head with oil; †
my cup overflows. †

DEPENDENCE ON THE LORD

Of David.

25 2 LORD, I appeal to you. † †
My God, I trust in you.
Do not let me be disgraced; †
do not let my enemies gloat over me. †
3 No one who waits for you will be disgraced; †

A BIBLICAL VIEW OF PSYCHOLOGY AND PSYCHIATRY

Psychology, psychiatry, and psychotherapy all have as their root stem the Greek word psyché, translated "soul" in English. Psychology (created by adding the Gk word logos, meaning "word" or "knowledge") refers to the "study of the soul." The words psychiatry (created by adding the Lat iatreia, meaning "healing") and psychotherapy (created by adding the Gk therapeuō, meaning "healing") both mean the "healing of the soul." Psychiatry, however, is practiced by medical doctors who specialize in the treatment of mental illness. Psychotherapy is practiced by doctoral-level trained psychologists who utilize cognitive, emotional, and relational techniques for the treatment of the broader category of psychological disorders. (In American culture, the word counseling is another category of "soul-healing." It is often practiced by ministers, as well as by Masters-level-trained professionals.) All three are widely considered modern disciplines. That is because they recently advanced greatly, beginning in the late 1800s and throughout the twentieth century, because of the dedicated application of natural science sensibilities and methods to the human sciences. Historians of these disciplines, however, know that their precursors can be found, in some form, as early as ancient times.

Philosophers in ancient Greece, such as Plato (429–347 BC) and Aristotle (382–322 BC), brilliantly analyzed the soul. A Roman physician named Galen (AD 129–200) attempted to describe the medical basis of mental illness. More importantly for Christians, the Scriptures are saturated with psychological and spiritual wisdom and provide a divine framework for the healing of the soul that is based on the person and work of Jesus Christ. The apostle Paul, in particular, was mindful of psychological topics related to Christian salvation (Roberts, 1995).

In comparison to contemporary psychology, biblical teaching was written in everyday language for average readers; it is not written in scientific genre. Nevertheless, the Bible provides believers with divinely-inspired lenses through which they can rightly interpret the world, including human struggles. Thus, throughout the centuries many Christians wrote about Christian psychology and soul-healing with a pastoral, monastic, or philosophical agenda; they were more or less influenced by previous thinkers such as Plato, Aristotle, and Galen, as well as early church figures like Augustine, Maximus the Confessor, Bernard of Clairvaux, and especially Thomas Aquinas. Relevant voices from the Middle Ages include Martin Luther, Blaise Pascal, and Søren Kierkegaard. Countless others arose in the modern era. By 1850, a substantial range of Christian psychological and soul-healing literature existed.

Nevertheless, concurrent with the application of natural science methods to the human sciences was a secular revolution (Smith, 2003) that resulted in the replacement of a Christian worldview with a secular one. Naturalism became the common basis of intellectual discourse and scientific and therapeutic practice in the West. As a result, by 1950 all major universities, particularly in America, had reinterpreted the human sciences, understanding them to be intrinsically secular, natural sciences. As a result, modern psychology, psychiatry, and psychotherapy are versions of science devoid of biblical, theological, and metaphysical considerations.

Such differences are unsurprising in light of Augustine's Two-Cities Framework (sometimes called the "doctrine of the antithesis"). Near the collapse of the Roman Empire, Augustine defended Christianity by arguing that the human race is composed fundamentally of two communities: the City of Man, into which all humans are born, and the City of God, into which one has to be born again by placing faith in Christ (Jn 3:3). The City of Man, Augustine wrote, is composed of those who love self and despise God, whereas the City of God is composed of those who love God and despise self, only because they have been regenerated by God's grace in Christ (Ti 3:5). When modern psychology was in its infancy, Abraham Kuyper (1898) applied the Two-Cities Framework to the human sciences. He concluded that they will necessarily reflect the influences of the Two Cities, with one kind of psychology based on naturalism and the other kind based on spiritual regeneration, thus leading to two markedly different versions of the human sciences.

A Christian approach to the human sciences will differ from modern versions in these ways: 1. God is recognized as the Author, center, and end of human life, and his glory is the highest human motivation (Is 43:7; 1Co 10:31).

2. Humans are made in God's image (Gn 1:26-27; 9:6), so they can only be understood properly in terms of their relation to God. They flourish best in communion with him.

3. Humans, however, are now sinful and alienated from their Creator (Gn 3; Rm 3:10-18). They are damaged creatures, both in body and soul, which can lead to psychological disorders.
4. Humans require union with Christ in order to attain some measure of psycho-spiritual healing on earth and complete healing in the age to come. Through their union with Christ, believers receive many spiritual blessings from God that have the potential to significantly improve daily life and the communities in which they reside. The most important blessing is the gift of the indwelling Holy Spirit. These and other truths ought to have a profound impact on a Christian version of psychology, psychiatry, and psychotherapy.

At the same time, because of common grace—the provision of God given to all humans, irrespective of their relation to God (see Ps 104; Is 23:23-26; Mt 5:45; Ac 14:17)—there will be overlap in the modern and Christian versions of the human sciences. For example, both communities can agree that human experience and behavior is influenced by biological and social dynamics; human memory is composed of long-term stores and working memory; and empirical research is necessary to study most aspects of humans. Indeed, these communities agree about far more than they conflict over. But those areas in which they disagree are of enormous significance and exercise a profound influence on the understanding and interpretation of humans, especially with respect to the healing of the soul.

Moreover, common grace is responsible for culture and the development of good cultural institutions such as the mental health community. Unfortunately, that institution is currently dominated by those who assume naturalism; they thus reflect that worldview orientation. The doctrines of the antithesis and that of common grace are both necessary to understand psychology, psychiatry, and psychotherapy from a Christian standpoint.

Current areas of contention between these two versions of the human sciences include the respective role of evolution and God in the formation of the human species, the area of mental disorders—the role of human responsibility and sin in psychopathology, the use and overuse of medication to treat mental disorders, questions about whether certain conditions ought to be considered a disorder (e.g., homosexuality or ADHD)—and the contemporary prohibition against sharing one's faith in session, unless asked to do so by the client.

There are basically three approaches Christians currently take toward these three disciplines. Probably the most common approach is a relatively uncritical acceptance of them as they are currently constituted. Christians conduct themselves in these fields according to the rules of discourse and the practice of naturalism and secularism, while seeking to do so with Christian integrity and remaining faithful to Christian ethics.

Second, on the other side of the spectrum are those Christians who basically reject these disciplines because of their secular, naturalistic basis. They instead practice a model of counseling that is based only on the Bible, treating most mental problems as exclusively spiritual in nature and remaining resistant to most psychotropic medications. This group also typically rejects professional licensure.

Finally, some Christians seek a middle way, in which they practice some measure of critical engagement and participation. Beginning with a Christian understanding of humans, and appropriating the legitimate knowledge of secular human sciences, interpreted according to a Christian worldview, they also believe that Christianity offers divine resources in Christ for the healing of the soul. This latter approach seeks to redeem psychology, psychiatry, and psychotherapy, reordering them for the Christian community, university, and local church, while working within the secular rules of discourse and practice currently mandated within the public square.

BEAUTY AS A PROOF OF GOD'S EXISTENCE

Scripture makes clear that God is the archetype for beauty. Psalm 27 expresses the desire to dwell in the Lord's house in order to gaze upon his "beauty" (Ps 27:4); other verses recommend worshiping God "in the splendor of his holiness" (1Ch 16:29; 2Ch 20:21; Pss 29:2; 96:9). Richard Swinburne says, "If there is a God there is more reason to expect a basically beautiful world than a basically ugly one" (The Existence of God). Fyodor Dostoyevsky famously claimed in The Idiot, "Beauty will save the world."

Nevertheless, serious challenges can be raised which require thoughtful response if we are to defend the belief that God is the source of beauty. First, when asked to define "beauty," we often follow Plato, not Scripture. Plato taught that beauty is an unearthly harmony or proportion (The Symposium, 209e–212a).

This influenced Augustine, who felt that everything is beautiful insofar as it exists because of God: worms are beautiful for their purpose, even evil is beautiful when related to punishment (Confessions, VII, 18-19). Thomas Aquinas declared that beauty derives from the properties of God's Son. Such received beauty includes three conditions: perfection, proportion, and brightness (Summa Theologica, 1.39.8). Even Jonathan Edwards, when considering the beauty of God's attributes, sounds Platonic (Works, 17, 413).

Today the idea of beauty has become less Platonic and more subjective. Think of the relativistic dictum that says, "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder." This reduces beauty to a matter of personal taste, almost in the same way that some people love carrots while others do not.

A more sophisticated version of a subjective view of beauty is expressed by Immanuel Kant (1724–1804); he thought that human sensitivity to beauty was tied to morality. More recently some have said that defining beauty is a masked quest for power. Harvard professor Elaine Scarry answered this claim by noting the parallels between beauty and fairness (On Beauty and Being Just).

THE BIBLE ON BEAUTY

Contrary to the viewpoints above, the Bible does not define beauty in terms of an otherworldly sense of harmony or subjective taste. Looking at a few words that are translated as beauty in various English Bible versions, we find concepts related to glory, honor, and only rarely to loveliness. The Hebrew term tiph'arah, which can be translated as "beauty," refers to glory or honor more than to proportion or harmony (see Ps 96:6; Is 21:1,4-5; 44:13; 62:3). Aaron's robe, for instance, was bedecked in a "glory" suitable to his rank (Ex 28:2,40). The more common term for beauty is yophiy, which has a variety of meanings: these include the loveliness of a woman (Ps 45:11; Pr 6:25; 31:30) and the splendor of Zion (Ps 50:2; Lm 2:15; Ezek 16:25). The same goes for hadar, which means "splendor" (Ezk 16:14). Splendor, majesty, strength, and beauty characterize God's sanctuary ultimately because of his presence, but these notions are in contrast to dishonor, lack of dignity, and weakness—not to something we might call "ugly." When Isaiah tells us that the Suffering Servant had "no beauty that we should desire him" (Is 53:2, KJV), the term in view (mareh) means something like "an attractive face" or a "favorable countenance," rather than ugliness per se. So, when the Bible tells us that a certain sight, such as the trees in the garden of Eden, are "pleasing in appearance" (Gn 2:9), it means something like "desirable" rather than beautiful in the Greek sense. Often the terms for beauty are used about wrong desires, as in warnings against idolatry or seduction (Pr 6:25; Jms 1:11); therefore, they do not combine to give us a simple, comprehensive definition of beauty.

Another challenge comes from the confusion over a work of art and the beautiful. A particular painting, a piece of music, or a poem may possess beauty. If we listen to a Bach chorale or a Beethoven symphony we are right to exclaim, "How beautiful!" Yet many works of art are well-crafted but not beautiful. Who would call Goya's The Third of May 1808, "beautiful" or attribute beauty to Matthias Grünewald's painting, The Small Crucifixion? Such works are masterpieces, but not because they are beautiful. The Negro spiritual "He Never Said a Mumbalin' Word" is haunting and profoundly disturbing, but not beautiful in any conventional sense. Moreover, some artists and composers have tried to force some sort of beauty into subjects that do not warrant it. Think of cheap art or kitsch as examples.

BEAUTY AND AESTHETICS

Does the controversy over defining beauty mean we should abandon the concept of beauty or the belief that it points to God? No. A better way is to consider the broader notion of aesthetics in light of biblical revelation. Aesthetics includes beauty, but it is a more comprehensive term that also refers to the artistic dimension of life.

The first aspect of aesthetics is that it involves things we can create. A lovely pair of earrings, pretty chinaware, good music, portraiture, monuments, liturgies, and stage settings are all legitimate parts of the aesthetic dimension. Or it may be something more profound, more lasting, like a painting in a museum. Here, incidentally, we should be encouraged not to think of Christian art as only depicting religious subjects. Rembrandt's Carcass of Beef is as profoundly Christian as his Road to Emmaus. The arts may instruct us, challenge us, help us to "see" what is less visible: the contours of a mountain, the sadness of a face, or less palpable things such as love, fear, or the holiness of God. Try to imagine a world without the arts and you will understand why the aesthetic dimension is such an integral part of creaturely existence. The arts give expression to the human condition. And unlike Plato's immaterial realm of ideals that is forever inaccessible to humans, the arts are tangible, part of the real world.

The second quality of aesthetics is that our craft must be good. Throughout Scripture we are enjoined to be skillful in what we do. This includes governing wisely (Dn 1:17), military ability (Jr 50:9), statuary (Is 41:7), fashion (Ex 39:24), and music-making (Ps 33:3). To engage in aesthetics with mediocrity or lack of training is a form of laziness or insult. Also, a work of art may be highly skilled and yet blasphemous. One could think of Salvador Dali's Christ of St John of the Cross a superb painting with a heretical Gnostic message.

The third quality of aesthetics is that there must be agreement between what is artistic and what is true. Scripture tells us we live in a world created by God as "very good" (Gn 1:31; the Hebrew word towb means "excellent," both in a skilled way and a moral way). In this world God called mankind to populate the earth, to cultivate, and to rule. This cultural mandate includes the aesthetic dimension (Gn 4:20-22). Our world, however, is now profoundly fallen—marred by sin, misery, and death. In such circumstances, even the aesthetic dimension of life has become corrupt. Well-crafted statues can be idols (Is 44:13). Music can be noise (Am 5:23). Poetry may be arrogant and vengeful (Gn 4:23-24). Here, too, is where the Bible tells us to see the difference between superficial charm or beauty and what is truly praiseworthy (Pr 31:30; see Php 4:8-9).

Yet God is now redeeming the world, bringing his people to himself through the atonement and resurrection of Christ. The arts may now bespeak God's grace. This is why the Lord gave explicit directions for the artwork in the tabernacle, specifically calling gifted craftsmen like Oholiab (Ex 36:1-2; 38:23). To be biblically faithful in aesthetics means to tell the story of creation, fall, and redemption in art as in every part of life. This does not limit us to creating so-called religious art, although that is perfectly legitimate. If an artist only articulates the glory of creation and ignores the fall into misery, however, then that art is dishonest. If the work only depicts evil, then it lacks the hope of the gospel.

BEAUTY AND THE EXISTENCE OF GOD

Does beauty prove the existence of God? Not without the qualifiers we have suggested: a rich understanding of the nature and limits of beauty as well as circumscribing the term proof so that it does not imply something as inescapable as a mathematical proof. Perhaps it is best simply to say, with the psalmist, "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the expanse proclaims the work of his hands" (Ps 19:1). The glory of God and his saving grace, rather than a Platonic or subjective notion of beauty, is central to our aesthetics.

THE VOICE OF THE LORD

A psalm of David.

29 Ascribe to the LORD, you heavenly beings, † ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.
2 Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his name; worship the LORD in the splendor of his holiness. † †

3 The voice of the LORD is above the waters.
The God of glory thunders —
the LORD, above the vast water, †
4 the voice of the LORD in power, the voice of the LORD in splendor. †
5 The voice of the LORD breaks the cedars; the LORD shatters the cedars of Lebanon. †
6 He makes Lebanon skip like a calf, † and Sirion, like a young wild ox. †
7 The voice of the LORD flashes flames of fire. †
8 The voice of the LORD shakes the wilderness; the LORD shakes the wilderness of Kadesh. †
9 The voice of the LORD makes the deer give birth † † and strips the woodlands bare. †

In his temple all cry, “Glory! ”

10 The LORD sits enthroned over the flood; the LORD sits enthroned, King forever. †
11 The LORD gives his people strength; † the LORD blesses his people with peace. †

JOY IN THE MORNING

A psalm; a dedication song for the house. Of David.

30 I will exalt you, LORD, because you have lifted me up † and have not allowed my enemies to triumph over me. †
2 LORD my God, I cried to you for help, and you healed me. †
3 LORD, you brought me up from Sheol; † you spared me from among those going down † to the Pit. †

4 Sing to the LORD, you his faithful ones, and praise his holy name. †
5 For his anger lasts only a moment, but his favor, a lifetime.
Weeping may stay overnight,
but there is joy in the morning. †

6 When I was secure, I said, "I will never be shaken." † 7 LORD, when you showed your favor, you made me stand like a strong mountain; †
when you hid your face, I was terrified. †
8 LORD, I called to you; I sought favor from my Lord: †
9 "What gain is there in my death, if I go down to the Pit?
Will the dust praise you?
Will it proclaim your truth? †
10 LORD, listen and be gracious to me; LORD, be my helper." †

11 You turned my lament into dancing; you removed my sackcloth and clothed me with gladness, †
12 so that I can sing to you and not be silent.
LORD my God, I will praise you forever. †

A PLEA FOR PROTECTION

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

31 LORD, I seek refuge in you; let me never be disgraced. †
Save me by your righteousness.
2 Listen closely to me; rescue me quickly.
Be a rock of refuge for me,
a mountain fortress to save me. †
3 For you are my rock and my fortress; † you lead and guide me
for your name's sake. † 4 You will free me from the net that is secretly set for me, for you are my refuge. †
5 Into your hand I entrust my spirit; † you have redeemed me, † LORD, God of truth. †

6 I † hate those who are devoted to worthless idols, but I trust in the LORD. †
7 I will rejoice and be glad in your faithful love because you have seen my affliction.
You know the troubles of my soul †
8 and have not handed me over to the enemy. †
You have set my feet in a spacious place. †

9 Be gracious to me, LORD, because I am in distress; † my eyes are worn out from frustration — my whole being † as well. † 10 Indeed, my life is consumed with grief and my years with groaning; † my strength has failed because of my iniquity, † and my bones waste away. †
11 I am ridiculed by all my adversaries and even by my neighbors.
I am dreaded by my acquaintances;
those who see me in the street run from me. †

12 I am forgotten: gone from memory like a dead person — like broken pottery. †
13 I have heard the gossip of many; terror is on every side. †
When they conspired against me, they plotted to take my life. †

14 But I trust in you, LORD; I say, “You are my God.” † 15 The course of my life is in your power; † rescue me from the power of my enemies and from my persecutors. †
16 Make your face shine on your servant; † save me by your faithful love. †
17 LORD, do not let me be disgraced when I call on you. †
Let the wicked be disgraced;
let them be quiet † † in Sheol. † 18 Let lying lips †
that arrogantly speak against the righteous in proud contempt be silenced. †

19 How great is your goodness that you have stored up for those who fear you and accomplished in the sight of everyone † for those who take refuge in you. † 20 You hide them in the protection of your presence; you conceal them in a shelter from human schemes,
from quarrelsome tongues. † 21 Blessed be the LORD, for he has wondrously shown his faithful love to me in a city under siege. †
22 In my alarm I said, “I am cut off from your sight.” †
But you heard the sound of my pleading when I cried to you for help. †

23 Love the LORD, all his faithful ones. †

The LORD protects the loyal, but fully repays the arrogant. † 24 Be strong, and let your heart be courageous, all you who put your hope in the LORD. †

THE JOY OF FORGIVENESS

Of David. A Maskil.

32 How joyful is the one whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered! † 2 How joyful is a person whom the LORD does not charge with iniquity † and in whose spirit is no deceit! †

3 When I kept silent, my bones became brittle from my groaning all day long. † 4 For day and night your hand was heavy on me; † my strength was drained †
as in the summer's heat. †
Selah 5 Then I acknowledged my sin to you and did not conceal my iniquity.

I said,
"I will confess my transgressions to the LORD,"
and you forgave the guilt of my sin. †

Selah

6 Therefore let everyone who is faithful pray to you immediately. † †
When great floodwaters come,
they will not reach him. †

7 You are my hiding place; † you protect me from trouble. †
You surround me with joyful shouts of deliverance.

Selah

8 I will instruct you and show you the way to go; † with my eye on you, I will give counsel. † 9 Do not be like a horse or mule, without understanding, that must be controlled with bit and bridle or else it will not come near you. †

10 Many pains come to the wicked, † but the one who trusts in the LORD will have faithful love surrounding him. † 11 Be glad in the LORD and rejoice, you righteous ones;
shout for joy,
all you upright in heart. †

PRAISE TO THE CREATOR

33 Rejoice in the LORD, you righteous ones; praise from the upright is beautiful. †

2 Praise the LORD with the lyre; make music to him with a ten-stringed harp. †
3 Sing a new song to him; † play skillfully on the strings, with a joyful shout. †

4 For the word of the LORD is right, and all his work is trustworthy. † 5 He loves righteousness and justice; † the earth is full of the LORD's unfailing love. †

6 The heavens were made by the word of the LORD, † and all the stars, by the breath of his mouth. † 7 He gathers the water of the sea into a heap; † he puts the depths into storehouses. † 8 Let the whole earth fear the LORD; let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. † 9 For he spoke, and it came into being; he commanded, and it came into existence. †

10 The LORD frustrates the counsel of the nations; he thwarts the plans of the peoples. †
11 The counsel of the LORD stands forever, the plans of his heart from generation to generation. †
12 Happy is the nation whose God is the LORD — the people he has chosen to be his own possession! †

13 The LORD looks down from heaven; he observes everyone. †
14 He gazes on all the inhabitants of the earth from his dwelling place. †
15 He forms the hearts of them all; he considers all their works. † 16 A king is not saved by a large army; a warrior will not be rescued by great strength. † 17 The horse is a false hope for safety; it provides no escape by its great power. †

18 But look, the LORD keeps his eye on those who fear him — those who depend on his faithful love †
19 to rescue them from death and to keep them alive in famine. †

20 We wait for the LORD; †
he is our help and shield. † 21 For our hearts rejoice in him † because we trust in his holy name. †

22 May your faithful love rest on us, LORD, for we put our hope in you. †

THE LORD DELIVERS THE RIGHTEOUS

Concerning David, when he pretended to be insane in the presence of Abimelech, † who drove him out, and he departed.

34 I will bless the LORD at all times; his praise will always be on my lips. †
2 I will boast in the LORD; † the humble will hear and be glad. † 3 Proclaim the LORD's greatness with me; † let us exalt his name together. †

4 I sought the LORD, and he answered me and rescued me from all my fears. †
5 Those who look to him are † radiant with joy; †

6 This poor man cried, and the LORD heard him and saved him from all his troubles. †

11 Come, children, listen to me; I will teach you the fear of the LORD. †

13 Keep your tongue from evil and your lips from deceitful speech. † 14 Turn away from evil and do what is good; † seek peace and pursue it. †

15 The eyes of the LORD are on the righteous, and his ears are open to their cry for help. †
16 The face of the LORD is set against those who do what is evil, † to remove † all memory of them from the earth. †
17 The righteous † cry out, and the LORD hears, and rescues them from all their troubles. †
18 The LORD is near the brokenhearted; he saves those crushed in spirit. †

19 One who is righteous has many adversities, but the LORD rescues him from them all. †
20 He protects all his bones; not one of them is broken. †

PRAYER FOR VICTORY

Of David.

35 Oppose my opponents, LORD; fight those who fight me. †
2 Take your shields — large and small — and come to my aid. †
3 Draw the spear and javelin against my pursuers, and assure me: “I am your deliverance.” †

4 Let those who intend to take my life be disgraced and humiliated;
let those who plan to harm me be turned back and ashamed. †
5 Let them be like chaff in the wind, with the angel of the LORD driving them away. †
6 Let their way be dark and slippery, with the angel of the LORD pursuing them. †
7 They hid their net for me without cause; they dug a pit for me without cause. †
8 Let ruin come on him unexpectedly, and let the net that he hid ensnare him; let him fall into it — to his ruin. †

9 Then I will rejoice in the LORD; I will delight in his deliverance. †
10 All my bones will say, “LORD, who is like you, † rescuing the poor from one too strong for him, the poor or the needy from one who robs him? ” †

11 Malicious witnesses come forward; they question me about things I do not know. †
12 They repay me evil for good, making me desolate. †
13 Yet when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth;
I humbled myself with fasting, and my prayer was genuine. † † 14 I went about mourning as if for my friend or brother; I was bowed down with grief, like one mourning for a mother. †
15 But when I stumbled, they gathered in glee; they gathered against me.
Assailants I did not know tore at me and did not stop. † 16 With godless mockery † they gnashed their teeth at me. †

17 Lord, how long will you look on? † Rescue me from their ravages;
rescue my precious life from the young lions. †
18 I will praise you in the great assembly; I will exalt you among many people. † 19 Do not let my deceitful enemies rejoice over me; do not let those who hate me without cause † wink at me maliciously. †
20 For they do not speak in friendly ways, but contrive fraudulent schemes † against those who live peacefully in the land. †
21 They open their mouths wide against me and say, “Aha, aha! We saw it! ” † †

22 You saw it, LORD; do not be silent.
Lord, do not be far from me. †
23 Wake up and rise to my defense, to my cause, my God and my Lord! † 24 Vindicate me, LORD my God, in keeping with your righteousness, and do not let them rejoice over me. †
25 Do not let them say in their hearts, “Aha! Just what we wanted.”
Do not let them say,
“We have swallowed him up! ” †
26 Let those who rejoice at my misfortune be disgraced and humiliated;
let those who exalt themselves over me be clothed with shame and reproach. †

27 Let those who want my vindication shout for joy and be glad;
let them continually say,
“The LORD be exalted.
He takes pleasure in his servant’s well-being.” †

28 And my tongue will proclaim your righteousness, your praise all day long. †

HUMAN WICKEDNESS AND GOD'S LOVE

For the choir director. Of David, the LORD's servant.

36 An oracle within my heart concerning the transgression of the wicked person: Dread of God has no effect on him. † †
2 For with his flattering opinion of himself, he does not discover and hate his iniquity. †
3 The words from his mouth are malicious and deceptive; † he has stopped acting wisely and doing good. † 4 Even on his bed he makes malicious plans. †
He sets himself on a path that is not good, and he does not reject evil. †

5 LORD, your faithful love reaches to heaven, your faithfulness to the clouds. †
6 Your righteousness is like the highest mountains, your judgments like the deepest sea. †
LORD, you preserve people and animals. †
7 How priceless your faithful love is, God!
People take refuge in the shadow of your wings. †
8 They are filled from the abundance of your house.
You let them drink from your refreshing stream. †
9 For the wellspring of life is with you. †
By means of your light we see light. †

10 Spread your faithful love over those who know you, and your righteousness over the upright in heart. † 11 Do not let the foot of the arrogant come near me or the hand of the wicked drive me away. †
12 There! The evildoers have fallen.
They have been thrown down and cannot rise. †

INSTRUCTION IN WISDOM

Of David.

37 Do not be agitated by evildoers; do not envy those who do wrong. †
2 For they wither quickly like grass and wilt like tender green plants. †

3 Trust in the LORD and do what is good; † dwell in the land and live securely. † †
4 Take delight in the LORD, and he will give you your heart's desires. †

5 Commit your way to the LORD; trust in him, and he will act, †
6 making your righteousness shine like the dawn, your justice like the noonday. †

7 Be silent before the LORD and wait expectantly for him; † do not be agitated by one who prospers in his way, by the person who carries out evil plans. †

8 Refrain from anger and give up your rage; do not be agitated — it can only bring harm. †
9 For evildoers will be destroyed, but those who put their hope in the LORD will inherit the land. †

10 A little while, and the wicked person will be no more; though you look for him, he will not be there. † 11 But the humble will inherit the land † and will enjoy abundant prosperity. †

12 The wicked person schemes against the righteous and gnashes his teeth at him. †
13 The Lord laughs at him † because he sees that his day is coming. †

14 The wicked have drawn the sword and strung the † bow to bring down the poor and needy
and to slaughter those whose way is upright. †
15 Their swords will enter their own hearts, and their bows will be broken. †

16 The little that the righteous person has is better than the abundance of many wicked people. †
17 For the arms of the wicked will be broken, † but the LORD supports the righteous. †

18 The LORD watches over the blameless all their days, and their inheritance will last forever. †
19 They will not be disgraced in times of adversity; they will be satisfied in days of hunger. †

20 But the wicked will perish; the LORD's enemies, like the glory of the pastures, will fade away — they will fade away like smoke. †

21 The wicked person borrows and does not repay, but the righteous one is gracious and giving. † 22 Those who are blessed by the LORD will inherit the land, but those cursed by him will be destroyed. †

23 A person’s steps are established by the LORD, and he takes pleasure in his way. †
24 Though he falls, he will not be overwhelmed, because the LORD supports him with his hand. †

25 I have been young and now I am old, yet I have not seen the righteous abandoned or his children begging for bread. †
26 He is always generous, always lending, and his children are a blessing. †

27 Turn away from evil, do what is good, and settle permanently. †
28 For the LORD loves justice and will not abandon his faithful ones. †
They are kept safe forever, but the children of the wicked will be destroyed. †
29 The righteous will inherit the land and dwell in it permanently. †

30 The mouth of the righteous utters wisdom; his tongue speaks what is just. † 31 The instruction of his God is in his heart; his steps do not falter. †

32 The wicked one lies in wait for the righteous and intends to kill him; † 33 the LORD will not leave him in the power of the wicked one or allow him to be condemned when he is judged. †

34 Wait for the LORD and keep his way, and he will exalt you to inherit the land.
You will watch when the wicked are destroyed. †

35 I have seen a wicked, violent person well-rooted, † like a flourishing native tree. †
36 Then I † passed by and noticed he was gone; I searched for him, but he could not be found. †

37 Watch the blameless and observe the upright, for the person of peace will have a future. † †

38 But transgressors will all be eliminated; the future of the wicked will be destroyed. †

39 The salvation of the righteous is from the LORD, their refuge in a time of distress. †
40 The LORD helps and delivers them; he will deliver them from the wicked and will save them because they take refuge in him. †

PRAYER OF A SUFFERING SINNER

A psalm of David for remembrance. †

38 LORD, do not punish me in your anger or discipline me in your wrath. †
2 For your arrows have sunk into me, and your hand has pressed down on me. †

3 There is no soundness in my body because of your indignation;
there is no health † in my bones because of my sin. †
4 For my iniquities have flooded over my head; they are a burden too heavy for me to bear. †
5 My wounds are foul and festering because of my foolishness. †
6 I am bent over and brought very low; all day long I go around in mourning. †
7 For my insides are full of burning pain, and there is no soundness in my body. †

8 I am faint and severely crushed; I groan because of the anguish of my heart. †

9 Lord, my every desire is in front of you; my sighing is not hidden from you. †
10 My heart races, my strength leaves me, and even the light of my eyes has faded. † †
11 My loved ones and friends stand back from my affliction, and my relatives stand at a distance. †
12 Those who intend to kill me set traps, and those who want to harm me threaten to destroy me; they plot treachery all day long. †

13 I am like a deaf person; I do not hear.
I am like a speechless person who does not open his mouth. †
14 I am like a man who does not hear and has no arguments in his mouth. †
15 For I put my hope in you, LORD; you will answer me, my Lord, my God. †
16 For I said, "Don't let them rejoice over me — those who are arrogant toward me when I stumble." †
17 For I am about to fall, and my pain is constantly with me. †
18 So I confess my iniquity; I am anxious because of my sin. † 19 But my enemies are vigorous and powerful; † many hate me for no reason. †
20 Those who repay evil for good attack me for pursuing good. †

21 LORD, do not abandon me; my God, do not be far from me. †
22 Hurry to help me, my Lord, my salvation. †

THE FLEETING NATURE OF LIFE

For the choir director, for Jeduthun. A psalm of David.

39 I said, “I will guard my ways so that I may not sin with my tongue;
I will guard my mouth with a muzzle as long as the wicked are in my presence.” †
2 I was speechless and quiet; I kept silent, even from speaking good, and my pain intensified. †
3 My heart grew hot within me; as I mused, a fire burned. †
I spoke with my tongue:
4 “LORD, make me aware of my end and the number of my days so that I will know how short-lived I am. † 5 In fact, you have made my days just inches long, and my life span is as nothing to you.
Yes, every human being stands as only a vapor. †
Selah 6 Yes, a person goes about like a mere shadow.

Indeed, they rush around in vain, gathering possessions
without knowing who will get them. †

7 “Now, Lord, what do I wait for?
My hope is in you. †
8 Rescue me from all my transgressions; do not make me the taunt of fools. †
9 I am speechless; I do not open my mouth because of what you have done. †
10 Remove your torment from me.
Because of the force of your hand I am finished. † 11 You discipline a person with punishment for iniquity, consuming like a moth what is precious to him; † yes, every human being is only a vapor. †
Selah

12 “Hear my prayer, LORD, and listen to my cry for help; do not be silent at my tears. †
For I am here with you as an alien, a temporary resident like all my ancestors. †

13 Turn your angry gaze from me so that I may be cheered up before I die and am gone.” †

THANKSGIVING AND A CRY FOR HELP

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

40 I waited patiently for the LORD, and he turned to me and heard my cry for help. †

2 He brought me up from a desolate † pit, out of the muddy clay, † and set my feet on a rock, making my steps secure. †

3 He put a new song in my mouth, a hymn of praise to our God. †
Many will see and fear, and they will trust in the LORD. †

4 How happy is anyone who has put his trust in the LORD and has not turned to the proud or to those who run after lies! †

5 LORD my God, you have done many things — your wondrous works and your plans for us; none can compare with you.
If I were to report and speak of them, they are more than can be told. †

6 You do not delight in sacrifice and offering; you open my ears to listen. †
You do not ask for a whole burnt offering or a sin offering. †

7 Then I said, “See, I have come; in the scroll it is written about me. †

8 I delight to do your will, my God, † and your instruction is deep within me.” †

9 I proclaim righteousness in the great assembly; see, I do not keep my mouth closed † — as you know, LORD. † 10 I did not hide your righteousness in my heart; I spoke about your faithfulness and salvation; I did not conceal your constant love and truth from the great assembly. †

11 LORD, you do not † withhold your compassion from me.
Your constant love and truth will always guard me. † 12 For troubles without number have surrounded me; my iniquities have overtaken me; I am unable to see.
They are more than the hairs of my head, and my courage leaves me. †
13 LORD, be pleased to rescue me; hurry to help me, LORD. †

14 Let those who intend to take my life be disgraced and confounded.
Let those who wish me harm
be turned back and humiliated. †
15 Let those who say to me, "Aha, aha! " be appalled because of their shame. †

16 Let all who seek you rejoice and be glad in you; let those who love your salvation continually say, "The LORD is great! " † 17 I am oppressed and needy; may the Lord think of me.
You are my helper and my deliverer;
my God, do not delay. †

VICTORY IN SPITE OF BETRAYAL

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

41 Happy is one who is considerate of the poor; the LORD will save him in a day of adversity. †
2 The LORD will keep him and preserve him; he will be blessed in the land. †
You will not give him over to the desire of his enemies. †
3 The LORD will sustain him on his sickbed; you will heal him on the bed where he lies. †

ILLNESS AND A CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW

The presence of illness in the human body may be revealed through a myriad of expressions. Some of these expressions include physiological alterations, psychological imbalances, and/or the influence of demons. Regardless of the expression, there is an unfavorable impact on the individual that can have personal, interpersonal, and even societal effects. In understanding this phenomenon, one must begin by understanding illness of the human body from the context of a Christian worldview.

In considering a framework of human illness within the context of that worldview, there is a foundational understanding that God exists (Ps 19:1-4), that he created everything (Gn 1:1), and that he also holds all things together (Col 1:17). Because of this foundational premise of God and his love for humanity, he created man in his image (Gn 1:27). In the creation of man (meaning humans of both sexes), he created the perfect state of existence for humanity in the garden of Eden with the expectation that people would live without sin and be given complete health (Gn 2:8-25). Unfortunately, man fell through disobeying God in the one way he could and was driven out of the garden. It was through his choice to "become like" God, "knowing good and evil" that sin entered the world (Gn 3:22; Rm 5:12-14). That decision changed the status of health for man, leading him to experience illness.

As mentioned earlier, human illness is expressed in various ways. Examples of physiological alterations noted in the Bible include plagues God placed on Pharaoh and his household because of Sarai (Gn 12:17), plagues placed on Pharaoh and his people for not setting God's people free (Ex 7-12), a man that had been blind his whole life whom God was using so that he could display his works through him (Jn 9:1-3), the woman that was healed of her continuous bleeding of twelve years by touching the garment of Christ (Mk 5:25-34), and the many cases of leprosy that were healed by God (Mt 10:8; Lk 17:14).

Psychological imbalances are shown in the Bible through individuals such as King Saul. He had severe challenges with paranoia and depression because of his disobedience to God (1Sm 16:14-17). God took his power away, and Saul eventually took his own life (1Sm 31:4). Additional evidences include Elijah, who fell into despair because of his fear of man (1Kg 19) and Jonah, who experienced various episodes of emotional outburst when unwilling to follow God's calling (see the book of Jonah).

Just how the influence of demons or "unclean spirits" relates to this topic is also a matter addressed in Scripture. When Adam and Eve chose to obey the serpent instead of God in Genesis 3, man gave dominion of the earth to Satan as the god of this world or age. This is the rationale for the redemptive process in which God sent his only Son, Jesus Christ, to earth to die for our sins. One day Christ will return to bring us back to him (Rv 19). Thus, while our created image has been tarnished, God has not separated himself from us forever. Christ's reappearing will fully redeem us. In the interim, while Satan has limited dominion, the presence of demonic activity is real. Examples in the Bible include the casting out of demons from a man so that he could speak (Mt 9:32-33), from a blind man so he could see (Mt 12:22), and from a man engaged in demonic activity to such an extent that he was bound in chains and cut himself with stones while living among tombs (Mk 5:1-20). In another scene, Jesus freed a young demon-possessed boy from the spirit that threw him into convulsions (Lk 9:37-42).

Whether the expression of an illness is from physiological alterations, psychological imbalances, or the influence of demons, the Bible teaches us that illnesses and other problems grow out of the sinful nature of man (Mk 7:14-23). Nevertheless, Psalm 50:15 tells us to "Call on [God] in a day of trouble; [He] will rescue [us], and [we] will honor [him]." Similar requests of God are noted in Jeremiah 33:3; Psalm 34:17; and Psalm 56:9. Such a cry in the form of a distress call suggests that suffering from any type of illness should draw man into an enhanced relationship or intimacy with God. This is illustrated through the experiences of Job, who after many trials and tribulations finally states, "I had heard reports about you [God], but now my eyes have seen you" (Jb 42:5). Fortunately, illness of the human body has a unique way of focusing us on the Lord, our hope.

The transformational or refining process that God sends us through in bringing us closer to him, which Isaiah speaks of in Isaiah 48:10, also allows us to be more comforting. Within a Christian worldview, God has designed our hearts and minds to be ministered to by people who have suffered. God wants to bring understanding individuals into the life of a person facing an illness, but he also wants to use our illnesses to bring healing to others (2Co 1:3-5).

Finally, the presence of illness allows one to grow and mature in Christ (Jms 1:2-4) and conform to his image (Rm 8:28-29). This requires trust that through the trials and tribulations of illness, one is being made better, made more like Jesus. Such trust is rooted in the knowledge that a day will come when "pain will be no more" and the curse of sin will be lifted (Rv 21:4). "Thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!" (1Co 15:57).

LONGING FOR GOD

For the choir director. A Maskil of the sons of Korah.

42 As a deer longs for flowing streams, so I long for you, God. †
2 I thirst for God, the living God.
When can I come and appear before God? †
3 My tears have been my food day and night, while all day long people say to me,
"Where is your God?" †
4 I remember this as I pour out my heart: † how I walked with many, leading the festive procession to the house of God, with joyful and thankful shouts. †

5 Why, my soul, are you so dejected?
Why are you in such turmoil?
Put your hope in God, for I will still praise him, my Savior and my God. †
6 I † am deeply depressed; therefore I remember you from the land of Jordan and the peaks of Hermon, from Mount Mizar. †

7 Deep calls to deep in the roar of your waterfalls; all your breakers and your billows have swept over me. † 8 The LORD will send his faithful love by day; †
his song will be with me in the night — a prayer to the God of my life.

9 I will say to God, my rock, †
"Why have you forgotten me?
Why must I go about in sorrow
because of the enemy's oppression? " †
10 My adversaries taunt me, as if crushing my bones, while all day long they say to me,
"Where is your God? " †
11 Why, my soul, are you so dejected?
Why are you in such turmoil?
Put your hope in God, for I will still praise him, my Savior and my God. †

43 Vindicate me, God, and champion my cause against an unfaithful nation;
rescue me from the deceitful and unjust person. †
2 For you are the God of my refuge.
Why have you rejected me?
Why must I go about in sorrow
because of the enemy's oppression? †

3 Send your light and your truth; let them lead me. †
Let them bring me to your holy mountain, to your dwelling place. †
4 Then I will come to the altar of God, to God, my greatest joy. †
I will praise you with the lyre,
God, my God. †

Why are you in such turmoil?
Put your hope in God, for I will still praise him, my Savior and my God. †

ISRAEL'S COMPLAINT

For the choir director. A Maskil of the sons of Korah.

44 God, we have heard with our ears — our ancestors have told us — the work you accomplished in their days, in days long ago: † 2 In order to plant them, you displaced the nations by your hand; in order to settle them, you brought disaster on the peoples. †
3 For they did not take the land by their sword — their arm did not bring them victory — but by your right hand, your arm, and the light of your face, †
because you were favorable toward them. †

4 You are my King, my God, who ordains † victories for Jacob. †
5 Through you we drive back our foes; through your name we trample our enemies. †
6 For I do not trust in my bow, and my sword does not bring me victory. †
7 But you give us victory over our foes and let those who hate us be disgraced. †
8 We boast in God all day long; we will praise your name forever. †
Selah

9 But you have rejected and humiliated us; you do not march out with our armies. †
10 You make us retreat from the foe, and those who hate us have taken plunder for themselves. †
11 You hand us over to be eaten like sheep and scatter us among the nations. †

12 You sell your people for nothing; you make no profit from selling them. †
13 You make us an object of reproach to our neighbors, a source of mockery and ridicule to those around us. †
14 You make us a joke among the nations, a laughingstock † among the peoples. †
15 My disgrace is before me all day long, and shame has covered my face, †
16 because of the taunts † of the scorner and reviler, because of the enemy and avenger. †

17 All this has happened to us, but we have not forgotten you or betrayed your covenant. †
18 Our hearts have not turned back; our steps have not strayed from your path. †
19 But you have crushed us in a haunt of jackals and have covered us with deepest darkness. †
20 If we had forgotten the name of our God and spread out our hands to a foreign god, †
21 wouldn't God have found this out, since he knows the secrets of the heart? †
22 Because of you we are being put to death all day long; we are counted as sheep to be slaughtered. †

23 Wake up, LORD! Why are you sleeping?
Get up! Don't reject us forever! †
24 Why do you hide and forget our affliction and oppression? †
25 For we have sunk down to the dust; our bodies cling to the ground. †
26 Rise up! Help us!
Redeem us because of your faithful love. †

A ROYAL WEDDING SONG

For the choir director: according to "The Lilies." † A Maskil of the sons of Korah. A love song.

45 My heart is moved by a noble theme as I recite my verses to the king;
my tongue is the pen of a skillful writer. †

2 You are the most handsome of men; † grace flows from your lips. †
Therefore God has blessed you forever. †

3 Mighty warrior, strap your sword at your side.
In your majesty and splendor † — 4 in your splendor ride triumphantly in the cause of truth, humility, and justice.
May your right hand show your awe-inspiring acts. †
5 Your sharpened arrows pierce the hearts of the king's enemies; the peoples fall under you. †

6 Your throne, † God, is † forever and ever; the scepter of your kingdom is a scepter of justice. †
7 You love righteousness and hate wickedness; † therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of joy more than your companions.
8 Myrrh, aloes, and cassia perfume all your garments; from ivory palaces harps bring you joy. †
9 Kings' daughters are among your honored women; † the queen, adorned with gold from Ophir, stands at your right hand. †

10 Listen, daughter, pay attention and consider: forget your people and your father's house, † 11 and the king will desire your beauty.
Bow down to him, for he is your lord. †

12 The daughter of Tyre, the wealthy people, will seek your favor with gifts. †

13 In her chamber, the royal daughter is all glorious, her clothing embroidered with gold. †

14 In colorful garments she is led to the king; after her, the virgins, her companions, are brought to you. †

15 They are led in with gladness and rejoicing; they enter the king's palace. †

16 Your sons will succeed your ancestors; you will make them princes throughout the land. †

17 I will cause your name to be remembered for all generations; therefore the peoples will praise you forever and ever. †

ZION EXALTED

A song. A psalm of the sons of Korah.

48 The LORD is great and highly praised in the city of our God. †
His holy mountain, 2 rising splendidly, is the joy of the whole earth.
Mount Zion — the summit of Zaphon — is the city of the great King. †
3 God is known as a stronghold in its citadels. †

4 Look! The kings assembled; they advanced together. †
5 They looked and froze with fear; they fled in terror. †
6 Trembling seized them there, agony like that of a woman in labor, †
7 as you wrecked the ships of Tarshish with the east wind. †

8 Just as we heard, so we have seen in the city of the LORD of Armies, in the city of our God;
God will establish it forever. †

9 God, within your temple, we contemplate your faithful love. †

MISPLACED TRUST IN WEALTH

For the choir director. A psalm of the sons of Korah.

49 Hear this, all you peoples; listen, all who inhabit the world, †
2 both low and high, rich and poor together. †
3 My mouth speaks wisdom; my heart’s meditation brings understanding. †
4 I turn my ear to a proverb; I explain my riddle with a lyre. †

5 Why should I fear in times of trouble?
The iniquity of my foes surrounds me. †
6 They trust in their wealth and boast of their abundant riches. † 7 Yet these cannot redeem a person † or pay his ransom to God † — 8 since the price of redeeming him is too costly, one should forever stop trying † † — 9 so that he may live forever and not see the Pit. †

10 For one can see that the wise die; the foolish and stupid also pass away. †
Then they leave their wealth to others. †
11 Their graves are their permanent homes, † their dwellings from generation to generation, though they have named estates after themselves. †
12 But despite his assets, † mankind will not last; he is like the animals that perish. †

13 This is the way of those who are arrogant, and of their followers, who approve of their words. † †

Selah 14 Like sheep they are headed for Sheol; Death will shepherd them.

The upright will rule over them in the morning, † and their form will waste away in Sheol, † far from their lofty abode. † 15 But God will redeem me from the power of Sheol, for he will take me. †

Selah

16 Do not be afraid when a person gets rich, when the wealth † of his house increases. † 17 For when he dies, he will take nothing at all; his wealth will not follow him down. †
18 Though he blesses himself during his lifetime — and you are acclaimed when you do well for yourself † — 19 he will go to the generation of his fathers; they will never see the light. †

14 Sacrifice a thank offering to God, †

A PRAYER FOR RESTORATION

For the choir director. A psalm of David, when the prophet Nathan came to him after he had gone to Bathsheba. †

POLYTHEISM IN BIBLICAL TIMES

Polytheism is the belief in or worship of many deities. Polytheism as a system reigned in the ancient world. One celebrated exception to polytheism was the revolution of Pharaoh Akhenaten in the fourteenth century; he elevated Aten (the sun disk) while outlawing the worship of other gods. Nevertheless, this was not a true expression of monotheism and also was short-lived.

WHY POLYTHEISM?

Why did the peoples of the nations almost universally, except for the Israelites, accept the idea of polytheism? First, the concept of many deities may be traceable to the original idea of monotheism (the existence of only one god). That all the deities ultimately had an origin in a primeval force or god suggests an original idea of monotheism. The deities themselves were born, so to speak. This concept may have had sociological as well as philosophical motives. The gods functioned as go-betweens, bridging the gap between the community and the Creator source. These intermediary deities provided a vital connection with the original primeval material.

Second, and more importantly, polytheism resulted from a spiritually corrupt mind. The apostle Paul explained: “For though they [the nations] knew God, they did not glorify him as God or show gratitude. Instead, their thinking became worthless, and their senseless hearts were darkened” (Rm 1:21).

FEATURES OF POLYTHEISM

There were many features of polytheism held in common across the spectrum of ancient religions.

1. POLYTHEISM WAS CLOSELY CONNECTED WITH WHAT TODAY IS UNDERSTOOD AS THE “NATURAL WORLD.”

The material entities of the universe were filled with the power of the deities, that is, the supernatural. The ancients, however, did not differentiate between the natural world, which is governed by the cause and effect of natural forces, and the supernatural world, which is the sphere of the gods. Deities and “natural” beings (e.g., sun) and forces (e.g., wind) were interdependent. In the viewpoint of polytheism, for example, there was a link between the function of the sun and the existence of the sun deity. For the universe to provide a habitat for life and for the afterlife, the corresponding deities to each facet of nature must be functioning.

2. SINCE THE GODS WERE SUPREME IN POWER, HUMANS FEARED THEM AND SOUGHT WAYS TO ENGENDER FAVORABLE TREATMENT. RITUAL WORSHIP, ESPECIALLY INCANTATIONS AND SYMPATHETIC MAGIC, WERE ESSENTIAL PATTERNS OF WORSHIP.

Specialization accompanied ritual worship, giving rise to temples, priests, and formulaic rites of sacrifice. Hymns of praise and confessions of offense also characterized human efforts to manipulate the activities of the deities.

3. THE DEITIES WERE SEXUAL, MALE AND FEMALE DEITIES.

This facet reflected the human makeup of two genders and mirrored the human means of producing and sustaining life. Sexual relations between the deities were necessary for the world to continue its natural cycles of existence: life and death, rain and drought, and fecundity and infertility. Sexual union between deities was also a common explanation for the origin of lesser gods. The sexual character of pagan gods was mirrored in human worship by cultic prostitution and deviant sexual practices.

4. POLYTHEISM ASSUMED A COMMUNITY OF GODS THAT WAS HIERARCHICAL.

At the highest level were the cosmic deities who exercised universal rule and who determined the fate of the lesser gods and of humans. One deity ruled over the pantheon, such as the Greek god Zeus who was over the twelve gods of Olympus. Polytheism included intermediary deities who were connected with specific activities (e.g., storm gods) or environmental spheres (e.g., sea gods) or were patron deities (of the state). The idea of a pantheon, in fact, imitated the social institutions of family and state. Family religion consisted of worshiping local deities close to the common person as part of family and ancestral heritage (e.g., household gods, cp. teraphim, Gn 31:19). State religion, however, was at the national level and involved the patron deity of the royal house, such as Babylon’s chief deity, Marduk. State religion was typically syncretistic, but ultimately a single deity received foremost attention. Patron deities were therefore associated with specific people groups and territorial lands. The concept of a pantheon also permitted the addition of new deities when nations entered into treaty or a nation defeated a rival.

5. ALTHOUGH THE GODS WERE INEXTRICABLY TIED TO THE NATURAL ORDER, THEY ALSO IMPACTED THE DIRECTION OF HISTORY.

Nations attributed their victories to the national god. The Moabite Stone, for example, gives credit to the god Chemosh for Moab's victory over Israel's king Ahab (ninth century BC). Nevertheless, the nations primarily viewed history as a cyclical pattern. History did not have an ultimate goal; there was no overarching plan for the development of history.

6. THE PERSONALITIES OF THE GODS WERE ANTHROPOMORPHIC; THEY PARALLELED THE CHARACTER OF HUMANS.

The gods routinely exhibited the same range of activities and emotions, such as procreation, daily activities, love, and anger. Patron deities supported the welfare of the people if the people fulfilled their responsibilities to the gods, including veneration and cultic performance. Worship involved prayers of praise and of confession so as to achieve favor and produce a stable, predictable relationship between a god and an individual or society. Commonly, the gods behaved capriciously, keeping their adherents uncertain of their favor. Divine anger was appeased through cultic rites. Babylonian and Egyptian literature, for example, contemplated the source of evil and injustice but they offered no resolution to the problems. There was no certainty that moral equity would win out in the end. The gods were selfish by nature, creating humans solely to serve their own interests. Humans built cities to the glory of the gods and provided animal sacrifices to feed them.

7. ACCOMPANYING POLYTHEISM WERE MYTHS (STORIES) REGARDING THE GODS.

Myths were not essentially intended to entertain. Rather, the concept of myth explained present reality; it gave a timeless picture of human society's institutions. The pantheon had a ruling god, king of the gods, and this supreme deity enjoyed a stately palace or temple and the loyalty of the lesser deities. This ideological template justified the hierarchy and hegemony of the state.

8. POLYTHEISM UNIVERSALLY INVOLVED IMAGES (IDOLS) OF THE GODS THAT WERE MADE OF VARIOUS MATERIALS LIKE WOOD, CLAY, OR METAL.

Images were not the same as the gods; rather, they were inhabited by the gods. Images were alive in that sense, and they linked the human worshiper and the god (cp. Isaiah's parody on image-making, 44:9-20). The Jews were accused of being atheists because they did not have an image in their temple. Christians, too, were accused of atheism because they did not worship Roman gods and bow to the imperial cult (for the Christian view of idols, see 1Co 8:4; 10:19-21).

A PORTRAIT OF SINNERS

For the choir director: on Mahalath. † A Maskil of David.

THE NEW ATHEISM

The New Atheism is now an established feature of the intellectual landscape of our age. Thinkers such as Richard Dawkins, Daniel Dennett, Sam Harris, and the late Christopher Hitchens are among the figures most regularly featured on the front tables of America's bookstores and on the front pages of our newspapers.

Atheism is not a new concept. Even the OT speaks of the one who tells himself in his heart, "There's no God" (Ps 14:1). Atheism however, became an organized and publicly recognized worldview in the wake of the Enlightenment, however. It has maintained a foothold in Western culture ever since.

Prior to the development of the theory of evolution, there was no way for an atheist to settle on any clear argument for why the cosmos exists or why life forms appeared. Charles Darwin changed all that. The development of Darwinian evolution offered atheism an invaluable intellectual tool—an alternate account of beginnings. Richard Dawkins, perhaps the world's best-known evolutionary scientist, argues that the explanation offered by a frustrated atheist before Darwin "would have left one feeling pretty unsatisfied."

Darwin's theory of natural selection and the larger dogma of evolution emerged in the nineteenth century as the first coherent alternative to the Bible's doctrine of creation. This revolution in human thinking is well-summarized by Dawkins, who conceded that an atheist prior to Darwin would have to offer an explanation of the cosmos and the existence of life that would look something like this: "All I know is that God isn't a good explanation, so we must wait and hope that somebody comes up with a better one."

In a single sentence, Dawkins gets to the heart of the matter: "Darwin made it possible to be an intellectually fulfilled atheist."

Nevertheless, atheists have typically represented only a small (if vocal) minority of Americans. Surveys estimate that atheists represent less than 3 percent of the population, although those "unaffiliated" with any religion is nearly 20 percent. As a worldview, atheism is over-represented among the intellectual elites, and atheists have largely—though not exclusively—talked to their own.

Until now. The New Atheists have emerged as potent public voices. They write best-selling books, appear on major college and university campuses, and extend their voices through institutional and cultural influence.

The New Atheism is not just a reassertion of atheism. It is a movement that represents a far greater public challenge to Christianity than that posed by the atheistic movements of previous times. Adherents see science as on their side, arguing that scientific knowledge in general, and evolutionary theory in particular, is our only true knowledge. They argue that belief in God is organized ignorance, that theistic beliefs lead to violence, and that atheism is liberation. They are shocked and appalled that Americans refuse to follow the predictions of the secularization theorists, who had assured the elites that belief in God would be dissolved by the acids of modernity. They have added new (and important) arguments to the atheistic arsenal.

Dawkins, for example, not only believes that Darwinism made it possible to be an intellectually fulfilled atheist, but he also argues that religious belief is actually dangerous and devoid of credibility. Thus, he argues not only that Darwinism made it possible for an atheist to be intellectually fulfilled but that the theory of evolution undermines belief in God. In other words, Dawkins asserts that Darwinism makes it impossible to be an intellectually fulfilled Christian.

Daniel Dennett, another of the "Four Horsemen" of the New Atheism, has argued that Darwin's theory of evolution is a "universal acid" that will burn away all claims of the existence of God. His confidence in Darwinism is total. Dennett is honest enough to recognize that if evolutionary theory is true, it must eventually offer an account of everything related to the question of life. Thus, evolution will have to explain every aspect of life, from how a species appeared to why a mother loves her child.

As we might expect, the theory of evolution is used to explain that there must have been a time when belief in God was necessary in order for humans to have adequate confidence to reproduce. Clearly, Dennett believes that we should now have adequate confidence to do so without belief in God.

Sam Harris, also a scientist by training, pushes the argument even further than Dawkins and Dennett. Harris has argued that belief in God is such a danger to human civilization that religious liberty should be denied in order that science might reign supreme as the intellectual foundation of human society. The last of the "Four Horsemen," author Christopher Hitchens used his considerable wit to ridicule belief in God, which he, like Dawkins and Harris, considered downright dangerous to humanity.

The dogma of Darwinism is among the first principles of the worldview offered by the New Atheists. Darwin replaces the Bible as the great explainer of the existence of life in all of its forms. The New Atheists are not merely dependent upon science for their worldview; their worldview amounts to scientism—the belief that modern naturalistic science is the great unifying answer to the most basic questions of human life.

As Richard Dawkins has argued, they feel that disbelief in evolution should be considered intellectually disrespectable and as reprehensible as denial of the Holocaust. Thus, their strategy is to use the theory of evolution as a central weapon in today's context of intellectual combat.

The New Atheists write from positions of privilege, and they know how to package their ideas. Books by Richard Dawkins and Christopher Hitchens have spent weeks and months on the best-seller list published by The New York Times. They know that the most important audience is the young, and they are in a position to reach young people with their arguments.

The New Atheism has exploited an opening presented by significant and seismic changes in prevailing patterns of thought. We must acknowledge that most educated persons living in Western societies now inhabit a cultural space in which the conditions of belief have been radically changed. Whereas it was once impossible not to believe in God and later possible not to believe, for millions of people today, the default position is that it is impossible to believe.

In terms of our own Christian evangelistic and apologetic mandate, it is helpful to acknowledge that only a minority of those we seek to reach with the gospel truly and self-consciously identify with atheism in any form. Nevertheless, the rise of the New Atheism presents a seductive alternative for those inclined to identify more publicly and self-consciously with organized non-belief. The far greater challenge for most of us, then, is to communicate the gospel to persons whose minds are more indirectly shaped by these changed conditions of belief.

The church must respond to the challenge of the New Atheism with the full measure of conviction and not with mere curiosity. We must remember that the church has faced a constellation of theological challenges throughout its history. Then, as now, our task is to articulate, communicate, and defend the Christian faith with intellectual integrity and evangelistic urgency. We should not assume that this task will be easy, and we must also refuse to withdraw from public debate and private conversation in light of this challenge.

In the final analysis, the New Atheism presents the Christian church with a great moment of clarification.

The New Atheists do, in the end, understand what they are rejecting, as Paul's teaching in Romans 8:18-22 makes plain. Further, when Sam Harris defines true religion as that "where participants' avowed belief in a supernatural agent or agents whose approval is to be sought" is met, he understands what many mired in confusion do not. The only god who matters is a supernatural God—a personal God—who will judge. In the end, the existence of the supernatural, self-existent, and self-revealing God is the only starting point for Christian theology. God possesses all of the perfections revealed in Scripture, or there is no coherent theology presented in the Bible.

The New Atheists are certainly right about one very important thing—it's atheism or biblical theism. There is nothing in between.

59 Rescue me from my enemies, my God; † protect me from those who rise up against me. †

2 Rescue me from those who practice sin, and save me from men of bloodshed. †

3 Because look, LORD, they set an ambush for me. † Powerful men attack me,
but not because of any sin or rebellion of mine. †
4 For no fault of mine, they run and take up a position.
Awake to help me, and take notice. †
5 LORD God of Armies, you are the God of Israel.
Rise up to punish all the nations;
do not show favor to any wicked traitors. †

Selah

6 They return at evening, snarling like dogs and prowling around the city. †
7 Look, they spew from their mouths — sharp words from † their lips. †
"For who," they say, "will hear? " †
8 But you laugh at them, LORD; you ridicule all the nations. †
9 I will keep watch for you, my † strength, because God is my stronghold. †
10 My faithful God † will come to meet me; God will let me look down on my adversaries. †

11 Do not kill them; otherwise, my people will forget.
By your power, make them homeless wanderers † and bring them down,
Lord, our shield. †
12 For the sin of their mouths and the words of their lips, let them be caught in their pride.
They utter curses and lies. †
13 Consume them in rage; consume them until they are gone. †
Then people will know throughout † the earth that God rules over Jacob. †

Selah

14 And they return at evening, snarling like dogs and prowling around the city. †

15 They scavenge for food; they growl if they are not satisfied. †

16 But I will sing of your strength and will joyfully proclaim your faithful love in the morning. †
For you have been a stronghold for me, a refuge in my day of trouble. †
17 To you, my strength, I sing praises, because God is my stronghold — my faithful God. †

PRAYER IN DIFFICULT TIMES

For the choir director: according to "The Lily of Testimony." † A Miktam of David for teaching. When he fought with Aram-naharaim and Aram-zobah, and Joab returned and struck Edom in Salt Valley, killing twelve thousand. †

60 God, you have rejected us; you have broken us down; you have been angry. Restore us! † †
2 You have shaken the land and split it open.
Heal its fissures, for it shudders. †
3 You have made your people suffer hardship; you have given us wine to drink that made us stagger. †
4 You have given a signal flag to those who fear you, so that they can flee before the archers. † †
Selah 5 Save with your right hand, and answer me, so that those you love may be rescued. †

6 God has spoken in his sanctuary: †

“I will celebrate!
I will divide up Shechem. †
I will apportion the Valley of Succoth. †
7 Gilead is mine, Manasseh is mine, and Ephraim is my helmet; † Judah is my scepter. †
8 Moab is my washbasin. †
I throw my sandal on Edom; †
I shout in triumph over Philistia.” †

9 Who will bring me to the fortified city?
Who will lead me to Edom? †
10 God, haven’t you rejected us?
God, you do not march out with our armies. †

For the choir director: on stringed instruments. Of David.

61 God, hear my cry; pay attention to my prayer. †

TRUST IN GOD ALONE

For the choir director: according to Jeduthun. † A psalm of David.

62 I am at rest in God alone; my salvation comes from him. †
2 He alone is my rock and my salvation, †
my stronghold; I will never be shaken. †

3 How long will you threaten a man?
Will all of you attack † as if he were a leaning wall or a tottering fence? †
4 They only plan to bring him down from his high position.
They take pleasure in lying;
they bless with their mouths,
but they curse inwardly. †

Selah

5 Rest in God alone, my soul, for my hope comes from him. †

6 He alone is my rock and my salvation, †
my stronghold; I will not be shaken. †
7 My salvation and glory depend on God, my strong rock.
My refuge is in God. †
8 Trust in him at all times, you people; pour out your hearts before him.
God is our refuge. †

they weigh less than † a vapor. †
10 Place no trust in oppression, or false hope in robbery.
If wealth increases,
don't set your heart on it. †

11 God has spoken once; I have heard this twice:

PRAISE GOD WHO SATISFIES

A psalm of David. When he was in the Wilderness of Judah. †

63 God, you are my God; I eagerly seek you.
I thirst for you;
my body faints for you in a land that is dry, desolate, and without water. †
2 So I gaze on you in the sanctuary to see your strength and your glory. †

3 My lips will glorify you because your faithful love is better than life. †

4 So I will bless you as long as I live; at your name, I will lift up my hands. †
5 You satisfy me as with rich food; † † my mouth will praise you with joyful lips. †

6 When I think of you as I lie on my bed, I meditate on you during the night watches †
7 because you are my helper; †
I will rejoice in the shadow of your wings. †
8 I follow close to you; your right hand holds on to me. †

9 But those who intend to destroy my life will go into the depths of the earth. †
10 They will be given over to the power of the sword; †
they will become a meal for jackals.
11 But the king will rejoice in God; † all who swear by him will boast, for the mouths of liars will be shut. †

PROTECTION FROM EVILDOERS

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

64 God, hear my voice when I am in anguish. †
Protect my life from the terror of the enemy. †
2 Hide me from the scheming of wicked people, † from the mob of evildoers, †
3 who sharpen their tongues like swords and aim bitter words like arrows, †
4 shooting from concealed places at the blameless.
They shoot at him suddenly and are not afraid. †
5 They adopt † an evil plan; they talk about hiding traps and say,

“Who will see them?” † †

6 They devise crimes and say, “We have perfected a secret plan.” †
The inner man and the heart are mysterious.

7 But God will shoot them with arrows; suddenly, they will be wounded. †
8 They will be made to stumble; their own tongues work against them.
All who see them will shake their heads. † 9 Then everyone will fear and will tell about God’s work, for they will understand what he has done. †

10 The righteous one rejoices in the LORD and takes refuge in him;
all those who are upright in heart will offer praise. †

GOD’S CARE FOR THE EARTH

For the choir director. A psalm of David. A song.

65 Praise is rightfully yours, †
God, in Zion;
vows to you will be fulfilled. †
2 All humanity will come to you, the one who hears prayer. †
3 Iniquities overwhelm me; only you can atone for our rebellions. †
4 How happy is the one you choose and bring near to live in your courts!
We will be satisfied with the goodness of your house, the holiness of your temple. † †

5 You answer us in righteousness, with awe-inspiring works, God of our salvation,
the hope of all the ends of the earth and of the distant seas. †

6 You establish the mountains by your power; you are robed with strength. † 7 You silence the roar of the seas, the roar of their waves, and the tumult of the nations. †
8 Those who live far away are awed by your signs; you make east and west
shout for joy. †

9 You visit the earth and water it abundantly, enriching it greatly.
God's stream is filled with water, for you prepare the earth in this way, providing people with grain. † 10 You soften it with showers and bless its growth, soaking its furrows and leveling its ridges. †
11 You crown the year with your goodness; your carts overflow with plenty. † †
12 The wilderness pastures overflow, and the hills are robed with joy. †
13 The pastures are clothed with flocks and the valleys covered with grain. †

PRAISE FOR GOD'S MIGHTY ACTS

For the choir director. A song. A psalm.

66 Let the whole earth shout joyfully to God! †
2 Sing about the glory of his name; make his praise glorious. †
3 Say to God, "How awe-inspiring are your works!
Your enemies will cringe before you because of your great strength. †
4 The whole earth will worship you and sing praise to you.
They will sing praise to your name." †

Selah

5 Come and see the wonders of God; † his acts for humanity † are awe-inspiring.
6 He turned the sea into dry land, and they crossed the river on foot. †
There we rejoiced in him. †
7 He rules forever by his might; he keeps his eye on the nations. †
The rebellious should not exalt themselves. †
Selah 8 Bless our God, you peoples; let the sound of his praise be heard. †

9 He keeps us alive † and does not allow our feet to slip. †

10 For you, God, tested us; you refined us as silver is refined. †
11 You lured us into a trap; you placed burdens on our backs. † 12 You let men ride over our heads; we went through fire and water, but you brought us out to abundance. † †

13 I will enter your house with burnt offerings; I will pay you my vows †
14 that my lips promised and my mouth spoke during my distress. †
15 I will offer you fattened sheep as burnt offerings, with the fragrant smoke of rams;
I will sacrifice bulls with goats. †

Selah

16 Come and listen, all who fear God, and I will tell what he has done for me. †
17 I cried out to him with my mouth, and praise was on my tongue. †
18 If I had been aware of malice in my heart, the Lord would not have listened. † 19 However, God has listened; he has paid attention to the sound of my prayer. †

GOD'S MAJESTIC POWER

For the choir director. A psalm of David. A song.

68 God arises. His enemies scatter, and those who hate him flee from his presence. †
2 As smoke is blown away, so you blow them away.
As wax melts before the fire,
so the wicked are destroyed before God. †
3 But the righteous are glad; they rejoice before God and celebrate with joy. †

4 Sing to God! Sing praises to his name.

Exalt him who rides on the clouds † — his name is the LORD † — and celebrate
before him. †
5 God in his holy dwelling is a father of the fatherless and a champion of widows. †
6 God provides homes for those who are deserted.
He leads out the prisoners to prosperity, †
but the rebellious live in a scorched land. †

7 God, when you went out before your people, when you marched through the desert, Selah 8 the earth trembled and the skies poured rain before God, the God of Sinai, †

before God, the God of Israel. †
9 You, God, showered abundant rain; you revived your inheritance when it languished. †
10 Your people settled in it; God, you provided for the poor by your goodness. †

11 The Lord gave the command; a great company of women brought the good news: †
12 "The kings of the armies flee — they flee! "
She who stays at home divides the spoil. † 13 While † you lie among the sheep pens, †
the wings of a dove are covered with silver, and its feathers with glistening gold. †
14 When the Almighty scattered kings in the land, it snowed on Zalmon. † †

15 Mount Bashan is God's towering mountain; Mount Bashan is a mountain of many peaks. †
16 Why gaze with envy, you mountain peaks, at the mountain God desired for his abode?
The LORD will dwell there forever! †

17 God's chariots are tens of thousands, thousands and thousands; † the Lord is among them in the sanctuary †
as he was at Sinai. †
18 You ascended to the heights, taking away captives; you received gifts from † people, even from the rebellious, so that the LORD God might dwell there. † †

19 Blessed be the Lord!
Day after day he bears our burdens;
God is our salvation. †
Selah 20 Our God is a God of salvation, and escape from death belongs to the LORD my Lord. †

21 Surely God crushes the heads of his enemies, the hairy brow of one who goes on in his guilty acts. † 22 The Lord said, "I will bring them back from Bashan; I will bring them back from the depths of the sea † 23 so that your foot may wade † in blood and your dogs' tongues may have their share from the enemies." † 24 People have seen your procession, God, the procession of my God, my King, in the sanctuary. † 25 Singers lead the way, with musicians following; among them are young women playing tambourines. †
26 Bless God in the assemblies; bless the LORD from the fountain of Israel. † 27 There is Benjamin, the youngest, leading them, the rulers of Judah in their assembly, †
the rulers of Zebulun, the rulers of Naphtali. †

28 Your God has decreed your strength.
Show your strength, God,
you who have acted on our behalf. †

29 Because of your temple at Jerusalem, kings will bring tribute to you. † 30 Rebuke the beast in the reeds, the herd of bulls with the calves of the peoples. †
Trample underfoot those with bars of silver. †
Scatter the peoples who take pleasure in war. † 31 Ambassadors will come † from Egypt; Cush will stretch out its hands to God. †

32 Sing to God, you kingdoms of the earth; sing praise to the Lord, †
Selah 33 to him who rides in the ancient, highest heavens. †

Look, he thunders with his powerful voice! † 34 Ascribe power to God.
His majesty is over Israel,
his power is among the clouds. †
35 God, you are awe-inspiring in your sanctuaries.
The God of Israel gives power and strength to his people.
Blessed be God! †

A PLEA FOR RESCUE

For the choir director: according to "The Lilies." † Of David.

69 2 Save me, God, for the water has risen to my neck. †
I have sunk in deep mud, and there is no footing; I have come into deep water, and a flood sweeps over me. †
3 I am weary from my crying; my throat is parched.
My eyes fail, looking for my God. †
4 Those who hate me without cause are more numerous than the hairs of my head; my deceitful enemies, who would destroy me, are powerful. † Though I did not steal, I must repay. †

5 God, you know my foolishness, and my guilty acts are not hidden from you. †
6 Do not let those who put their hope in you be disgraced because of me, Lord GOD of Armies; do not let those who seek you be humiliated because of me,
God of Israel. †
7 For I have endured insults because of you, and shame has covered my face. †
8 I have become a stranger to my brothers and a foreigner to my mother's sons †
9 because zeal for your house has consumed me, † and the insults of those who insult you have fallen on me. †
10 I mourned and fasted, but it brought me insults. †
11 I wore sackcloth as my clothing, and I was a joke to them.
12 Those who sit at the city gate talk about me, and drunkards make up songs about me. †

13 But as for me, LORD, my prayer to you is for a time of favor.
In your abundant, faithful love, God, answer me with your sure salvation. †
14 Rescue me from the miry mud; don't let me sink.
Let me be rescued from those who hate me and from the deep water. † 15 Don't let the floodwaters sweep over me or the deep swallow me up; don't let the Pit close its mouth over me. †
16 Answer me, LORD, for your faithful love is good.

In keeping with your abundant compassion, turn to me. †
17 Don’t hide your face from your servant, for I am in distress.
Answer me quickly! †
18 Come near to me and redeem me; ransom me because of my enemies. †

19 You know the insults I endure — my shame and disgrace.
You are aware of all my adversaries. †
20 Insults have broken my heart, and I am in despair.
I waited for sympathy,
but there was none;
for comforters, but found no one. † 21 Instead, they gave me gall for my food, and for my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink. †

22 Let their table set before them be a snare, and let it be a trap for their allies. †
23 Let their eyes grow too dim to see, and let their hips continually quake. †
24 Pour out your rage on them, and let your burning anger overtake them. †
25 Make their fortification desolate; may no one live in their tents. †
26 For they persecute the one you struck and talk about the pain of those you wounded. †
27 Charge them with crime on top of crime; do not let them share in your righteousness. †
28 Let them be erased from the book of life and not be recorded with the righteous. †

29 But as for me — poor and in pain — let your salvation protect me, God. †
30 I will praise God’s name with song and exalt him with thanksgiving. †
31 That will please the LORD more than an ox, more than a bull with horns and hooves. †
32 The humble will see it and rejoice.
You who seek God, take heart! †
33 For the LORD listens to the needy and does not despise his own who are prisoners. †

34 Let heaven and earth praise him, the seas and everything that moves in them, †

35 for God will save Zion and build up † the cities of Judah.
They will live there and possess it. †

36 The descendants of his servants will inherit it, and those who love his name will live in it. †

A CALL FOR DELIVERANCE

For the choir director. Of David. To bring remembrance. †

70 God, hurry to rescue me.
LORD, hurry to help me! †

2 Let those who seek to kill me be disgraced and confounded;
let those who wish me harm
be turned back and humiliated.
3 Let those who say, “Aha, aha! ” retreat because of their shame. †

4 Let all who seek you rejoice and be glad in you; let those who love your salvation continually say, “God is great! ” †

GOD'S HELP IN OLD AGE

71 LORD, I seek refuge in you; let me never be disgraced. †
2 In your justice, rescue and deliver me; listen closely to me and save me. †
3 Be a rock of refuge for me, where I can always go.
Give the command to save me, for you are my rock and fortress. †
4 Deliver me, my God, from the power of the wicked, from the grasp of the unjust and oppressive. †
5 For you are my hope, Lord GOD, my confidence from my youth. †
6 I have leaned on you from birth; you took me from my mother's womb. †
My praise is always about you. †
7 I am like a miraculous sign to many, and you are my strong refuge. †
8 My mouth is full of praise and honor to you all day long. †

9 Don't discard me in my old age.
As my strength fails, do not abandon me. †
10 For my enemies talk about me, and those who spy on me plot together, † 11 saying, "God has abandoned him; chase him and catch him, for there is no one to rescue him." †
12 God, do not be far from me; my God, hurry to help me. †
13 May my adversaries be disgraced and destroyed; may those who intend to harm me be covered with disgrace and humiliation. † 14 But I will hope continually and will praise you more and more. † 15 My mouth will tell about your righteousness and your salvation all day long, though I cannot sum them up. †
16 I come because of the mighty acts of the Lord GOD; I will proclaim your righteousness, yours alone. †

17 God, you have taught me from my youth, and I still proclaim your wondrous works. †

18 Even while I am old and gray, God, do not abandon me, † while I proclaim your power to another generation, your strength to all who are to come. †

19 Your righteousness reaches the heights, God, you who have done great things;
God, who is like you? †

20 You caused me to experience many troubles and misfortunes, † but you will revive me again. †
You will bring me up again, even from the depths of the earth. †

21 You will increase my honor and comfort me once again. †

22 Therefore, I will praise you with a harp for your faithfulness, my God;
I will sing to you with a lyre,
Holy One of Israel. †

23 My lips will shout for joy when I sing praise to you because you have redeemed me. †

24 Therefore, my tongue will proclaim your righteousness all day long, for those who intend to harm me will be disgraced and confounded. †

A PRAYER FOR THE KING

Of Solomon. †

72 God, give your justice to the king and your righteousness to the king's son. †

2 He will judge your people with righteousness and your afflicted ones with justice. †

3 May the mountains bring well-being † to the people and the hills, righteousness. †

4 May he vindicate the afflicted among the people, help the poor, and crush the oppressor. †

5 May they fear you † while the sun endures and as long as the moon, throughout all generations. †

6 May the king be like rain that falls on the cut grass, like spring showers that water the earth. †

7 May the righteous † flourish in his days and well-being abound until the moon is no more. †

8 May he rule from sea to sea and from the Euphrates to the ends of the earth. †

9 May desert tribes kneel before him and his enemies lick the dust. †

10 May the kings of Tarshish and the coasts and islands bring tribute, the kings of Sheba and Seba offer gifts. †

11 Let all kings bow in homage to him, all nations serve him. †

12 For he will rescue the poor who cry out and the afflicted who have no helper. †

13 He will have pity on the poor and helpless and save the lives of the poor. †

14 He will redeem them from oppression and violence, for their lives are † precious † in his sight. †

15 May he live long!
May gold from Sheba be given to him.
May prayer be offered for him continually, and may he be blessed all day long. † 16 May there be plenty of grain in the land; may it wave on the tops of the mountains.

May its crops be like Lebanon.
May people flourish in the cities like the grass of the field. † 17 May his name endure forever; as long as the sun shines, may his fame increase.
May all nations be blessed by him and call him blessed. †

18 Blessed be the LORD God, the God of Israel, who alone does wonders. †
19 Blessed be his glorious name forever; the whole earth is filled with his glory. †
Amen and amen.

BOOK III (Psalms 73–89)

GOD'S WAYS VINDICATED

A psalm of Asaph. †

73 God is indeed good to Israel, to the pure in heart. †
2 But as for me, my feet almost slipped; my steps nearly went astray. †
3 For I envied the arrogant; I saw the prosperity of the wicked. †

4 They have an easy time until they die, † and their bodies are well fed. † †
5 They are not in trouble like others; they are not afflicted like most people. †
6 Therefore, pride is their necklace, and violence covers them like a garment. †
7 Their eyes bulge out from fatness; the imaginations of their hearts run wild. †

8 They mock, and they speak maliciously; they arrogantly threaten oppression. †
9 They set their mouths against heaven, and their tongues strut across the earth. †
10 Therefore his people turn to them † and drink in their overflowing words. † † 11 The wicked say, “How can God know?
Does the Most High know everything? ” †
12 Look at them — the wicked!
They are always at ease,
and they increase their wealth. †

13 Did I purify my heart and wash my hands in innocence for nothing? †
14 For I am afflicted all day long and punished every morning. †
15 If I had decided to say these things aloud, I would have betrayed your people. † †
16 When I tried to understand all this, it seemed hopeless † †
17 until I entered God’s sanctuary.
Then I understood their destiny. †
18 Indeed, you put them in slippery places; you make them fall into ruin. †
19 How suddenly they become a desolation!
They come to an end, swept away by terrors. †
20 Like one waking from a dream, Lord, when arising, you will despise their image. †

21 When I became embittered and my innermost being † was wounded, †
22 I was stupid and didn’t understand; I was an unthinking animal toward you. †
23 Yet I am always with you; you hold my right hand. †
24 You guide me with your counsel, and afterward you will take me up in glory. † †
25 Who do I have in heaven but you?
And I desire nothing on earth but you. †

26 My flesh and my heart may fail, but God is the strength † of my heart, my portion forever. †
27 Those far from you will certainly perish; you destroy all who are unfaithful to you. †
28 But as for me, God's presence is my good.
I have made the Lord GOD my refuge, so I can tell about all you do. †

PRAYER FOR ISRAEL

A Maskil of Asaph. †

74 Why have you rejected us forever, God?
Why does your anger burn against the sheep of your pasture? † 2 Remember your congregation, which you purchased long ago and redeemed as the tribe for your own possession. †
Remember Mount Zion where you dwell. †
3 Make your way † to the perpetual ruins, to all that the enemy has destroyed in the sanctuary. †
4 Your adversaries roared in the meeting place where you met with us. †
They set up their emblems as signs. †
5 It was like men in a thicket of trees, wielding axes, †
6 then smashing all the carvings with hatchets and picks. †
7 They set your sanctuary on fire; they utterly † desecrated the dwelling place of your name. †

8 They said in their hearts, “Let us oppress them relentlessly.”
They burned every place throughout the land where God met with us. † † 9 There are no signs for us to see.
There is no longer a prophet.
And none of us knows how long this will last. †
10 God, how long will the enemy mock?
Will the foe insult your name forever? †
11 Why do you hold back your hand?
Stretch out † your right hand and destroy them! †

12 God my King is from ancient times, performing saving acts on the earth. †
13 You divided the sea with your strength; you smashed the heads of the sea monsters in the water; †
14 you crushed the heads of Leviathan; you fed him to the creatures of the desert. † 15 You opened up springs and streams; † you dried up ever-flowing rivers. †
16 The day is yours, also the night; you established the moon and the sun. †
17 You set all the boundaries of the earth; you made summer and winter. †

18 Remember this: the enemy has mocked the LORD, and a foolish people has insulted your name. †
19 Do not give to beasts the life of your dove; † do not forget the lives of your poor people forever. † 20 Consider the covenant, † for the dark places of the land are full of violence. †
21 Do not let the oppressed turn away in shame; let the poor and needy praise your name. †
22 Rise up, God, champion your cause! † Remember the insults that fools bring against you all day long. †

23 Do not forget the clamor of your adversaries, the tumult of your opponents that goes up constantly. †

GOD JUDGES THE WICKED

For the choir director: "Do Not Destroy." A psalm of Asaph. † A song.

75 We give thanks to you, God; we give thanks to you, for your name is near.
People tell about your wondrous works. †

2 "When I choose a time, I will judge fairly. † 3 When the earth and all its inhabitants shake, I am the one who steadies its pillars. †

and to the wicked, 'Do not lift up your horn. † 5 Do not lift up your horn against heaven † or speak arrogantly.' " †

6 Exaltation does not come from the east, the west, or the desert, 7 for God is the Judge: He brings down one and exalts another. † 8 For there is a cup in the LORD's hand, full of wine blended with spices, and he pours from it.
All the wicked of the earth will drink, draining it to the dregs. †

9 As for me, I will tell about him forever; I will sing praise to the God

GOD, THE POWERFUL JUDGE

CONFIDENCE IN A TIME OF CRISIS

For the choir director: according to Jeduthun. Of Asaph. † A psalm.

77 I cry aloud to God, aloud to God, and he will hear me. †
2 I sought the Lord in my day of trouble.
My hands were continually lifted up all night long;
I refused to be comforted. †
3 I think of God; I groan; I meditate; my spirit becomes weak. †

5 I consider days of old, years long past. †
6 At night I remember my music; I meditate in my heart, and my spirit ponders. †

7 "Will the Lord reject forever and never again show favor? †
8 Has his faithful love ceased forever?
Is his promise at an end for all generations? †
9 Has God forgotten to be gracious?
Has he in anger withheld his compassion?" †

Selah

10 So I say, "I am grieved that the right hand of the Most High has changed." † †

11 I will remember the LORD's works; yes, I will remember your ancient wonders. †
12 I will reflect on all you have done and meditate on your actions. †

13 God, your way is holy.
What god is great like God? †
14 You are the God who works wonders; you revealed your strength among the peoples. †
15 With power you redeemed your people, the descendants of Jacob and Joseph. †

16 The water saw you, God.
The water saw you; it trembled.
Even the depths shook. †
17 The clouds poured down water.
The storm clouds thundered;
your arrows flashed back and forth. †
18 The sound of your thunder was in the whirlwind; lightning lit up the world. †
The earth shook and quaked. †

but your footprints were unseen. †

LESSONS FROM ISRAEL'S PAST

A Maskil of Asaph. †

78 My people, hear my instruction; listen to the words from my mouth. †
2 I will declare wise sayings; I will speak mysteries from the past † —
3 things we have heard and known and that our fathers have passed down to us. †
4 We will not hide them from their children, but will tell a future generation the praiseworthy acts of the LORD, his might, and the wondrous works
he has performed. †
5 He established a testimony in Jacob and set up a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers to teach to their children † 6 so that a future generation — children yet to be born — might know.
They were to rise and tell their children † 7 so that they might put their confidence in God and not forget God's works, but keep his commands. †
8 Then they would not be like their fathers, a stubborn and rebellious generation, a generation whose heart was not loyal and whose spirit was not faithful to God. †

9 The Ephraimite archers turned back on the day of battle. †
10 They did not keep God's covenant and refused to live by his law. †
11 They forgot what he had done, the wondrous works he had shown them. †
12 He worked wonders in the sight of their fathers in the land of Egypt, the territory of Zoan. †
13 He split the sea and brought them across; the water stood firm like a wall. †
14 He led them with a cloud by day and with a fiery light throughout the night. †
15 He split rocks in the wilderness and gave them drink as abundant as the depths. †
16 He brought streams out of the stone and made water flow down like rivers. †

NATURALIST VIEWS OF HISTORY

Naturalism, the belief that only natural causes operate in the universe, has generated multiple views of history. Naturalism usually takes the form of materialism, which assumes that everything—even love and reason—can be explained in terms of material causes. Materialist naturalism, in contrast to a Christian worldview, fails to support a meaningful and defensible understanding of history.

The grand story of naturalism has a tragic unplanned hero: intelligent life. Unintelligent matter is alleged to have evolved into intelligent creatures, some of which discovered history itself. Evolutionary naturalism is tragic because cosmology, based on well-confirmed thermodynamic laws, indicates that the universe will "die" when the energy needed for life is consumed. Time's arrow thus points to death, and naturalism offers no escape.

Why, then, is the hopeless evolutionary story of naturalism popular? Because in this view there is no Lord of history to whom we are accountable. Ignorance of evidence for intelligent design also plays a role.

Consistent with modern cosmology, Psalm 102:25-26 teaches that the cosmos "will wear out like clothing." But unlike naturalism, which offers no salvation from thermodynamic death, the Bible reveals that God will bring history to an end when he judges evil and creates "a new heaven and a new earth" (Rv 21:1). This new universe will be free of disharmony, decay, and death—all to the glory of God. That—not materialist oblivion—is the goal (end) of history. A story of everything in which all persons are destroyed is meaningless. Yet such is the fate of naturalism.

The end of history anchors history's meaning (or lack thereof in the case of naturalism). An event sequence has meaning in relation to its goal: the "end" to which it is going. Events that move toward a goal are called "progress." The Bible reveals history as the surprising, progressive, drama of "all things" working "together for the good" of God's kingdom (Rm 8:28). Although individuals and nations experience both progress and regress (as in John Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress), God's sovereign plan always triumphs. Naturalism is incapable of properly grounding progress because it rejects God, whose unchanging attributes (love, justice, etc.) and freely chosen plan define the only objectively good goals toward which history can move. Without God, "stuff just happens" according to naturalism, which leaves history void of purpose.

History is the meaningfully related sequence of events in the lives of all persons. History is guided by the source of meaning and personhood: God himself—Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Thus history is "his story," but because it includes us, it's also "our story." Jesus, the unique God-man, unifies it. God "purposed in Christ as a plan for the right time—to bring everything together in Christ, both things in heaven and things on earth" (Eph 1:9-10).

History is both what happened and writings about what happened. Usually humans would not know what happened if it were not "written for a later generation" (Ps 102:18). Knowing biblical history is especially important: "For whatever was written in the past was written for our instruction, so that we may have hope through endurance and through the encouragement from the Scriptures" (Rm 15:4). The Holy Spirit directed the biblical authors to make the past instructive and encouraging.

The instructive past includes the creation, fall, and God's progressive acts of judgment and salvation. History's turning point occurred when Jesus entered the world as God in the flesh, accepted the lethal penalty for human sin, and overcame sin and death through resurrection. The full and glorious resolution of the story is yet to come (Revelation 21–22).

Indeed, history invites remembering. God calls us to "remember what happened long ago" (Is 46:9). We should recall how idolatrous choices brought "captivity" (46:2), while faithfulness to God led to "salvation" (46:13). Although this concept is true of all nations and individuals, even God-fearing historians struggle to discern the reasons for God's judgment and blessing in particular cases. This uncertainty, however, makes sense because God's ways are "higher" than ours (Is 55:9). In biblical narrative, the Holy Spirit ensured that the authors got the history right.

Biblical and naturalistic ideas of history are incompatible. The Bible depicts history as God's ongoing triumph over what's wrong with us—sin, which only Jesus's self-sacrifice can heal. Naturalism has spawned alternative views, each of which fails to offer plausible diagnoses of human evil. (Typically they blame biology or the environment.) Secular promises of salvation through genetic and environmental manipulation have all failed to deliver us from evil. Hitler, for example, ruthlessly applied Charles Darwin's idea that the most advanced humans had evolved a higher ethic of cooperation among themselves at the expense of lower "races." Although Darwin resisted racism personally, his ideas contributed to genocide in Nazi Germany (Richard Weikart, From Darwin to Hitler).

Three thinkers constructed the most influential naturalistic views about history. Charles Darwin argued that unguided material processes created living species, religion, morality, and immorality. Karl Marx explained human history as the evolution of tools and labor systems, which produced a necessary succession of economies and ideologies. Sigmund Freud rejected some Marxist ideas, such as the proposal that abolishing private property would eliminate oppression, but he expanded Darwinism to explain history as driven by sexual instinct. Applications of the ideas of Darwin and Marx for the sake of "progress" proved disastrous: eugenics (forced sterilization in the USA, genocide in Nazi Germany) and communism. Naturalism has undermined human dignity and freedom (John West, Darwin Day in America). So naturalism, unlike Christianity, fails to support a meaningful understanding of history. Naturalists also lack a defensible history. To see why, first we will explore a deeper "freedom."

Naturalists, like theists, entertain various views about human freedom and historical necessity. Christians, however, have uniformly rejected the idea that human actions are the necessary outcome of an unguided evolutionary process. Although some naturalists wish to give a materialist account of human freedom, their own worldview proves inadequate for the task. Yet, our daily experiences tell us that we are free to make choices that go beyond what a merely material thing could do. Some materialists, such as Cornell University's William Provine, think that free will is an illusion. Provine trumpeted his non-freedom faith in a chilling scene of the documentary Expelled: No Intelligence Allowed. Did he have to embrace this view and say so on film in 2008? He thinks so.

Provine's freedom-rejecting faith means that humans are irrational, which leaves his own materialistic view indefensible—an action equal to cutting off the tree limb on which he sits. Rationality requires the freedom to think about alternative explanations to decide which best fits the evidence. But if chemical brain events determine human thoughts, rationality is dead. Merely physical stimulus and survival-enhancing responses would rule the brain. Thus, naturalism fails to explain centuries of rational progress in science (J. P. Moreland, The Recalcitrant Imago Dei, 2009; Alvin Plantinga, Where the Conflict Really Lies, 2011).

Rationality in humans requires a nonmaterial rational soul. This is part of what the Bible means by saying that we are made in God's image. Although the mental and physical aspects of a human interact (it's difficult to think when you're tired), they aren't identical. This is a clue that God, not matter, created us. Indeed, Darwin never resolved his doubts about the ability of a haphazardly evolved brain to be rational. Despite advances in neurobiology, we are no closer to a naturalistic account of rationality today.

Rationality is a necessary component of any truth-finding endeavor, including historical inquiry. Given this, and the argument above, historical research can be reliable only if humans have souls (created in God's image, Plantinga argues). The Bible's own historical reliability, in turn, is supported by historical and archaeological research. Most importantly, numerous scholars have shown that it is much more reasonable to accept Jesus's resurrection than any naturalistic alternative (e.g., The Case for the Resurrection of Jesus, Habermas and Licona). Christianity is the most historically testable religion, and it has an excellent track record of having passed such tests.

History, guided toward its God-glorifying purposes, is the meaningfully related sequence of events in the lives of all people. History, as a reliable discipline that discovers the past, is at home within a Christian worldview. Historical research, in turn, helps justify key Christian truth claims, especially Jesus's miraculous resurrection. In contrast, evolutionary naturalism is incapable of supporting rationality and historical meaning. The failure of naturalism is itself part of God's triumphal story—history.

MICHAEL N. KEAS

17 But they continued to sin against him, rebelling in the desert against the Most High. †
18 They deliberately † tested God, demanding the food they craved. † 19 They spoke against God, saying, "Is God able to provide food in the wilderness?
20 Look! He struck the rock and water gushed out; torrents overflowed. †
But can he also provide bread or furnish meat for his people? " † 21 Therefore, the LORD heard and became furious; then fire broke out against Jacob,
and anger flared up against Israel †
22 because they did not believe God or rely on his salvation. †
23 He gave a command to the clouds above and opened the doors of heaven. †
24 He rained manna for them to eat; he gave them grain from heaven. †
25 People † ate the bread of angels. †
He sent them an abundant supply of food. † 26 He made the east wind blow in the skies and drove the south wind by his might. †
27 He rained meat on them like dust, and winged birds like the sand of the seas.
28 He made them fall in the camp, all around the tents. † 29 The people ate and were completely satisfied, for he gave them what they craved. † 30 Before they had turned from what they craved, while the food was still in their mouths, 31 God's anger flared up against them, and he killed some of their best men.
He struck down Israel's fit young men. †

32 Despite all this, they kept sinning and did not believe his wondrous works. †

33 He made their days end in futility, their years in sudden disaster. † 34 When he killed some of them, the rest began to seek him; they repented and searched for God. †
35 They remembered that God was their rock, the Most High God, their Redeemer. †
36 But they deceived him with their mouths, they lied to him with their tongues, †
37 their hearts were insincere toward him, and they were unfaithful to his covenant. †
38 Yet he was compassionate; he atoned for their iniquity and did not destroy them.
He often turned his anger aside and did not unleash † all his wrath. †
39 He remembered that they were only flesh, a wind that passes and does not return. †

40 How often they rebelled against him in the wilderness and grieved him in the desert.
41 They constantly tested God † and provoked the Holy One of Israel. †
42 They did not remember his power shown on the day he redeemed them from the foe, †
43 when he performed his miraculous signs in Egypt and his wonders in the territory of Zoan. †
44 He turned their rivers into blood, and they could not drink from their streams. † 45 He sent among them swarms of flies, † which fed on them,
and frogs, which devastated them. †
46 He gave their crops to the caterpillar and the fruit of their labor to the locust. †

47 He killed their vines with hail and their sycamore fig trees with a flood.
48 He handed over their livestock to hail and their cattle to lightning bolts. †
49 He sent his burning anger against them: fury, indignation, and calamity — a band of deadly messengers. † †
50 He cleared a path for his anger.
He did not spare them from death but delivered their lives to the plague. †
51 He struck all the firstborn † in Egypt, the first progeny of the tents of Ham. †
52 He led his people out like sheep and guided them like a flock in the wilderness. †
53 He led them safely, and they were not afraid; but the sea covered their enemies. †
54 He brought them to his holy territory, to the mountain his right hand acquired. † 55 He drove out nations before them. †
He apportioned their inheritance by lot and settled the tribes of Israel in their tents. †

56 But they rebelliously tested the Most High God, for they did not keep his decrees. †
57 They treacherously turned away like their fathers; they became warped like a faulty bow. †
58 They enraged him with their high places and provoked his jealousy with their carved images. †
59 God heard and became furious; he completely rejected Israel. †
60 He abandoned the tabernacle at Shiloh, the tent where he resided among mankind. †
61 He gave up his strength to captivity and his splendor to the hand of a foe. †
62 He surrendered his people to the sword because he was enraged with his heritage. †

63 Fire consumed his chosen young men, and his young women had no wedding songs. † †

64 His priests fell by the sword, and the widows could not lament. †

65 The Lord awoke as if from sleep, like a warrior from the effects of wine. †

66 He beat back his foes; he gave them lasting disgrace. †

67 He rejected the tent of Joseph and did not choose the tribe of Ephraim.

68 He chose instead the tribe of Judah, Mount Zion, which he loved. †

69 He built his sanctuary like the heights, like the earth that he established forever. †

70 He chose David his servant and took him from the sheep pens; †

71 he brought him from tending ewes to be shepherd over his people Jacob — over Israel, his inheritance. †

72 He shepherded them with a pure heart and guided them with his skillful hands. †

FAITH AMID CONFUSION

A psalm of Asaph. †

79 God, the nations have invaded your inheritance, desecrated your holy temple, and turned Jerusalem into ruins. †
2 They gave the corpses of your servants to the birds of the sky for food, the flesh of your faithful ones to the beasts of the earth. † 3 They poured out their blood like water all around Jerusalem, and there was no one to bury them. † 4 We have become an object of reproach to our neighbors, a source of mockery and ridicule to those around us. †

5 How long, LORD? Will you be angry forever?
Will your jealousy keep burning like fire? †
6 Pour out your wrath on the nations that don't acknowledge you, on the kingdoms that don't call on your name, †
7 for they have devoured Jacob and devastated his homeland. †
8 Do not hold past iniquities † against us; let your compassion come to us quickly, for we have become very weak. †

9 God of our salvation, help us † — for the glory of your name.
Rescue us and atone for our sins,
for your name's sake. †
10 Why should the nations ask, "Where is their God?" † Before our eyes,
let vengeance for the shed blood of your servants be known among the nations. † 11 Let the groans of the prisoners reach you; according to your great power, preserve those condemned to die. †

12 Pay back sevenfold to our neighbors † the reproach they have hurled at you, Lord. † 13 Then we, your people, the sheep of your pasture, † will thank you forever;

we will declare your praise to generation after generation. †

A PRAYER FOR RESTORATION

For the choir director: according to "The Lilies." † A testimony of Asaph. † A psalm.

80 Listen, Shepherd of Israel, who leads Joseph like a flock; † you who sit enthroned between the cherubim, †
2 shine † on Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh. † Rally your power and come to save us. †
3 Restore us, God; make your face shine on us, † so that we may be saved. †

4 LORD God of Armies, how long will you be angry with your people's prayers? †
5 You fed them the bread of tears and gave them a full measure † of tears to drink. †
6 You put us at odds with our neighbors; our enemies mock us. †
7 Restore us, God of Armies; make your face shine on us, so that we may be saved. †

8 You dug up a vine from Egypt; you drove out the nations and planted it. †
9 You cleared a place for it; it took root and filled the land. †
10 The mountains were covered by its shade, and the mighty cedars † with its branches. †

11 It sent out sprouts toward the Sea † and shoots toward the River. † †

12 Why have you broken down its walls so that all who pass by pick its fruit? †
13 Boars from the forest tear at it and creatures of the field feed on it. †
14 Return, God of Armies. † Look down from heaven and see;
take care of this vine,
15 the root † your right hand planted, the son † that you made strong for yourself. †
16 It was cut down and burned; they † perish at the rebuke of your countenance. †
17 Let your hand be with the man at your right hand, with the son of man you have made strong for yourself. †
18 Then we will not turn away from you; revive us, and we will call on your name. † 19 Restore us, LORD, God of Armies; † make your face shine on us, so that we may be saved. †

A CALL TO OBEDIENCE

For the choir director: on the Gittith. Of Asaph. †

81 Sing for joy to God our strength; shout in triumph to the God of Jacob. †
2 Lift up a song — play the tambourine, the melodious lyre, and the harp. † 3 Blow the horn on the day of our feasts † during the new moon †

and during the full moon.

4 For this is a statute for Israel, an ordinance of the God of Jacob. †

5 He set it up as a decree for Joseph when he went throughout † the land of Egypt. †

I heard an unfamiliar language:

6 "I relieved his shoulder from the burden; his hands were freed from carrying the basket. †

7 You called out in distress, and I rescued you; I answered you from the thundercloud. †

I tested you at the Waters of Meribah. †

Selah 8 Listen, my people, and I will admonish you.

Israel, if you would only listen to me! †

9 There must not be a strange god among you; you must not bow down to a foreign god. †

10 I am the LORD your God, who brought you up from the land of Egypt. †

Open your mouth wide, and I will fill it. †

11 "But my people did not listen to my voice; Israel did not obey me. †

12 So I gave them over to their stubborn hearts to follow their own plans. †

13 If only my people would listen to me and Israel would follow my ways, †

14 I would quickly subdue their enemies and turn my hand against their foes." †

15 Those who hate the LORD would cower to him; † their doom would last forever. †

16 But he would feed Israel † with the best wheat.

"I would satisfy you with honey from the rock." †

A PLEA FOR RIGHTEOUS JUDGMENT

A psalm of Asaph. †

82 God stands in the divine assembly; he pronounces judgment among the gods: † †

2 "How long will you judge unjustly and show partiality to the wicked? †
Selah 3 Provide justice for the needy and the fatherless; uphold the rights of the oppressed and the destitute. †

4 Rescue the poor and needy; save them from the power of the wicked." †

5 They do not know or understand; they wander in darkness. †
All the foundations of the earth are shaken. †

6 I said, "You are gods; † you are all sons of the Most High. † 7 However, you will die like humans and fall like any other ruler." †

PRAYER AGAINST ENEMIES

A song. A psalm of Asaph. †

83 God, do not keep silent.
Do not be deaf, God; do not be quiet. †
2 See how your enemies make an uproar; those who hate you have acted arrogantly. † †
3 They devise clever schemes against your people; they conspire against your treasured ones. †

4 They say, “Come, let us wipe them out as a nation so that Israel’s name will no longer be remembered.” † 5 For they have conspired with one mind; they form an alliance † against you †
— 6 the tents of Edom and the Ishmaelites, †
Moab and the Hagrites, †
7 Gebal, Ammon, and Amalek, †
Philistia with the inhabitants of Tyre. †
8 Even Assyria has joined them; they lend support † to the sons of Lot. † †
Selah

9 Deal with them as you did with Midian, † as you did with Sisera and Jabin at the Kishon River. †
10 They were destroyed at En-dor; they became manure for the ground. † 11 Make their nobles like Oreb and Zeeb, † and all their tribal leaders like Zebah and Zalmunna, †
12 who said, “Let us seize God’s pastures for ourselves.” †

13 Make them like tumbleweed, my God, like straw before the wind. †
14 As fire burns a forest, as a flame blazes through mountains, †
15 so pursue them with your tempest and terrify them with your storm. †
16 Cover their faces with shame so that they will seek your name, LORD. †
17 Let them be put to shame and terrified forever; let them perish in disgrace. † 18 May they know that you alone — whose name is the LORD — are the Most High over the whole earth. †

LONGING FOR GOD’S HOUSE

For the choir director: on the Gittith. † A psalm of the sons of Korah.

84 2 How lovely is your dwelling place, LORD of Armies. †
I long and yearn for the courts of the LORD; my heart and flesh cry out for † the living God. †

3 Even a sparrow finds a home, and a swallow, a nest for herself where she places her young — near your altars, LORD of Armies, my King and my God. †
4 How happy are those who reside in your house, who praise you continually. †
Selah

5 Happy are the people whose strength is in you, whose hearts are set on pilgrimage. † 6 As they pass through the Valley of Baca, † they make it a source of springwater;
even the autumn rain will cover it with blessings. † †
7 They go from strength to strength; each appears before God in Zion. †

8 LORD God of Armies, hear my prayer; listen, God of Jacob. † Selah 9 Consider our shield, † God; † look on the face of your anointed one. †

10 Better a day in your courts than a thousand anywhere else.
I would rather stand at the threshold of the house of my God than live in the tents of wicked people. †

from those who live with integrity. †

RESTORATION OF FAVOR

For the choir director. A psalm of the sons of Korah.

85 LORD, you showed favor to your land; † you restored the fortunes of Jacob. † †
2 You forgave your people's guilt; you covered all their sin. †
Selah 3 You withdrew all your fury; you turned from your burning anger. †

4 Return to us, God of our salvation, and abandon your displeasure with us. †
5 Will you be angry with us forever?
Will you prolong your anger for all generations? †
6 Will you not revive us again so that your people may rejoice in you? †
7 Show us your faithful love, LORD, and give us your salvation. †

8 I will listen to what God will say; surely the LORD will declare peace to his people, his faithful ones, and not let them go back to foolish ways. †
9 His salvation is very near those who fear him, so that glory may dwell in our land. †

10 Faithful love and truth will join together; righteousness and peace will embrace. †
11 Truth will spring up from the earth, and righteousness will look down from heaven. †
12 Also, the LORD will provide what is good, and our land will yield its crops. †
13 Righteousness will go before him to prepare the way for his steps. †

LAMENT AND PETITION

A prayer of David.

86 Listen, LORD, and answer me, for I am poor and needy. †
2 Protect my life, for I am faithful. †
You are my God; save your servant who trusts in you. †
3 Be gracious to me, Lord, for I call to you all day long. †
4 Bring joy to your servant's life, because I appeal to you, Lord. †

5 For you, Lord, are kind and ready to forgive, † abounding in faithful love to all who call on you. †
6 LORD, hear my prayer; listen to my plea for mercy. †
7 I call on you in the day of my distress, for you will answer me. †

8 Lord, there is no one like you among the gods, and there are no works like yours. †
9 All the nations you have made will come and bow down before you, Lord, and will honor your name. †
10 For you are great and perform wonders; you alone are God. †

11 Teach me your way, LORD, and I will live by your truth.
Give me an undivided mind to fear your name. †
12 I will praise you with all my heart, Lord my God, and will honor your name forever. †
13 For your faithful love for me is great, and you rescue my life from the depths of Sheol. †

14 God, arrogant people have attacked me; a gang of ruthless men intends to kill me.
They do not let you guide them. † †

15 But you, Lord, are a compassionate and gracious God, slow to anger and abounding in faithful love and truth. †
16 Turn to me and be gracious to me.
Give your strength to your servant;
save the son of your female servant. †
17 Show me a sign of your goodness; my enemies will see and be put to shame because you, LORD, have helped and comforted me. †

ZION, THE CITY OF GOD

A psalm of the sons of Korah. A song.

87 The city he founded † is on the holy mountains. †
2 The LORD loves Zion's city gates more than all the dwellings of Jacob. †
3 Glorious things are said about you, city of God. †

A CRY OF DESPERATION

A song. A psalm of the sons of Korah. For the choir director: according to Mahalath Leannoth. A Maskil of Heman the Ezrahite. †

88 LORD, God of my salvation, I cry out before you day and night. †
2 May my prayer reach your presence; listen to my cry. †

3 For I have had enough troubles, and my life is near Sheol. †
4 I am counted among those going down to the Pit. †
I am like a man without strength, †
5 abandoned † among the dead.
I am like the slain lying in the grave, † whom you no longer remember, and who are cut off from your care. † †

6 You have put me in the lowest part of the Pit, in the darkest places, in the depths. †
7 Your wrath weighs heavily on me; † you have overwhelmed me with all your waves. †
Selah 8 You have distanced my friends from me; you have made me repulsive to them. †

I am shut in and cannot go out.
9 My eyes are worn out from crying. †
LORD, I cry out to you all day long; †
I spread out my hands to you. †

10 Do you work wonders for the dead?
Do departed spirits rise up to praise you? †
Selah 11 Will your faithful love be declared in the grave, your faithfulness in Abaddon? †

12 Will your wonders be known in the darkness or your righteousness in the land of oblivion? †

13 But I call to you for help, LORD; in the morning my prayer meets you. †

14 LORD, why do you reject me? †

Why do you hide your face from me? †

15 From my youth, I have been suffering and near death.

I suffer your horrors; I am desperate. †

16 Your wrath sweeps over me; your terrors destroy me. †

17 They surround me like water all day long; they close in on me from every side. †

18 You have distanced loved one and neighbor from me; darkness is my only friend. † †

PERPLEXITY ABOUT GOD'S PROMISES

A Maskil of Ethan the Ezrahite. †

89 I will sing about the LORD's faithful love forever; †
I will proclaim your faithfulness to all generations with my mouth. †

2 For I will declare, "Faithful love is built up forever;

you establish your faithfulness in the heavens." †

3 The LORD said, "I have made a covenant with my chosen one; I have sworn an oath to David my servant: 4 'I will establish your offspring forever and build up your throne for all generations.' " †

Selah

5 LORD, the heavens praise your wonders † — your faithfulness also — in the assembly of the holy ones. †
6 For who in the skies can compare with the LORD?
Who among the heavenly beings † is like the LORD? †
7 God is greatly feared in the council of the holy ones, more awe-inspiring than † all who surround him. †
8 LORD God of Armies, who is strong like you, LORD? †
Your faithfulness surrounds you.
9 You rule the raging sea; when its waves surge, you still them. † 10 You crushed Rahab like one who is slain; †
you scattered your enemies with your powerful arm. † 11 The heavens are yours; the earth also is yours.
The world and everything in it — you founded them. †
12 North and south — you created them. †
Tabor and Hermon shout for joy at your name. † 13 You have a mighty arm; your hand is powerful; your right hand is lifted high. † 14 Righteousness and justice are the foundation of your throne; † faithful love and truth go before you. † 15 Happy are the people who know the joyful shout; †
LORD, they walk in the light from your face. †
16 They rejoice in your name all day long, and they are exalted by your righteousness. † 17 For you are their magnificent strength; † by your favor our horn is exalted. † 18 Surely our shield † belongs to the LORD, our king to the Holy One of Israel. †

19 You once spoke in a vision to your faithful ones and said: “I have granted help to a warrior; I have exalted one chosen † from the people. †
20 I have found David my servant; I have anointed him with my sacred oil. †

21 My hand will always be with him, and my arm will strengthen him. †
22 The enemy will not oppress † him; the wicked will not afflict him. †
23 I will crush his foes before him and strike those who hate him. †
24 My faithfulness and love will be with him, and through my name his horn will be exalted. † 25 I will extend his power to the sea and his right hand to the rivers. † 26 He will call to me, ‘You are my Father, † my God, the rock of my salvation.’ †
27 I will also make him my firstborn, greatest of the kings of the earth. †
28 I will always preserve my faithful love for him, and my covenant with him will endure. †
29 I will establish his line forever, his throne as long as heaven lasts. † †
30 If his sons abandon my instruction and do not live by my ordinances, †
31 if they dishonor my statutes and do not keep my commands, † 32 then I will call their rebellion to account with the rod, their iniquity with blows. †
33 But I will not withdraw my faithful love from him or betray my faithfulness. †
34 I will not violate my covenant or change what my lips have said. †
35 Once and for all I have sworn an oath by my holiness;
I will not lie to David. †
36 His offspring will continue forever, his throne like the sun before me, †
37 like the moon, established forever, a faithful witness in the sky.” †

Selah

38 But you have spurned and rejected him; you have become enraged with your anointed. †
39 You have repudiated the covenant with your servant; you have completely dishonored his crown. † †

40 You have broken down all his walls; you have reduced his fortified cities to ruins. †
41 All who pass by plunder him; † he has become an object of ridicule to his neighbors. † 42 You have lifted high the right hand of his foes; you have made all his enemies rejoice. †
43 You have also turned back his sharp sword and have not let him stand in battle. †
44 You have made his splendor † cease and have overturned his throne. †
45 You have shortened the days of his youth; you have covered him with shame. †

Selah

46 How long, LORD? Will you hide forever?
Will your anger keep burning like fire? † 47 Remember how short my life is.
Have you created everyone for nothing? †
48 What courageous person can live and never see death?
Who can save himself from the power of Sheol? † Selah 49 Lord, where are the former acts of your faithful love that you swore to David in your faithfulness? †

50 Remember, Lord, the ridicule against your servants — in my heart I carry abuse from all the peoples — 51 how your enemies have ridiculed, LORD, how they have ridiculed every step of your anointed. †

52 Blessed be the LORD forever.
Amen and amen. †

BOOK IV (Psalms 90–106)

ETERNAL GOD AND MORTAL MAN

A prayer of Moses, the man of God.

90 Lord, you have been our refuge † in every generation. †
2 Before the mountains were born, before you gave birth to the earth and the world, from eternity to eternity, you are God. †

3 You return mankind to the dust, saying, “Return, descendants of Adam.” † 4 For in your sight a thousand years are like yesterday that passes by, like a few hours of the night. †
5 You end their lives; † they sleep. †
They are like grass that grows in the morning — 6 in the morning it sprouts and grows; by evening it withers and dries up. †

7 For we are consumed by your anger; we are terrified by your wrath. †
8 You have set our iniquities before you, our secret sins in the light of your presence. †
9 For all our days ebb away under your wrath; we end our years like a sigh. †
10 Our lives last † seventy years or, if we are strong, eighty years.
Even the best of them are † struggle and sorrow; indeed, they pass quickly and we fly away. †

11 Who understands the power of your anger?
Your wrath matches the fear that is due you. † 12 Teach us to number our days carefully so that we may develop wisdom in our hearts. † †

13 LORD — how long?
Turn and have compassion on your servants. †
14 Satisfy us in the morning with your faithful love so that we may shout with joy and be glad all our days. † 15 Make us rejoice for as many days as you have humbled us, for as many years as we have seen adversity. † 16 Let your work be seen by your servants, and your splendor by their children. †
17 Let the favor of the Lord our God be on us; establish for us the work of our hands — establish the work of our hands! †

THE PROTECTION OF THE MOST HIGH

91 The one who lives under the protection of the Most High dwells in the shadow of the Almighty. †

2 I will say † concerning the LORD, who is my refuge and my fortress, my God in whom I trust: †
3 He himself will rescue you from the bird trap, † from the destructive plague.
4 He will cover you with his feathers; you will take refuge under his wings. †
His faithfulness will be a protective shield. †
5 You will not fear the terror of the night, the arrow that flies by day, †

6 the plague that stalks in darkness, or the pestilence that ravages at noon. †
7 Though a thousand fall at your side and ten thousand at your right hand, the pestilence will not reach you. † 8 You will only see it with your eyes and witness the punishment of the wicked. †

9 Because you have made the LORD — my refuge, † the Most High — your dwelling place, †
10 no harm will come to you; no plague will come near your tent. † 11 For he will give his angels orders concerning you, to protect you in all your ways. †
12 They will support you with their hands so that you will not strike your foot against a stone. †
13 You will tread on the lion and the cobra; you will trample the young lion and the serpent. †

14 Because he has his heart set on me, I will deliver him;
I will protect him because he knows my name. †
15 When he calls out to me, I will answer him; I will be with him in trouble.
I will rescue him and give him honor. †
16 I will satisfy him with a long life † and show him my salvation. †

GOD'S LOVE AND FAITHFULNESS

A psalm. A song for the Sabbath day.

92 It is good to give thanks to the LORD, to sing praise to your name, Most High, †

2 to declare your faithful love in the morning and your faithfulness at night, †
3 with a ten-stringed harp † and the music of a lyre. †

4 For you have made me rejoice, LORD, by what you have done;
I will shout for joy
because of the works of your hands. †
5 How magnificent are your works, LORD, how profound your thoughts! †
6 A stupid person does not know, a fool does not understand this: † 7 though the wicked sprout like grass and all evildoers flourish, they will be eternally destroyed. †
8 But you, LORD, are exalted forever. †
9 For indeed, LORD, your enemies — indeed, your enemies will perish; all evildoers will be scattered. † 10 You have lifted up my horn † like that of a wild ox;
I have been anointed † with the finest oil. † 11 My eyes look at my enemies; when evildoers rise against me, my ears hear them. †

12 The righteous thrive like a palm tree and grow like a cedar tree in Lebanon. †
13 Planted in the house of the LORD, they thrive in the courts of our God. †
14 They will still bear fruit in old age, healthy and green, † 15 to declare: "The LORD is just; he is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him." †

GOD'S ETERNAL REIGN

93 The LORD reigns! He is robed in majesty; the LORD is robed, enveloped in strength.
The world is firmly established;
it cannot be shaken. †
2 Your throne has been established from the beginning; † you are from eternity. †
3 The floods have lifted up, LORD, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their pounding waves. †
4 Greater than the roar of a huge torrent — the mighty breakers of the sea — the LORD on high is majestic. †

5 LORD, your testimonies are completely reliable; † holiness adorns your house for all the days to come. †

THE JUST JUDGE

94 LORD, God of vengeance — God of vengeance, shine! †
2 Rise up, Judge of the earth; repay the proud what they deserve. †
3 LORD, how long will the wicked — how long will the wicked celebrate? †

4 They pour out arrogant words; all the evildoers boast. †
5 LORD, they crush your people; they oppress your heritage. †
6 They kill the widow and the resident alien and murder the fatherless. †
7 They say, “The LORD doesn’t see it.
The God of Jacob doesn’t pay attention.” †

8 Pay attention, you stupid people!
Fools, when will you be wise? †
9 Can the one who shaped the ear not hear, the one who formed the eye not see?
†

10 The one who instructs nations, the one who teaches mankind knowledge — does he not discipline? †
11 The LORD knows the thoughts of mankind; they are futile. †

12 LORD, how happy is anyone you discipline and teach from your law †
13 to give him relief from troubled times until a pit is dug for the wicked. †
14 The LORD will not leave his people or abandon his heritage, †
15 for the administration of justice will again be righteous, and all the upright in heart will follow † it. †

16 Who stands up for me against the wicked?
Who takes a stand for me against evildoers? † 17 If the LORD had not been my helper, I would soon rest in the silence of death. †
18 If I say, "My foot is slipping," your faithful love will support me, LORD. †
19 When I am filled with cares, your comfort brings me joy. †

20 Can a corrupt throne be your ally, a throne that makes evil laws? †
21 They band together against the life of the righteous and condemn the innocent to death. †
22 But the LORD is my refuge; my God is the rock of my protection. †
23 He will pay them back for their sins and destroy them for their evil.
The LORD our God will destroy them. †

WORSHIP AND WARNING

95 Come, let us shout joyfully to the LORD, shout triumphantly to the rock of our salvation! †
2 Let us enter his presence with thanksgiving; let us shout triumphantly to him in song. †

3 For the LORD is a great God, a great King above all gods. †
4 The depths of the earth are in his hand, and the mountain peaks are his. †
5 The sea is his; he made it.
His hands formed the dry land. †

6 Come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the LORD our Maker. †
7 For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture, the sheep under his care. † †

Today, if you hear his voice: †
8 Do not harden your hearts as at Meribah, as on that day at Massah in the wilderness †
9 where your fathers tested me; they tried me, though they had seen what I did. † 10 For forty years I was disgusted with that generation; I said, "They are a people whose hearts go astray; they do not know my ways." † 11 So I swore in my anger, "They will not enter my rest." †

KING OF THE EARTH

A BIBLICAL VIEW OF THE NATIONS

NATIONS

In American sports culture a team's fan base is often described as a "nation." Websites and apparel are designed for the "Yankees Nation," the "Aggie Nation," and so on. The use of the word nation in this respect refers to something larger than just the fans that attend games or live in proximity to their team's home stadium. These so-called nations consist of all people who share a common bond of fanatic interest in a team, regardless of any geographical or ethnic boundaries. While they exist in greatest number in the region surrounding the team's headquarters, members of the team's "nation" can exist globally and can join other members in enthusiastic support.

When considering a biblical view of the nations, an American sports understanding of the term proves helpful. Within the Bible the word nation is often used to describe political entities defined by geographic boundaries that have kings or rulers. For example, Deuteronomy 7:1 lists "the Hethites, Girgashites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites and Jebusites" as seven nations "more numerous and powerful" than Israel. Additionally, the term nations is often used as a collective that describes all groups of people outside of Israel; this large and diverse group is also known by the Latin term Gentiles (Ac 10:45). Taking the collective non-Israel use further, nations is also used to describe peoples identified by ethnic commonalities such as language or customs. In the covenant God makes with Abraham (Gn 18:18), he indicates "all the nations of the earth" will be blessed through the nation that will descend from Abraham. These people are also described as "families of the earth" (Gn 12:3, KJV) and "all the families of the nations" (Ps 22:27). These phrases reflect a corporate emphasis on non-Israelites in the Bible as opposed to a mere individual focus.

THE NATIONS IN THE OLD TESTAMENT

The nations were first created when God broke up a unified and proud human race, all descended from Adam and Eve and then from Noah's family, during their construction of the tower of Babel (Gn 11). Previously having one language, and thus possessing the ability to enforce their will on one another and perfect their rebellion against God, the people were dispersed throughout the earth due to the fact that God confused their tongues. It was at the time that he gave the people distinct languages so that they would be forced to separate from one another and gather together in new communities—each with its own language. Genesis 10 lists Noah's descendants, recognizing the dispersion recorded in the following chapter. It calls the ethnic groups "nations" (10:5).

The nations, both Jewish and Gentile, are central entities in God's plan to display his glory and the work of salvation and judgment. The nation of Israel is called to declare the glory of God among the nations (Ps 96:3), and the psalmist calls on God to "let the nations rejoice and shout for joy" at his work in the world (67:4). God is sovereign over all nations (103:19), and as a part of his covenant plan brought forth from Abraham, God gave Israel to be "a light for the nations" (Is 49:6). God judges all nations (49:24-27) and provides salvation for them (2:2-4).

THE GOSPEL FOR THE NATIONS

Into the nation of Israel God sent his Son, Jesus Christ, as Messiah to "suffer and rise from the dead the third day, [that] repentance for forgiveness of sins would be proclaimed in his name to all the nations" (Lk 24:46b-47). After his resurrection and before his ascension to heaven, the Messiah commanded his followers to "make disciples of all nations" (Mt 28:19). This message of salvation first went forth from Jerusalem (Ac 1:8).

It is the commission of Christian churches to continue the task of taking the message of God's plan of salvation (Rm 10:14-15) to those nations who have not heard (15:21). Jesus Christ is the hope of all nations (15:12), and from the nations he will gather his people (Jn 10:16). This message will be proclaimed by his followers "to all nations" until the end of the world (Mt 24:14). At that time, the Messiah will return to the earth and all nations will see God's glory (Is 52:10). They will submit to his rule and reign (Php 2:10-11). People from every nation will worship him (Rv 7:9).

Regardless of ethnicity and culture, there is ultimately no distinction between Jew or Gentile in Christ (Gl 3:28). In him, God has made Jew and Gentile "one new man" and "fellow citizens" together (Eph 2:15,19). As the body of Christ is comprised of believers from many nations (Rv 5:9), one's citizenship is permanently in heaven (Php 3:20). This should not discourage temporal patriotism or appropriate stewardship of civic service as earthly citizens of nations; rather, it should serve as a warning against an ethnocentrism that hinders the missionary task. It should show us the folly of racial or ethnic prejudice of any kind. To hold such biases is to position one's self squarely against the revealed will of God, who has created all people and all nations and has offered salvation to everyone.

The story of Jonah illustrates one problem caused when we prioritize one ethnic group over another. When God commanded the Israelite prophet to go to Assyrian Nineveh and "preach against it," Jonah instead boarded a ship and attempted to go to Tarshish (Jnh 1:2–3). So seriously did God take Jonah's disobedience that he sent "a great storm" to threaten the ship and its crew, and he relented only when Jonah was tossed overboard by the reluctant sailors (Jnh 1:4-15). What was Jonah's motive for shirking God's command? He explains it in a prayer: "I knew that you are a gracious and compassionate God, slow to anger, abounding in faithful love, and one who relents from sending disaster" (Jnh 4:2). Likely because he despised the military might and strong arm tendencies of Assyria, Jonah preferred to see God's wrath fall on Nineveh rather than seeing God's mercy extend to its people. This manner of viewing the nations is self-centered and does not reflect awareness that God is Lord of all peoples and offers them mercy through faith-based repentance.

ALLEGIANCE TO KING JESUS

When one remembers that to God "the nations are like a drop in a bucket" (Is 40:15) and that he has the power both to make them great and to destroy them (Jb 12:23), it is clear that allegiance to any earthly nation should not supersede allegiance to the Ruler of nations (Ps 22:28). Allegiance to him is our primary and lasting citizenship. Through faith in Christ we are the nation of God, a kingdom drawn from all earthly nations and ethnicities (cp. Rv 7:9-10). It should be our great joy and high priority to reach both next door and overseas to spread the message of eternal hope in the Son whom God sent to pay our sin-debt on the cross and to defeat death in his resurrection.

A psalm of David.

2 I will pay attention to the way of integrity.

AFFLICTION IN LIGHT OF ETERNITY

A prayer of a suffering person who is weak and pours out his lament before the LORD. †

102 LORD, hear my prayer; let my cry for help come before you. †
2 Do not hide your face from me in my day of trouble.
Listen closely to me;
answer me quickly when I call. †

3 For my days vanish like smoke, and my bones burn like a furnace. †

4 My heart is suffering, withered like grass; †
I even forget to eat my food. †
5 Because of the sound of my groaning, my flesh sticks to my bones. †
6 I am like an eagle owl, like a little owl among the ruins. †
7 I stay awake; †
I am like a solitary bird on a roof.
8 My enemies taunt me all day long; they ridicule and use my name as a curse. †
9 I eat ashes like bread and mingle my drinks with tears †
10 because of your indignation and wrath; for you have picked me up and thrown me aside. †
11 My days are like a lengthening shadow, and I wither away like grass. †

12 But you, LORD, are enthroned forever; † your fame endures to all generations. †
13 You will rise up and have compassion on Zion, for it is time to show favor to her — the appointed time has come. †
14 For your servants take delight in its stones and favor its dust. †

15 Then the nations will fear the name of the LORD, and all the kings of the earth your glory, †
16 for the LORD will rebuild Zion; he will appear in his glory. †
17 He will pay attention to the prayer of the destitute and will not despise their prayer. †

18 This will be written for a later generation, and a people who have not yet been created will praise the LORD: †
19 He looked down from his holy heights — the LORD gazed out from heaven to earth † — 20 to hear a prisoner's groaning, to set free those condemned to die, † †
21 so that they might declare the name of the LORD in Zion and his praise in Jerusalem, †

22 when peoples and kingdoms are assembled to serve the LORD. †

23 He has broken my † strength in midcourse; he has shortened my days. †
24 I say: "My God, do not take me in the middle of my life! †
Your years continue through all generations. †
25 Long ago you established the earth, and the heavens are the work of your hands. †
26 They will perish, but you will endure; all of them will wear out like clothing.
You will change them like a garment, and they will pass away. †
27 But you are the same, and your years will never end. †
28 Your servants' children will dwell securely, and their offspring will be established before you." †

GOD THE CREATOR

104 My soul, bless the LORD!
LORD my God, you are very great; you are clothed with majesty and splendor. †
2 He wraps himself in light as if it were a robe, spreading out the sky like a canopy, †
3 laying the beams of his palace on the waters above, † making the clouds his chariot, † walking on the wings of the wind, † 4 and making the winds his messengers, † flames of fire his servants. †

5 He established the earth on its foundations; it will never be shaken. † 6 You covered it with the deep as if it were a garment; the water stood above the mountains. † 7 At your rebuke the water fled; at the sound of your thunder they hurried away † — 8 mountains rose and valleys sank † — to the place you established for them. †
9 You set a boundary they cannot cross; they will never cover the earth again. †

10 He causes the springs to gush into the valleys; they flow between the mountains. †
11 They supply water for every wild beast; the wild donkeys quench their thirst. †
12 The birds of the sky live beside the springs; they make their voices heard among the foliage. †

13 He waters the mountains from his palace; the earth is satisfied by the fruit of your labor. †

14 He causes grass to grow for the livestock and provides crops for man to cultivate, producing food from the earth, † 15 wine that makes human hearts glad — making his face shine with oil — and bread that sustains human hearts. †

16 The trees of the LORD flourish, † the cedars of Lebanon that he planted. †
17 There the birds make their nests; storks make their homes in the pine trees. † 18 The high mountains are for the wild goats; the cliffs are a refuge for hyraxes. †

19 He made the moon to mark the † festivals; † the sun knows when to set. †
20 You bring darkness, and it becomes night, when all the forest animals stir. †
21 The young lions roar for their prey and seek their food from God. †
22 The sun rises; they go back and lie down in their dens. †
23 Man goes out to his work and to his labor until evening. †

24 How countless are your works, LORD!
In wisdom you have made them all;
the earth is full of your creatures. † †
25 Here is the sea, vast and wide, teeming with creatures beyond number — living things both large and small. † 26 There the ships move about, and Leviathan, which you formed to play there. †

27 All of them wait for you to give them their food at the right time. † 28 When you give it to them, they gather it;
when you open your hand,

they are satisfied with good things. † 29 When you hide your face, they are terrified;
when you take away their breath,
they die and return to the dust. † 30 When you send your breath, † they are created,
and you renew the surface of the ground. †

31 May the glory of the LORD endure forever; may the LORD rejoice in his works. † 32 He looks at the earth, and it trembles; he touches the mountains, and they pour out smoke. †
33 I will sing to the LORD all my life; I will sing praise to my God while I live. †
34 May my meditation be pleasing to him; I will rejoice in the LORD. †
35 May sinners vanish from the earth and wicked people be no more. †
My soul, bless the LORD!
Hallelujah!

GOD'S FAITHFULNESS TO HIS PEOPLE

105 Give thanks to the LORD, call on his name; proclaim his deeds among the peoples. †
2 Sing to him, sing praise to him; tell about all his wondrous works! †
3 Honor his holy name; let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice. †
4 Seek the LORD and his strength; seek his face always. †

5 Remember the wondrous works he has done, his wonders, and the judgments he has pronounced, † † 6 you offspring of Abraham his servant, Jacob's descendants — his chosen ones. †

7 He is the LORD our God; his judgments govern the whole earth. †
8 He remembers his covenant forever, the promise he ordained for a thousand generations † — 9 the covenant he made with Abraham, swore † to Isaac, †
10 and confirmed to Jacob as a decree and to Israel as a permanent covenant: †
11 "I will give the land of Canaan to you as your inherited portion." †

12 When they were few in number, very few indeed, and resident aliens in Canaan, †
13 wandering from nation to nation and from one kingdom to another, †
14 he allowed no one to oppress them; he rebuked kings on their behalf: † 15 "Do not touch my anointed ones, † or harm my prophets." †

16 He called down famine against the land and destroyed the entire food supply. †
17 He had sent a man ahead of them — Joseph, who was sold as a slave. †
18 They hurt his feet with shackles; his neck was put in an iron collar. †
19 Until the time his prediction came true, the word of the LORD tested him. †
20 The king sent for him and released him; the ruler of peoples set him free. †
21 He made him master of his household, ruler over all his possessions † —
22 binding † his officials at will and instructing his elders. †

23 Then Israel went to Egypt; Jacob lived as an alien in the land of Ham. † † 24 The LORD † made his people very fruitful; he made them more numerous than their foes, †

25 whose hearts he turned to hate his people and to deal deceptively with his servants. †
26 He sent Moses his servant, and Aaron, whom he had chosen. †
27 They performed his miraculous signs among them, and wonders in the land of Ham. †
28 He sent darkness, and it became dark — for did they not defy his commands? †
29 He turned their water into blood and caused their fish to die. †
30 Their land was overrun with frogs, even in their royal chambers. †
31 He spoke, and insects came † — gnats throughout their country. †
32 He gave them hail for rain, and lightning throughout their land. †
33 He struck their vines and fig trees and shattered the trees of their territory. †
34 He spoke, and locusts came — young locusts without number.
35 They devoured all the vegetation in their land and consumed the produce of their land. †
36 He struck all the firstborn in their land, all their first progeny. †

37 Then he brought Israel out with silver and gold, and no one among his tribes stumbled. †
38 Egypt was glad when they left, for the dread of Israel † had fallen on them. †
39 He spread a cloud as a covering and gave a fire to light up the night. †
40 They asked, and he brought quail and satisfied them with bread from heaven. †
41 He opened a rock, and water gushed out; it flowed like a stream in the desert. †
42 For he remembered his holy promise to Abraham his servant. †
43 He brought his people out with rejoicing, his chosen ones with shouts of joy. † 44 He gave them the lands of the nations, and they inherited what other peoples had worked for. † 45 All this happened so that they might keep his statutes and obey his instructions. †

Hallelujah!

ISRAEL'S UNFAITHFULNESS TO GOD

106 Hallelujah!
Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; his faithful love endures forever. †

2 Who can declare the LORD's mighty acts or proclaim all the praise due him? †
3 How happy are those who uphold justice, who practice righteousness at all times. †

4 Remember me, LORD, when you show favor to your people. †
Come to me with your salvation
5 so that I may enjoy the prosperity of your chosen ones, rejoice in the joy of your nation,
and boast about your heritage. †

6 Both we and our fathers have sinned; we have done wrong and have acted wickedly. †
7 Our fathers in Egypt did not grasp the significance of your wondrous works or remember your many acts of faithful love; instead, they rebelled by the sea — the Red Sea. †
8 Yet he saved them for his name's sake, to make his power known. †

9 He rebuked the Red Sea, and it dried up; he led them through the depths as through a desert. †
10 He saved them from the power of the adversary; he redeemed them from the power of the enemy. †
11 Water covered their foes; not one of them remained. †
12 Then they believed his promises and sang his praise. †

13 They soon forgot his works and would not wait for his counsel. †
14 They were seized with craving in the wilderness and tested God in the desert. †
15 He gave them what they asked for, but sent a wasting disease among them. †

16 In the camp they were envious of Moses and of Aaron, the LORD's holy one. †
17 The earth opened up and swallowed Dathan; it covered the assembly of Abiram. †
18 Fire blazed throughout their assembly; flames consumed the wicked. †

19 At Horeb they made a calf and worshiped the cast metal image. † 20 They exchanged their glory † † for the image of a grass-eating ox. †
21 They forgot God their Savior, who did great things in Egypt, † 22 wondrous works in the land of Ham, † awe-inspiring acts at the Red Sea. † 23 So he said he would have destroyed them — if Moses his chosen one had not stood before him in the breach to turn his wrath away from destroying them. †

24 They despised the pleasant land and did not believe his promise. †
25 They grumbled in their tents and did not listen to the LORD. †
26 So he raised his hand against them with an oath that he would make them fall in the desert †

27 and would disperse their descendants †
among the nations,
scattering them throughout the lands. †

28 They aligned themselves with Baal of Peor and ate sacrifices offered to lifeless gods. † †
29 They angered the LORD with their deeds, and a plague broke out against them. †
30 But Phinehas stood up and intervened, and the plague was stopped. †
31 It was credited to him as righteousness throughout all generations to come. †

32 They angered the LORD at the Waters of Meribah, and Moses suffered † because of them; † 33 for they embittered his spirit, † and he spoke rashly with his lips. †

34 They did not destroy the peoples as the LORD had commanded them †
35 but mingled with the nations and adopted their ways. †
36 They served their idols, which became a snare to them. †
37 They sacrificed their sons and daughters to demons. † 38 They shed innocent blood — the blood of their sons and daughters whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan; so the land became polluted with blood. †
39 They defiled themselves by their actions and prostituted themselves by their deeds. †

40 Therefore the LORD's anger burned against his people, and he abhorred his own inheritance. †
41 He handed them over to the nations; those who hated them ruled over them. †
42 Their enemies oppressed them, and they were subdued under their power. †
43 He rescued them many times, but they continued to rebel deliberately and were beaten down by their iniquity. †

44 When he heard their cry, he took note of their distress, †
45 remembered his covenant with them, and relented according to the abundance of his faithful love. †
46 He caused them to be pitied before all their captors. †

47 Save us, LORD our God, and gather us from the nations, so that we may give thanks to your holy name and rejoice in your praise. †

48 Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting. †
Let all the people say, "Amen! "
Hallelujah! †

BOOK V (Psalms 107–150)

THANKSGIVING FOR GOD'S DELIVERANCE

107 Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; his faithful love endures forever. †
2 Let the redeemed of the LORD proclaim that he has redeemed them from the power of the foe †
3 and has gathered them from the lands — from the east and the west, from the north and the south. †

4 Some † wandered in the desolate wilderness, finding no way to a city where they could live. †
5 They were hungry and thirsty; their spirits failed † within them. †
6 Then they cried out to the LORD in their trouble; he rescued them from their distress. †
7 He led them by the right path to go to a city where they could live. †
8 Let them give thanks to the LORD for his faithful love and his wondrous works for all humanity. †
9 For he has satisfied the thirsty and filled the hungry with good things. †

10 Others sat in darkness and gloom † — prisoners in cruel chains † —
11 because they rebelled against God's commands and despised the counsel of the Most High. †
12 He broke their spirits † with hard labor; they stumbled, and there was no one to help. †
13 Then they cried out to the LORD in their trouble; he saved them from their distress. †
14 He brought them out of darkness and gloom and broke their chains apart. †
15 Let them give thanks to the LORD for his faithful love and his wondrous works for all humanity. †
16 For he has broken down the bronze gates and cut through the iron bars. †

17 Fools suffered affliction because of their rebellious ways and their iniquities. †
18 They loathed all food and came near the gates of death. †
19 Then they cried out to the LORD in their trouble; he saved them from their distress. †
20 He sent his word and healed them; he rescued them from the Pit. †
21 Let them give thanks to the LORD for his faithful love and his wondrous works for all humanity. †

22 Let them offer sacrifices of thanksgiving and announce his works with shouts of joy. †

23 Others went to sea in ships, conducting trade on the vast water. †
24 They saw the LORD's works, his wondrous works in the deep. †
25 He spoke and raised a stormy wind that stirred up the waves of the sea. † †
26 Rising up to the sky, sinking down to the depths, their courage † melting away in anguish, †
27 they reeled and staggered like a drunkard, and all their skill was useless. †
28 Then they cried out to the LORD in their trouble, and he brought them out of their distress. †
29 He stilled the storm to a whisper, and the waves of the sea † were hushed. †
30 They rejoiced when the waves † grew quiet.
Then he guided them to the harbor they longed for. † 31 Let them give thanks to the LORD for his faithful love and his wondrous works for all humanity. †
32 Let them exalt him in the assembly of the people and praise him in the council of the elders. †

33 He turns rivers into desert, springs into thirsty ground, †
34 and fruitful land into salty wasteland, because of the wickedness of its inhabitants. †
35 He turns a desert into a pool, dry land into springs. †
36 He causes the hungry to settle there, and they establish a city where they can live. †
37 They sow fields and plant vineyards that yield a fruitful harvest. † 38 He blesses them, and they multiply greatly; † he does not let their livestock decrease. †

39 When they are diminished and are humbled by cruel oppression and sorrow, † 40 he pours contempt on nobles † and makes them wander in a trackless wasteland. † 41 But he lifts the needy out of their suffering † and makes their families multiply like flocks. † 42 The upright see it and rejoice, † and all injustice shuts its mouth. †

43 Let whoever is wise pay attention to these things and consider the LORD's acts of faithful love. †

A PLEA FOR VICTORY

A song. A psalm of David.

108 My heart is confident, God; I will sing; I will sing praises with the whole of my being. † † 2 Wake up, harp and lyre!
I will wake up the dawn. †
3 I will praise you, LORD, among the peoples; I will sing praises to you
among the nations. †
4 For your faithful love is higher than the heavens, and your faithfulness reaches to the clouds. †
5 God, be exalted above the heavens, † and let your glory be over the whole earth. †

6 Save with your right hand and answer me so that those you love may be rescued. †

7 God has spoken in his sanctuary: †
"I will celebrate!
I will divide up Shechem. †
I will apportion the Valley of Succoth. †
8 Gilead is mine, Manasseh is mine, and Ephraim is my helmet; †
Judah is my scepter. †
9 Moab is my washbasin; †
I throw my sandal on Edom. †
I shout in triumph over Philistia." †

10 Who will bring me to the fortified city?
Who will lead me to Edom? †
11 God, haven't you rejected us?
God, you do not march out with our armies. †
12 Give us aid against the foe, for human help is worthless. † 13 With God we will perform valiantly; † he will trample our foes. †

PRAYER AGAINST AN ENEMY

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

109 God of my praise, do not be silent. †

2 For wicked and deceitful mouths open against me; they speak against me with lying tongues. †
3 They surround me with hateful words and attack me without cause. †

4 In return for my love they accuse me, but I continue to pray. † †
5 They repay me evil for good, and hatred for my love. †

6 Set a wicked person over him; let an accuser † stand at his right hand. †
7 When he is judged, let him be found guilty, and let his prayer be counted as sin. †
8 Let his days be few; let another take over his position. †
9 Let his children be fatherless and his wife a widow. †
10 Let his children wander as beggars, searching for food far † from their demolished homes. †
11 Let a creditor seize all he has; let strangers plunder what he has worked for. † 12 Let no one show him kindness, and let no one be gracious to his fatherless children. †
13 Let the line of his descendants be cut off; let their name be blotted out in the next generation. †
14 Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered before the LORD, † and do not let his mother's sin be blotted out. † 15 Let their sins † always remain before the LORD, and let him remove † all memory of them from the earth. †

16 For he did not think to show kindness, but pursued the suffering, needy, and brokenhearted in order to put them to death. †
17 He loved cursing — let it fall on him; he took no delight in blessing — let it be far from him. †
18 He wore cursing like his coat — let it enter his body like water and go into his bones like oil. †
19 Let it be like a robe he wraps around himself, like a belt he always wears. †
20 Let this be the LORD's payment to my accusers, to those who speak evil against me. †

21 But you, LORD, my Lord, deal kindly with me for your name's sake; †

because your faithful love is good, rescue me. † 22 For I am suffering and needy; † my heart is wounded within me. †
23 I fade away like a lengthening shadow; †
I am shaken off like a locust.
24 My knees are weak from fasting, and my body is emaciated. † †
25 I have become an object of ridicule to my accusers; †
when they see me, they shake their heads in scorn. †

26 Help me, LORD my God; save me according to your faithful love †
27 so they may know that this is your hand and that you, LORD, have done it. †
28 Though they curse, you will bless.
When they rise up, they will be put to shame, but your servant will rejoice. †
29 My accusers will be clothed with disgrace; they will wear their shame like a cloak. † 30 I will fervently thank the LORD with my mouth; I will praise him in the presence of many. † 31 For he stands at the right hand of the needy to save him from those who would condemn him. †

THE PRIESTLY KING

A psalm of David.

110 This is the declaration of the LORD to my Lord:
"Sit at my right hand

until I make your enemies your footstool.” †
2 The LORD will extend your mighty scepter from Zion.
Rule † over your surrounding † enemies. †
3 Your people will volunteer on your day of battle. † †
In holy splendor, from the womb of the dawn, the dew of your youth belongs to you. † † 4 The LORD has sworn an oath and will not take it back: “You are a priest forever according to the pattern of Melchizedek.” †

5 The Lord is at your right hand; he will crush kings on the day of his anger. †
6 He will judge the nations, heaping up corpses; † he will crush leaders over the entire world. † 7 He will drink from the brook by the road; † therefore, he will lift up his head. †

PRAISE FOR THE LORD’S WORKS

111 Hallelujah! †
I will praise the LORD with all my heart in the assembly of the upright and in the congregation. †

2 The LORD’s works are great, studied by all who delight in them. †
3 All that he does is splendid and majestic; † his righteousness endures forever. †
4 He has caused his wondrous works to be remembered. †
The LORD is gracious and compassionate. †
5 He has provided food for those who fear him; † he remembers his covenant forever. †

6 He has shown his people the power of his works by giving them the inheritance of the nations. † 7 The works of his hands are truth and justice; all his instructions are trustworthy. †
8 They are established forever and ever, enacted in truth and in uprightness. †
9 He has sent redemption to his people. †
He has ordained his covenant forever.
His name is holy and awe-inspiring. †

112 Hallelujah! †
Happy is the person who fears the LORD, taking great delight in his commands. †

2 His descendants will be powerful in the land; the generation of the upright will be blessed. †
3 Wealth and riches are in his house, †

7 He will not fear bad news; his heart is confident, trusting in the LORD. †
8 His heart is assured; he will not fear. †
In the end he will look in triumph on his foes. †
9 He distributes freely to the poor; his righteousness endures forever. †
His horn will be exalted in honor. †

GOD'S DELIVERANCE OF ISRAEL

114 When Israel came out of Egypt — the house of Jacob from a people who spoke a foreign language † — 2 Judah became his sanctuary, Israel, his dominion. †

3 The sea looked and fled; † the Jordan turned back. †
4 The mountains skipped like rams, the hills, like lambs. †
5 Why was it, sea, that you fled?
Jordan, that you turned back? †
6 Mountains, that you skipped like rams?
Hills, like lambs? † of Jacob, †

GLORY TO GOD ALONE

115 Not to us, LORD, not to us, but to your name give glory because of your faithful love, because of your truth. †
2 Why should the nations say, "Where is their God? " †
3 Our God is in heaven and does whatever he pleases. †

4 Their idols are silver and gold, made by human hands. †
5 They have mouths but cannot speak, eyes, but cannot see.
6 They have ears but cannot hear, noses, but cannot smell. †
7 They have hands but cannot feel, feet, but cannot walk. †
They cannot make a sound with their throats. †
8 Those who make them are † just like them, as are all who trust in them. †

9 Israel, † trust in the LORD! †
He is their help and shield. †
10 House of Aaron, trust in the LORD! †
He is their help and shield. †
11 You who fear the LORD, trust in the LORD! †
He is their help and shield.
12 The LORD remembers us and will bless us.
He will bless the house of Israel;
he will bless the house of Aaron; †
13 he will bless those who fear the LORD — small and great alike. †

14 May the LORD add to your numbers, both yours and your children's. † 15 May you be blessed by the LORD, the Maker of heaven and earth. † 16 The heavens are the LORD's, †
but the earth he has given to the human race. †
17 It is not the dead who praise the LORD, nor any of those descending into the silence of death. †
18 But we will bless the LORD, both now and forever. †
Hallelujah!

THANKS TO GOD FOR DELIVERANCE

116 I love the LORD because he has heard my appeal for mercy. †
2 Because he has turned his ear to me, I will call out to him as long as I live. †

3 The ropes of death were wrapped around me, and the torments of Sheol overcame me;

I encountered trouble and sorrow. †

4 Then I called on the name of the LORD: "LORD, save me! " †

5 The LORD is gracious and righteous; our God is compassionate. †

6 The LORD guards the inexperienced; I was helpless, and he saved me. †

7 Return to your rest, my soul, for the LORD has been good to you. †

8 For you, LORD, rescued me from death, my eyes from tears, my feet from stumbling. †

9 I will walk before the LORD in the land of the living. †

10 I believed, even when I said, "I am severely oppressed." †

11 In my alarm I said, "Everyone is a liar." †

12 How can I repay the LORD for all the good he has done for me? †

13 I will take the cup of salvation and call on the name of the LORD. †

14 I will fulfill my vows to the LORD in the presence of all his people. †

15 The death of his faithful ones is valuable in the LORD's sight. †

16 LORD, I am indeed your servant; I am your servant, the son of your female servant.
You have loosened my bonds. †

17 I will offer you a sacrifice of thanksgiving and call on the name of the LORD. †

18 I will fulfill my vows to the LORD in the presence of all his people, †

SPECIAL REVELATION IN SCRIPTURE

General revelation and special revelation are the two ways God has chosen to reveal himself to humanity. These terms have been used to delineate the extent and purpose of revelation. General revelation refers to the general truths that can be known about God through nature. Theologians use the term special revelation in reference to the belief in God's intentional intervention to make his mind and will available that would not be available through general revelation alone. The distinction between natural and special revelation has little to do with the source or origin of the revelation since both come from God. Instead, the distinction has to do with the means and goals of revelation.

Special revelation is addressed to humanity with a view to their redemption and ongoing relationship with God. And it is only by special revelation that one can learn how to live a godly life and thereby glorify him. "His divine power has given us everything required for life and godliness through the knowledge of him who called us by his own glory and goodness" (2Pt 1:3). The purpose of special revelation is the redemption of sinners and the magnification of God's glory through both his gracious act of salvation of believers and the just condemnation of those who reject him.

This level of knowledge is not universally available. Rather, it is given by God supernaturally to those who are born again by the Spirit of God (Jn 3:3). Paul says, "What no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no human heart has conceived—God has prepared these things for those who love him. Now God has revealed these things to us by the Spirit, since the Spirit searches everything, even the depths of God" (1Co 2:9-10).

Hebrews 1:1-3 provides a succinct outline of God's special revelation: "Long ago God spoke to the fathers by the prophets at different times and in different ways. In these last days, he has spoken to us by his Son. . . . The Son is the radiance of God's glory and the exact expression of his nature, sustaining all things by his powerful word."

God's special revelation came over the course of time and therefore can be rightfully described as "progressive revelation." Each of these revelations brought a better understanding of God to people. Each biblical writer added to the treasure of knowledge about our Creator. While revelation moved from that which was partial to that which is final, it was never from the imperfect to the perfect. At every point along the way, however, all that had been revealed was fully and equally inspired.

Throughout history, God has used different means to reveal his mind and message to mankind:

1. Special Manifestation. The Bible records God appearing many times in physical form (Gn 3:8; 18:1; Ex 3:1-4; 34:5-7). Such an appearance is known as a "theophany." When an angel takes a physical form, it is an "angelophany." Some scholars agree that the "angel of the LORD" a figure prominent in the Hebrew Scriptures, was the Lord Jesus in his preincarnate state (e.g., Gn 16:7-13; 22:15-18; 31:11-13; Jdg 6:11-23). To this may be added the testimony of Paul, who affirmed the actual presence of Christ as a sustaining companion of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai (1Co 10:4).
2. Direct Communication. Sometimes God spoke to people directly (Gn 2:16), through divinely revealed dreams (Gn 28:12; Nm 12:6; 1Kg 3:5; Dn 2), visions (Gn 15:1; Is 1:1; Ezk 8:3-4; Dn 7; Hab 1:1; Zch 1-6; 2Co 12:1-7), or divine announcements out of heaven (1Sm 3; Mt 3:17; 17:5; Jn 12:28).
3. Miraculous Demonstration. God is also able to interrupt and supersede the natural laws of nature to make his will or power known, as in the case of the use of the Urim and Thummim (Nm 27:21) or miracles, whether done directly by God—like sending hailstones and making the sun remain still in the sky (Jos 10:11-15)—or accomplished through a prophet like Elijah and Elisha (1Kg 17–18; 2Kg 2:9-14) or through the apostles (Ac 3:1-11).
4. Personal Incarnation. The ultimate form of special revelation is the person of Jesus Christ. Jesus affirmed, "All things have been entrusted to me by my Father. No one knows the Son except the Father, and no one knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son desires to reveal him" (Mt 11:27). The special revelation in Jesus came through his words (Jn 7:16-17), his person (14:7), and his works (5:17-19).
5. Divine Inspiration. Scripture is the written revelation of God and is the principle way by which God currently reveals himself to humans. As a result, it is the means by which all claims to truth should be evaluated.

The word inspiration also calls attention to the process by which the Holy Spirit superintended the production of Scripture. The term refers to that process by which an omnipotent God so guided the human authors of Scripture in the recording of his revelation so that the end product was the Word of God, exactly as God wanted to communicate it in the words of the original manuscripts.

Most evangelical Christians affirm both the infallibility and inerrancy of the Bible because God is its ultimate Author. Since the Bible is the inspired Word of God, and because God is incapable of inspiring falsehood, his Word is altogether trustworthy. Psalm 119:160 states, "The entirety of your word is truth, each of your righteous judgments endures forever." If an omnipotent God could take an imperfect person like Mary and incarnate a perfect living Word, Jesus, the Son of God, then that same omnipotent God can take a human author and produce a perfect written Word of God, the Bible, through the process of divine inspiration.

The best passages in the Bible about the Bible are found in 2 Peter 1:20-21 and 2 Timothy 3:16-17. The process of inspiration can be seen in the former: "Above all, you know this: No prophecy of Scripture comes from the prophet's own interpretation, because no prophecy ever came by the will of man; instead, men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit." The product of inspiration is best stated in the latter passage, 2 Timothy 3:16-17: "All Scripture is inspired by God and is profitable for teaching, for rebuking, for correcting, for training in righteousness, so that the man of God may be complete, equipped for every good work." Together these passages declare the divine origin of the Bible and its use for the adequate equipping for every work of service God desires or requires.

As the writer to the Hebrews points out, God's intention is to have all revelation find its ultimate fulfillment in his Son as seen in the complementary contrast and comparison between all previous revelation and that of Jesus Christ. In the incarnation we received the fullest expression of his Word. Jesus was and is the Word made flesh. (Jn 1:1,14); he spoke the words the Father taught him (12:49; 14:10), and he summed up his teaching ministry this way: "I have given them your word" (17:14).

BIBLICAL AUTHORITY

Biblical Christianity has always affirmed that Scripture is authoritative because it is God's Word written, the product of God's mighty action through the Word, Jesus, and by the Holy Spirit whereby human authors freely wrote exactly what God intended to be written and without error. Why has the church affirmed this view? What is meant by the inspiration and inerrancy of Scripture?

Christians have affirmed biblical authority because of Scripture's self-testimony. As one evaluates a worldview, it is crucial to begin with the specific claims of that worldview. Thus, if we are to evaluate Christianity we must begin with Scripture's self-attestation. We do not confer upon the Bible an authority alien to it. Rather, we let Scripture speak for itself. In doing this, we discover that it makes the staggering claim that it is God's Word written and is thus completely authoritative, sufficient, and reliable.

For example, 2 Timothy 3:16 describes OT Scripture as being "inspired by God" (an allusion to creation, where the sovereign Lord speaks the universe into being) and thus fully authoritative. So, in relation to his Word, the sovereign-personal triune God of the universe has spoken again and given us his Word through the agency of human authors (2Pt 1:20-21). And it is precisely because he stands behind his Word as Creator and Lord—the God who knows and plans all things (Eph 1:11), who cannot lie or change his mind (Nm 23:19; 1Sm 15:29; Heb 6:18)—that we have an authoritative Scripture.

Scripture's view of itself is not found in merely one or two texts; it is found throughout the entire canon. From the opening pages of the OT, we are presented with the eternal triune God who speaks with all authority (Gn 1:1–2:3). As he enters into covenant relationship with Israel, he gives them his Word, which is to believed and obeyed (Dt 5:22,32; 29:9; 30:15-16; Jos 1:7-8). As redemptive-history unfolds, the covenant-making and covenant-keeping God continues to disclose himself through the prophets. This ultimately reaches fulfillment in Christ (Heb 1:1-2).

In Christ—God the Son incarnate—God's final word is spoken (Jn 1:1-3,14-18). Our Lord Jesus not only fulfills the OT, but he also views it as God's Word—the standard by which we are to live and evaluate everything, alongside his own spoken words (e.g., Mt 4:4; 5:17-19; Jn 14:6; 10:35; cp. 2Tm 3:15-16). In this way, our Lord authenticates the OT as God's Word, and he prepares us for the writing of the NT through his apostles by the agency of the Holy Spirit (see Jn 16:5-15; Eph 2:20). This is why, as the NT Scripture is being written, NT authors already view their own writings as authoritative, parallel to OT Scripture (1Th 1:5; 2:13). Specifically one thinks of 1 Timothy 5:18 (which quotes from Dt 25:4 and Lk 10:7) and 2 Peter 3:16 (which refers to Paul's writings); these view NT writings as "Scripture."

In all these ways, Scripture views itself as supremely authoritative precisely because it is God's Word. What Scripture says, God says; what God says, Scripture says. To disbelieve or disobey any point of Scripture is to disbelieve or disobey God. The only proper response to God's Word is to trust and obey (Is 66:2).

It is crucial to affirm biblical authority because without it we would have no basis to affirm that the God of the Bible has spoken definitively and objectively. Without an authoritative and inerrant Scripture, we could hypothesize about God and the world, but none of our hypotheses would be properly grounded. Without biblical authority we have no foundation on which to justify our beliefs since any statement of Scripture may be false. But if this is so, then one would need an independent criterion to justify which statements of Scripture are to be judged true or false. This only compounds the problem. Not only would Scripture not be able to be used as a sufficient ground of justification, but also one must ask what exactly are the independent criteria by which we judge Scripture true or false? Would it be human reason? Religious experience? The problem with all of these so-called solutions to grounding our beliefs is that they require their own independent justification. So, in the end, without a fully authoritative Bible as the foundation for grounding our theological beliefs, we have lost the ability to do theology and know truth in a universal, objective way.

Today we face an authority crisis in every direction. Whether in issues of morality, philosophy, or religion, we live in a pluralistic age that has no grounds for saying that something is right while something else is wrong, or that something is true while something else is false. We have witnessed a massive loss of confidence in the concept of truth in the academy, on the street, and even in the pew. We have lost any sense that "God has spoken" authoritatively and definitively. Nevertheless, Scripture says the opposite. The God who is has spoken, and as such, there are universal, objective grounds for morality, human thought, and theology, rooted in Scripture as God's authoritative written Word.

105 Your word is a lamp for my feet † and a light on my path.
106 I have solemnly sworn † but I love your instruction. †

164 I praise you seven times a day for your righteous judgments. †

165 Abundant peace belongs to those † who love your instruction;
nothing makes them stumble. †

166 LORD, I hope for your salvation † and carry out your commands.

167 I obey your decrees and love them greatly. †

168 I obey your precepts and decrees, for all my ways are before you. †

ת Taw

169 Let my cry reach you, LORD; † give me understanding according to your word. †

170 Let my plea reach you; † rescue me according to your promise. †

171 My lips pour out praise, † for you teach me your statutes. †

172 My tongue sings about your promise, † for all your commands are righteous. †

173 May your hand be ready to help me, † for I have chosen your precepts. †

174 I long for your salvation, LORD, and your instruction is my delight. †

175 Let me live, and I will praise you; † may your judgments help me.

176 I wander like a lost sheep; † seek your servant, †

for I do not forget your commands. †

A CRY FOR TRUTH AND PEACE

A song of ascents.

120 In my distress I called to the LORD, and he answered me. †
2 “LORD, rescue me from lying lips and a deceitful tongue.” †

3 What will he give you, and what will he do to you, you deceitful tongue? †

5 What misery that I have stayed in Meshech, † † that I have lived among the tents of Kedar! † †

Where will my help come from? †

A PRAYER FOR JERUSALEM

A song of ascents. Of David.

122 I rejoiced with those who said to me, "Let us go to the house of the LORD." †
2 Our feet were standing within your gates, Jerusalem † —

3 Jerusalem, built as a city should be, solidly united, †
4 where the tribes, the LORD's tribes, go up to give thanks to the name of the LORD. †
(This is an ordinance for Israel. †) 5 There, thrones for judgment are placed, thrones of the house of David. †

6 Pray for the well-being † of Jerusalem: "May those who love you be secure; †
7 may there be peace within your walls, security within your fortresses." †
8 Because of my brothers and friends, I will say, "May peace be in you." † †
9 Because of the house of the LORD our God, I will pursue your prosperity. †

LOOKING FOR GOD'S FAVOR

A song of ascents.

123 1 I lift my eyes to you, the one enthroned in heaven. †
2 Like a servant's eyes on his master's hand, like a servant girl's eyes on her mistress's hand, so our eyes are on the LORD our God until he shows us favor. †

3 Show us favor, LORD, show us favor, for we've had more than enough contempt. †
4 We've had more than enough scorn from the arrogant and contempt from the proud. †

THE LORD IS ON OUR SIDE

A song of ascents. Of David.

124 1 If the LORD had not been on our side — let Israel say —
2 If the LORD had not been on our side † when people attacked us, †
3 then they would have swallowed us alive in their burning anger against us. †
4 Then the water would have engulfed us; the torrent would have swept over us;
5 the raging water would have swept over us. †

6 Blessed be the LORD, who has not let us be ripped apart by their teeth. † 7 We have escaped like a bird from the hunter's net; the net is torn, and we have escaped. †

ISRAEL'S STABILITY

A song of ascents.

125 Those who trust in the LORD are like Mount Zion.
It cannot be shaken; it remains forever. †
2 The mountains surround Jerusalem and the LORD surrounds his people, both now and forever. †

3 The scepter of the wicked will not remain over the land allotted to the righteous, so that the righteous will not apply their hands to injustice. †
4 Do what is good, LORD, to the good, to those whose hearts are upright. †
5 But as for those who turn aside to crooked ways, the LORD will banish them with the evildoers. †

Peace be with Israel. †

ZION'S RESTORATION

A song of ascents.

126 When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion, † we were like those who dream. †
2 Our mouths were filled with laughter then, † and our tongues with shouts of joy. †
Then they said among the nations,
"The LORD has done great things for them." †
3 The LORD had done great things for us; we were joyful. †

4 Restore our fortunes, † LORD, like watercourses in the Negev. †
5 Those who sow in tears will reap with shouts of joy. † 6 Though one goes along weeping, carrying the bag of seed, he will surely come back with shouts of joy, carrying his sheaves. †

THE BLESSING OF THE LORD

A song of ascents. Of Solomon.

127 Unless the LORD builds a house, its builders labor over it in vain; † unless the LORD watches over a city, the watchman stays alert in vain. †
2 In vain you get up early and stay up late, working hard to have enough food — yes, he gives sleep to the one he loves. † †

3 Sons are indeed a heritage from the LORD, offspring, a reward. †
4 Like arrows in the hand of a warrior are the sons born in one's youth. †
5 Happy is the man who has filled his quiver with them. †
They will never be put to shame
when they speak with their enemies at the city gate. †

127:2 Or yes, he gives such things to his loved ones while they sleep

BLESSINGS FOR THOSE WHO FEAR GOD

A song of ascents.

128 How happy is everyone who fears the LORD, who walks in his ways! †
2 You will surely eat what your hands have worked for. †
You will be happy,
and it will go well for you. †
3 Your wife will be like a fruitful vine within your house, your children, like young olive trees around your table. †
4 In this very way the man who fears the LORD will be blessed. †

5 May the LORD bless you from Zion, so that you will see the prosperity of Jerusalem all the days of your life †
6 and will see your children's children!

Peace be with Israel. †

PROTECTION OF THE OPPRESSED

A song of ascents.

129 Since my youth they have often attacked me — let Israel say —
2 Since my youth they have often attacked me, but they have not prevailed against me. †

3 Plowmen plowed over my back; they made their furrows long. †

4 The LORD is righteous; he has cut the ropes of the wicked. †

5 Let all who hate Zion be driven back in disgrace. †

6 Let them be like grass on the rooftops, which withers before it grows up † †

7 and can't even fill the hands of the reaper or the arms of the one who binds sheaves. †

8 Then none who pass by will say, "May the LORD's blessing be on you.
We bless you in the name of the LORD." †

AWAITING REDEMPTION

A song of ascents.

130 Out of the depths I call to you, LORD! †
2 Lord, listen to my voice; let your ears be attentive to my cry for help. †

3 LORD, if you kept an account of iniquities, Lord, who could stand? †

4 But with you there is forgiveness, so that you may be revered. †

5 I wait for the LORD; I wait and put my hope in his word. †

6 I wait for the Lord more than watchmen for the morning — more than watchmen for the morning. †

7 Israel, put your hope in the LORD. †
For there is faithful love with the LORD, and with him is redemption in abundance. †

A CHILDLIKE SPIRIT

A song of ascents. Of David.

131 LORD, my heart is not proud; my eyes are not haughty. †
I do not get involved with things too great or too wondrous for me. † 2 Instead, I have calmed and quieted my soul like a weaned child with its mother;
my soul is like a weaned child. †

DAVID AND ZION CHOSEN

A song of ascents.

132 LORD, remember David and all the hardships he endured, †
2 and how he swore an oath to the LORD, making a vow to the Mighty One of Jacob: †
3 "I will not enter my house or get into my bed,
4 I will not allow my eyes to sleep or my eyelids to slumber †
5 until I find a place for the LORD, a dwelling for the Mighty One of Jacob." †

6 We heard of the ark in Ephrathah; † † we found it in the fields of Jaar. † †
7 Let us go to his dwelling place; let us worship at his footstool. †

8 Rise up, LORD, come to your resting place, you and your powerful ark. †
9 May your priests be clothed with righteousness, and may your faithful people shout for joy. †
10 For the sake of your servant David, do not reject your anointed one. † †

11 The LORD swore an oath to David, a promise he will not abandon:
"I will set one of your offspring † on your throne. †
12 If your sons keep my covenant and my decrees that I will teach them, their sons will also sit on your throne forever." †

13 For the LORD has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his home: † 14 "This is my resting place forever; I will make my home here because I have desired it. †
15 I will abundantly bless its food; I will satisfy its needy with bread. † 16 I will clothe its priests with salvation, and its faithful people will shout for joy. †
17 There I will make a horn grow for David; †
I have prepared a lamp for my anointed one. † 18 I will clothe his enemies with shame, † but the crown he wears † will be glorious." †

THE LORD IS GREAT

135 Hallelujah!
Praise the name of the LORD.
Give praise, you servants of the LORD †
2 who stand in the house of the LORD, in the courts of the house of our God. †
3 Praise the LORD, for the LORD is good; sing praise to his name,

4 For the LORD has chosen Jacob for himself, Israel as his treasured possession. †

5 For I know that the LORD is great; our Lord is greater than all gods. †
6 The LORD does whatever he pleases in heaven and on earth, in the seas and all the depths. †
7 He causes the clouds to rise from the ends of the earth.

and brings the wind from his storehouses. †

8 He struck down the firstborn of Egypt, both people and animals. †
9 He sent signs and wonders against you, Egypt, against Pharaoh and all his officials. †
10 He struck down many nations and slaughtered mighty kings: † 11 Sihon king of the Amorites, Og king of Bashan, and all the kings of Canaan. †
12 He gave their land as an inheritance, an inheritance to his people Israel. †

13 LORD, your name endures forever, your reputation, LORD, through all generations. †
14 For the LORD will vindicate his people and have compassion on his servants. †

15 The idols of the nations are of silver and gold, made by human hands. † eyes, but cannot see.

17 They have ears but cannot hear; indeed, there is no breath in their mouths. †
18 Those who make them are just like them, as are all who trust in them. †

A BIBLICAL ASSESSMENT OF ABORTION

Abortion has been one of the most controversial issues in American culture over the last fifty years. What guidance does the Bible give us about the topic? Although it might seem surprising that an ancient document would address such a contemporary problem, the Bible in fact offers a number of clear teachings that address abortion from several perspectives.

WHO CREATES LIFE?

Life comes from God. God created humans in his image; therefore, persons are treasured above all creation (Gn 1:26-27; 9:6). God is involved directly and personally in our creation. "The LORD is God," Ps 100:3 teaches. "He made us, and we are his—his people, the sheep of his pasture." Psalm 139:13-14 declares, "It was you [God] who created my inward parts; you knit me together in my mother's womb. I will praise you because I have been remarkably and wondrously made." Elsewhere the Creator is described as literally breathing into humans the breath of life: "Then the LORD God formed the man out of the dust from the ground and breathed the breath of life into his nostrils, and the man became a living being" (Gn 2:7). "The Spirit of God has made me," Job affirms, "and the breath of the Almighty gives me life" (Jb 33:4). Because God the Life-giver has granted life (Jb 10:12), who are we to be life-takers?

IS HUMAN LIFE SACRED?

IS HUMAN LIFE SACRED?

The Bible stands strongly for the protection of human life and cries out against the taking of it. Scripture affirms the sanctity of life in numerous places, including Gn 2:7; Pss 127:3; 139:13-16a; and Jr 1:4-5. Human life began when God shaped Adam in his own image and breathed into him. “He created them [meaning humankind] male and female” (Gn 1:27). Being made in the image of God, in fact, gives human life its sacredness. The image of God is present when a new life starts in the womb.

The Bible places a strict prohibition against taking human life. The sixth commandment prohibits murder (Ex 20:13). Likewise, after the great flood, God reaffirmed the sacredness of human life and instituted the death penalty for those who take it; this was done to underscore the value of human life (Gn 9:5-6). To take a life at any point following conception is to kill one whom God has made in his own image (Gn 1:27; 9:6).

The OT law identifies punishments for actions that cause even an accidental miscarriage or premature birth (Ex 21:22-25). One particular law concerns two men whose fighting leads to a woman being hit accidentally, causing her child to be born early. Whether miscarriage or premature delivery is in view, the inadvertent action is considered a sin to be punished by law. If even an accidental injury were fatal for either the mother or the child, the perpetrator could be liable and executed; this is a harsher penalty than any other form of involuntary manslaughter receives in the OT law. The concern for the health of the mother in Exodus 21 may provide an allowance for the life of the mother to be taken into consideration in exceptional cases in which both the mother and child’s lives are at risk.

IS THE UNBORN CHILD A PERSON?

The Bible is clear that life and personhood begin before birth. Unborn infants are shaped by God, known personally by him, and reflect the image of God. Moreover, God has a plan for their lives. Many Scriptures affirm that even as unborn children, we humans are shaped by God. Job 31:15 asks, “Did not the one who made me in the womb also make them? Did not the same God form us both in the womb?” In Psalm 22:9, the psalmist says, “[God,] you . . . brought me out of the womb, making me secure at my mother’s breast.” And Ps 139:14-16 declares, “Your works are wondrous, and I know this very well. My bones were not hidden from you when I was made in secret. . . . Your eyes saw me when I was formless.”

Several biblical words are used to describe the mother’s womb as the location of the unborn child, supporting the affirmation that life begins in the uterus. Two roughly synonymous Hebrew words are translated “womb” in the OT: rachem (Gn 20:18; 49:25; Nm 12:12; Jr 20:17-18; Jb 10:18; 20:18; 38:8; Is 46:3; Hs 9:14) and beten (Jb 3:10; 31:18; Ps 22:9; 71:6; 139:13; Is 49:1; Jr 1:5). The NT also uses two broadly synonymous Greek words—koilia (Lk 1:15,41,44) and metra (Lk 1:15; 2:23)—to describe the womb as the baby’s location before birth. Elizabeth’s experience of feeling John kick when Mary was visiting her made it evident that the baby was alive and even socially interactive in the womb (Lk 1:15,41,44).

The language of Psalm 139 provides a rich resource for a biblical view of unborn children. The Hebrew word golem, used only in verse 16 in the Bible, is sometimes translated as “formless” or “unformed substance” (NASB); nevertheless, it can accurately be translated as “embryo” or “fetus.” The Bible thus affirms that a developing child within the mother’s womb is a human who has essentially the same potential as would a born child at any other stage of development.

The author of Psalm 139 refers to himself as an unborn child multiple times, utilizing the personal pronouns “me” and “I.” Scripture thus clearly affirms that unborn children have personhood even in utero. Personhood does not change in any fundamental way between conception and birth. Personal identity has an unbroken continuity from the joining of sperm and egg through senior adulthood. The soul that is in the womb originated by the gift of God. It is that same soul that exists outside the womb after birth.

Psalm 139 also speaks of God having an intimate knowledge of the unborn child. Note also the psalmist’s recognition that God has a plan for his life. “All my days,” he says, “were written in your book and planned before a single one of them began” (Ps 139:16). Remarkably, Luke even describes John the Baptist as having the Holy Spirit within him while still in his mother’s womb (Lk 1:15b). The affirmation that God has a calling in mind for individual lives, even when those lives are in embryonic or fetal stage, is taught in other Scriptures as well. In Isaiah 49:1, the prophet says, "The LORD called me before I was born. He named me while I was in my mother's womb." In Jeremiah 1:5, God told Jeremiah, "I chose you before I formed you in the womb; I set you apart before you were born. I appointed you a prophet to the nations." The apostle Paul shares a similar revelation about his own beginnings in Galatians 1:15-17: "When God, who from my mother's womb set me apart and called me by his grace, was pleased to reveal his Son in me, so that I could preach him among the Gentiles . . . I went." The NT makes no clear distinction between the personhood of born or unborn children.

CONCLUSION

To summarize, the Bible regards unborn infants as fully human individuals who, even in their earliest stages of development, have the potential to achieve that which persons in adulthood might. Though life is a constant process of adjustments, the full person and unique soul formed in the womb remain the same person and soul throughout life. Unborn children have the God-given right to life and should be accorded all the rights normally granted to humans. Christians do well to stand for and protect the lives of the unborn.

17 God, how precious † your thoughts are to me; how vast their sum is!
18 If I counted them, they would outnumber the grains of sand; † when I wake up, † I am still with you. †

19 God, if only you would kill the wicked — you bloodthirsty men, stay away from me † — 20 who invoke you deceitfully.
Your enemies swear by you falsely. † 21 LORD, don't I hate those who hate you, and detest those who rebel against you?
22 I hate them with extreme hatred; I consider them my enemies. †

23 Search me, God, and know my heart; test me and know my concerns. †
24 See if there is any offensive † way in me; lead me in the everlasting way. †

PRAYER FOR RESCUE

For the choir director. A psalm of David.

140 Rescue me, LORD, from evil men.
Keep me safe from violent men †
2 who plan evil in their hearts.
They stir up wars all day long. † 3 They make their tongues as sharp as a snake's bite; viper's venom is under their lips. †

Selah

4 Protect me, LORD, from the power of the wicked. †
Keep me safe from violent men who plan to make me stumble. † † 5 The proud hide a trap with ropes for me; they spread a net along the path and set snares for me. †

Selah

6 I say to the LORD, "You are my God."
Listen, LORD, to my cry for help. †
7 LORD, my Lord, my strong Savior, you shield my head on the day of battle. †
8 LORD, do not grant the desires of the wicked; do not let them achieve their goals.
Otherwise, they will become proud. †

Selah

9 When those who surround me rise up, † may the trouble their lips cause overwhelm them. † 10 Let hot coals fall on them.
Let them be thrown into the fire, into the abyss, never again to rise. †
11 Do not let a slanderer stay in the land.
Let evil relentlessly † hunt down a violent man. †

PROTECTION FROM SIN AND SINNERS

A psalm of David.

141 LORD, I call on you; hurry to help me.
Listen to my voice when I call on you. †
2 May my prayer be set before you as incense, † the raising of my hands as the evening offering. †

3 LORD, set up a guard for my mouth; keep watch at the door of my lips. †
4 Do not let my heart turn to any evil thing or perform wicked acts with men who commit sin.
Do not let me feast on their delicacies. †
5 Let the righteous one strike me — it is an act of faithful love; let him rebuke me —
it is oil for my head;
let me † not refuse it. † Even now my prayer is against the evil acts of the wicked. † † 6 When their rulers † will be thrown off the sides of a cliff, the people † will listen to my words, for they are pleasing. †

7 As when one plows and breaks up the soil, turning up rocks, so our † bones have been scattered at the mouth of Sheol. †

8 But my eyes look to you, LORD, my Lord.
I seek refuge in you; do not let me die. † †

A CRY OF DISTRESS

A Maskil of David. When he was in the cave. † A prayer.

I plead aloud to the LORD for mercy. †
2 I pour out my complaint before him; I reveal my trouble to him. †
3 Although my spirit is weak within me, you know my way. †

4 Look to the right and see: † no one stands up for me;
there is no refuge for me;
no one cares about me. †

5 I cry to you, LORD; I say, "You are my shelter, my portion in the land of the living." †
6 Listen to my cry, for I am very weak. †

A CRY FOR HELP

A psalm of David.

143 LORD, hear my prayer.
In your faithfulness listen to my plea, and in your righteousness answer me. †
2 Do not bring your servant into judgment, † for no one alive is righteous in your sight. †

3 For the enemy has pursued me, crushing me to the ground, making me live in darkness

4 My spirit is weak within me; my heart is overcome with dismay. †

I reflect on the work of your hands. †
6 I spread out my hands to you; I am like parched land before you. †

7 Answer me quickly, LORD; my spirit fails. †
Don't hide your face from me, or I will be like those going down to the Pit. †
8 Let me experience your faithful love in the morning, for I trust in you. † Reveal to me the way I should go because I appeal to you. †
9 Rescue me from my enemies, LORD; I come to you for protection. † †
10 Teach me to do your will, for you are my God. †
May your gracious Spirit

A KING'S PRAYER

Of David.

144 Blessed be the LORD, my rock † who trains my hands for battle and my fingers for warfare. †
2 He is my faithful love and my fortress, my stronghold and my deliverer.
He is my shield, † and I take refuge in him; †
he subdues my people † under me. †

3 LORD, what is a human that you care for him, a son of man † that you think of him? †
4 A human is like a breath; his days are like a passing shadow. †

5 LORD, part your heavens and come down. † Touch the mountains, and they will smoke. †
6 Flash your lightning and scatter the foe; † shoot your arrows and rout them. † 7 Reach down † from on high; † rescue me from deep water, and set me free from the grasp of foreigners †
8 whose mouths speak lies, whose right hands are deceptive. †

9 God, I will sing a new song to you; I will play on a ten-stringed harp for you † — 10 the one who gives victory to kings, who frees his servant David from the deadly sword. † 11 Set me free and rescue me from foreigners † whose mouths speak lies, whose right hands are deceptive. †

12 Then our sons will be like plants nurtured in their youth, our daughters, like corner pillars that are carved in the palace style. †

13 Our storehouses will be full, supplying all kinds of produce; † our flocks will increase by thousands and tens of thousands in our open fields. †
14 Our cattle will be well fed. †
There will be no breach in the walls, no going into captivity, † and no cry of lament in our public squares. †

EVOLUTION AND INTELLIGENT DESIGN

Until two centuries years ago, evolution played a negligible role in the Christian worldview. Christians overwhelmingly believed that God created the world and specially designed the different kinds of organisms that populate it. The diversity of life was therefore not seen as the result of a long evolutionary history, in which organisms gradually transformed into others that looked nothing like their beginnings. Any change in organisms from the original creation would have been minor. Insofar as there was any evolution, it would have been microevolution (changes within a species), not macroevolution (changes from one species to another).

Fast-forward to the present, and we find Christians having little choice but to square evolution with their worldview. For some, evolution is a proven fact incompatible with Christianity, causing them to reject the faith. For others, "theistic evolutionists," evolution is a proven fact but compatible with Christianity. For still others, evolution is incompatible with Christianity but so unsupported by evidence that it poses no direct challenge to Christian faith. Nevertheless, even those who think evolution is unconvincing must confront those who think it is well supported.

THE TWO PILLARS OF EVOLUTION

To see why evolution is such a sticky issue for the Christian worldview, we need to be clear what the term evolution means. Evolution, as taught in biology textbooks, rests on two pillars. The first is a claim about natural history, according to which all living forms trace their lineage back to a common universal ancestor. This pillar of evolution is called common descent. By itself, common descent is compatible with theism in that God might, via an evolutionary process, bring all organisms into existence. Where common descent runs into trouble is with a biblical theism that takes Genesis seriously and sees God as creating the basic kinds of organisms from nothing.

The much more controversial pillar of evolution is the mechanism by which organisms are supposed to have arisen. To say that organisms have evolved raises an immediate question: how? In our experience, like begets like, so to say that organisms are able to change radically needs an explanation. Charles Darwin offered such an explanation, and it remains the explanation evolutionary theorists offer to this day. That explanation is natural selection, a process taking place over long periods of time. This is the second pillar of evolution.

Here is how natural selection works. When organisms reproduce, they don't form exact copies of themselves. If they did, there could be no evolution since offspring would be replicas of their parents. Organisms, when they reproduce, vary. Some variants are better adapted to their environments than others. Those that are well adapted will be selected for; those that are not will be selected against. That's a nice way of saying that some will get to live and reproduce, and others will be killed off within a given ecosystem. Evolutionists believe that over time natural selection is the invisible hand that shapes all life.

The point that Christians need to realize about natural selection is that at no place does this mechanism require the help of an intelligent agent. Quite the contrary. Evolutionist Francisco Ayala is on record as saying that Darwin's greatest achievement was to show how the apparent design of organisms could be achieved without actual design. Darwin himself, in commenting on his theory in a letter to Charles Lyle, stated, "I would give nothing for the theory of natural selection if it requires miraculous additions at any one stage of descent." Darwin's theory doesn't so much claim that God had nothing to do with life; instead, it suggests life doesn't need anything from God.

THEISTIC EVOLUTION VERSUS INTELLIGENT DESIGN

Theistic evolution takes these two pillars of evolution and baptizes them in a sense, saying that this is how God formed life. In this view, God rather than directly guiding the evolutionary process, sets up the conditions under which evolution can take place. This has a certain appeal, especially if one is convinced that evolution as outlined by Darwin has indeed occurred. But why should one think that it has? Theistic evolution attempts to make a place for evolution within a Christian worldview. But the only reason for doing so is if evolution deserves such a place. In fact, the evidence for macroevolution is weak.

How can one see that the evidence for evolution is tenuous? The work of intelligent design theorists has been pivotal in critiquing evolution. Intelligent design (ID) casts the debate over evolution not as a science-versus-religion controversy but as a science-versus-science controversy. Theistic evolutionists, for instance, regard evolution as overwhelmingly supported scientifically and then try to reconcile their faith with that supposed fact. ID, by contrast, simply tries to assess the scientific evidence for evolution and design. If, as ID theorists argue, evolution fails, then there is no point trying to reconcile evolution and Christianity.

What, then, is ID and what makes it such an effective tool against evolution? Intelligent design is, by definition, the study of patterns in nature that are best explained as the product of intelligence. Many special sciences fall under ID, including archaeology (Is that an arrowhead or a random chunk of rock?) and the search for extraterrestrial intelligence (Is that radio signal from outer space a message or mere noise?). Where ID becomes especially interesting is when the intelligence in view could not be the product of evolution. That happens with life because any intelligence responsible for life would be prior to life and thus not a product of evolution.

This point is crucial. Even though evolution is thought to produce intelligent beings like us, intelligence itself does nothing to guide the evolutionary process. Natural selection, for instance, acts automatically, weeding out those organisms ill suited for an environment while keeping those that are better suited. Yet if life gives clear evidence of design, then any process by which we got here must itself be intelligently guided.

It follows that evolution and intelligent design contradict each other. It is logically possible that God could substantively guide the evolutionary process and thereby introduce design, but such a theory of "intelligent evolution" is not what evolutionists, whether atheistic or theistic, mean by evolution. The beauty of evolution is that a purely naturalistic evolutionary mechanism (natural selection) is supposed to procure all the benefits of design without actual design.

Intelligent design, by contrast, shows that evolution is unable to make good on this promise. How can we see this? ID, in looking for patterns in nature best explained by intelligence, finds that biology does indeed exhibit such patterns, in everything from the fossil record (see Stephen Meyer's Darwin's Dilemma) to molecular biology (see Michael Behe's Darwin's Black Box). Take molecular biology. The DNA inside every one of your cells is known to stretch out to six feet in length, yet it is packed inside a volume much smaller than a pin head. DNA represents the most efficient and reliable method of data storage we know. Yet this method of data storage is presupposed by all of life.

Information storage and processing is not the only thing going on inside cells. There are transportation and distribution systems, signal transduction circuitries, waste removal services, and even nanoengineered motors. Our best metaphor for understanding the cell is as an automated city in which everything, down to the smallest detail, is precisely tuned and coordinated. We need to be engineers to understand what's going on inside the cell, and when we do, we find a level of engineering that far exceeds anything human engineers have attained or show any signs of attaining. But ID doesn't just stop with marveling at the intricacies of the cell. It also investigates how such systems might have originated and what obstacles their origin faces in the absence of intelligence.

The Bible teaches that God by wisdom created the world (Pr 3:19) and that this wisdom is clearly evident throughout creation (Rm 1:20). Evolution, by contrast, teaches that if God had anything to do with life, then he was a master of stealth and gave no evidence of it. If it were well supported, evolution would therefore pose a significant challenge to the Christian worldview. But, especially in light of intelligent design, there is good reason to think evolution is ill supported and therefore not a threat to the Christian understanding of creation. In particular, attempts to reconcile Christianity and evolution are well-intentioned, but ultimately not needed.

PRAISE THE LORD

A BIBLICAL VIEW OF MUSIC

Scripture provides a holistic way to think about music. It does this directly, through the well-over-three-hundred references to music within its pages, and indirectly, through teaching about creation, pleasure, and worship. One in six chapters of the Bible mentions vocal or instrumental music. The great majority of these verses (80 percent, in fact) describe it in positive terms, as something made or heard faithfully. Especially frequent are references to music in worship, but the Bible also affirms a variety of other uses, presumably requiring a variety of styles: for example, in courtship and marriage (Song of Songs), teaching (Dt 31:19), mourning (2Ch 35:25), warfare (2Ch 20:21), therapy (1Sm 16:23), pilgrimage (Is 30:29), and pure pleasure (2 Sam 19:35).

The attention Scripture gives to music is impressive, as is its prominence in today's society. From restaurant loudspeakers to movie soundtracks, it's everywhere. Obviously, whoever wants to love both God and neighbor in this world will want to learn from the Bible how to think about music.

NEGATIVE USES OF MUSIC

To begin, not everything the Bible says about music is positive. Through Isaiah, God warns against self-indulgence: "Woe to those who rise early in the morning in pursuit of beer, who linger into the evening, inflamed by wine. At their feasts they have lyre, harp, tambourine, flute, and wine. They do not perceive the LORD's actions, and they do not see the work of his hands. Therefore my people will go into exile because they lack knowledge" (Is 5:11-13; see also Ec 7:5 and Am 6:5).

Music can be what twentieth-century American pastor A. W. Tozer called "a device for wasting time, a refuge from the disturbing voice of conscience, a scheme to divert attention from moral accountability." When music is used idly, as a substitute for the knowledge of God, no solid joy can be its result, because "who can enjoy life apart from him?" (Ec 2:25). But the point is not really about music, but about the misuse of a good gift from God. As all his gifts can be misused, and therefore corrupted, the same can be said of music.

GODLY ENJOYMENT OF MUSIC

On the other hand, there is such a thing as godly recreation (Gn 24:63; Ps 8:3; 1Tm 4:3-4; 6:17). Moreover, God "provides us with songs in the night" (Jb 35:10). David, the man after God's heart, played the lyre and sang; the king found joy in harps from ivory palaces (Ps 45:8). The Bible teaches that all things were made for God's glory, and we find joy in them insofar as we enjoy God through them. He is glorified when we delight in his good gifts. And when we use our leisure well, it leaves our souls refreshed and ready for the next day's labors of service and worship. But what makes music in particular delightful?

The first chapter of Genesis tells us that God charged the human race to rule the earthly order for his glory. When a musician arranges tones and rhythms to show their interrelatedness, their potential for harmony, and their potential as materials for design, the musician is showing us the glory of a Creator so wise that he could endow sounds with such properties. So good that he enabled us to perceive such sounds meaningfully. We delight to behold such wisdom and goodness. It is similar when we study the sky and discover there a kind of "speech" that proclaims the Lord's righteousness, as mentioned in Psalm 97:6.

Such discovery brings pleasure to people of all ages and cultures, from children singing on the playground to a scholar pondering a fugue—only, apart from Christ, neither child nor scholar can enjoy the ultimate Artist who created music and our ability to perceive it.

MUSIC AS A GIFT

While music ultimately points to God's goodness, it is also a gift to all humanity. Like food, water, and sunshine, music blesses all people whether they acknowledge its source or not. It is part of God's common grace to his creatures and offers a way for us to express and identify with the human condition. All facets of human experience may be expressed through music—not only love and joy, but sadness and conflict. It gives voice to feelings and experiences that words fail to express. This is a gift for our enjoyment and comfort.

But to fully appreciate the gift of music, we will recognize its source. Music can comfort us by "speaking" clearly about God's goodness. This explains how the Bible can use music as an effective metaphor for God's goodness. He himself sings (Zph 3:17; Heb 2:12). Believers call him their "song" (Ex 15:2; Ps 118:14; Is 12:2). Angels mark the beginning and end of history with music-making (Jb 38:7; Rv 5:8-9). And nature, too, sings when the Lord makes his salvation known (Ps 98:7-9; Is 44:23; 55:12). The Bible sometimes treats music as a synonym for joy (Pr 29:6; Is 35:2; 51:3). "Is anyone cheerful? He should sing praises" (Jms 5:13).

MUSIC AS PRAISE

John Newton, the poet behind "Amazing Grace," wrote a hymn that begins and ends thus: How sweet the name of Jesus sounds in a believer's ear!

> It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds, and drives away his fear. . . .
>
> Weak is the effort of my heart, and cold my warmest thought; but when I see thee as thou art, I'll praise thee as I ought.
> Till then I would thy love proclaim with every fleeting breath; and may the music of thy name refresh my soul in death.

In these verses, Newton likens the contemplation of Christ's lordship and gospel to the act of appreciating music. The pleasures of both are derived from God's character. The divine counsel for our salvation is so harmonious, with every part of it perfectly integrated with all the rest, that the name of our Savior summarizes the greatest symphony of all: the covenant of grace, the threefold office of Christ (as Prophet, Priest, and King), his active and passive obedience, his exaltation, and our union with him.

John Newton will not be alone when he praises God as he ought. A large number of the Bible's references to music are actually exhortations for believers to sing. In the temple worship of the OT, skilled Levitical singers sang with instrumental accompaniment (1Ch 9:33; 25:1-31; 2Ch 5:12-14), but everyone else responded congregationally with short refrains (1Ch 16:36; Ezr 3:10-13). In NT worship all the saints teach and admonish one another and give thanks to God the Father in song, as the message about the Messiah dwells in them richly and as the Spirit fills them (Eph 5:18-20; Col 3:16). This can only mean that God intends church music to function primarily as a means by which congregants communicate to each other and to him—and that what they communicate is God's Word, "the sword of the Spirit" (Eph 6:17). Their songs will be saturated with the message, wording, and aesthetic values of Scripture. Jesus himself sang congregationally during his earthly ministry (Mt 26:30; Mk 14:26), and the ultimate aim of his saving work is pictured as congregational singing (Rm 15:9; Rv 14:2-3).

PROVERBS

INTRODUCTION

What is a proverb? A secular proverb seeks to state a general (not absolute) truth, such as "a fool and his money are soon parted." It is typically pithy, that is, it is brief but rich in meaning: "No pain, no gain." A proverb is practical; it gives advice that is useful in the real world: "A stitch in time saves nine." It should be applied; the reader should consider what changes he should make in his own life in light of the proverb: "Charity begins at home." A proverb is derived from astute observations about how life usually works; the creator of a proverb shows himself very knowledgeable and perceptive, able to see what is generally true and to draw conclusions from it: "The pen is mightier than the sword."

In addition to all this, the proverbs in the book of Proverbs are also divinely inspired. Since they come from God, we know they are true and we can be certain they are beneficial: "The one who understands a matter finds success, and the one who trusts in the LORD will be happy" (16:20). Biblical proverbs not only offer practical advice for this life but also guide the reader to eternal life: "For the prudent the path of life leads upward, so that he may avoid going down to Sheol" (15:24).

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

AUTHOR: Solomon is credited with the proverbs in chapters 1–29 of the book of Proverbs (1:1; 10:1). There is biblical evidence that Solomon was wise and a collector of wise sayings (1Kg 3:5-14; 4:29-34; 5:7,12; 10:2-3,23-24; 11:41). Chapters 1–24 may have been written down during his reign, 970–931 BC. The proverbs in chapters 25–29 were Solomon's proverbs collected by King Hezekiah, who reigned 716–687 BC (25:1). The last two chapters are credited to Agur and Lemuel (30:1; 31:1), about whom nothing else is known. An editor was inspired to collect the proverbs of Solomon, Agur, and Lemuel into the book we now have.

BACKGROUND: The reign of Solomon represented the peak of prosperity for the nation of Israel. The period saw the greatest extent of the territory, and there was peace and international trade (1Kg 4:20-25; 10:21-29). It is likely Solomon knew about the ancient tradition of wisdom in Egypt (1Kg 3:1), but through inspiration and God's gift he composed even better sayings (1Kg 3:12; 10:6-7,23). Solomon addressed his teaching to his son or sons, but these inspired wise sayings are applicable to all people. The book of Proverbs, like the rest of the Bible, contains stories, teaching, and examples. People should make appropriate application of these truths to their own situations (1Co 10:11).

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

The Law and the Prophets teach how to live in spiritual community. Wisdom teaches how to live practically and courteously with one another. The book of Job addresses one main idea: the sovereignty of God with regard to suffering. Ecclesiastes contemplates the meaning of this ephemeral life. Solomon's Song demonstrates romantic love. Proverbs covers the rest of wisdom's topics, from how to conduct business astutely yet fairly, to how to live happily within marriage.

STRUCTURE

The book of Proverbs is in the wisdom genre. Wisdom books consist of the intelligent author's observations on the world and the people in it. However, without an inspired godly perspective, the world would be depressing and hopeless, as parts of Job and Ecclesiastes show. Ultimately, biblical wisdom is informed by and founded on faith in God.

The process of observation, contemplation, and inspiration can be seen in Proverbs 24:30-34. After observing the deteriorated condition of "the field of a slacker" and "the vineyard of a man lacking sense," Solomon contemplated what he was seeing and was inspired: "I saw, and took it to heart; I looked, and received instruction" (v. 32). He either composed a new proverb or applied a familiar proverb to the situation: "a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the arms to rest, and your poverty will come like a robber, and your need, like a bandit" (v v. 33-34).

Proverbs is written as Hebrew poetry. Hebrew poetry is terse and concise; it uses a lot of imagery, and generally the second line complements or contrasts the thought of the first. Contemplating how the second line relates to the first is a profitable way to meditate on a proverb.

In chapters 1–9 Solomon used imagery and sustained arguments to teach about the value of wisdom and the seduction of evil. In 22:17–24:34 there are "sayings" made up of several verses each, and in chapters 30–31 there are more sayings, including numerical sayings and an alphabetic acrostic in praise of a capable wife. In the rest of the book, each proverb is generally one verse. Some scholars argue that these individual proverbs are carefully arranged in groups and each should be interpreted in the context of its group. Other scholars view the collection as unsystematic and argue that the immediate context seldom has any bearing on interpretation.

In either case, it is important to interpret any single proverb in the context of the book of Proverbs and the Bible as a whole. For example, while 21:14 may seem to encourage bribery, the rest of the book of Proverbs is clearly against it (15:27)—as is the rest of Scripture (Ex 23:8; Ec 7:7).

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

In Proverbs, God is the One who has set up the world so that those who live by his principles will find blessing and success. The highest virtue is "the fear of the LORD" (1:7).

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

Proverbs shows that humans may live by a right way or a wrong way, a wise way or a foolish way. The right way is not the easy way, but those who live by it find great reward. All of life's relationships may be governed by the wise teachings of this book.

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

Proverbs assumes God's covenant but does not teach about it directly. This surely serves to demonstrate that the wisdom coming from the people of God is superior to and results in greater blessing than the wisdom coming from others—even without explicitly referring to the mighty acts of God on behalf of his people.

THE PURPOSE OF PROVERBS

1 The proverbs of Solomon † son of David, king of Israel: 2 For learning wisdom and discipline; for understanding insightful sayings;
3 for receiving prudent instruction in righteousness, justice, and integrity; †
4 for teaching shrewdness to the inexperienced, † † knowledge and discretion † to a young man — 5 let a wise person listen and increase learning, † and let a discerning person obtain guidance — 6 for understanding a proverb or a parable, †

the words of the wise, and their riddles. †

7 The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge; † fools despise wisdom and discipline. †

AVOID THE PATH OF THE VIOLENT

8 Listen, my son, to your father's instruction, and don't reject your mother's teaching, † 9 for they will be a garland † of favor on your head and pendants † around your neck. †
10 My son, if sinners entice you, † don't be persuaded. † 11 If they say — "Come with us!
Let's set an ambush † and kill someone. †
Let's attack some innocent person † just for fun! † 12 Let's swallow them alive, † like Sheol, whole, like those who go down to the Pit. †
13 We'll find all kinds of valuable property and fill our houses with plunder. † 14 Throw in your lot with us, and we'll all share the loot" † — 15 my son, don't travel that road with them † or set foot on their path, †
16 because their feet run toward evil and they hurry to shed blood. †
17 It is useless to spread a net where any bird can see it, 18 but they set an ambush to kill themselves; † they attack their own lives.
19 Such are the paths of all who make profit dishonestly; † it takes the lives of those who receive it. †

WISDOM'S PLEA

20 Wisdom calls out in the street; she makes her voice heard in the public squares. † 21 She cries out above † the commotion; she speaks at the entrance of the city gates: 22 "How long, inexperienced ones, will you love ignorance?
How long will you mockers † enjoy mocking and you fools hate knowledge? † 23 If you respond to my warning, † † then I will pour out my spirit on you † and teach you my words.
24 Since I called out and you refused, † extended my hand and no one paid attention, † 25 since you neglected all my counsel † and did not accept my correction,
26 I, in turn, will laugh at your calamity. †
I will mock when terror strikes you, 27 when terror strikes you like a storm and your calamity comes like a whirlwind, when trouble and stress overcome you.
28 Then they will call me, but I won't answer; they will search for me, but won't find me. †
29 Because they hated knowledge, didn't choose to fear the LORD, †
30 were not interested in my counsel, and rejected all my correction, † 31 they will eat the fruit of their way † and be glutted with their own schemes. † 32 For the apostasy of the inexperienced will kill them, † and the complacency of fools will destroy them.
33 But whoever listens to me will live securely and be undisturbed by the dread of danger." †

1:1 The opening verse of the book of Proverbs attributes its contents to Solomon, who famously asked God for wisdom and was known for his understanding (1Kg 3:5-14; 4:32; 10:4-9,23-24). Though Solomon is the source of the majority of the book (see also 10:1), Proverbs was edited at a later time (see 25:1) and includes wisdom from at least two other men (30:1; 31:1; see also 22:17; 24:23).

1:2-6 The purpose of the book of Proverbs is to impart wisdom, discipline, prudence, knowledge, and discretion to the inexperienced and to the young man (vv. 2-4). See "The Bible and Intellectual Pursuit," p. 1512. Those who are already wise and discerning can also benefit from the wisdom taught in this book (v. 5). The most basic meaning of "wisdom" is "skill": doing something well. Carpenters are wise when they skillfully make things from wood; ants are wise when they store up enough food (30:25). Wisdom, then, is living well and flourishing because one makes decisions according to the way that God created the world and the way that things are because of his presence and design.

1:7 This theme verse of Proverbs grounds all of its practical wisdom in the fear of the LORD. The basis of true wisdom is being properly oriented toward God and submitting to his authority. He is the One who gives wisdom (2:6; see the note on 3:5-7), so those who desire it must humble themselves before him (3:34; 15:33; 22:4). Accordingly, this phrase and variations of it are found repeatedly in Proverbs (e.g., 1:29; 2:5; 3:7; 8:13; 9:10; 10:27; 14:26-27; 15:16), as well as in other parts of Scripture (e.g., Gn 22:12; Jb 1:1; 28:28; Pss 34:11; 111:10; Is 11:2-3; Rm 3:18; Ac 9:31).

1:8-10 Proverbs 1–9 consist of an extended exhortation to pursue wisdom instead of folly. Following the implicit call to pursue "the fear of the LORD" in v. 7, the reader is instructed to listen to parental instruction (6:20). The enticements and company of sinners are to be avoided.

1:20-21 Wisdom is personified as a woman calling out in the streets to passersby, imploring people to listen (see also 3:13-18; 4:6-9; 8:1-3; 9:3).

1:26-28 The personification of wisdom as a woman continues (see previous note). She will laugh at and mock the calamity of those who ignore her, and she will refuse to answer them when they call from their distress, which could have been avoided.

WISDOM'S WORTH

2 My son, if you accept my words † and store up my commands within you,
2 listening closely † to wisdom and directing your heart to understanding;
3 furthermore, if you call out to insight and lift your voice to understanding,
4 if you seek it like silver and search for it like hidden treasure, †
5 then you will understand the fear of the LORD and discover the knowledge of God.

6 For the LORD gives wisdom; from his mouth come knowledge and understanding. † 7 He stores up success † for the upright; He is a shield for those who live with integrity †
8 so that he may guard the paths of justice and protect the way of his faithful followers. †
9 Then you will understand righteousness, justice, and integrity — every good path.
10 For wisdom will enter your heart, and knowledge will delight you.
11 Discretion will watch over you, and understanding will guard you. † 12 It will rescue you from the way of evil — from anyone who says perverse things,
13 from those who abandon the right paths to walk in ways of darkness, † 14 from those who enjoy doing evil † and celebrate perversion, 15 whose paths are crooked, † and whose ways are devious. † 16 It will rescue you from a forbidden woman, † from a wayward woman with her flattering talk, † 17 who abandons the companion of her youth † and forgets the covenant of her God; 18 for her house sinks down to death and her ways to the land of the departed spirits. †
19 None return who go to her; none reach the paths of life. † 20 So follow the way of the good, † and keep to the paths of the righteous.
21 For the upright will inhabit the land, and those of integrity will remain in it; †
22 but the wicked will be cut off from the land, † and the treacherous ripped out of it. †

2:1 Wisdom is commonly presented as a father teaching his son (1:8,10,15; 3:1,11,21; 4:10,20; 5:1,20; 6:1,3,20; 7:1; see also Ec 12:12). In view of the intended general readership of Proverbs (see 1:2-6), readers are thus invited to listen in on this conversation, which corresponds to Moses's command to fathers to teach Scripture to their children in Deuteronomy 6:1-9,20-25.

2:3-5 Whereas on the one hand wisdom does call out to the general populace (1:20-33), wisdom will not be found unless it is valued highly and sought out diligently from God (see the notes on 1:7; 3:13-18; 8:17; Jb 28).

2:11-15 Wisdom protects a person from choosing foolish ways and from going along with evildoers.

2:16-19 One of the evildoers that wisdom rescues a person from is the adulteress, the forbidden woman. She is singled out again in 5:3-14,20 and 6:24-7:27.

2:21-22 The theme of the righteous dwelling in the land and the wicked being cut off from it is also found in Psalms 37 (see the notes on vv. 22,37-38; Pr 10:25).

TRUST THE LORD

3 My son, don't forget my teaching, but let your heart keep my commands; †
2 for they will bring you many days, a full life, † † and well-being. †
3 Never let loyalty and faithfulness leave you.
Tie them around your neck;
write them on the tablet of your heart. †
4 Then you will find favor and high regard with God and people. †

5 Trust in the LORD with all your heart, † and do not rely on your own understanding; † 6 in all your ways know him, and he will make your paths straight. † 7 Don't be wise in your own eyes; † fear the LORD and turn away from evil. † 8 This will be healing for your body † † and strengthening for your bones. †
9 Honor the LORD with your possessions and with the first produce of your entire harvest; †

10 then your barns will be completely filled, and your vats will overflow with new wine. †
11 Do not despise the LORD's instruction, my son, and do not loathe his discipline; †
12 for the LORD disciplines the one he loves, just as a father disciplines the son in whom he delights. †

WISDOM BRINGS HAPPINESS

13 Happy is a man who finds wisdom † and who acquires understanding, 14 for she is more profitable than silver, and her revenue is better than gold. † 15 She is more precious than jewels; † nothing you desire can equal her. † 16 Long life † is in her right hand; in her left, riches and honor. † 17 Her ways are pleasant, † and all her paths, peaceful.
18 She is a tree of life † to those who embrace her, and those who hold on to her are happy.

19 The LORD founded the earth by wisdom † and established the heavens by understanding.
20 By his knowledge the watery depths broke open, † and the clouds dripped with dew. †

21 Maintain sound wisdom and discretion.
My son, don't lose sight of them. †
22 They will be life for you † † and adornment † for your neck.
23 Then you will go safely on your way; your foot will not stumble. †
24 When you lie † down, you will not be afraid; † you will lie down, and your sleep will be pleasant.

25 Don’t fear sudden danger or the ruin of the wicked when it comes, † 26 for the LORD will be your confidence † and will keep your foot from a snare. †

TREAT OTHERS FAIRLY

27 When it is in your power, † don’t withhold good † from the one to whom it belongs.
28 Don’t say to your neighbor, “Go away! Come back later.
I’ll give it tomorrow” — when it is there with you. † 29 Don’t plan any harm against your neighbor, † for he trusts you and lives near you.
30 Don’t accuse anyone without cause, † when he has done you no harm.
31 Don’t envy a violent man † or choose any of his ways;
32 for the devious are detestable to the LORD, but he is a friend † to the upright. † 33 The LORD’s curse is on the household of the wicked, † but he blesses the home of the righteous; 34 He mocks those who mock, but gives grace to the humble. †
35 The wise will inherit honor, but he holds up fools to dishonor. †

3:3 Wisdom is to be internalized in the heart (see also 2:2,10; 4:21; 16:23). Its inscription on the tablet of the heart is also mentioned in 7:3 and resonates with new covenant themes found in Jeremiah 31:33 (see also Dt 6:6). Along these lines, the guarding of one's "heart" is urged in 4:23 (see note).

3:5-7 Wisdom for humans does not lead to self-sufficiency but instead recognizes the limitations of human understanding. True wisdom is oriented toward God's presence and the design of his creation. God is acknowledged and trusted as the only One who possesses complete wisdom (v. 6; see the note on 1:7; 16:20; 22:19). See also "Do My Beliefs Fit a Christian Worldview?" p. 1461.

3:11-12 One of the ways in which "the LORD gives wisdom" (2:6) is through correction and discipline, which are not to be despised by his children (see Heb 12:4-13).

3:13-18 As in 2:4, wisdom is declared to be more precious than wealth (vv. 14-15; 8:10-11,19). Whereas foolishness leads to destruction and death (1:26-27,31-32; 2:18-19,22), wisdom brings long life, honor, and peace (v. 16; 2:21). Her comparison to a tree of life (v. 18) recalls the tree of life in the garden of Eden (Gn 2:9). Following their foolish act, Adam and Eve were barred from eating of this tree lest they "live forever" (Gn 3:22-24). Wisdom is thus presented as the way to attain such life (see 18:27).

3:32-35 The reason for the preceding commands to deal uprightly with others (vv. 27-31) is God's character and his just recompense to the wicked and the righteous.

A FATHER'S EXAMPLE

4 Listen, sons, to a father's discipline, † and pay attention so that you may gain understanding, 2 for I am giving you good instruction. †
Don't abandon my teaching.
3 When I was a son with my father, tender and precious to my mother,
4 he taught me and said: "Your heart must hold on to my words.
Keep my commands and live. †
5 Get wisdom, get understanding; † don't forget or turn away from the words from my mouth.
6 Don't abandon wisdom, and she will watch over you; love her, † and she will guard you.
7 Wisdom is supreme — so get wisdom.
And whatever else you get, get understanding. †
8 Cherish her, and she will exalt you; if you embrace her, she will honor you. †
9 She will place a garland of favor on your head; she will give you a crown of beauty." †

TWO WAYS OF LIFE

10 Listen, my son. Accept my words, † and you will live many years. †
11 I am teaching you the way of wisdom; I am guiding you on straight paths. † 12 When you walk, your steps will not be hindered; † when you run, you will not stumble. †
13 Hold on to instruction; don't let go. †
Guard it, for it is your life.
14 Keep off the path of the wicked; † don't proceed on the way of evil ones.
15 Avoid it; don't travel on it.
Turn away from it, and pass it by.
16 For they can't sleep unless they have done what is evil;
they are robbed of sleep
unless they make someone stumble. †
17 They eat the bread of wickedness and drink the wine of violence.
18 The path of the righteous is like the light of dawn, † shining brighter and brighter until midday.
19 But the way of the wicked is like the darkest gloom; † they don't know what makes them stumble. †

THE STRAIGHT PATH

20 My son, pay attention to my words; listen closely to my sayings. † 21 Don't lose sight of them; †
keep them within your heart.
22 For they are life to those who find them, and health to one's whole body.
23 Guard your heart above all else, † for it is the source of life. † 24 Don't let your mouth speak dishonestly, † and don't let your lips talk deviously.
25 Let your eyes look forward; fix your gaze † straight ahead. †
26 Carefully consider the path † for your feet, † and all your ways will be established.

27 Don't turn to the right or to the left; † keep your feet away from evil.

4:6-9 Wisdom is personified as a woman again (see 1:20-33; 3:13-18). She is to be loved, cherished, and embraced, so that she in turn will watch, guard, exalt, and honor.

4:14-19 This warning against the path of the wicked and commendation of the path of the righteous strongly resembles Psalm 1 (see v. 6).

4:23 The importance of the heart (and hence its need for protection) is echoed repeatedly in Proverbs (e.g., 6:25; 7:3,25; 12:25; 13:12; 14:10,13; 15:13,15).

4:27 The instruction not to turn to the right or to the left refers back to "the way of wisdom" in v. 11. Similar language is used elsewhere of obedience to Scripture (see Dt 17:20; 28:14; Jos 1:7) and of situational guidance from priests (Dt 17:11) or from God (Is 30:21).

AVOID SEDUCTION

5 My son, pay attention to my wisdom; listen closely † to my understanding †
2 so that you may maintain discretion and your lips safeguard knowledge. †
3 Though the lips of the forbidden woman drip honey and her words are † smoother than oil, 4 in the end she's as bitter as wormwood † and as sharp as a double-edged sword. †
5 Her feet go down to death; her steps head straight for Sheol. †
6 She doesn't consider the path of life; she doesn't know that her ways are unstable.

7 So now, sons, listen to me, and don't turn away from the words from my mouth. †
8 Keep your way far from her.
Don't go near the door of her house. †

9 Otherwise, you will give up your vitality to others and your years to someone cruel;
10 strangers will drain your resources, and your hard-earned pay will end up in a foreigner's house.
11 At the end of your life, you will lament when your physical body has been consumed, 12 and you will say, "How I hated discipline, and how my heart despised correction. †
13 I didn't obey my teachers or listen closely † to my instructors.
14 I am on the verge of complete ruin before the entire community."

ENJOY MARRIAGE

15 Drink water from your own cistern, water flowing from your own well. †
16 Should your springs flow in the streets, streams in the public squares? †
17 They should be for you alone and not for you to share with strangers.
18 Let your fountain be blessed, and take pleasure in the wife of your youth. †
19 A loving deer, a graceful doe † — let her breasts always satisfy you; † be lost in her love forever.
20 Why, my son, would you lose yourself with a forbidden woman or embrace a wayward woman? † 21 For a man's ways are before the LORD's eyes, † and he considers all his paths. † 22 A wicked man's iniquities will trap him; †
he will become tangled in the ropes of his own sin. † 23 He will die because there is no discipline, † and be lost because of his great stupidity.

5:3-14 The "son" being addressed (v. 1) is again warned against the forbidden woman (see 2:16-19; 7:6-27). She is a smooth talker (v. 3; 6:24), but going to her will result in bitterness and death (vv. 4-5). The speaker's sons are to stay far away from her (vv. 7-8) so that they might steer clear of utter ruin (vv. 9-14).

5:15-20 Instead of going after an adulteress, the "son" (see v. 1) is instructed to enjoy sexual relations with his own wife (v. 18; see also 2:17; Mal 2:14-15; see "Purpose and Parameters of Sexual Relations," p. 1397). The personification of wisdom as a woman is also related to this through the earlier exhortation to "embrace her" (see the note on 4:6-9) rather than losing himself with a stranger (v. 20).

FINANCIAL ENTANGLEMENTS

6 My son, if you have put up security for your neighbor † or entered into an agreement with † a stranger, †
2 you have been snared by the words of your mouth trapped by the words from your mouth.
3 Do this, then, my son, and free yourself, for you have put yourself in your neighbor's power: Go, humble yourself, and plead with your neighbor.
4 Don't give sleep to your eyes or slumber to your eyelids. †
5 Escape like a gazelle from a hunter, † like a bird from a hunter's trap. † †

LAZINESS

6 Go to the ant, † you slacker! †
Observe its ways and become wise.
7 Without leader, administrator, or ruler, 8 it prepares its provisions in summer;
it gathers its food during harvest. †
9 How long will you stay in bed, you slacker?
When will you get up from your sleep?
10 A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the arms to rest,
11 and your poverty will come like a robber, your need, like a bandit. †

THE MALICIOUS MAN

In the church, activities like play, sport, leisure, and recreation have often been dismissed as meaningless, worldly, and contrary to sober Christian living. On the other hand, Christians can be pulled into the idolatry of recreation as an end in itself. Many live for the weekend when we should be living for eternity. A biblical understanding of recreation is that it is given by God for his glory and our good; such an understanding will enable play to be a conduit of glorifying God.

To understand recreation in the Bible, we also need to appreciate related concepts such as laughter, Sabbath, feasts, festivals, childlikeness, dancing, leaping, leisure, sport, and music. These occur most often when God's presence, grace, and glory are most evident to his covenant people.

DEFINING RECREATION

Recreation is a non-compulsory, non-utilitarian activity, often filled with creative spontaneity, which gives perspective, diversion, and rest from the necessary work of daily life. In light of God's sovereignty and faithful love, recreation should demonstrate and encourage God-centered hope, delight, gratitude, and celebration. In light of the fallen and cursed state of the world, recreation gives us a glimpse of the Sabbath rest Christ brings. Gospel-grounded recreation reminds us that God is always working, and because of that, his children can rest.

In order to bring the restorative benefits of recreation, the practical results of it must necessarily fade to an almost subconscious level, lest the restfulness of recreation be lost. Living with faith and hope leads to the kind of joyful discipleship that should instinctively lead to play, naps, games, and walks on the beach. But understanding the theological motive of recreation will increase the joy and freedom of it.

Among the thorns and thistles east of Eden, recreation provides needed perspective, diversion, and rest. Like the arts, recreation can afford "counter-environments" (to use a term from Marshall McLuhan) that provide freedom from dwelling on the daily difficulties of life in a fallen world. Recreation should not serve to anesthetize the Christian to life's burdens, preventing him from engaging them wholeheartedly; rather, it should provide a needed hopeful Sabbath from their relentless presence. As all other areas of our lives, recreation should fall under the sanctifying effects of the Holy Spirit's work.

For a Christian, recreation should never have a trivializing impact on life. Recreation should not be synonymous with wasting time; it should give testimony to the goodness of God. Without serious hard work preceding it, recreation loses its real power to be an interlude into the routine of making ends meet. If recreation serves as merely a diversion rather than giving hopeful perspective, it can actually prevent serious transformative engagement with a world badly in need of redemption. Those who most recognize the difficulty of life in a fallen world are able to rest, play, and laugh best. These moments of emancipation can remind the faithful of the ultimate liberation coming when Jesus makes all things new (Rv 21:5).

CREATION

Recreation has its origin in the Creator himself. The overwhelming artistic variety we see in creation indicates that there is not only an intelligent Designer behind it but also a creative, playful, extravagant Artist. The sheer variety of tastes, colors, sounds, textures, and shapes in creation indicate anything but pure utilitarian motivation by its Creator. God is both skillful Architect and creative Artist. God does nothing based on his own need (Ac 17:24-25; Ps 50:9-12), so creation, like recreation, is meaningful but not necessary. In creating and sustaining everything, and in accomplishing redemption, God's pleasure and glory are his primary motives (Is 43:7; Mt 10:26; Lk 11:21; Eph 1:5,9,11-12). Creation is a source of pleasure and delight for those who delight in the Creator and in the work of his hands.

SABBATH

When creation was exactly as God intended, he rested (Gn 2:2-3). His rest was a demonstration of the goodness and completeness of his work. As a reminder of this, Sabbath-keeping became a central command for God's people (Ex 20:11). Keeping the Sabbath required God's people to disengage from providing for themselves and to remember the ultimate source of their daily bread. The Creator and Sustainer built a mandatory rest into each week so his people would put their efforts for survival into perspective. Rest in God's sufficiency and power attacks an anthropocentric view of life and demands we surrender any vestige of self-sufficiency (cp. Is 41:13-14; Mt 6:25-33; Jms 4:13-17). As Fred Sanders says in his essay, "A Play Ethic: Play Studies in Psychology and Theology,"

> Productive work is an intoxicating thing. The temptation to base one's identity and esteem on what one produces is all but irresistible . . . The command to rest and remember God is a challenge to human productivity. It arrests and relativizes even the most demanding and consuming work, for anything which can be interrupted is not ultimate in importance. Self-important people cannot tolerate this undercutting of their significance.

Sabbath-keeping attacks any hint of human-centeredness or self-sufficiency. Lack of recreation, rest, and play can be a sign of profound hubris.

None of this is intended to undercut human effort, attentiveness, passion, diligence, or responsibility. Nevertheless, human activity must always be subservient to the overarching plan and power of God. While best-selling self-help books tell us that the universe will rearrange itself to give us whatever we want if we exercise the power of positive thinking, God condemns this blasphemous lie and frees us from the impossible role of playing God. He calls us to the freedom and Sabbath rest that lead to childlike dependence, trust, and recreation.

THE HOPE OF THE GOSPEL

The saving work of Christ leads to rest and recreation, for it injects freedom and healing to our broken world. In Christ we see that the human predicament is fixable. The Christian worldview recognizes the relentless difficulty of life in our dysfunctional world, but also embraces the truth that it is being redeemed by the One who created it (Rm 8:18-39). By Christ's life, death, and resurrection, we have hope in the midst of our brokenness. When it is an end in itself, recreation can become a frivolous idol that keeps us from dealing with the human predicament. When grounded in the hope of the gospel, however, recreation can become one of life's greatest and most encouraging pleasures.

RECREATION AND THE COMING KINGDOM

The most stirring images of recreation in the Bible occur in attempts to express the joy and freedom experienced in the coming kingdom of God. The most vivid of these images is Zechariah 8:5: "The streets of the city will be filled with boys and girls playing in them" (cp. Is 11:8-9; Jr 30:18-19; 31:4,13-14). Fearless childlike play, no longer inhibited by the effects of sin and the curse, is a key metaphor for Christ's kingdom.

HEAVEN: THE RECREATION OF ETERNITY

Christian recreation is the response of those who know God as their Father and trust that he has overcome the world and loves to abundantly share the spoils of this victory with his children. God's saving power leads to great joy among God's people (Ps 126:2). This joy is possible even when life is brutal. Luke 6:21 gets at this idea: "Blessed are you who are now hungry, because you will be filled. Blessed are you who weep now, because you will laugh." Empty stomachs and tears are neither the whole story nor its end. God will bring ultimate healing one day.

CONCLUSION

Recreation, like everything else, should be done for the glory of God (1Co 10:31; Col 3:17). When we recreate as hopeful, forgiven children of the King of kings, it glorifies God and gives a glimpse of the final rest. Failure to appreciate recreation in the Christian life could easily turn piety into sanctimony, reverence into rigidity, and sanctification into stuffiness. We must take God, but never ourselves, seriously.

God invites us to approach him as his free, forgiven, secure children. We are to approach our holy God with healthy fear and hearts broken by our broken world. But God's people are also called to rejoice, sing, dance, play, and laugh because we know that the Owner of all things is working out his perfect plan. It's a masterful narrative that ends with a wedding banquet, perfect resolution, and rest. This sure hope in God's sovereign power and loving-kindness enables us to rest and play with reckless abandon, even before the great wedding banquet begins.

K. ERIK THOENNES

12 A worthless person, † a wicked man goes around speaking dishonestly, † 13 winking † his eyes, signaling with his feet, and gesturing with his fingers.
14 He always plots evil † with perversity in his heart; he stirs up trouble. †
15 Therefore calamity will strike him suddenly; he will be shattered instantly, beyond recovery. †

WHAT THE LORD HATES

16 The LORD hates six things; in fact, seven are detestable to him:
17 arrogant eyes, † a lying tongue, † hands that shed innocent blood, † 18 a heart that plots wicked schemes, † feet eager to run to evil, † 19 a lying witness who gives false testimony, † and one who stirs up trouble among brothers. †

WARNING AGAINST ADULTERY

20 My son, keep your father's command, and don't reject your mother's teaching. †
21 Always bind them to your heart; tie them around your neck. †
22 When you walk here and there, they will guide you; when you lie down, they will watch over you; when you wake up, they will talk to you.
23 For a command is a lamp, teaching is a light, † and corrective discipline is the way to life. †

24 They will protect you from an evil woman, † from the flattering † tongue of a wayward woman. † 25 Don't lust in your heart for her beauty † or let her captivate you with her eyelashes. † 26 For a prostitute's fee is only a loaf of bread, † but the wife of another man † goes after a precious life. †
27 Can a man embrace fire and his clothes not be burned?
28 Can a man walk on burning coals without scorching his feet?
29 So it is with the one who sleeps with another man's wife;
no one who touches her will go unpunished. †
30 People don't despise the thief if he steals to satisfy himself when he is hungry. † 31 Still, if caught, he must pay seven times as much; †
he must give up all the wealth in his house.
32 The one who commits adultery † lacks sense; whoever does so destroys himself. †
33 He will get a beating † and dishonor, and his disgrace will never be removed.
34 For jealousy enrages a husband, † and he will show no mercy when he takes revenge.
35 He will not be appeased by anything or be persuaded by lavish bribes.

6:20 Heeding parental instruction is again commended to the son (see the notes on 1:8-10; 2:1; "Christian Perspectives on Children's Education," p. 225).

6:22-23 The comparison of this wise instruction to a lamp and a light for a path parallels the description of Scripture found in Psalms 119:105 (see also the notes on 3:3; 4:27).

6:24 The adulteress is again characterized as a smooth talker (see 5:3; 7:5,14-21; 22:14).

6:27-35 Adultery is not only a sin (Ex 20:14), but it is foolishness (v. 32; 5:23). Negative consequences for it are as certain as they are for a man who would embrace fire or walk on burning coals (vv. 27-28; see also 5:9-14; 7:22-27). Such consequences include disgrace and the rage of the offended husband (vv. 33-35).

A STORY OF SEDUCTION

6 At the window of my house I looked through my lattice. †
7 I saw among the inexperienced, †
I noticed among the youths,
a young man lacking sense.
8 Crossing the street near her corner, he strolled down the road to her house
9 at twilight, in the evening, in the dark of the night. †
10 A woman came to meet him dressed like a prostitute, † having a hidden agenda. †
11 She is loud and defiant; † her feet do not stay at home. † 12 Now in the street, now in the squares, † she lurks at every corner. †

13 She grabs him and kisses him; she brazenly says † to him, 14 “I’ve made fellowship offerings; today I’ve fulfilled my vows. † 15 So I came out to meet you, to search for you, and I’ve found you.
16 I’ve spread coverings on my bed † — richly colored linen from Egypt. †
17 I’ve perfumed my bed with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon. †
18 Come, let’s drink deeply of lovemaking until morning. †
Let’s feast on each other’s love!
19 My husband isn’t home; he went on a long journey.
20 He took a bag of silver with him and will come home at the time of the full moon.”
21 She seduces him with her persistent pleading; she lures with her flattering † talk.
22 He follows her impulsively like an ox going to the slaughter, like a deer bounding toward a trap † 23 until an arrow pierces its † liver, † like a bird darting into a snare † — he doesn’t know it will cost him his life.

24 Now, sons, listen to me, and pay attention to the words from my mouth.
25 Don’t let your heart turn aside to her ways; don’t stray onto her paths. †
26 For she has brought many down to death; her victims are countless. † 27 Her house is the road to Sheol, descending to the chambers of death. †

7:6-9 The vivid scene that begins to unfold here depicts the process of temptation and enticement by an adulteress. The young man lacking sense (v. 7) who walks by her house in the evening (vv. 8-9) serves as a negative example (see vv. 24-27).

7:10 As in 6:25, the adulteress uses her attractive appearance to seduce. Her hidden agenda is dangerous because she is not forthcoming about her motives or intentions.

7:14-20 The adulteress’ mention of fellowship offerings may hint that she has food at home, since worshipers kept a portion of the offering. She entices the young man by appealing to his senses: sight (v. 16), smell (v. 17). and then, metaphorically, taste (v. 18). She also attempts to make him feel special, as though she had come to meet and search (v. 15) specifically for him—a brazen lie (see v. 12).

7:24-27 Because the adulteress has brought many down to death (v. 26; 2:18-19), the speaker's sons are again warned to stay away from her (vv. 24-25; 5:8).

WISDOM'S APPEAL

8 Doesn't wisdom † call out?
Doesn't understanding make her voice heard?
2 At the heights overlooking the road, at the crossroads, she takes her stand.
3 Beside the gates † leading into the city, at the main entrance, she cries out:
4 "People, I call out to you; my cry is to the children of Adam.
5 Learn to be shrewd, you who are inexperienced; develop common sense, you who are foolish.
6 Listen, for I speak of noble things, and what my lips say is right.
7 For my mouth tells the truth, † and wickedness is detestable to my lips.
8 All the words from my mouth are righteous; none of them are deceptive or perverse. † 9 All of them are clear to the perceptive, † and right to those who discover knowledge.
10 Accept my instruction instead of silver, and knowledge rather than pure gold. † 11 For wisdom is better than jewels, † and nothing desirable can equal it. †
12 I, wisdom, share a home with shrewdness and have knowledge and discretion. †
13 To fear the LORD is to hate evil. †
I hate arrogant pride, evil conduct, and perverse speech.
14 I possess good advice and sound wisdom; †
I have understanding and strength. † 15 It is by me that kings reign † and rulers enact just law;

16 by me, princes lead, as do nobles and all righteous judges. † 17 I love those who love me, † and those who search for me find me. † 18 With me are riches and honor, † lasting wealth and righteousness. †
19 My fruit is better than solid gold, and my harvest than pure silver. †
20 I walk in the ways of righteousness, along the paths of justice, 21 giving wealth as an inheritance to those who love me, and filling their treasuries.

22 "The LORD acquired † me at the beginning of his creation, † before his works of long ago. †
23 I was formed † before ancient times, from the beginning, before the earth began. † 24 I was born when there were no watery depths † and no springs filled with water.
25 Before the mountains were established, prior to the hills, † I was given birth — 26 before he made the land, the fields, or the first soil on earth.
27 I was there when he established the heavens, †
when he laid out the horizon on the surface of the ocean, † 28 when he placed the skies above, when the fountains of the ocean gushed out, 29 when he set a limit for the sea so that the waters would not violate his command, †
when he laid out the foundations of the earth. †
30 I was a skilled craftsman † beside him. †
I was his † delight every day, always rejoicing before him.
31 I was rejoicing in his inhabited world, † delighting in the children of Adam. †

32 "And now, sons, listen to me; those who keep my ways are happy. †

33 Listen to instruction and be wise; † don't ignore it.
34 Anyone who listens to me is happy, † watching at my doors every day, waiting by the posts of my doorway.

and obtains favor from the LORD, †

all who hate me love death." †

8:1-10 Rather than listening to the enticements of an adulteress (2:16; 5:3; 6:24; 7:5,14-21) or of sinners generally (1:10-16; 2:12), readers are urged to listen to wisdom, which is again personified as a woman (1:20-33; 3:13-18; 4:6-9; 9:1-9). She offers her help to all the children of Adam (v. 4), and with her assistance even the inexperienced and foolish can acquire understanding (v. 5). Similarly, the wise fatherly instruction of the speaker has been repeatedly commended (1:8; 2:1; 3:1; 4:1,10,20; 5:1,7; 6:20; 7:1,24).

8:13-16 One important aspect of "the fear of the LORD" (and wisdom; see 1:7) is to hate evil. This is reflected in verses 7 (see also 16:6; Jb 1:1,8; 2:3; Ps 34:11-14). In connection with this, wisdom and just government are closely related (vv. 15-16).

8:17 Wisdom is not acquired easily or by accident but must be loved and sought (see also 2:3-5; 3:18).

8:22-31 The Lord's creation of the universe with his wisdom (v. 30) had been affirmed in 3:19-20, and personified wisdom also asserts her authority related to her presence during creation. Wisdom is not a passing fad but has existed from the beginning (v. 23). The Lord acted with wisdom and so should the reader. See "Ultimate Origins and the Christian Worldview," p. 846.

WISDOM VERSUS FOOLISHNESS

9 Wisdom has built her house; †
she has carved out her seven pillars.

2 She has prepared her meat; † she has mixed her wine; † she has also set her table. †
3 She has sent out her female servants; †
she calls out from the highest points of the city: †
4 “Whoever is inexperienced, enter here! ”
To the one who lacks sense, † she says, 5 “Come, eat my bread, † and drink the wine I have mixed.
6 Leave inexperience behind, and you will live; pursue the way of understanding.
7 The one who corrects a mocker will bring abuse on himself;
the one who rebukes the wicked will get hurt. †
8 Don’t rebuke a mocker, or he will hate you; † rebuke the wise, and he will love you. †
9 Instruct the wise, and he will be wiser still; teach the righteous, and he will learn more. †

10 “The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom, † and the knowledge of the Holy One † is understanding.
11 For by me your days will be many, and years will be added to your life.
12 If you are wise, you are wise for your own benefit; † if you mock, you alone will bear the consequences.”

13 Folly is a rowdy woman; † she is gullible and knows nothing. †
14 She sits by the doorway of her house, on a seat at the highest point of the city, 15 calling to those who pass by, who go straight ahead on their paths: †
16 “Whoever is inexperienced, enter here! ”
To the one who lacks sense, she says,
17 “Stolen water is sweet, and bread eaten secretly is tasty! ” †
18 But he doesn’t know that the departed spirits are there, † that her guests are in the depths of Sheol. †

9:1-9 Wisdom again is personified as a woman who calls to the general populace to learn from her (see 1:20-33), which is depicted as going to her house and partaking of her feast (vv. 1-6).

9:10 As the first section of Proverbs is about to end (Pr 1–9), a slight variation of the theme verse of Proverbs (see the note on 1:7) is strategically repeated: the fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom. The way of wisdom is the way to life and blessing (vv. 11-12; see 3:16-18; 4:22; 8:18-21,34-35).

9:13-18 Like wisdom (vv. 1-6), Folly—also personified as a woman—calls out to those passing by, especially the inexperienced and the one who lacks sense (vv. 4,16), to come to her house to dine. Although she promises pleasure, her meal is one partaken in foolishness and sin (v. 17). Those who go to her go to their deaths (v. 18).

A COLLECTION OF SOLOMON'S PROVERBS

10 Solomon's proverbs: †

A wise son brings joy to his father,
but a foolish son, heartache to his mother. †

2 Ill-gotten gains do not profit anyone, but righteousness rescues from death. †

3 The LORD will not let the righteous go hungry, † but he denies the wicked what they crave. †

4 Idle hands make one poor, but diligent hands bring riches. †

5 The son who gathers during summer is prudent; the son who sleeps during harvest is disgraceful. †

10:1 While Proverbs 1–9 contains extended discourses about the nature of wisdom and the need to pursue it, Proverbs 10–29 continues with individual aphorisms or wise statements. These pithy sayings cover a range of topics and are given in the context of the preceding chapters, especially their emphasis on the fear of God (see the notes on 1:7; 9:10). The section begins with a collection of Solomon's proverbs (see also 22:17; 24:23; 25:1). Just as the previous section had begun with a reference to parents (1:8-9), so it is here. This verse describes parents' joy over a wise son and heartache over a foolish one (see also the note on 17:21).

10:4-5 These two proverbs commend diligence and planning, while warning against idleness and laziness (see also 6:6-11).

10:18-21 These four consecutive proverbs concern speech. They warn against lying, slander, and giving free rein to the tongue (vv. 18-19) while also expressing the potential positive effects of righteous speech (vv. 20-21). A common theme in Wisdom literature is that it is not only important to do the right thing, but to do the right thing at the right time. Thus, speech or silence may be the best action depending on the circumstances.

10:25 Like verses 9,17,27, this proverb promises a hopeful future for the righteous, who are described as being secure forever (see also v. 30; note on 2:21-22).

11 Dishonest scales are detestable to the LORD, † but an accurate weight is his delight. †

2 When arrogance comes, disgrace follows, but with humility comes wisdom. †

3 The integrity of the upright guides them, †
but the perversity of the treacherous destroys them. †

4 Wealth is not profitable on a day of wrath, but righteousness rescues from death. †

5 The righteousness of the blameless clears his path, but the wicked person will fall because of his wickedness.

6 The righteousness of the upright rescues them, but the treacherous are trapped by their own desires. †

7 When the wicked person dies, his expectation comes to nothing, and hope placed in wealth † † vanishes. †

8 The righteous one is rescued from trouble; in his place, the wicked one goes in. †

9 With his mouth the ungodly destroys his neighbor, but through knowledge the righteous are rescued.

10 When the righteous thrive, a city rejoices; † when the wicked die, there is joyful shouting.

11 A city is built up by the blessing of the upright, † but it is torn down by the mouth of the wicked. †

12 Whoever shows contempt for his neighbor lacks sense, but a person with understanding keeps silent. †

13 A gossip goes around revealing a secret, but a trustworthy person keeps a confidence. †

14 Without guidance, a people will fall, but with many counselors there is deliverance. †

15 If someone puts up security for a stranger, he will suffer for it, † but the one who hates such agreements is protected.

16 A gracious woman gains honor, but violent † people gain only riches.

17 A kind man benefits himself, † but a cruel person brings ruin on himself. †

18 The wicked person earns an empty wage, but the one who sows righteousness, a true reward. †

19 Genuine righteousness leads to life, † but pursuing evil leads to death. †

20 Those with twisted minds are detestable to the LORD, but those with blameless conduct are his delight. †

21 Be assured † that a wicked person will not go unpunished, † but the offspring of the righteous will escape.

22 A beautiful woman who rejects good sense is like a gold ring in a pig's snout. †

23 The desire of the righteous turns out well, † but the hope of the wicked leads to wrath. †

24 One person gives freely, yet gains more; † another withholds what is right, only to become poor. †

25 A generous person will be enriched, † and the one who gives a drink of water will receive water. †

26 People will curse † anyone who hoards grain, but a blessing will come to the one who sells it. †

27 The one who searches for what is good † seeks favor, but if someone looks for trouble, it will come to him. †

28 Anyone trusting in his riches will fall, †
but the righteous will flourish like foliage. †

29 The one who brings ruin on his household † will inherit the wind, † and a fool will be a slave to someone whose heart is wise.

30 The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life, † and a wise person captivates people.

31 If the righteous will be repaid on earth, how much more the wicked and sinful. †

11:1 Such scales and weight[s] relate to business dealings (see Hs 12:7; Am 8:5; Mc 6:11). God's desire for honesty in this area of life can also be found elsewhere in Proverbs (16:11; 20:10,23) and in the OT (Lv 19:36; Dt 25:13-16; Ezk 45:10).

11:4 Although wealth does provide a measure of security (10:15), only righteousness can deliver from death (see also vv. 6,8,9; 11:28).

11:5-6 The Hebrew phrase translated clears his path is similar to the one in 3:6b. Thus, the idea seems to be that the righteousness of the blameless directs him (see v. 3), just as God does in 3:5-6.

11:15 Such entanglements had been likewise warned against in 6:1-5.

11:22 This vivid proverb warns the reader against being infatuated with a woman's beautiful outward appearance when she lacks godly character. Just as the value of gold is wasted if placed in the snout of an unclean pig, beauty (a desirable attribute) is wasted if not accompanied by good sense and wise action.

11:24-26 These three proverbs encourage generosity and sharing. Ironically, the one who gives gains more, is himself enriched, and receives blessing.

11:31 Like verse 21, this proverb implicitly assumes that God will execute justice, which is affirmed explicitly in 12:2; 16:4; 22:22-23; 23:10-11; 24:12.

12:4 This proverb, like others (e.g., 19:14; 31:10-31), commends marrying well. The Hebrew phrase translated a wife of noble character is the same as in 31:10 (see also Ru 2:4). She is wise (31:26,30) and sharply contrasts with both the adulteress (see the note on 2:16-19) and the woman Folly (see the note on 9:13-18).

12:9 This proverb illustrates the foolishness of pretentiousness and the emptiness of public opinion. There are a number of “better than” proverbs in the book. The idea is that it is better to suffer something undesirable, as long as it accompanies something desirable, than to avoid the undesirable thing at the risk of losing the desirable thing as well. In this proverb, having some means is so important that it is worth suffering some dishonor. These proverbs are often used to teach the value of virtues, and to teach that virtues should be prioritized above wealth, which is comparably insignificant (see 15:16,17; 16:8,19; 17:1,12; 19:1,22; 21:19).

12:10 The kindness of a righteous man extends even to his animal (see Jnh 4:11; “Animal Rights,” p. 21).

12:15 This proverb warns the reader against excessive trust in one’s own judgment, which is characteristic of a fool (see also 14:12; 16:25; 21:2). The doing of what is right in [one’s] own eyes had likewise characterized Israelites during the chaotic period of the judges (see Jdg 17:6; 21:25). Vastly superior and more important is doing right in God’s eyes (e.g., Ex 15:26; Dt 6:18); hence, heeding good counsel is correspondingly commended here (see the note on 13:1).

12:18 This proverb instructs the reader regarding the power of the tongue, whether for harm or for healing (see Jms 3:1-12).

12:25 The heart is “the source of life” (4:23), so naturally anxiety weighs it down (see also 13:12; 15:13).

13:1 A key distinction between the wise and the foolish is whether they listen to correction (see also vv.

10,13,18; note on 12:15). An important part of wisdom is a willingness to learn and be corrected for even greater understanding.

13:7 Related to 12:10, this proverb explains that appearances of riches and poverty may not be what they seem.

13:8 This proverb perceptively observes that wealth can bring with it some risk to a person's well-being.

13:20 Companions influence a person's character development. The implication of this proverb is that those who would be wise should seek wise companions. Along these lines, the reader is also warned against associating with the "hot-tempered" (22:24-25), or with "those who drink too much" or "gorge themselves" (23:20-21).

13:22 One characteristic of a good man is the sharing of blessings with grandchildren (see also 12:10).

13:23 Such injustice is not being commended, but merely observed (see 14:20).

13:24 Although unpleasant in the moment, disciplining one's children is an act of love. Neglecting to do so harms them in the long run (see 19:18).

14 Every wise woman builds her house, †

CHRISTIANITY AND MORAL RELATIVISM

The notion that some actions can be objectively "good" while other things are objectively "evil" seems almost laughable these days. I asked a class of fifty freshman college students—90 percent of whom came from "strong evangelical homes and churches"—how they would define "morally good." How would they discern good from evil? One student's answer, that "it depends on what you like," became the basis for a conversation that lasted the class period. None of those students—not one—disagreed deeply with the first student's statement. They argued that Christians (they themselves) should follow the Bible's guidelines; but, they had concluded that this very criterion just proved the first student's point that truth and goodness are relative to what one believes or feels is right.

That the common rationalistic argument of many apologists ("God" is necessary for any conversation about absolute good or evil) has failed to give a unified understanding of morality goes without mention. Disparate convictions and arguments, even among evangelicals, reveal such only too clearly. The best evidence for this may be the simple observation that when the Bible does not speak directly to an issue (and often even when it does), the default behavior of those who claim to follow its teaching is to mirror their surrounding communities. Propositional statements about right and wrong, then, fail to convince—regardless of claims to the opposite.

To this generation of postmoderns (and many moderns of earlier generations) there seems to be something inherently unsatisfactory in the claim that since relativists are caught in their own argument ("everything is relative" is nullified by itself being an absolute statement), there must be an absolute morality that is defined by a necessary higher being—God. So, is there another way to consider this? Would a narrative, rather than a propositional approach, offer a more useful avenue? It appears so.

A NARRATIVE APPROACH TO MORALITY

A narrative approach to the question of morality yields a natural way to contemporize the content of "God's morality" to issues, settings, and dilemmas of contemporary cultures that are now more mixed and diverse than ever. It enables a Christian testimony in settings that are otherwise hostile to traditional Christian language. A narrative approach to morality allows Christians to engage conversations on the subject as truth seekers, rather than as truth dispensers.

For example, few Westerners outside the church frame the question of morality as an issue of sin. Starvation of multitudes, oppression of the poor and the powerless, enslavement and tyranny that denies basic human freedoms, injustices related to ethnicity, gender, and age, physical handicaps, and war provide the focus and frame the language of most moral questioning and conversation today. Even on the narrower level of "home and neighborhood," questions about violence and gun control, bullying and kindness, sex and immorality, divorce and family life are rarely considered—even by Christians—in a framework shaped by the language of sin and righteousness.

CHRISTIAN MORALITY AND DISCIPLESHIP

Does this mean that Christians no longer can or should speak with moral certitude? Not at all. Jesus is still "the way, the truth, and the life" (Jn 14:6). As we learn from Jesus's declaration of purpose in Luke 4:18, and from the beatitudes in Matthew 5:1-9, the stage for a discussion of Christian morality must be firmly anchored in language about imitation of Christ. The very nature of Christian morality is discipleship—not theoretical propositional statements. Put differently, Christ followers recognize that judgment is coming to those passing by the needy "on the other side" (Lk 10:31-33). As the parable of the Good Samaritan reveals, Christian morality is not merely a truth to be claimed; it is a life to be lived.

Paul's approach to morality follows a similar pattern and is closely tied to his personal testimony. His own story becomes his strongest argument for the truthfulness of his message and convictions—revealed in a life other believers will do well to imitate (1Co 4:11-16; 11:1). Presenting morality claims in a narrative setting does not make them private; rather, it reveals that moral questions are interrelated and cannot be separated from a grand narrative. Attempting to tackle one moral question as though it did not relate to other moral questions will ultimately prove self-defeating.

Major movements in church history reveal the same pattern. The German reformer, Martin Luther, began what became the greatest reformation in the history of the church with this intensely personal statement: “Here I stand, I can do no other.” Like Paul, his point was not to give a private statement—attempting to explain a moral conviction that was exclusive to him and maybe a few others who felt the same way. Rather, Luther recognized the truth of the Bible’s grand narrative and concluded that his opponents had not.

The statements of Paul and Luther are powerful because they were not mere relative statements designed to express personal convictions that were true for them but might not be for others. They did not aim to give a modern plea for the supremacy of the individual’s conscience. Rather, their words were intended to show that morality is inseparably connected to God’s interaction with his creation. They offered an invitation to consider God’s story (the biblical narrative) as the story that holds the greatest truth value, makes the most sense of reality, and delivers the grandest rationale for the whole human situation.

CHRISTIANITY’S STORY AND MORAL RELATIVISM TODAY

To our generation—a generation who considers its own individual stories and situations the most significant guide for morality—the NT language of imitation of Christ is an invitation to reconsider our story and to read it anew in light of the gospel story. It’s an invitation to consider the biblical narrative for the evaluation of any question related to human life and morality. Moreover, it’s an invitation to consider it the only story that gives a sufficient and comprehensive answer to the human situation.

Because God’s story remains relentlessly relational, a narrative approach to morality offers the best critique of moral relativism. God’s history with humanity reveals the benefits of Christ’s work for the whole human situation. It views all questions through one narrative that is grounded in the story of creation and purpose, fall and redemption. And, as this narrative unfolds, it reveals the rising of a new horizon on which to evaluate yet unknown moral questions. Jesus’s message that the kingdom of God is here already, though not fully gives fresh light that helps us see the road forward. It offers secure footing and enables us to tackle new questions guided by the old truth.

For Christians who are concerned that the story is not sufficiently powerful as a guide for moral questions, Paul’s farewell to the Ephesian elders (whose setting was as pluralistic as the most urban of modern cities) serves as a helpful reminder (Ac 20:32). Rather than arguing propositionally, Paul reminded his hearers how God’s story had already given moral guidance to their situation (Ac 20:35). Then, full of confidence, he simply committed them “to God and to the word of his grace” (Ac 20:32).

A narrative approach to questions of morality requires keen awareness of God’s grand story. It will prove an effective tool in combating moral relativism, which mostly seems to pick and choose from whatever appears to be the most convenient contemporary narrative.

CONCLUSION

Some argue that people’s judgment is relative to something they hold to be true. Others argue that moral decision is anchored in what counts as evidence in various situations and for various people. There are, in other words, differing arguments for moral relativism. Engaging such a conversation from a propositional perspective proves inherently difficult.

Approaching issues of morality from a narrative perspective, however, opens fresh conversation and drives it to a pursuit of the best story—the best foundation and guide for moral decision making. It reveals the insufficiency of other smaller stories, and it empowers the church to be fruitful stewards of God’s story. The church community is commissioned to translate his story into ways of living that connects with, and transforms, the communities in which it is located. Doing so enables us to counter moral relativism because the story of Scripture is the truth about life.

16:2 The Lord weighs motives and understands human hearts even better than humans do (see Jr 17:9; 1Co 4:4).

16:3 This counsel echoes 3:5-6 and Ps 37:5-6.

16:8 Like 15:16-17, this "better than" proverb reminds the reader that material wealth is not the highest good (see also 17:1; 19:1). See the note on 12:9.

16:9 Though not discouraging the making of plans, this proverb expresses God's sovereignty over them (see also v. 1; 19:21).

16:11 Regarding such balances and scales, see the note on 11:1.

16:18 This well-known proverb warns the reader against pride. Typically accompanied by complacency, carelessness, and overconfidence, pride naturally comes before destruction (see also 18:12).

16:25 Like 14:12, this proverb warns that a person can be both confident and dreadfully mistaken at the same time.

16:31 Gray hair signifies old age and the wisdom gained from years of life experience (see also 20:29).

16:33 Even something apparently random, such as casting a lot to make a decision, is under the sovereign control of God.

a liar pays attention to a destructive tongue.

5 The one who mocks the poor insults his Maker, † and one who rejoices over calamity

6 Grandchildren are the crown of the elderly, and the pride of children is

7 Eloquent words are not appropriate on a fool's lips; how much worse are lies for a ruler.

8 A bribe † seems like a magic stone to its owner; wherever he turns, he succeeds. †

9 Whoever conceals an offense promotes love, †
but whoever gossips about it separates friends. †

10 A rebuke cuts into a perceptive person more than a hundred lashes into a fool.

11 An evil person desires only rebellion; a cruel messenger † † will be sent against him.

14 To start a conflict is to release a flood; stop the dispute before it breaks out. †

15 Acquitting the guilty and condemning the just † — both are detestable to the LORD.

16 Why does a fool have money in his hand with no intention of buying wisdom? †

17 A friend loves at all times, † and a brother is born for a difficult time.

18 One without sense enters an agreement †

19 One who loves to offend loves strife; † one who builds a high threshold invites injury.

20 One with a twisted mind will not succeed, and one with deceitful speech will fall into ruin. †

21 A man fathers a fool to his own sorrow; the father of a fool has no joy. †

22 A joyful heart is good medicine, but a broken spirit dries up the bones. †

23 A wicked person secretly takes a bribe † to subvert the course of justice. †

24 Wisdom is the focus of the perceptive, but a fool's eyes † roam to the ends of the earth.

17:5 Like 14:31, mistreatment of the poor is not only forbidden but insults his Maker, who has made both the "rich and poor" (22:2). Other proverbs encourage "kindness" to the poor (14:21; 19:17; 28:8,27).

17:8 Like some other proverbs (e.g., 13:23; 14:20), this statement observes something about life without evaluating it ethically. A bribe can accomplish much, but bribery is not recommended as it is usually associated with corruption (see v. 23).

17:9 Allowing the offense of another person to go unmentioned can be a wise act that promotes harmony and love (see also 10:12; 19:11). This proverb, however, should not be used to justify cover-ups, deception, or silence in the face of evil (e.g., 31:8-9; Is 1:17).

17:15 Such injustices are detestable to the LORD (see also v. 26; 18:5).

17:17 The preciousness of such a friend or brother stems from his faithfulness, especially during hard times.

17:18 Regarding such agreements, see 6:1-5 and 11:15.

17:21 The theme of parental grief over a foolish child is revisited (see v. 25; note on 10:1; 15:20).

17:24 One characteristic of the fool is his disinterest in wisdom and preoccupation instead with things far out of his reach.

17:27-28 Both proverbs concern restraint of the tongue. It is so important that even a fool is considered wise when he keeps silent (see also notes on 10:18-21; 12:18).

18 One who isolates himself pursues selfish desires; he rebels against

12 Before his downfall a person's heart is proud, † but humility comes before honor. †

13 The one who gives an answer before he listens — this is foolishness

14 A person's spirit can endure sickness, but who can survive a broken spirit? †

18:17 This proverb encourages gathering information from different sources before forming an opinion on a case.

19:4 This proverb describes the reality that those seeking friendship are often influenced by self-interest (see also vv. 6-7).

20:11 A wise and godly person can be recognized by actions. Claims to have such character are not necessarily true (see v. 6).

20:18 Like other proverbs (11:14; 15:22), this one commends the seeking of counsel, especially for major decisions.

20:24 Since God is sovereign over each person's life and his plans will prevail (16:9; 19:21; 21:30), it is impossible for a person to fully understand his own way.

20:28 This proverb affirms the importance of loyalty and faithfulness to the stability of a king's rule and to government (see also 14:34).

20:30 Such productive corporal punishment is more likely when applied to children (13:24; 19:18; 22:15) than to fools (27:22).

PERSONAL FINANCES

The Bible has much to say about money. The topic of money or wealth is addressed well over seventy times in the NT alone. How can a Christian living in the twenty-first century think rightly about finances using principles that were outlined in the first century or earlier? Think about all of the decisions you have made this year that were influenced by how much money you have or lack. Perhaps you chose between coffee at home versus coffee at Starbucks? Maybe you decided between tithing at church or paying off your credit card? It could be that there were days when you just wondered how to buy your next meal. The following offers a quick overview of how the Bible addresses saving money, going into debt, and giving.

TO SAVE OR NOT TO SAVE?

In Matthew 6:26-29, Jesus says, "Consider the birds of the sky: They don't sow or reap or gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Aren't you worth more than they? Can any of you add one moment to his lifespan by worrying? And why do you worry about clothes? Observe how the wildflowers of the field grow: They don't labor or spin thread. Yet I tell you that not even Solomon in all his splendor was adorned like one of these." Earlier in the same chapter, Jesus says, "Don't store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal. But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven" (Mt 6:19-20).

These verses seem to discourage a Christian from saving money, but there are also several verses in the Bible that encourage saving. Proverbs 21:20, for instance, says, "Precious treasure and oil are in the dwelling of a wise person, but a fool consumes them." The wisdom of this advice has been proven many times over, such as when the stock market and other investments lose value quickly. During recessions, many people are laid off from jobs they planned to work until retirement. The Bible advocates saving in times of plenty to prepare for times like these.

So what is a Christian to do? Save as much as possible for tomorrow, or give everything away today and trust in the Lord for future provision? Looking at the verses cited above alone, it might seem that we are given contradictory advice. But, in fact, the Bible advocates balance. It is wise to save money each paycheck for unexpected future expenses. It is wise to contribute to a retirement account each month, knowing there may be a day when we are physically incapable of earning a wage. But it is also important not to hoard all of the money or talents God has given us. When we are saving, we must remember that ultimately God is the provider. Remembering that God provided the money makes it easier to give it back to him through tithing or providing for someone else in need. So, save your money for a rainy day, but don't be afraid to spend it if it rains—or to give it away if you see someone else struggling in a downpour.

SHOULD A CHRISTIAN EVER HAVE FINANCIAL DEBT?

According to 2013 statistics from the Federal Reserve, the average American household has about $15,000 in credit card debt, $150,000 in mortgage debt, and $32,000 in outstanding student loans. Many Americans rely on debt to continue their current lifestyle. But debt is a burden that allows past decisions to control our current spending decisions. It can prevent one's ability to be generous. Substantial debt can even hamper your ability to respond to God's call for your vocation. Nevertheless, while the Bible discourages Christians from going into debt, it does not categorically prohibit it (Rm 13:8).

Going into debt to purchase an item is often a poor use of one's resources. Borrowing money to buy something actually makes that purchase more expensive since you have to pay for the full cost of the item and make interest payments until the debt is paid in full. For example, if you financed a $20,000 car over five years with a 10 percent interest rate, it actually costs you $5,500 more than it would have if you'd paid cash. Avoiding debt is one way to do more with the resources God has entrusted to you.

Nevertheless, in the twenty-first-century econ-omy there are situations in which one might have to use debt to purchase a home, pay for education, or pay for a health emergency. It's important to recognize that you can have debt and still be a good steward—so long as you are only borrowing for a need that is manageable to repay. Throughout the Bible, Christians are encouraged to be generous, and we will be more likely to practice generosity if we have avoided entangling ourselves in debt.

HOW SHOULD A CHRISTIAN THINK ABOUT GIVING AND TITHING?

In the NT, the overwhelming expectation with respect to money is generosity. Acts 20:35 admonishes, "In every way I've shown you that it is necessary to help the weak by laboring like this and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, because he said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'" So how should a Christian practice tithing and generosity today?

Tithing was strictly required in OT times. All the people of Israel were required to give to the temple 10 percent of everything they earned or grew. There were actually several tithes required that would have made the total giving much higher than the traditional "tithe" of 10 percent (Nm 18; Dt 14). In contrast, the NT does not specify an exact amount or percentage that a Christian should give away, but many scholars believe the minimum practice of the OT sets the baseline. We are told to give generously as we are able in keeping with how we prosper (1Co 16:2). While there may not be an exact formula used to tell us how to give, the admonishments to generosity are compelling. In Luke 6:30, Jesus tells us, “Give to everyone who asks you, and from someone who takes your things, don’t ask for them back.” In Luke 3:11 he says, “The one who has two shirts must share with someone who has none, and the one who has food must do the same.”

In conclusion, God calls us to be good stewards of the financial assets he blesses us with so that we can seek his wisdom and give generously from what he has given. A Christian can practice that by avoiding debt, saving regularly, and living below his means so he always has something to give. In the end, it is the heart that matters most to God. Second Corinthians 9:7 point to this: “Each person should do as he has decided in his heart—not reluctantly or out of compulsion, since God loves a cheerful giver.”

TIMOTHY D. DOCKERY

21 A king’s heart is like channeled water in the LORD’s hand: He directs it wherever he chooses. †

2 All a person’s ways seem right to him, but the LORD weighs hearts. †

3 Doing what is righteous and just is more acceptable to the LORD than sacrifice. †

4 The lamp that guides the wicked — haughty eyes and an arrogant heart † — is sin.

5 The plans of the diligent certainly lead to profit, but anyone who is reckless certainly becomes poor. †

6 Making a fortune through a lying tongue is a vanishing mist, † a pursuit of death. † † †

7 The violence of the wicked sweeps them away because they refuse to act justly.

8 A guilty one’s conduct is crooked, † but the behavior of the innocent is upright. †

9 Better to live on the corner of a roof than to share a house with a nagging wife. †

10 A wicked person desires evil; he has no consideration † for his neighbor. †

11 When a mocker is punished, the inexperienced become wiser;
when one teaches a wise man,
he acquires knowledge. †

12 The Righteous One † considers the house of the wicked; he brings the wicked to ruin.

13 The one who shuts his ears to the cry of the poor will himself also call out and not be answered. †

14 A secret gift soothes anger, and a covert bribe, fierce rage. †

15 Justice executed is a joy to the righteous but a terror to those who practice iniquity. †

16 The person who strays from the way of prudence will come to rest in the assembly of the departed spirits. †

17 The one who loves pleasure will become poor; whoever loves wine and oil will not get rich. †

18 The wicked are a ransom for the righteous, and the treacherous, for † the upright. †

19 Better to live in a wilderness than with a nagging and hot-tempered wife. †

20 Precious treasure and oil are in the dwelling of a wise person, but a fool consumes them. † †

21 The one who pursues righteousness and faithful love will find life, righteousness, and honor. †

22 A wise person went up against a city of warriors and brought down its secure fortress. †

23 The one who guards his mouth and tongue keeps himself out of trouble. †

24 The arrogant and proud person, named “Mocker,” acts with excessive arrogance. †

25 A slacker’s craving will kill him because his hands refuse to work. †
26 He is filled with craving † all day long, but the righteous give and don’t hold back. †

27 The sacrifice of a wicked person is detestable — how much more so when he brings it with ulterior motives! †

28 A lying witness will perish, † but the one who listens will speak successfully.

29 A wicked person puts on a bold face, † but the upright one considers his way.

21:1 God’s sovereignty over every person extends even to the most powerful ones, such as the king (see 19:21; 20:24).

21:3 This proverb parallels 1 Samuel 15:22-23 (see note).

21:9 The theme of the nagging wife reappears (see 19:13), and the misery of living with her is vividly described (see also v. 19).

21:16 In other words, those who turn from wisdom will die (see 2:18-19).

21:21 The thought here is similar to Romans 2:7 (see also Pr 22:4).

21:27 In the spirit of verse 3, this proverb forcefully declares the worthlessness of the sacrifice of a wicked person (see also the note on Ps 51:16-17).

21:30-31 These proverbs reaffirm God's sovereignty over all human plans and preparation.

22 A good name is to be chosen over great wealth; favor is better than silver and gold. †

2 Rich and poor have this in common: † the LORD makes them all. †

3 A sensible person sees danger and takes cover, but the inexperienced keep going and are punished. †

4 Humility, the fear of the LORD, results in wealth, honor, and life. †

5 There are thorns and snares on the way of the crooked; † the one who guards himself stays far from them.

6 Start a youth out on his way; † even when he grows old he will not depart from it.

7 The rich rule over the poor, † and the borrower is a slave to the lender. †

8 The one who sows injustice will reap disaster, † and the rod of his fury will be destroyed.

9 A generous person † will be blessed, † for he shares his food with the poor. †

10 Drive out a mocker, † and conflict goes too; then quarreling and dishonor will cease. †

11 The one who loves a pure heart and gracious lips — the king is his friend. †

12 The LORD's eyes keep watch over knowledge, but he overthrows the words of the treacherous.

13 The slacker says, "There's a lion outside!
I'll be killed in the public square! " †

14 The mouth of the forbidden woman is a deep pit; a man cursed by the LORD will fall into it. †

15 Foolishness is bound to the heart of a youth; a rod of discipline will separate it from him. †

16 Oppressing the poor to enrich oneself, and giving to the rich — both lead only to poverty. †

WORDS OF THE WISE

17 Listen closely, † pay attention to the words of the wise, † and apply your mind to my knowledge.
18 For it is pleasing if you keep them within you and if they are † constantly on your lips.
19 I have instructed you today — even you — so that your confidence may be in the LORD.
20 Haven't I written for you thirty sayings † about counsel and knowledge, 21 in order to teach you true and reliable words, so that you may give a dependable report † † to those who sent you? †

22 Don't rob a poor person because he is poor, and don't crush the oppressed † at the city gate, † 23 for the LORD will champion their cause † and will plunder those who plunder them.

24 Don't make friends with an angry person, † and don't be a companion of a hot-tempered one, † 25 or you will learn his ways † and entangle yourself in a snare.

26 Don't be one of those who enter agreements, † who put up security for loans. †
27 If you have nothing with which to pay, even your bed will be taken from under you. †

28 Don't move an ancient boundary marker that your fathers set up. †

29 Do you see a person skilled in his work?
He will stand in the presence of kings.
He will not stand in the presence of the unknown. †

22:1 A good reputation and favor before others have value greater than wealth.

22:2 This proverb serves as an important reminder that every human has been created equal in the image of God (see the note on Gn 1:26-31).

22:6 There is tremendous importance in teaching youth, since they are still in their formative years (see also 19:18). Wise instruction carries influence even to their old age.

22:10 A toxic group environment is sometimes the result of one individual.

22:13 This should be understood as an excuse made by the slacker to justify his laziness (see 15:19).

22:14 This proverb recalls the repeated warnings against the forbidden woman and her speech earlier in the book (see the notes on 5:3-14; 6:24).

22:15 Parental discipline can help rid a child of his innate tendency to foolishness and sin (see 19:18; 20:30).

22:17-19 Like Proverbs 30–31, these words of the wise may not be Solomonic in origin (see the note on

1:1; 30:1; 31:1). Proverbs 22:17–24:34 depart from the terse, aphoristic style of the preceding chapters and appear to be a distinct section within Proverbs (see also 24:23). This section begins with a call to heed these wise sayings with the purpose of putting confidence in God (22:17-19; 23:12).

23:1-3 The sumptuous meal described seems to have ulterior motives (v. 3), which is why self-control is especially important in such a situation (see vv. 6-8).

23:4-5 Since wealth is fleeting, one's life should not be consumed with getting rich.

23:10-11 Like 22:28, this is a warning against moving an established boundary marker for personal gain (Dt 19:14; 27:17). The Lord will see and judge such acts.

23:15-28 The addressing of my son (vv. 15,19,26), the command not to envy sinners but to fear the LORD (v. 17), the exhortation to obey parental instruction (vv. 22-25), and the warning against the prostitute (vv. 26-28) recall themes from Proverbs 1–9 (see the notes on 1:7,8-10; 2:1,16-19).

23:33-35 These verses vividly describe the loss of normal faculties due to drunkenness, which is to be avoided (vv. 20-21,31-32).

24 Don't envy the evil † or desire to be with them, †
2 for their hearts plan violence, and their words stir up trouble. †

3 A house is built by wisdom, † and it is established by understanding;

4 by knowledge the rooms are filled with every precious and beautiful treasure.

5 A wise warrior is better than a strong one, † and a man of knowledge than one of strength; † †
6 for you should wage war with sound guidance — victory comes with many counselors. †

7 Wisdom is inaccessible to † a fool; † he does not open his mouth at the city gate. †

8 The one who plots evil † will be called a schemer.
9 A foolish scheme is sin, and a mocker is detestable to people.

10 If you do nothing in a difficult time, your strength is limited.
11 Rescue those being taken off to death, and save those stumbling toward slaughter. † 12 If you say, “But we didn’t know about this,” won’t he who weighs hearts † consider it?
Won’t he who protects your life † know?
Won’t he repay a person according to his work? †

13 Eat honey, † my son, for it is good, and the honeycomb is sweet to your palate; †
14 realize that wisdom is the same for you. †
If you find it, you will have a future, and your hope will never fade. †

15 Don’t set an ambush, you wicked one, at the camp of the righteous man; † don’t destroy his dwelling.
16 Though a righteous person falls seven times, he will get up, † but the wicked will stumble into ruin. †

17 Don’t gloat when your enemy falls, and don’t let your heart rejoice when he stumbles, †
18 or the LORD will see, be displeased, and turn his wrath away from him.

19 Don’t be agitated by evildoers, and don’t envy the wicked. †
20 For the evil have no future; † the lamp of the wicked will be put out. †

21 My son, fear the LORD, as well as the king, † and don’t associate with rebels, † 22 for destruction will come suddenly from them; who knows what distress these two can bring?

23 These sayings also belong to the wise: †

It is not good to show partiality in judgment. †
24 Whoever says to the guilty, “You are innocent” † — peoples will curse him, † and nations will denounce him; 25 but it will go well with those who convict the guilty, and a generous blessing will come to them.

26 He who gives an honest answer gives a kiss on the lips.

27 Complete your outdoor work, and prepare your field; † afterward, build your house.

28 Don’t testify against your neighbor without cause. †
Don’t deceive with your lips.
29 Don’t say, “I’ll do to him what he did to me; I’ll repay the man for what he has done.” †

30 I went by the field of a slacker and by the vineyard of one lacking sense.
31 Thistles had come up everywhere, weeds covered the ground, † and the stone wall was ruined.
32 I saw, and took it to heart; I looked, and received instruction:

33 a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the arms to rest,
34 and your poverty will come like a robber, and your need, like a bandit. †

24:7 The fool cannot understand wisdom, perhaps because his mind is so badly warped (see 28:5).

24:14 Wisdom holds promise for a blessed future and hope (see the note on 3:13-18). These two Hebrew words are also used together in 23:18 (see also Jr 29:11; 31:17).

24:16 Presumably because he is upheld by God, the righteous man will get up again even though he may fall seven times.

24:19-20 For a third time in this context (v. 1; 23:17), readers are instructed not to envy the wicked. Unlike the wise (see the note on v. 14), they have no future (see Ps 1:4-5; 37:1,9,38).

24:21-22 Respect for divine and human government is urged here, along the general lines of Romans 13.

24:23 The sayings had begun in 22:17 and continue from here to the end of the chapter (see 25:1).

24:27 This saying may concern prioritizing what is necessary over what is merely desirable.

HEZEKIAH'S COLLECTION

25 These too are proverbs of Solomon, † which the men of King Hezekiah † of Judah, copied.

2 It is the glory of God to conceal a matter † and the glory of kings to investigate a matter.
3 As the heavens are high and the earth is deep, so the hearts of kings cannot be investigated.

4 Remove impurities from silver, † and material will be produced † for a silversmith. † † 5 Remove the wicked from the king's presence, † and his throne will be established in righteousness. †

6 Don’t boast about yourself before the king, and don’t stand in the place of the great; 7 for it is better for him to say to you, “Come up here! ” than to demote you in plain view of a noble. † †

8 Don’t take a matter to court hastily. † Otherwise, what will you do afterward
if your opponent † humiliates you?
9 Make your case with your opponent without revealing another’s secret; † 10 otherwise, the one who hears will disgrace you, and you’ll never live it down. †

11 A word spoken at the right time is like gold apples in silver settings. † 12 A wise correction to a receptive ear † is like a gold ring or an ornament of gold.

13 To those who send him, a trustworthy envoy is like the coolness of snow on a harvest day; he refreshes the life of his masters. †

14 The one who boasts about a gift that does not exist is like clouds and wind without rain. †
15 A ruler can be persuaded through patience, and a gentle tongue can break a bone. †
16 If you find honey, † eat only what you need; otherwise, you’ll get sick from it and vomit. † 17 Seldom set foot in your neighbor’s house; otherwise, he’ll get sick of you and hate you.

18 A person giving false testimony against his neighbor † is like a club, a sword, or a sharp arrow. † 19 Trusting an unreliable person in a difficult time is like a rotten tooth or a faltering foot. †

20 Singing songs to a troubled heart is like taking off clothing on a cold day or like pouring vinegar on soda. † †

21 If your enemy is hungry, give him food to eat, and if he is thirsty, give him water to drink; †

22 for you will heap burning coals on his head, and the LORD will reward you. †

23 The north wind produces rain, and a backbiting tongue, angry looks.

24 Better to live on the corner of a roof than to share a house with a nagging wife. †

25 Good news from a distant land is like cold water to a parched throat. † †

26 A righteous person who yields to the wicked † is like a muddied spring or a polluted well. †

27 It is not good to eat too much honey † or to seek glory after glory. † †

28 A person who does not control his temper † is like a city whose wall is broken down. †

25:1 Following the words of the wise (22:17–24:34), the book returns to the proverbs of Solomon (see 10:1). Hezekiah was a descendant of Solomon who ruled Judah several generations later (see Mt 1:7-10).

25:6-7 The instruction not to exalt oneself so as to avoid humiliation and leave room for being recognized is similar to Jesus's teaching in Luke 14:7-11.

25:16-17 Both proverbs urge restraint because too much of some things can be a bad thing (see v. 27).

25:20 Insensitivity makes the sorrowful feel even worse.

25:21-22 Rather than avenging oneself, this proverb commands showing kindness to enemies (see 20:22; 24:17-18). God will act justly (Rm 12:19-20).

25:26 Giving in to the wicked ruins a righteous person so that rather than being a pure spring, he becomes like a polluted well (see 1Th 5:22).

25:28 Such a defenseless city depicts a short-tempered man's vulnerability to agitation and trouble.

26 Like snow in summer and rain at harvest, † honor is inappropriate for a fool. †
2 Like a flitting sparrow or a fluttering swallow, † an undeserved curse goes nowhere. † 3 A whip for the horse, a bridle for the donkey, † and a rod for the backs of fools. † 4 Don't answer a fool according to his foolishness † or you'll be like him yourself.
5 Answer a fool according to his foolishness † or he'll become wise in his own eyes. † 6 The one who sends a message by a fool's hand † cuts off his own feet and drinks violence. †
7 A proverb in the mouth of a fool is like lame legs that hang limp.
8 Giving honor to a fool is like binding a stone in a sling.
9 A proverb in the mouth of a fool is like a stick with thorns, brandished by † the hand of a drunkard.
10 The one who hires a fool or who hires those passing by is like an archer who wounds everyone.
11 As a dog returns to its vomit, so also a fool repeats his foolishness. †
12 Do you see a person who is wise in his own eyes? †
There is more hope for a fool than for him. †

13 The slacker says, "There's a lion in the road — a lion in the public square! " †
14 A door turns on its hinges, and a slacker, on his bed. †
15 The slacker buries his hand in the bowl; he is too weary to bring it to his mouth! † 16 In his own eyes, a slacker is wiser † than seven who can answer sensibly.

17 A person who is passing by and meddles in a quarrel that's not his is like one who grabs a dog by the ears.
18 Like a madman who throws flaming darts and deadly arrows, †
19 so is the person who deceives his neighbor and says, "I was only joking! "

20 Without wood, fire goes out; without a gossip, conflict dies down. †
21 As charcoal for embers and wood for fire, so is a quarrelsome person for kindling strife. †
22 A gossip's words are like choice food that goes down to one's innermost being. † †

23 Smooth † lips with an evil heart are like glaze on an earthen vessel. † 24 A hateful person disguises himself with his speech and harbors deceit within.
25 When he speaks graciously, don't believe him, for there are seven detestable things in his heart. †
26 Though his hatred is concealed by deception, his evil will be revealed in the assembly.
27 The one who digs a pit will fall into it, and whoever rolls a stone — it will come back on him. †
28 A lying tongue hates those it crushes, and a flattering mouth causes ruin.

26:4-5 This pair of proverbs suggests that sometimes it is wise not to answer a fool at all while at other times it is wise to confront his foolishness. We see again that wisdom not only helps one know what to do but—and sometimes more importantly—know when to do it.

26:11 Characteristic of a fool is his inability to learn (see 27:22), presumably even from his own mistakes.

26:16 Despite his obvious flaws, a slacker is wise in his own eyes (see v. 12).

26:17 Meddling in another's quarrel incites further trouble.

26:20-22 Hearing gossip may bring a degree of pleasure (v. 22; 18:8), but it brings conflict (v. 20) and broken relationships (16:28).

26:23-28 These verses warn against a smooth talker who sounds good but has evil motives. His hatred and his lying go together (vv. 24-26,28).

27 Don’t boast about tomorrow, for you don’t know what a day might bring. †

2 Let another praise you, and not your own mouth — a stranger, and not your own lips. †

3 A stone is heavy and sand, a burden, but aggravation from a fool outweighs them both.

7 A person who is full tramples on a honeycomb, † but to a hungry person, any bitter thing is sweet.

8 Anyone wandering from his home is like a bird wandering from its nest. †

9 Oil † and incense bring joy to the heart, and the sweetness of a friend is better than self-counsel. †

10 Don’t abandon your friend or your father’s friend, † and don’t go to your brother’s house in your time of calamity;
better a neighbor nearby than a brother far away. †

11 Be wise, my son, and bring my heart joy, † so that I can answer anyone who taunts me. †

12 A sensible person sees danger and takes cover; the inexperienced keep going and are punished. †

13 Take his garment, for he has put up security for a stranger; get collateral

14 If one blesses his neighbor with a loud voice early in the morning, it will be counted as a curse to him.

15 An endless dripping on a rainy day and a nagging wife are alike; †
16 the one who controls her controls the wind and grasps oil with his right hand.

17 Iron sharpens iron, and one person sharpens another. †

18 Whoever tends a fig tree † will eat its fruit, † and whoever looks after his master will be honored.

19 As water reflects the face, so the heart reflects the person.

20 Sheol and Abaddon † are never satisfied, † and people's eyes are never satisfied. †

21 A crucible refines silver, a smelter refines gold, and a person refines his praise. †

22 Though you grind a fool in a mortar with a pestle along with grain, you will not separate his foolishness from him. †

23 Know well the condition of your flock, † and pay attention to your herds, 24 for wealth is not forever; † not even a crown lasts for all time.
25 When hay is removed and new growth appears and the grain from the hills and nourishment for your female servants. †

27:1 The uncertainty about tomorrow should prevent one from boasting about the future, as echoed by James 4:13-16.

27:2 Although it is tempting to boast (especially when not being recognized), this proverb urges restraint.

27:6 Examples of this concept include a wise rebuke that may be unpleasant at first, or flattery from a person with ulterior motives.

27:8 This difficult proverb has been taken variously. Some believe it simply illustrates departure from a homeland; others see it as describing neglect of responsibility.

27:14 This proverb is a vivid reminder that even good things need to be shared in appropriate ways at the proper time.

27:16 In other words, a nagging wife can't be controlled (see also note on 21:9).

27:17 This well-known proverb speaks to the mutual benefits of godly fellowship (see also Heb 3:13; 10:24).

27:20 The insatiable appetite of death and the grave (see 30:15-16) is likened to that of the eyes of men, especially those driven by greed (Ec 1:8; 4:8).

27:21 Being praised by others indeed tests a person's character. For example, will this person become proud, or be controlled by the desire to be praised?

27:22 This humorous proverb speaks again to the fool's refusal to turn from foolishness (see 17:10; 26:11).

28 The wicked flee when no one is pursuing them, † but the righteous are as bold as a lion. †

2 When a land is in rebellion, it has many rulers, †

THE BIBLE AND GOVERNMENT MODELS

As with so many topics, a Christian understanding and evaluation of government begins with the book of Genesis. What is the purpose of government? What needs do governments meet and how should they serve? Once we understand the biblical foundation for government, we will be able to assess any particular form of it.

The creation account reveals four foundational truths for any Christian understanding of politics and government. First, everything comes from the hand of Creator God, and this includes any sort of authority.

The words “in the beginning God” are not only the words that open the Scriptures; they should ground all Christian thinking (Gn 1:1). This is particularly true for political thinking, as few vocations are as susceptible to the temptations of pride and idolatry as governance.

Second, men and women are created in God’s image (Gn 1:27). God declares all of his creation to be good, but only humans bear the image of God and thus enjoy a particularly special relationship with him. This relationship between God and humankind sets us apart from the rest of creation with regard to our dignity and our responsibilities.

Third, the first problem described in Scripture is not that Adam and Eve disobeyed God, but that it is not good for man to be alone (Gn 2:18). This tells us that God created humans not only to be in proper relationship with him, but also with one another. We are created to walk with our Creator and with each other, and we see this truth reflected in the greatest commandment and the second greatest, which is like it (Mt 22:37-40).

Fourth, beginning with Adam and Eve’s disobedience, humans have rebelled against God (Gn 3). The doctrine of the fall describes how our originally good nature, authored by God, has become corrupted by sin and selfish desires in such a way that our relationships are damaged beyond our power to repair (Rm 7:23; 3:23). We see our vertical relationship with God damaged in Adam and Eve’s expulsion from the garden, and we see other tragic consequences of their rebellion in the horizontal fracturing of human brotherhood in Cain’s slaying of Abel.

These four foundational truths describe the fundamental groundwork for human relations and politics. We are made by God and in his image; thus, we humans are sacred. We are called to live together in harmony, yet our rebellion makes relating to God and getting along well and consistently with each other impossible in our own power. God’s solution to our brokenness is found in the work of Jesus Christ on the cross and through his resurrection from the dead, as prophesied in Genesis and attested to in the Gospels (Gn 3:15; Jn 3:16). We wait, along with all of creation, for the culmination of this work when the risen Messiah will return in glory (Rm 8:19-23).

GOVERNMENT’S TEMPORARY ROLE

Since this plan of salvation is God’s ultimate solution, human government plays but a temporal role in restraining evil and promoting the good in the meantime. It exists between the sin of the first Adam and the return of the second Adam, Jesus Christ (Rm 5:12-21; 13:1-6). While Christians differ as to the proper role of government, most agree that the Scriptures portray government as a God-ordained institution, citing Jesus’s Matthew 22:15-22 distinction between what belongs to Caesar (coins bearing Caesar’s image) and what belongs to God (humans bearing God’s image), and Paul’s affirmation that governing authorities are instituted by God for our good (Rm 13:1-7). This idea is echoed by Peter in 1 Peter 2:13. Paul reveals a central purpose of government in his letter to Timothy, urging “that petitions, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for everyone, for kings and all those who are in authority, so that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness and dignity” (1Tm 2:1-2). We pray for political authorities so that we may lead peaceful lives.

We are now in a position to apply the four foundational truths to our thinking about governmental models and politics generally.

First, if God really is first and foremost, as the opening line of Genesis attests, then any government that attempts to usurp God’s place runs afoul of its purpose. Christians should be wary of any governing philosophy that denies God or sets itself up in his rightful place. We should pray for the governing authorities so that we may have peace, but if there is no peace and we are forced to choose, “we must obey God rather than people” (Ac 5:29).

Second, since people are made in God’s image, each individual has intrinsic value. Governments are meant to protect people and promote their good. Governments exist for the sake of humans. They should not act as if citizens are expendable.

Third, as sure as God declared of Adam’s lone state that “it is not good” (Gn 2:18), God has created humans to live together—not to exist as loners. We see this in God's plan for marriage and family as well as in his design of the church, his bride. We pray to "our Father in heaven," asking him to "give us today our daily bread" (Mt 6:9,11, emphasis added). One purpose of governments, then, is to protect society so that humans can flourish through their interactions in families, marriages, churches, clubs, and charities. Whether in principle or practice, a governing philosophy that unduly interferes with the various social spheres is a cause for concern.

Fourth, perhaps no Christian doctrine is more obvious to common-sense observation than the doctrine of the fall. Humans are selfish creatures, and we are often motivated to do the right thing more by the prospect of punishment than we are by what is intrinsically right. It follows that governments are to restrain human wickedness. Moreover, given that God's ultimate solution for human sin is Jesus's work on the cross, any political philosophy that denies the fall or purports to solve human evil once and for all is bound to fail. It's also likely to leave a trail of misery and suffering in its wake.

CHRISTIANITY AND GOVERNMENT MODELS

Given these benchmark principles from Scripture, how should Christians evaluate the various government models on offer? In the last one hundred and fifty years or so, we have seen the rise and fall of several political approaches. These include communism, socialism, monarchy, constitutional democracy, fascism, and Islamic fundamentalism.

The first place we look for guidance on these issues is Scripture, yet here we encounter a difficulty, for, unlike the OT, the NT does not address the particulars of a governmental system. There we learn a great deal about how to relate to political authority, and we can know that God authorizes governments, but we do not find anything there that could serve as a political blueprint. Nevertheless, God in his wisdom has given us political ends to aim for, such as peace and justice, while leaving much of the means up to us (C. S. Lewis, Mere Christianity, 79).

This does not mean that we cannot make informed judgments about governing models. Communism, for example, denies God's existence and original sin even as it purports to create a version of heaven on earth. Fascism elevates the state to a position of ultimate importance in society, usurping God's rightful place and subjecting the importance of individuals made in God's image to the needs of an all-important government. A fundamentalist Islamic regime rules out Christianity altogether, and in practice has not treated people as intrinsically valuable. These approaches clearly violate the biblical principles articulated.

Assessing other models of government proves more complex. Strictly speaking, socialism is not a governing philosophy; rather, it advocates a collective economic arrangement for any given government. Monarchy has clear biblical roots, but is also accompanied by significant dangers—as seen both in Western history and in the biblical record. Constitutional democracy is consistent with a biblical approach to politics, though as a political system its manifestation of the will of the people will only be as just and good as the people who give it its power. Representative democracy depends on the people, and people are fallen.

Recognizing biblical principles as they apply to politics and government does not offer all the conclusions we might want with regard to current political systems and controversies, but it is a start. God's Word gives us the means to evaluate the political world and governments large and small.

28:8 The taking of excessive interest from poor Israelites is repeatedly forbidden in the Pentateuch (Ex 22:25; Lv 25:36-37; Dt 23:19-20). For other proverbs that concern the treatment of the poor, see the note on 17:5.

28:9 The context is unique in Proverbs in that it mentions the law (or, “instruction”) several times in a short space (Hb torah; see vv. 4,7). Scripture is in view in the present verse (see also 15:8), as is the case in verse 4 and perhaps also verse 7. Along with 29:18 and 30:5-6, these verses contribute to an emphasis on Scripture toward the end of the book of Proverbs. Although torah is translated “teaching” earlier (see 1:8; 3:1; 4:2; 6:20,23; 7:2), this Hebrew word frames the book and is used in close association with wisdom throughout (see also 31:26; Dt 4:6).

28:13 Forgiveness is promised for those who confess and repent of sin but not for those who hide or deny it (see 1Jn 1:8-10).

29:1 Although the stubborn may get away with their ways for a time, they are always at risk of catastrophe.

29:4 Like vv. 12,14, this proverb revisits the theme of rewards for just government and negative consequences for corruption (see also 14:34; 20:28). See "Biblical View of Crime and Punishment," p. 105.

29:10 The honest person is hated by the violent because he may expose their evil.

29:15-22 There appears to be discernible patterning in the arrangement of these proverbs. Vv. 15,17 concern the familiar theme of disciplining one's children (see 13:24; 19:18), whereas verses 19,21 relate to the instruction of one's servant. Verses 16,18 deal with circumstances that lead to the increase of wickedness, and verses 20,22 speak against impulsiveness in speech and in temper. The Hebrew word translated revelation in verse 18 typically refers to a prophetic vision (e.g., Is 1:1; 2:1; Hab 2:2). Correspondingly, it is natural to take the Hebrew word translated instruction (torah) as referring to Scripture (see the note on 28:9).

29:25 The fear of mankind is rightly juxtaposed with trust in God (see also Is 8:12-13). Ultimately, these two are mutually exclusive.

29:26 Above every human ruler, no matter how powerful, is God himself, who grants justice.

30:1 Little is known about Agur besides his pronouncement, which implies direct divine revelation and is unique in Proverbs. The Hebrew phrase translated the man's oration is found elsewhere only in Numbers 24:3,15 and 2 Samuel 23:1 (see following note).

30:4-6 Following his confession of ignorance (vv. 2-3), Agur attributed wisdom to God and his word. The question of going up to heaven and coming down in verse 4 is similar to Deuteronomy 30:12. Of particular interest is the mention of his son (v. 4; Ps 2:7,12), who also possesses divine wisdom (Is 11:1-4; 1Co 1:24; Col 2:3). The declarations in verses 5-6 reinforce the highlighting of Scripture in the preceding context (see the note on 28:9; 29:18) and parallel Psalm 18:30 and Deuteronomy 4:2. The combination of wisdom, Scripture, and a son in this passage toward the end of Proverbs echoes the introduction to the Psalter (see the notes on Pss 1–2).

30:18 The use of such numerical style here and in verses 15,21,29 also appears in 6:16 and in Amos 1:6–2:8. The corresponding lists associate apparently disparate things based on a common theme.

IN PRAISE OF A WIFE OF NOBLE CHARACTER

CAREER AND HOME LIFE

CAREER AND HOME LIFE

All adult Christians must prioritize the various competitors for their time, focus, and attention. Most Christian adults will have a career that is the profession or means through which they earn a salary to provide for their families. Also, most Christian adults have a home, which is here defined as the family members with whom they have immediate relationships. Biblically speaking, husbands and wives have clearly defined responsibilities to each other. And if they are parents, they have responsibilities to their children, too. So how does the Christian prioritize the demands of home with the responsibilities of career?

The starting point for answering this question rightly is found in 1 Corinthians 10:31: “Whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do everything for the glory of God.” How we conduct ourselves in our home life and in our professions must align with this admonition. Living for God’s glory is our first priority.

This “right priorities” approach to life is further clarified by other scriptural admonitions. For example, Paul teaches that the husband has an obligation to love his wife just as Christ loved the church and gave himself for her; the wife must respect her husband (Eph 5:25,33). He also cautions husbands and wives not to deprive one another sexually, except when in agreement to devote themselves to prayer for a time (1Co 7:5). When these admonitions from Paul are coupled with Peter’s admonition that husbands are to dwell with their wives according to understanding (1Pt 3:7), it is clear that fulfilling biblical obligations to one’s spouse is a key element of living in devotion and obedience to God.

In Paul’s first letter to Timothy, he lists the qualifications for ministers (1Tm 3:1-7) and deacons (3:8-13). In both passages Paul makes clear that a requirement for serving in either role is that a man have his household in order. This means that God considers being a good Christian husband and father so important that if a man fails to fulfill his responsibilities to his wife or children, he is disqualified from serving as God’s shepherd to the flock. Paul also emphasizes in Ephesians 6 that the husband and wife are to rear their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Regardless of one’s responsibilities outside of the home, Christian parents must lovingly fulfill theier biblical responsibilities to family. The only higher responsibility for the Christian is to love the Lord wholeheartedly (Mk 12:30).

A common question with which modern Christians must wrestle relates to gender roles and the workplace. It should be understood that this is a question particular to the modern era since, prior to the Industrial Revolution, all family members contributed to the daily survival of the family. The husband, wife, and children each had specific tasks to perform to provide food, clothes, and shelter for one another. Wives were major contributors to the financial stability of the home in preindustrial times, both through their efforts as homemakers and contributors to the family business of agriculture. Families didn’t purchase clothes; wives made them. Families didn’t purchase meals; wives prepared them.

The wife of Proverbs 31 worked from early morning (v. 15) until late at night (v. 18). She bought land in which to plant food for her family (v. 16), and she made and sold linens (v. 24) in order to contribute to their financial support. She was tireless in her efforts to take care of them. And as a result, her husband and children honored her (v. 28). She enriched their lives.

It is only since the beginning of the Industrial Revolution in the West that the idea of “work” has been separated from the almost universal business of the family farm. En masse, husbands began to go to work in a place other than their fields and wives continued with their tasks as homemakers. Over time the idea that the husbands worked and the wives stayed at home developed, slowly devaluing the vital contributions each partner makes to the ongoing health and well-being of the family.

Should the wife or mother be employed outside the home? Families can find themselves in so many different situations in today’s society that the question proves difficult to answer. Employment opportunities, earning power, the age and number of children in the household, and the presence or absence of free childcare through other family members all factor into this equation. It would, in fact, be impossible to formulate a one-size-fits-all answer. In short, it is no longer necessary for family members to plant, harvest, and preserve food for the family to be able to eat—though provision remains an issue. We now generally acquire these basic necessities by purchasing them with salaries provided by our work.

The question of whether or not the wife or mother should work outside of the home presupposes that the husband is present, working, and able to meet the family's true needs through his own earning power. A widow with young children or a wife or mother whose husband has abandoned or divorced her, or is incapable of working because of some incapacity, rarely has a choice about seeking employment outside the home. Single moms and dads, in fact, represent a growing percentage of our population, and many need the compassionate help of our churches.

While the husband is the biblical head of the home (Eph 5:23), each couple will need to prayerfully consider the gifting, abilities, and talents God has given to the wife with respect to employment or career opportunities. The first priority of both partners is devotion and obedience to God. After that, balancing career and home is a matter of understanding priorities and keeping them in order. First and foremost, we are to "do everything for the glory of God" (1Co 10:31). The way this first priority is to be worked out with respect to family and work will differ from one household to the next, but will always require consistent, daily evaluation of how our time, energy, and resources are used.

REBEKAH R. LAND

10 Who can find a wife of noble character? † †
She is far more precious than jewels. †
11 The heart of her husband trusts in her, and he will not lack anything good.
12 She rewards him with good, not evil, all the days of her life.
13 She selects wool and flax and works with willing hands.
14 She is like the merchant ships, bringing her food from far away. † 15 She rises while it is still night † and provides food for her household and portions † for her female servants. †
16 She evaluates a field and buys it; she plants a vineyard with her earnings. † † 17 She draws on her strength † and reveals that her arms are strong. † 18 She sees that her profits are good, and her lamp never goes out at night. †
19 She extends her hands to the spinning staff, and her hands hold the spindle. †
20 Her hands reach † out to the poor, and she extends her hands to the needy. †
21 She is not afraid for her household when it snows, for all in her household are doubly clothed. † 22 She makes her own bed coverings; † her clothing is fine linen † and purple. †

23 Her husband is known at the city gates, where he sits among the elders of the land. †
24 She makes and sells linen garments; she delivers belts † to the merchants.
25 Strength † and honor are her clothing, † and she can laugh at the time to come. † 26 Her mouth speaks wisdom, and loving instruction † is on her tongue.
27 She watches over the activities of her household † and is never idle. †
28 Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also praises her:
29 "Many women † have done noble deeds, but you surpass them all! " † 30 Charm is deceptive and beauty is fleeting, † but a woman who fears the LORD will be praised.
31 Give her the reward of her labor, † and let her works praise her at the city gates.

31:1-4 As was the case for Agur, little is known about King Lemuel besides his pronouncement (see 30:1). The importance of a mother's instruction has been repeatedly mentioned in Proverbs (1:8; 6:20; 30:17). She advised her son to avoid indulging his physical appetites for women and for alcohol (vv. 2-4) and instead to focus on justice for the needy (vv. 8-9).

31:10 Reminiscent of acrostic psalms in the Psalter (e.g., Pss 25, 34, 111–112), Proverbs concludes with an acrostic of its own (see footnote J). The subject matter is the preciousness and characteristics of a wife of noble character. This is a fitting conclusion given the personification of wisdom and folly as women (see the notes on 1:20-21; 9:13-18), along with the many instructions regarding adultery and marrying well (see the notes on 2:16-19; 12:4; 19:13-14). Industrious, skillful, kind, and well-prepared (vv. 13-22), the woman here is an embodiment of wisdom and thus brings great blessing to her husband (vv. 12,23).

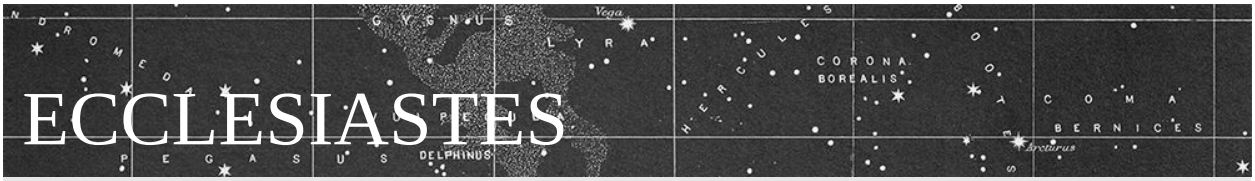
31:26-31 She fears the LORD (v. 30) and has the wisdom to instruct others (v. 26). Beloved by both her children and her husband (vv. 28-29), she is to be rewarded for her work and to be honored before all (v. 31).



ECCLESIASTES

INTRODUCTION

The Bible is never shy about confronting painful truths or hard questions. The book of Ecclesiastes faces the issue of how we can find meaning in life in light of the seemingly futile nature of everything. It will not allow the reader to retreat into superficial answers. It does not answer this problem by comforting us with hollow slogans. To the contrary, its motto is "Everything Is Futile." But by forcing us to face the futility of human existence, it guides us to a life free of empty purpose and deceitful vindication.

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

AUTHOR: According to 1:1 and 1:12, the author was David's son and a king over Israel from Jerusalem. Also, 12:9 speaks of the author as a writer of proverbs, so Solomon appears to be the author. Many scholars believe that Ecclesiastes was written too late in Israel's history for this to be true, and they want to date the book at least five hundred years after Solomon's time (later than 450 BC). However, strong evidence attests that the book does come from the age of Solomon. For instance, it displays a great knowledge of literature from early Mesopotamia and Egypt.

One example is that the book shows an awareness of the "Harper Songs," poetry from Egypt that is much older than the age of Solomon. Ecclesiastes 9:7-9 is similar to that poetry, and it also resembles a portion of the famous Epic of Gilgamesh from Mesopotamia. It makes sense that Solomon, who had close contacts with Egypt and whose empire stretched up to the Euphrates River, would know and reflect on such texts. It is doubtful that an anonymous Jew writing five hundred or more years later, when Egyptian and Mesopotamian glory was finished and when Judah was a backwater nation, would have had access to these texts or could have understood them. By contrast, Ecclesiastes shows no similarities to the Greek philosophy that flourished in the fifth century BC and later. All of these conditions point to the traditional view that Solomon authored this book.

BACKGROUND: Ecclesiastes is Wisdom literature, meaning that it is in the part of the Bible especially concerned with helping readers cope with the practical and philosophical issues of life. It has roots in the Wisdom literature of Egypt and Babylon. Books like Proverbs and Ecclesiastes are the biblical answer to the search for truth. Proverbs is basic wisdom, giving the reader fundamental principles to live by. Ecclesiastes, by contrast, is for a more mature reader. It engages the question of whether death nullifies all purpose and meaning in life.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

Ecclesiastes must be read with care because some of its verses, if read in isolation, seem to contradict other biblical teachings. It seems to deny the afterlife (3:18-22), to warn us against being too righteous (7:16), and to recommend a life of pleasure (10:19). But the real purpose of Ecclesiastes is to force us to take our mortality seriously and thus to consider carefully how we should live. Ecclesiastes knocks away all the façades by which we disguise the fact that life is short and we deny that all our accomplishments will pass away. In this sense, Ecclesiastes anticipates the NT teaching that only God's grace, and not excessive zeal, saves us.

STRUCTURE

Ecclesiastes does not have the kind of structure we usually look for in a book of the Bible. At first glance it seems to move to and fro among various topics in a way that seems almost incoherent. It has no simple hierarchical outline, and it often jumps rapidly from one topic to the next. But a closer look reveals a structure that alternates between two perspectives: that of human existence apart from God and that of existence lived before God. If Ecclesiastes were music, it would be seen as antiphonal. The resolution of the tensions that permeate Ecclesiastes is found in the affirmation that the most important thing in life is to "fear God and keep his commands" (12:13).

CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW ELEMENTS

TEACHINGS ABOUT GOD

In Ecclesiastes God is referred to simply as "God" (Elohim) or "Creator." He is not called "the Lord" or "Lord" (Yahweh). This emphasizes God in relationship to all humanity—their Creator and the One to whom they are ultimately accountable—as opposed to God in relationship to Israel as the covenant people.

TEACHINGS ABOUT HUMANITY

Ecclesiastes has an optimistic view of human capacity apart from God. Materialists, sensualists, and scholars alike can reach worthwhile goals that bring temporary satisfaction and the appearance of meaning. Yet the book is pessimistic about the ability of persons to understand their true purpose unaided by divine revelation. Left to themselves, humans never reach right answers to the question, why am I here?

TEACHINGS ABOUT SALVATION

Salvation in Ecclesiastes is spoken of in terms of proper fear (reverence, awe, respect) of God (see 3:14; 5:7; 8:12; 12:13). Ultimately, only those who "fear God and keep his commands" (12:13) give evidence of experiencing salvation, which like existence itself comes from the Creator. The meaning of human life is displayed when redeemed people magnify the glory of God by joyfully fearing and obeying him.

EVERYTHING IS FUTILE

1 The words of the Teacher, † † son of David, king in Jerusalem. †

2 "Absolute futility," says the Teacher.
"Absolute futility. Everything is futile." †

3 What does a person gain for all his efforts that he labors at under the sun? †

4 A generation goes and a generation comes, but the earth remains forever. †

5 The sun rises and the sun sets; panting, it returns to the place † where it rises.

6 Gusting to the south, turning to the north, turning, turning, goes the wind, † and the wind returns in its cycles.

7 All the streams flow to the sea, yet the sea is never full;
to the place where the streams flow, there they flow again.
8 All things † are wearisome, more than anyone can say.
The eye is not satisfied by seeing † or the ear filled with hearing.
9 What has been is what will be, and what has been done is what will be done;
there is nothing new under the sun.
10 Can one say about anything, “Look, this is new”?
It has already existed in the ages before us.
11 There is no remembrance of those who † came before; † and of those who will come after there will also be no remembrance by those who follow them.

THE LIMITATIONS OF WISDOM

12 I, the Teacher, † have been † king over Israel in Jerusalem. 13 I applied my mind to examine † and explore through wisdom all that is done under heaven. †
God has given people † this miserable task to keep them occupied. † 14 I have seen all the things that are done under the sun and have found everything to be futile, a pursuit of the wind. † †

15 What is crooked cannot be straightened; † what is lacking cannot be counted.

16 I said to myself, “See, I have amassed wisdom far beyond all those who were over Jerusalem before me, † and my mind has thoroughly grasped † wisdom and knowledge.” 17 I applied my mind to know wisdom and knowledge, † madness and folly; † I learned that this too is a pursuit of the wind. †

18 For with much wisdom is much sorrow; †
as knowledge increases, grief increases.

1:1 This person is generally understood to be Solomon because of his interest in wisdom and proverbs (see vv. 12-13; 12:9-10).

1:2-3 The meaning of this important opening statement depends largely upon the meaning of the Hebrew word (hevel) translated futility or futile. This key word appears frequently in this book (e.g., 2:1,15,19,21,23) where it is often paired with "a pursuit of the wind" (v. 14; 2:11,17,26; 4:4,16; 6:9). As in Psalm 144:44 where it is translated "breath," hevel describes the futility and emptiness of life resulting especially from its brevity and transience (see 6:12; 9:9 [see footnote D]; 11:10 [Hb]). All of this is a consequence of death, which itself is a consequence of sin (see the notes on 3:9-10,19-20; 7:13,20,27-29). Such an existence is repeatedly described as being under the sun (vv. 3,9,14; 2:11,17-20). In spite of these grim realities, there is hope because of the grace of God (see the note on 2:24-26).

1:4-9 To support his preceding statements concerning the futility of life, the speaker cites examples of endless repetition (vv. 4-6) and lack of fulfillment and dissatisfaction (vv. 7-8; 5:10; 6:7). These patterns continue indefinitely so that there is nothing new under the sun (v. 9; 3:15).

1:15 See the note on 7:13.

1:16-18 Given the many commendations of wisdom in Scripture (see the note on Pr 1:7), his disappointment with wisdom should be seen in the context of his own frustration (v. 18) and the inevitability of death for the wise (see 2:12-16). As such, the wisdom in view here seems disconnected from God himself, more worldly and focused on the intellect (see 2:1-3), and thus distinct from wisdom as commonly understood in Scripture.

THE EMPTINESS OF PLEASURE

2 I said to myself, "Go ahead, I will test you with pleasure; † enjoy what is good." But it turned out to be futile. 2 I said about laughter, † "It is madness," and about pleasure, "What does this accomplish?" 3 I explored with my mind the pull of wine † on my body — my mind still guiding me with wisdom — and how to grasp folly, † until I could see what is good for people to do under heaven † during the few days of their lives. †

THE EMPTINESS OF POSSESSIONS

4 I increased my achievements. I built houses † and planted vineyards † for myself. 5 I made gardens † and parks for myself and planted every kind of fruit tree in them. 6 I constructed reservoirs for myself from which to irrigate a grove of flourishing trees. † 7 I acquired male and female servants and had slaves who were born in my house. † I also owned livestock — large herds and flocks — more than all who were before me in Jerusalem. †

POSTMODERNISM

As Jesus stood before Pilate and claimed to be the true witness of God for salvation, Pilate's response was this question: "What is truth?" (Jn 18:38). That question summarizes the condition called postmodernism.

WHAT IS POSTMODERNISM?

Postmodernism is a term used to describe a host of suspicions about what has been taken for granted in ethics, religion, science, technology, and many other fields of study. Postmodernism questions the nature of what is real, the human ability to know truth, the ability of language to convey right meaning beyond just what the reader or hearer understands, the limits of science, the existence of human consciousness, and especially the promise of the ever-increasing progress of freedom, prosperity, justice, and truth.

As a cultural condition, the contours of postmodernism reach beyond philosophy proper and have broad influence in other academic disciplines like literature, art, architecture, and theology, as well as the general cultural consciousness. This, in fact, is perhaps its most influential aspect. Postmodernism is often expressed by slogans such as, "That is true for you, but not for me," "So many people disagree, so truth is relative," and "No culture's values are better than another's."

POSTMODERNISM VERSUS THE ENLIGHTENMENT

The force of postmodernism is its suspicion and doubt of the so-called certainties of the modern period (roughly the intellectual ideas and the climate they have created since 1750). The Enlightenment philosophers, whose ideas gave birth to the modern period, believed that truth and certainty were attainable by using human reason alone rather than also accepting outside authorities such as Scripture or the received teachings of the Catholic Church. These philosophers described knowledge as a quest for certainty. Accordingly, any claim to knowledge that could not connect to the foundations of logic, or that could not possibly be doubted, or that was not immediately evident to the senses was considered at best opinion, and at worst pseudo-knowledge.

This narrow definition of what could be known encouraged hostility toward faith and exalted science and technology as a path to a better future for humanity. However, after the employment of science and technology to kill millions of people as a result of the totalizing worldviews of Marxism and Nazism, questions about modernity's claims of progress came to the forefront in philosophy. Specifically, postmodern thinkers questioned the concept of truth within the modern worldview that had produced these totalizing worldviews. They demonstrated that the condition for knowledge advocated by modern thinkers could not account for itself, let alone a host of things we do and can, in fact, know. Thus, for them, truth was overthrown.

THE POSTMODERN CRITIQUE OF CERTAINTY

Postmodern thinkers encourage suspicion and doubt about absolute truth claims. Jean François Lyotard states, “All that has been received, if only yesterday, must be suspected” (1984) because those, for example, who appeal to “science” and “reason” to prove that their worldview is correct are also committed to presuppositions or prior commitments that cannot arise from science or reason. He writes, “The recourse to narrative is inevitable, at least to the extent that the language game of science desires its statements to be true but does not have the resources to legitimate their truth on its own” (Lyotard, 1984). In other words, science is founded on ideas that are not the result of science but rather come before it, making science possible.

In their rejection of the narrow certainty of modernism, some postmodern thinkers pressed the suspicion of knowledge claims to the point that they doubted any claims to knowledge, assuming them to be potential power grabs or just the perspective of a particular person from a particular cultural and historical context. There is no universal truth, they assert, no universally accessible human rationality for all people at all times. The result of that critique is a pervasive doubt in our culture regarding universal or total claims to knowledge. In particular, postmodernists critique autonomous reason, universal truth claims, access to one’s own inner consciousness, and all attempts to tell a universal history.

CHRISTIANITY AND POSTMODERNISM

Biblical Christianity affirms some of the concerns raised by the postmodernists, such as the importance of story in human existence, or their critiques of modernity (as in the case of the unfounded exaltation of science above other ways of knowing truth). But Christianity rejects the fundamental story of postmodernism because it results in a profound skepticism toward truth, meaning, and morality.

The biblical story reveals God’s existence, his creative will, and his active presence in the world as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit (Gn 1–2; Jn 1:1-18; Ac 2:1-13). The active will and creative presence of God is graciously and lovingly demonstrated in the accounts of Jesus’s incarnation, life, death, resurrection, and ascension. For example, Jesus says of himself, “If you continue in my word, you really are my disciples. You will know the truth, and the truth will set you free” (Jn 8:31-32). To fully understand what Jesus means requires an engagement with the entire biblical story: creation, fall, redemption, and restoration. The Scriptures claim to tell the story of humanity from beginning to ultimate redemption.

Paul, reflecting on the results of Jesus’s life, death, and resurrection for his ministry, masterfully summarizes the significance of God at work in Jesus Christ: “In Christ, God was reconciling the world to himself, not counting their trespasses against them, and he has committed the message of reconciliation to us . . . He made the one who did not know sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God” (2Co 5:19,21). In this passage lies the universal truth that the biblical story tells. God has graciously revealed the truth: the world in which we live is under the curse of sin because of humanity’s choice to disobey God. Still, God has lovingly and graciously chosen to redeem those who put their faith in Jesus Christ, the Lord, whom God raised from the dead (Rm 10:9).

Within the Christian worldview, then, is a rejection of many of the suspicions of postmodernism. For example, that God is the Creator implies that things in this world have real existence. That humanity can know itself as well as the created world by which they are surrounded implies that knowledge is possible. That humans are accountable for their actions implies that there exists at least a handful of moral universals true for all people at all time.

JUSTIN CARSWELL

8 I also amassed silver and gold for myself, and the treasure of kings and provinces. † I gathered male and female singers for myself, † and many concubines, the delights of men. † † 9 So I became great and surpassed all who were before me in Jerusalem; † my wisdom also remained with me. 10 All that my eyes desired, I did not deny them. † I did not refuse myself any pleasure, for I took pleasure in all my struggles. This was my reward for all my struggles. † 11 When I considered all that I had accomplished † and what I had labored to achieve, I found everything to be futile and a pursuit of the wind. † † There was nothing to be gained under the sun. †

THE RELATIVE VALUE OF WISDOM

12 Then I turned to consider wisdom, † madness, and folly, for what will the king's successor † be like? He † will do what has already been done. † 13 And I realized that there is an advantage to wisdom over folly, like the advantage of light over darkness. †

14 The wise person has eyes in his head, but the fool walks in darkness. †

Yet I also knew that one fate comes to them both. † 15 So I said to myself, "What happens to the fool will also happen to me. Why then have I been overly wise?" † And I said to myself that this is also futile. 16 For, just like the fool, there is no lasting remembrance of the wise, † since in the days to come both will be forgotten. How is it that the wise person dies just like the fool? 17 Therefore, I hated life because the work that was done under the sun was distressing to me. For everything is futile and a pursuit of the wind.

THE EMPTINESS OF WORK

18 I hated all my work that I labored at under the sun † because I must leave it to the one who comes after me. † 19 And who knows whether he will be wise or a fool? † Yet he will take over all my work that I labored at skillfully under the sun. This too is futile. 20 So I began to give myself over † to despair concerning all my work that I had labored at under the sun. 21 When there is a person whose work was done with wisdom, knowledge, and skill, † and he must give his portion to a person who has not worked for it, this too is futile and a great wrong. 22 For what does a person get with all his work and all his efforts † that he labors at under the sun? 23 For all his days are filled with grief, and his occupation is sorrowful; † even at night, his mind does not rest. † This too is futile.

24 There is nothing better for a person than to eat, drink, and enjoy † † his work. † I have seen that even this is from God's hand, † 25 because who can eat and who can enjoy life † apart from him? † 26 For to the person who is pleasing in his sight, he gives wisdom, knowledge, and joy; † but to the sinner he gives the task of gathering and accumulating in order to give to the one who is pleasing in God's sight. † This too is futile and a pursuit of the wind. †

2:11 As was the case with "wisdom" (see previous note) and pleasure (2:1-3), the speaker found building projects, possessions, wealth, and greatness (vv. 4-10) to be unsatisfying (see the note on 1:2-3).

2:13-16 Although "wisdom" (see the note on 1:16-18) is better than folly, the speaker pointed out that one fate comes to people no matter the path they choose (v. 14; 3:19; 9:2-3), namely death (v. 16; 3:2). As is the case generally (see 1:11), both the wise and the fool will be forgotten.

2:18-23 The problem again is death (see previous note). The certainty of his own death and the possibility of his successor ruining his work frustrated him and led him to despair (vv. 19-21; 9:18; note on 11:6).

2:24-26 This is the first hopeful passage in Ecclesiastes and as such serves as an important contrast and qualification to the more numerous pessimistic passages (see also 3:12-13,22; 5:18-20; 8:15; 9:7-9). Despite the uncertainty of the future (see previous note), it is possible by God's grace for a person to enjoy his work (v. 24). Without God, this will not happen (v. 25), and life will indeed be as dissatisfying and frustrating as described in the preceding passages. God, however, gives wisdom, knowledge, and joy to those who are pleasing in [his] sight (v. 26).

THE MYSTERY OF TIME

3 There is an occasion for everything, and a time for every activity under heaven: †
2 a time to give birth and a time to die; † a time to plant and a time to uproot; † 3 a time to kill and a time to heal; a time to tear down and a time to build; 4 a time to weep and a time to laugh; † a time to mourn and a time to dance; † 5 a time to throw stones and a time to gather stones; † a time to embrace and a time to avoid embracing; † 6 a time to search and a time to count as lost; a time to keep and a time to throw away; 7 a time to tear and a time to sew; a time to be silent and a time to speak; †
8 a time to love and a time to hate; a time for war and a time for peace. †

9 What does the worker gain from his struggles? † 10 I have seen the task that God has given the children of Adam to keep them occupied. † 11 He has made everything appropriate † in its time. † He has also put eternity in their hearts, † but no one can discover the work God has done from beginning to end. † 12 I know that there is nothing better for them than to rejoice and enjoy the † good life. 13 It is also the gift of God whenever anyone eats, drinks, and enjoys all his efforts. † 14 I know that everything God does will last forever; there is no adding to it or taking from it. † God works so that people will be in awe of him. † 15 Whatever is, has already been, † and whatever will be, already is. However, God seeks justice for the persecuted. †

THE MYSTERY OF INJUSTICE AND DEATH

16 I also observed under the sun: there is wickedness at the place of judgment and there is wickedness at the place of righteousness. † 17 I said to myself, "God will judge the righteous and the wicked, † since there is a time for every activity and every work.” † 18 I said to myself, “This happens so that God may test the children of Adam and they may see for themselves that they are like animals.” † 19 For the fate of the children of Adam and the fate of animals is the same. † As one dies, so dies the other; they all have the same breath. People have no advantage over animals since everything is futile. 20 All are going to the same place; all come from dust, and all return to dust. † 21 Who knows if the spirits of the children of Adam go upward and the spirits of animals go downward to the earth?

BIBLICAL MODELS FOR BUSINESS

If you are a follower of Christ and work as a business professional, how does your Christian worldview influence your day-to-day life at work? The business world is founded on relationships—relationships between sales people and customers, between employees and employers, and between peers up and down the organizational chart within a company. Most business professionals interact with dozens of people every day.

As a follower of Christ, a business professional should view every relationship as an opportunity to glorify God. Isaiah says that God created us for his glory: “Bring my sons from far away, and my daughters from the ends of the earth—everyone who bears my name and is created for my glory. I have formed them; indeed, I have made them” (Is 43:6-7).

Since God created us so that we could glorify him, we should view our roles as business persons as opportunities to execute that calling. As 1Co 10:31 says, “Whether [we] eat or drink, or whatever [we] do, [we should] do everything for the glory of God.” Being created in the image of God means we should reflect God’s character. In other words, we should exhibit the fruit of the Spirit in our business relationships. Galatians 5:22-23 lists them: “love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control.”

But practically speaking, what does this look like in the business world? At least three implications guide us. First, a biblical worldview motivates us to work with excellence, giving our best effort. As Paul says in Colossians 3:23-24, “Whatever you do, do from the heart, as something done for the Lord and not for people, knowing that you will receive the reward of an inheritance from the Lord. You serve the Lord Christ.”

Second, we should strive to be the best possible employees. Though the job might be difficult and the boss unfair, our response to such issues should not be one of whining and complaining or loafing. We represent our Lord; we are “ambassadors for Christ” (2Co 5:20). And ultimately, our performance should be for an audience of One. We aim to please God above all. The first part of Colossians 3:23 says, “whatever you do.” It doesn’t say, “in certain things that you do” or “in a few things you do.” It says that in whatever work you do, you are working for the Lord and serving him. Therefore, whether our work is full-time or part-time, salaried or hourly, involves management or non-management, we are to work with enthusiasm and with our whole hearts.

In all our work we are to do labor “for the Lord and not for people” (Col 3:23). That adds value to what we do to earn a living. Our sense of accountability also increases because of this mindset because it reminds us that God sees everything, and we will be accountable to him for what we did and how we did it. If we view our work from a biblical worldview, we will excel in our efforts and attitudes, thus setting an example for others to follow, bringing more value to our companies and gaining larger platforms from which to share the good news of Jesus Christ.

Third, a biblical worldview motivates us to be servant leaders having the same servant attitude as Christ. In Jn 13:15-16 Jesus says, “For I have given you an example, that you also should do just as I have done for you. Truly I tell you, a servant is not greater than his master, and a messenger is not greater than the one who sent him.”

Jesus constantly taught his disciples to have a servant mindset. He did not have a problem with a person trying to excel or better himself, but he reminded them that no matter their position in life, they needed to be servants. Jesus gave us a poignant example of servanthood when he washed the disciples’ feet—a task which was usually the responsibility of a lowly servant. After that he provided the greatest act of service by voluntarily going to the cross to die for the sins of mankind.

As Christians we are to have the attitude of servants, remaining willing to do whatever it takes to get the job done. When there is a crisis in the business, and the proverbial “ox is in the ditch,” we must be willing to do anything needed—whether or not it is part of our job description—to get things back on track. We ought to look for ways to serve others regularly. By doing so, we will not only be a help to others but will also add value to the organization.

When a person adopts a servant attitude, he becomes a team player. This is the opposite of one who lives with a silo-builder or turf-protector mentality, only concerning himself with his own area and how everything affects him. Being a team player, who is willing to sacrifice and serve others, will bring a spirit of unity to the team and will increase the potential for success.

Those in a position of leadership are to embrace servant leadership even as Jesus embraced it as he led his disciples. Employees are not there to serve their Christian bosses and managers; rather, such leaders are to serve alongside their workers. Leaders who care and have a humble, servant’s spirit, in fact, will find new opportunities to share about the One who motivates them to serve in such a manner.

Fourth, a biblical worldview leads us to be people of integrity. Proverbs 10:9 tells us, “The one who lives with integrity lives securely, but whoever perverts his ways will be found out.” Similarly, Pr 28:6 says, “Better the poor person who lives with integrity than the rich one who distorts right and wrong.”

Integrity is acting with a personal commitment to honesty, openness, and fairness. It is not merely holding a moral or principled idea or position, but doing it. There is no cramming for a test of character. An exam always comes as a pop quiz, so believers must determine the qualities that will shape their behavior and live them out.

As Christians embracing a biblical worldview, we will be honest in all our dealings. We must not make promises we cannot keep. We ought not misrepresent our products or our companies. We must not lie on our expense reports or fudge sales numbers. Instead, we must routinely practice the Golden Rule: we must treat others as we would want to be treated (Mt 7:12).

Integrity is essential to good leadership. And while a charismatic personality will draw people to a person, only integrity will keep them there. The more followers that see and hear their leader being consistent in action and word, the greater their own work consistency and loyalty will grow.

What we do will flow from who we are. The outer person will reflect the inner. Who we are on the inside is who we will be on the outside. Adopting a biblical worldview will lead us to live with integrity, granting us opportunities to make a kingdom impact on everyone we encounter throughout our careers.

3:9-10 The Hebrew word ('inyan) translated task is also associated with wearisome, endless labor in 2:23,26; 4:8; 8:16. It is something God has given to people, and 1:13 describes this task as "miserable." Since fulfilling work preceded the fall (see Gn 2:15), this seems to be alluding to God's judgment of sin through death (see the note on 1:2-3; Gn 3:17-19).

3:11 Even in the midst of changing times (vv. 1-8), God is sovereignly working through them for his own wise purposes, which include final judgment (vv. 16-17; 8:12-13; 12:13-14). Human frustration with death, transience, and being forgotten (1:11; 2:16; 9:6,15) relates to the fact that God has put eternity in [our] hearts. See Responses to Transhumanism," p. 615; "The Existence of God," p. 849.

3:12-13 Like 2:24-26 (see note), the possibility of joy in this life by the grace of God is highlighted. The phrase enjoy the good life could be translated "do good while they live."

3:14 In contrast with human works (2:18-21), God's works are eternal, which engenders respect for him (5:7; 7:18; 8:12; 12:13).

3:19-20 Both animals and humans are subject to the same fate, death (see the note on 2:13-16). The statement all come from dust, and all return to dust alludes to Genesis 2:7 "the Lord God formed the man out of the dust" and 3:19 "you are dust, and you will return to dust". This last statement was part of the judgment on the sin of Adam and Eve (Gn 3:6,11,17).

4 Again, I observed all the acts of oppression being done under the sun. † Look at the tears of those who are oppressed; they have no one to comfort them. Power is with those who oppress them; they have no one to comfort them. 2 So I commended the dead, † who have already died, more than the living, who are still alive. 3 But better than either of them is the one who has not yet existed, † who has not seen the evil activity that is done under the sun.

THE LONELINESS OF WEALTH

5 The fool folds his arms † of the wind. †

7 Again, I saw futility under the sun: 8 There is a person without a companion, † without even a son or brother, and though there is no end to all his struggles, his eyes are still not content with riches. † "Who am I struggling for," he asks, "and depriving myself of good things?" This too is futile and a miserable task.
9 Two are better than one because they have a good reward for their efforts.
10 For if either falls, his companion can lift him up; but pity the one who falls without another to lift him up. 11 Also, if two lie down together, they can keep warm; but how can one person alone keep warm? † 12 And if someone overpowers one person, two can resist him. A cord of three strands is not easily broken.
13 Better is a poor but wise youth than an old but foolish king who no longer pays attention to warnings. † 14 For he came from prison to be king, † even though he was born poor in his kingdom. 15 I saw all the living, who move about under the sun, follow † a second youth who succeeds him. 16 There is no limit to all the people who were before them, yet those who come later will not rejoice in him. This too is futile and a pursuit of the wind. †

CAUTION IN GOD'S PRESENCE

5 Guard your steps when you go to the house of God. Better to approach in obedience than to offer the sacrifice as fools do, † for they ignorantly do wrong. 2 Do not be hasty to speak, and do not be impulsive to make a speech before God. God is in heaven and you are on earth, so let your words be few. † 3 Just as dreams accompany much labor, so also a fool's voice comes with many words. † 4 When you make a vow to God, † don't delay fulfilling it, because he does not delight in fools. Fulfill what you vow. 5 Better that you do not vow than that you vow and not fulfill it. † 6 Do not let your mouth bring guilt on you, † and do not say in the presence of the messenger that it was a mistake. † Why should God be angry with your words and destroy the work of your hands? 7 For many dreams bring futility, so do many words. † Therefore, fear God.

THE REALITIES OF WEALTH

8 If you see oppression of the poor † and perversion of justice and righteousness in the province, don't be astonished at the situation, † because one official protects another official, and higher officials protect them. 9 The profit from the land is taken by all; the king is served by the field. † †

10 The one who loves silver is never satisfied with silver, and whoever loves wealth is never satisfied with income. This too is futile. 11 When good things increase, the ones who consume them multiply; what, then, is the profit to the owner, except to gaze at them with his eyes? 12 The sleep of the worker is sweet, whether he eats little or much, but the abundance of the rich permits him no sleep.

13 There is a sickening tragedy I have seen under the sun: wealth kept by its owner to his harm. † 14 That wealth was lost in a bad venture, so when he fathered a son, he was empty-handed. 15 As he came from his mother's womb, so he will go again, naked as he came; † he will take nothing for his efforts that he can carry in his hands. 16 This too is a sickening tragedy: exactly as he comes, so he will go. What does the one gain † who struggles for the wind? † 17 What is more, he eats in darkness all his days, † with much frustration, sickness, and anger.

18 Here is what I have seen to be good: † It is appropriate to eat, drink, and experience good in all the labor one does under the sun during the few days of his life God has given him, because that is his reward. † 19 Furthermore, everyone to whom God has given riches and wealth, † he has also allowed him to enjoy them, take his reward, and rejoice in his labor. † This is a gift of God, † 20 for he does not often consider the days of his life because God keeps him occupied with the joy of his heart.

5:1-7 Sustained attention is given here regarding worship (v. 1). In keeping with the instruction to fear God (v. 7; notes on 3:14; 12:13-14), the speaker urged careful consideration for what one says and vows before him (vv. 2-6).

5:10-11 Wealth's inability to satisfy was also highlighted in 2:8-11 (see also 1:8; 6:7).

5:15 Wealth can be quickly lost and cannot be retained after death. The words, "as he went out from the womb of his mother, naked he will return, to go as he came" (lit), have much in common with Job 1:21: "Naked I went out from the womb of my mother, and naked I will return there" (lit).

5:18-20 In stark contrast with the dismal life and end of the godless (vv. 13-16), the speaker reminds the reader of the possibility of good (v. 18; 2:24-26; 3:12-13) and that not all has to be a "sickening tragedy" (v. 16). By the grace of God (v. 19), those that please him (2:26) can instead be occupied with . . . joy (v. 20), instead of with "much frustration, sickness, and anger" (v. 17).

6 Here is a tragedy I have observed under the sun, † and it weighs heavily on humanity: † 2 God gives a person riches, wealth, and honor † so that he lacks nothing of all he desires for himself, † but God does not allow him to enjoy them. Instead, a stranger will enjoy them. This is futile and a sickening tragedy. 3 A man may father a hundred children and live many years. No matter how long he lives, † if he is not satisfied by good things and does not even have a proper burial, † I say that a stillborn child is better off than he. †
4 For he comes in futility and he goes in darkness, and his name is shrouded in darkness. 5 Though a stillborn child does not see the sun and is not conscious, it has more rest than he. 6 And if a person lives a thousand years twice, but does not experience happiness, do not both go to the same place?

7 All of a person's labor is for his stomach, † † yet the appetite is never satisfied.

8 What advantage then does the wise person have over the fool? † What advantage is there for the poor person who knows how to conduct himself before others? [9] Better what the eyes see than wandering desire. † This too is futile and a pursuit of the wind. † †

CAPITALISM AND A CHRISTIAN WORLDVIEW

Capitalism is a term that may seem to go right along with freedom, apple pie, and soccer mom. Many, if not most, Western Christians would certainly agree. But should they?

The global financial crisis of the early twenty-first century caused many to lose trust in free-market capitalism. For example, in his book, A Failure of Capitalism, Richard Posner, who once vigorously defended free-market capitalism, expressed serious misgivings about it.
